The MBTA has requested that the town form a committee comprised of town officials to participate in the design of the rail line. In addition to that committee, I favor the formation of our own town study group that would represent the interests of residents and businesses. This group would work with town officials in developing a plan that best suits the interests of Cohasset.

For example, this group would look at methods of reducing the train's impact on residential neighborhoods. It could also examine how to site the station to most benefit local business. I continue to stress the importance of having a plan in place instead of reacting to proposals from the state.

Martha Gjesteby, selectman

The Greenbush Line restoration has been approved by the current administration, but the final environmental report has yet to be approved.

As a town official, I will demand compliance with all safety issues. Of special concern is the Pond Street area. I will work to have the Greenbush Line create a station in the center of town as well as a reconstructed town parking lot.

The railroad bed which is owned by the town will be taken by eminent domain. This will bring money to the town.

The restoration of the Greenbush Line will help the commute to Boston as well as the environment. I will support the restoration if the state decides to go ahead with the project.

Nan Roth, selectman

Travel to Boston from Cohasset has always been a challenge. With major construction on the Central Artery over the next 10 years, rush-hour driving will be terrible. The boat provides a good alternative, but it doesn't connect to other public transportation or take everyone where they need to go. The T requires a drive to Quincy. T parking is costly and fills up early.

That leaves the train as the only other available commuting alternative. The state says that the Greenbush Line will be constructed, whether we like it or not.

As the train line is constructed, we must be vigilant in protecting the safety of all citizens, the rights of abutters and the integrity of the environment. We must make a special effort to ensure that the train is minimally disruptive to our community and negotiate strong agreements to that effect with the MBTA.

We should recognize that the train can be a vehicle to revitalize downtown Cohasset. A "walk-on" station (without parking) in the village would allow many commuters to walk to the train. Property values would increase overall by making our town even more attractive than it is already. Finally, a train station could provide the pedestrian traffic needed to make downtown shops profitable.

• School committee: why does the school budget have line-item autonomy at town meeting? Should that be changed?

Rick Shea, school committee

State law governing the "support of public schools" stipulates that town meeting shall establish the total appropriation for the schools, but may not limit the authority of the school committee to determine expenditures within that total appropriation. One reason for this law was a desire to take "politics" out of school hiring and other detailed spending decisions. A negative aspect of this law is that taxpayers might feel they cannot comment on or influence school spending choices.

I strongly believe that taxpayers should review, comment on and influence the school committee on school budget matters, even at a very detailed level. However, I do not believe that town meeting is the appropriate forum for a line item discussion.

Taxpayer input is much more helpful and relevant when received during the budget review process. The school committee holds open budget review meetings on each of the three school budgets, then has an open meeting with the advisory committee. There is one final open budget review meeting just before the town meeting.

The challenge for the school committee is to make this process work so that interested taxpayers can participate in a meaningful way. Sometimes formal processes do not result in a dialogue in which each side is really listening to the other. I have proposed holding informal breakfast meetings to discuss school matters. I will also use the three local newspapers to better communicate on school issues of concern to taxpayers.

Keith Knowles, school committee

While approximately 60 percent of our tax dollars go to the school budget, the components of that budget are exempt from town meeting involvement. Beyond approving or rejecting the budget in its entirety, citizens at town meeting are unable to affect the appropriation for individual items. This restriction is by state regulation, and essentially cannot be changed by an act of Cohasset voters.

Given that fact, it is incumbent upon those who are concerned with how the school budget is developed to become actively involved in the process. Other than school stalwarts, few citizens attend school budget hearings, nor are they aware of those hearings. Unfortunately, those who do participate are not always provided with the documents needed to properly evaluate the budget requests.

As a school committee member, I intend to publicize the meetings at which budgets will be presented, providing concerned citizens with the ability to participate in that process. Beyond that, I will insist that sufficient copies of each administrator's budget be available to those attending the hearings and any other concerned citizen. By actively involving taxpayers in the process, those concerned with the issue will be in a far better position to act on the final budget.

Owen L. O'Malley, school committee

I believe that the school budget was originally given line-item autonomy in order to insulate the schools from political control.

Ironically, due to influence of the National Education Association, and certain outside groups, such as Planned Parenthood and various gay and lesbian organizations, the schools have become more and more politicized.

Public schools have no business promoting AIDS awareness courses, sex education, extremist environmental groups, and multi-cultural attacks on Western civilization.

Yes, I believe that the schools should not have line-item autonomy, and should be more open to public review.

• Treasurer-collector: what is the town's bond rating? Why is it important? Can it be improved?

Patricia Anne Walsh, treasurer-collector

As of May 1995, the town's bond rating changed from A to A1, which as far as I know is the highest, but we have to be careful that the town's bond rating doesn't go down.

The bond rating is important because the town is able to get acceptance by investors and not failure as occurred with a recent state issue.

Joe Buckley, treasurer-collector

In May 1995, Moody's Municipal changed Cohasset's bond rating from A to A1, based on the following key factors: a residential community near Boston with wealth levels well above the state's; sound finances; comfortable reserve levels are maintained; debt position is strong; considerable additional borrowing is expected.

Another factor is the fact that voter support for recurring operating overrides and debt exemptions has provided additional financial flexibility.

The town's bond rating is like our credit rating — the better it is, the easier it is to borrow and receive better interest rates.

To improve the bond rating, we have to increase our assets; in other words, keep our property values up. That can be accomplished by maintaining our schools, building new schools (even better with the aid of state funding), installing sewer systems, keeping roads in good shape and having pride in our property and town.

We must maintain a strong, stable administration, fiscal responsibility and good labor relations.

My personal opinion is we should do everything possible to maintain our present rating while we improve our schools and sewer systems. We are still in a good position to borrow to accomplish this. Then our property values will be higher, and by paying down on some of our debt, our bond rating would improve.

Wigmore Pierson, treasurer-collector

The town's bond rating in May 1995 by Moody's was set at A-1. It is important to keep the cost of borrowing as low as possible, and a high bond rating keeps the costs low.

According to my financial sources, it is unlikely that the town's bond rating can be improved beyond its already outstanding rating.

• Planning board: will Cohasset's part of Route 3A look like Route 53 in Hanover in a few years? What can the planning board do to prevent that?

Terry Atherton, planning board

Route 53 in Hanover is typical of the strip-mall development that has occurred in many suburban areas since the late 1950s. This type of development is visually unattractive and can create horrendous traffic problems. Unfortunately, it could happen in Cohasset. The time to have eliminated the possibility of this type of development was back in the 1950s, when zoning was first established in many South Shore communities.

Unlike Hingham and Scituate, where much of Route 3A was zoned for residential use, the property along Route 3A in Cohasset was for the most part zoned for highway business. As a result, the ability of the planning board to block development is limited. However, the zoning bylaws do include a number of provisions that allow the planning board to control how development occurs. Fast-food restaurants, for example, would require a special permit.

By carefully reviewing development proposals to insure that they conform to zoning bylaws, the planning board can prevent the type of uncontrolled strip development that has occurred in other towns.

Mike Mullin, planning board

Before we undertake any new commercial development, I would like to see Cohasset fill the empty shops downtown. I realize the Village is somewhat isolated. We need to give shoppers an incentive to make the trip. Any new business approved should offer its patrons convenience and value.

Along the same lines, although I am personally opposed to the train, I do believe we must make the best of a bad situation by supporting a Village stop. The additional foot traffic could be the boost needed to fill the empty storefronts.

Route 3A in Cohasset cannot support the traffic that strip malls and fast-food places would generate. That's one of the reasons we've limited commercial development thus far. The addition of Shaw's will create even more congestion.

Our section of Route 3A was not designed to handle the traffic which Routes 53 and 139 do. For the safety and convenience of Cohasset residents, as well as other travelers, the planning board must limit commercial overdevelopment of Route 3A.

Question of the Week:

This was the final week for Question of the Week. Next week's issue will feature candidate profiles.

The Cohasset Mariner will not accept letters from candidates or letters endorsing candidates. The Mariner will publish letters about campaign issues up until the March 28 issue before the election.

Candidates are encouraged to advertise their campaigns in the Mariner. For information about deadlines and costs for political advertisements, please contact Judy McCaffery Perry or Claudia Oliver at 1-800-649-6661.

Question of the Week

• Water commission: Cohasset officials, unlike those in many other South Shore towns, have said the town's water problems are related to distribution and not supply. If that's the case, is there a need for residents to practice water conservation?

John Rafferty, water commission

Until last summer, Cohasset's water problems were primarily related to distribution, but as the summer drought continued and demand increased because of the new mains, Cohasset began to have a supply problem. Despite a water ban last summer and heavy autumn rains, consumption for the period of August 1995 through January 1996 increased almost 40 percent over the same period in the prior year. That resulted in seriously diminished water reserves until heavy autumn rains brought levels back to normal at year end.

We have a three million gallon per day plant at peak capacity and a large supply of water from the Aaron Reservoir and Lily Pond watersheds, versus demand of only 0.7 million gallons a day on average and 1.2 million gallons per day at peak. Accurate long-term supply/demand forecasting will remain difficult until further distribution system improvements are completed this summer. We simply need another year of new demand data to establish new supply/demand baselines.

Until the water department clarifies Cohasset's new average and peak water demand, it remains prudent for residents to practice conservation. The potential addition of 225 new North Cohasset residents presents further complications. I believe the water department should proactively communicate various demand and supply measures to town officers, and develop a long-term water resources plan to maintain our wonderful source of clean, healthy water.

Richard Muncey, water commission

Water is the most taken for granted utility people have. You can live without every other utility, but you can't live without water. It doesn't matter how much water is available — there is always a need to conserve it. Only the future will tell us where our supply will lie.

• Sewer commission: could Cohasset save some money by buying into the proposed pumping station in the west corner area of Hingham rather than using the North Cohasset fire station site?

Ted Guild, sewer commission

Cohasset's engineers and Hingham's engineers are studying the cost of pump stations in their respective towns in the West Corner area. We have discussed the possibility of sharing a pump station jointly, and I expect this will prove to be the most economical solution.

We will not know, however, until Hingham's engineers determine the location of their proposed pump station and its cost. The most important point at this time, however, is that Hingham and Cohasset are communicating on this subject with the objective of evolving the optimum solution for both towns.

We have drafted an intermunicipal agreement under which Hingham would share 50 percent of the cost of Cohasset's pump station and would thereby reserve 50 percent of its capacity. The two towns are substantially in agreement on this text, and we will ask for town meeting approval on Saturday (Article 5 of the special town meeting) in case this proves to be the optimum financial solution.

If Hingham does decide that it is in its best interest to purchase 50 percent of the Cohasset station's capacity, this will reduce capital costs in the North Cohasset sewer service area by roughly six percent. Similarly, I would expect a comparable reduction in cost if the Hingham pump station proves to be the more economical alternative.

Candidates' Corner

McMorris events planned

Cohasset selectman candidate Roseanne "Ronnie" McMorris will appear at two events this week, offering residents the opportunity to attend and discuss town issues.

Margy Charles will hold a coffee on Friday, March 29, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at her home. On Sunday, March 31 at 3 p.m., Merle and Joan Brown are inviting friends and neighbors to their home to meet Ronnie.

For information or directions, call Mary Foley at 383-9289.

Nan Roth plans coffees

The Committee to Elect Nan Roth to the Board of Selectmen will hold coffees every Sunday until Election Day. Anyone who would like to meet Roth and discuss her views on town government is welcome to attend and should call coffee chairmen Margie Steele (383-1319) or Ann Whelan (383-0034) for time and location.

SAFE presents candidates night at 8 p.m, March 28

SAFE (Stop Any Further Expansion) will present a Meet the Candidates Evening on Thursday, March 28, at 8 p.m. in the Bancroft Gallery of South Shore Art Center.

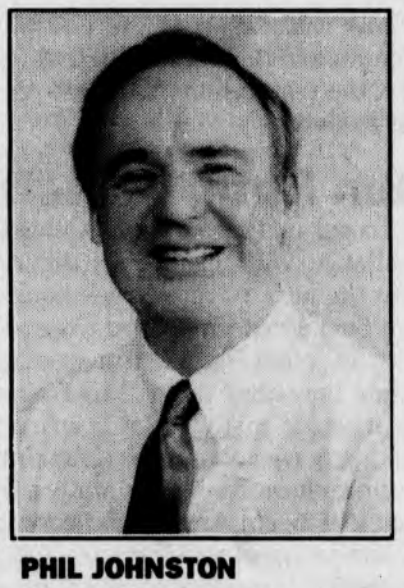
Candidates for the board of selectmen, board of health and water commission will make brief presentations and answer questions from the audience. Coffee, dessert and informal discussions with individual candidates will follow the presentations.

Election supper is tonight

The Beechwood Congregational Church is holding an Election Supper on Thursday, March 28, at 6:30 p.m. The supper has been a church tradition for more than 75 years. Candidates are welcome to come early to chat with constituents in a relaxed atmosphere, with each candidate introduced before dinner is served.

A family-style roast beef dinner, beverage and dessert will be featured. The public is invited to attend. Tickets are $6.99 for adults and $3.50 for children. To make reservations, call 383-1298.

Johnston campaign reception planned



PHIL JOHNSTON
Seeks Studds' seat

The public is invited to meet Phil Johnston, Democratic candidate for the 10th Congressional District, at a campaign reception on Sunday, March 31, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Chart house, 44 Border St., Cohasset.

The event will be co-hosted by Rep. Frank Hynes (D-Marshfield/Scituate) and Marshfield Selectwoman Faith Jean.

Johnston recently resigned his post as New England director of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to launch his campaign for the seat being vacated by retiring U.S. Congressman Gerry Studds.

Prior to his appointment by President Clinton, Johnston served as director of the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial in Washington, D.C., an institution which has focused on social justice and human rights for more than 20 years. Johnston served as secretary of human services in Massachusetts from 1984 to 1991. From 1975 to 1983, he was a five-term state representative from the 10th Plymouth District.

For more information about the benefit reception, call Phil Johnston for Congress headquarters at (508) 747-1996.

New school is cost effective

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In 1972 we were members of the School Facilities Committee, which recommended renovations and additions to the Osgood and Deer Hill Schools at a cost of $1.4 million. The committee's recommendation did not receive the required two-thirds vote at Town Meeting.

Twenty-five years have passed, educational space requirements make existing school space even less appropriate, and the buildings have deteriorated further. Fixing up the Osgood School is not a good option. Cohasset would have to pay for 100 percent of any renovation cost, and the result would still be substandard space. A new school which meets contemporary educational requirements, built on the Deer Hill property with 60-percent state funding, is far and away the most cost-effective solution.

We urge all citizens to vote to support this project at the March 30 Town Meeting and the April 6 override election.

Sewer users shouldn't foot entire bill town. We should remain a community of sharing and caring, as we all did in the past when the Town of Cohasset paid for the Elm Street plant. The unfunded mandate from the state is to our entire town not just the small areas in North Cohasset and Central/Hillside areas. Where was the support of this board back in the '80s when the Metcalf and Eddy report was presented to the town with 95-percent funding?

If the policy of the users' fees is applicable to this sewer project, then it would be logical to conclude that the Chairman of the School Committee mandate the parents of only the children attending Cohasset Schools to pay for the $9 million school bond, and the parents of children riding the school buses pay the $180,000 cost for new buses!

Please vote no on Article 4 at Special Town Meeting.

'New school' questions welcomed

To the Editor:

Saturday, March 30, the School Facilities/Building Committee will bring a school building proposal to the floor of Cohasset Town Meeting. This project differs from the proposal presented in January in that it asks only to replace the present Osgood School with a new preK-3 elementary school. Renovations to the Deer Hill School are no longer included in this project.

We feel that the original project, defeated by just 28 votes in February, would have best met Cohasset's future educational needs in a fiscally responsible way. However, we must at this time provide an educationally adequate facility for our elementary school population, and we cannot ignore the condition of the much beloved but dangerously aging Osgood School. The reasons for replacing the Osgood are many (i.e. space, safety), and they have been discussed in numerous forums over the past year. The Cohasset School Committee unanimously and wholeheartedly supports the School Facilities/Building Committee's recommendation to replace the Osgood School now. It's an educationally sound decision.

We would urge anyone who has questions about this project to contact one of the members of the School Committee, or Superintendent Steve Hart. Your questions will also be welcomed at Town Meeting.

Repairs, not new school, needed

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

March 23, I had the delightful experience of touring the Joseph Osgood Elementary School. I found the school to be charming, and most of the classrooms bright and open. My tour guide was very sociable and helpful. She escorted me through the entire building. I saw the old shooting range and even climbed up to the attic. At the end of the tour, I walked down one side of the outside of the building and looked at the roof and wall.

I must say it is my perception that the School Committee, School Facilities Committee, superintendent and principal have failed the citizens of the town and the students and staff of the school. I saw a building that was in need of maintenance. I saw a building that has been neglected. I saw a building that is not clean. The vents were all dirty and some of the exhaust fans needed to be taken apart and cleaned of grease and dirt. I saw clutter in a stairwell leading to the attic storage area. I saw areas of the building that could be used but have not been touched. I saw hallways with student storage cases in them that should be in the classrooms. I saw a very nice play yard for the children that the administration has allowed to become a parking lot. I saw bathrooms for the students that needed to be properly maintained.

I must also say I feel that the taxpayers of the town have been misled. The School Committee and the School Facilities Committee have failed to do their jobs. The School Committee should have a policy that insures proper maintenance of the buildings that the taxpayers have entrusted to them. The School Facilities Committee, according to the Town By-Law..."shall, as circumstances require, investigate and study the condition and adequacy of school facilities, and shall report to Town Meeting its recommendations as to major maintenance and remodeling of present buildings, additions thereto, new buildings, and location and acquisition of sites."

In my opinion, we are faced with some major repairs to a building that is worth keeping in our school system. We do not need a $9.89 million project to solve a lack of proper maintenance and an obvious breakdown of systems. The major problem we have with our schools, today, is poor management.

I urge all citizens to attend the Town Meeting March 30, and to vote no for a new school. I also urge citizens to mandate that those who are entrusted with the care of our buildings do the job!

Support revised school proposal

To the Editor:

As a resident of Cohasset for more than 40 years, whose three children attended the local schools from K through 12, we strongly support the proposal to replace the Osgood School. Partly this reflects a sense of responsibility to provide succeeding generations the opportunities and advantages that our own children enjoyed. Their schooling here prepared them well for college and their subsequent careers, as well as sharpening their understanding of education as a priority in a complicated world.

But party too, it reflects concern for the future of this special town. In conversation with an Andover realtor, we learned that North Andover had also failed to pass an override requiring additional investment in the schools. The realtor asserted that property values showed an immediate decline. "It is the most shortsighted action a town can take," she said. "The first question I am asked from people interested in buying property is about the schools, irrespective of whether there are schoolage children in the family." One person's experience, maybe. But if true, it warrants second thoughts from all those who either failed to vote the first time, or who found the original price too high.

The revised proposal is the very least we can do to ensure a bright future for Cohasset's children and for the town.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

TURN-KEY CONDOS

QUESTION: I'd like to buy a condo as a second home but don't have the time, inclination or money to furnish it. Any thoughts?

ANSWER: Investing in a condominium as a second home can make a great deal of sense.

You can expect: rental income possibility; outstanding tax benefits; and all the joys of ownership in that the equity builds up as the mortgage is reduced and the value of the property should rise in this market.

If you don't want the bother of decorating, there's the "turn-key" condo and it is particularly popular in resort areas. It comes completely furnished and ready to move into.

Attendance at town meeting urged

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

Two capital expenditure items: replacement of the Osgood School and Wastewater System Improvements (Sewage) will dominate the March 30 Town Meeting agenda and may commit townspeople to spending an estimated $27,000,000.

I hope people will remain open-minded until all the facts are discussed. The Osgood School needs to be replaced and putting more students into the junior/senior high school is not a good idea. Unfortunately, none of us really know what replacement of the Osgood School, as currently proposed, will cost. After the $13.4M Override Article was defeated, I attended a School Facilities Meeting and realized that the engineers couldn't risk proposing a less costly architectural scheme because they had not done sufficient engineering analysis. This was not entirely their fault because they did not receive funding last year to do the analysis. Hopefully, they will have the facts ready for us on March 30.

I do strenuously object to misinformation in the flyer being distributed by supporters of replacing the Osgood School. The engineers and school officials have clearly stated that adding onto the Deer Hill School would save $1M in construction costs, and I believe that better common-use facilities and substantially lower overhead costs would be realized. If we want a stand-alone PK-3; let's give the reasoning and not misrepresent the financial implications.

The sewage articles are no less compelling. Because the project is being phased, many people may not realize that the March 30 Town Meeting will really commit us to spending an estimated $17,000,000; not just the $5,000,000 for the Straits Pond portion. Article 4 proposes that the users pay 100 percent of the cost. If this happens, the 260 households in the Straits Pond area will see their sewage costs jump $1,400 to $1,500 per year. The 580 businesses and households in the Village/Hillside area will see their costs jump $1,900-$2,000 per year.

If there was ever a reason to participate in the Democratic process; it will be Saturday, March 30.

School proposal endorsed

To the Editor:

As parents of children who attended Cohasset's public schools in the 1960s and 1970s, we wholeheartedly endorse the current proposal to build a new school to replace the Osgood School on the Deer Hill property for $9.9 million.

Having recently had a tour of the Osgood School, we were dismayed by the amount of deterioration and the crowded, undersized classrooms and play areas. The children of today deserve the right to enjoy the same excellent education in safe, sound, uncrowded facilities which our children had. A new school need not be extravagant but should certainly meet minimum standards.

We understand and sympathize with many townspeople's concerns about the impact of the expense of building a new school on their real estate taxes. They should keep in mind, however, the encouraging fact that the state is expected to pay for 60 percent of a new school as contrasted with nothing for renovations to Osgood. The deadline for this state funding is fast approaching, and now is the optimum time for the town to make this critical investment.

We urge Cohasset's fair-minded citizens to vote for the current proposal to build a new elementary school, both at the Annual Town Meeting March 30 and also for the override at the Town Election April 6.

School will benefit all

To the Editor:

Cohasset desperately needs a new elementary school now while we can share in state funding. As school physician for the last 40 years, I can attest to this need. As a small example of the crowding over the years, I present the Health Room which has been moved all over the building to meet changing needs, from an inside closet room in the cellar opposite the furnace to its present reduced area almost out the front door. Our sick youngsters must share this area with the overworked attendance lady, who also checks on lunch money and multiple other minor problems as she tries to keep the entrance clear to the inadequate teachers' bathroom.

The school personnel have contended with this archaic building with grace and good humor, but they must be running out of steam.

Let us do what is right and vote for a new school now for the benefit of all our citizens, who want what is best for our children and for ourselves in this very special town.

School department to check out private busing option

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

In keeping with the advisory committee's recommendation to consider capital budget items in the fall and general budget and emergency items in the spring, the school committee revised some requests.

The committee voted to move the article for a new auditorium at the the high school to the town meeting in the fall.

Another article called for the purchase of a new bus for $90,000.

The school committee discussed switching to private transportation in order to save money. If that route is chosen the bus would be dropped as an article.

School Superintendent Stephen Hart said he had received bids from two major and two smaller busing companies.

He said that it would cost the school department and the town less if a combination system, with a vendor and some in-house routes, was used for Cohasset's busing needs.

The in-house service would serve special needs and accessory routes, such as trash disposal.

The regular, kindergarten, late, and athletics routes would be handled by the contracted company.

As part of the agreement the new company would hire all of Cohasset's bus drivers.

The cost for the combined service would be approximately $176,000.

If Cohasset stayed with the busing system in use now, it would cost approximately $212,000.

A major reason for the jump in price is an increase in insurance costs and the buses themselves.

Hart added that maintaining the busing system takes a lot of administrative time.

Hart said after the meeting that if the advisory board agreed with the committee's assessment of the situation then the $90,000 bus would be removed as an article.

In other business, the school committee:

• Unanimously passed the approximately $7.2 million 1997 fiscal year budget. The budget represents a five percent increase over last year, which can mostly be attributed to technology and special education. There is also an additional position for an elementary teacher at Osgood School.

"We do look very closely at the budget," said Hart. "We do implement zero-based budgeting," which means that the line item figures are revisited every year.

• Unanimously passed the performance standards for teachers and administrators with the superintendent's recommendation.

The standards will be submitted to the teacher's association where they will be bargained.

The performance standards are mandated by the state under the Education Reform Act.

There are eight standards, such as delivery of instruction, classroom management and currency of curriculum.

Another big piece of the standards is that the teachers and administrators set their own goals.

The standards contribute to professional development and will influence staff management decisions, such as reduction in force.

Cohasset had its own set of evaluation standards before it was mandated by Education Reform, and the instrument was right in line with the future recomendations.

"The evaluation instrument we have is one of the best in the state," Hart said.

Ryan Sawchuk, a student represenative to the committee, said all teachers should pass out student evaluations, so the students could make some suggestions. Only some teachers pass out evaluations now.

• Voiced their continued support of the Cohasset Lobster Lab, an educational facility where students would get hands-on experience in science, at the Hagerty property.

There is an article on the warrant that gives the selectmen authorization to sell the Hagerty property.

• Approved the formation of a girls lacrosse club team. The team will be on a self-supporting basis to see if interest maintains, if it does it will become school supported. Approximately 40 girls have gone out for the team.

• Approved an out-of-state trip for the boys lacrosse team to travel to Gilford, Conn. on March 30.

Barnes Field improvements

Bob Moody told selectmen Monday night that he wants to make Barnes Field, where Little League games are played, "somewhat like Fenway Park."

He plans to remove the green wood behind the back stop and replace it with fencing. The bleachers would be moved slightly away from home plate and placed behind the fencing and dugouts.

The field itself will receive sod and the Hingham Institute for Savings has donated an electronic scoreboard.

He agreed with selectmen that parking along North Main St. is dangerous and a parking plan will be reviewed.

Art exhibit at Chart House

An art exhibit featuring four local artists opened Friday night at the Chart House.

About 50 people gathered to toast the artists at a reception held in the lounge area of the restaurant. General manager Ed Sopneski, along with his assistant Marjorie Devoe, contacted Maureen Stebbins about organizing art exhibits that featured the work of local artists. These exhibits are scheduled to change about every eight weeks. A reception for the artists will celebrate the opening of each new exhibit.

The four artists featured in the current exhibit are: photographer Melinda Brown and watercolorists: Rita Kirk, Patricia McCarthy and Maureen Stebbins.

Everyone is encouraged to stop in and view the paintings and photographs which are for sale.

Anyone interested in exhibiting in a future show at the Chart House should contact Stebbins at 383-0279.

Local artists: Rita Kirk, Patricia McCarthy, Melinda Brown and Maureen Stebbins pose by some of their art work on exhibit at the Chart House. Exhibits will change about every eight weeks, organizers say.

Gourmet eatery gets its food license

The new owners of the Village Gourmet, plan to open a fancy food store at the 5 South Main St. location.

Denise and Gary Bismore told selectmen last week that the space is being remodeled, with the counter on the left as customers enter, and 16 seats on the right. They are not increasing seating.

Denise Bismore said the new restaurant will be called The Silver Spoon Cafe and will feature bagels, muffins, deli food, rotisserie chicken, fruit, cake and coffee.

She said it will be "more upscale" than the Village Gourmet.

With a background in catering and in food distribution, Denise Bismore will be the president of the parent company, Dapper Dan's Inc., which will do business as the Silver Spoon.

Gary Bismore, who will be the vice president, is an executive chef.

Selectmen approved the common victualler's and Sunday licenses pending approval from all town departments, such as wire and building.

Coffee brewing is topic at seminar

"Brewing the Perfect Cup at Home" is the topic of a seminar offered by Jim Ganke of Quikava on Sunday, April 14, at 1:30 p.m. at South Shore Community Center. Fresh baked muffins will be served.

Characteristics of coffee, fundamentals of brewing, types of brewing, decaffeination process and specialty coffees and espresso will be discussed.

Quikava House coffee and travel mugs will be distributed, and there will be a raffle. Tickets are on sale at SSCC for $5 by April 3 and for $7 thereafter. Call SSCC at 383-0088 for further information.

Palm Sunday organ recital at St. Stephen's

As part of its recital series, Fredrick Guzasky, organist and choirmaster at St. Stephen's Church, will present an organ recital Sunday, March 31, at 3 p.m. Featured composers include Dupré, Heiller, Bach and Rheinberger. Guzasky is also on the faculty of the Boston Conservatory. As a recitalist, he has performed in New England and the Midwest, as well as in London, receiving the Boston University Outstanding Performance Award and the EMACT Award in conducting. Highlights of more recent seasons include a tour of Russia and Latvia with an engagement at the Dom Cathedral in Riga.

As a composer, he has to his credit several Masses, numerous choral anthems and several instrumental works. Guzasky is also author of the "Gregorian Chant Handbook," and regularly gives chant workshops in the Boston area.

Guzasky began his studies in organ at the age of seven with A. Sligting of the American Conservatory in Chicago. He has since attended Harvard, Millikin University, the University of Illinois, Northwestern, and has attended Eastern Illinois University for his masters and Boston University for his doctoral studies.

The church, at 16 Highland Ave. in Cohasset, has handicap access, and plenty of parking in the village lot. For information call (617) 383-1083.

Easter egg hunt is April 6

The Cohasset Recreation Commission will conduct its annual Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday, April 6, at noon at Deer Hill School for children ages 3 through 11.

The Easter Bunnies will arrive by Cohasset fire truck at 11:45 a.m., and the hunt will begin at noon.

The annual egg hunt is made financially possible by donations from Cohasset Police Association, George H. Mealy, American Legion Post #118, Rotary Club of Cohasset and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #9146, Cohasset.

Parenting workshops offered

Two Pre-school Parenting Workshops are being offered at the Cohasset Community Center on April 9 and 16, from 12:45 to 2 p.m.

On April 9, the topic will be "Understanding Behavior and its Influences" and "The Goals of Misbehavior."

"Methods of Effective Discipline" will be discussed on April 16.

Workshops are open to any Cohasset parent of pre-school-aged or younger children and will be led by Frank Fitzgerald, adjustment counselor at Osgood School.

"Parenting Young Children" by Dinkmeyer and McKay will be utilized during the workshop. The book is available at Buttonwood bookstore. To register, call 383-6117.

Story hours at library

Registrations are being accepted for Spring Preschool Story Hour at Paul Pratt Memorial Library. The sessions will be held on Thursdays and Fridays at 10 a.m.

Each 45-minute program consists of several picture book stories and simple fingerplays, songs and crafts. Children must be at least 3-1/2 to participate. To register, call the library at 383-1348.

Life stories provide window to the past

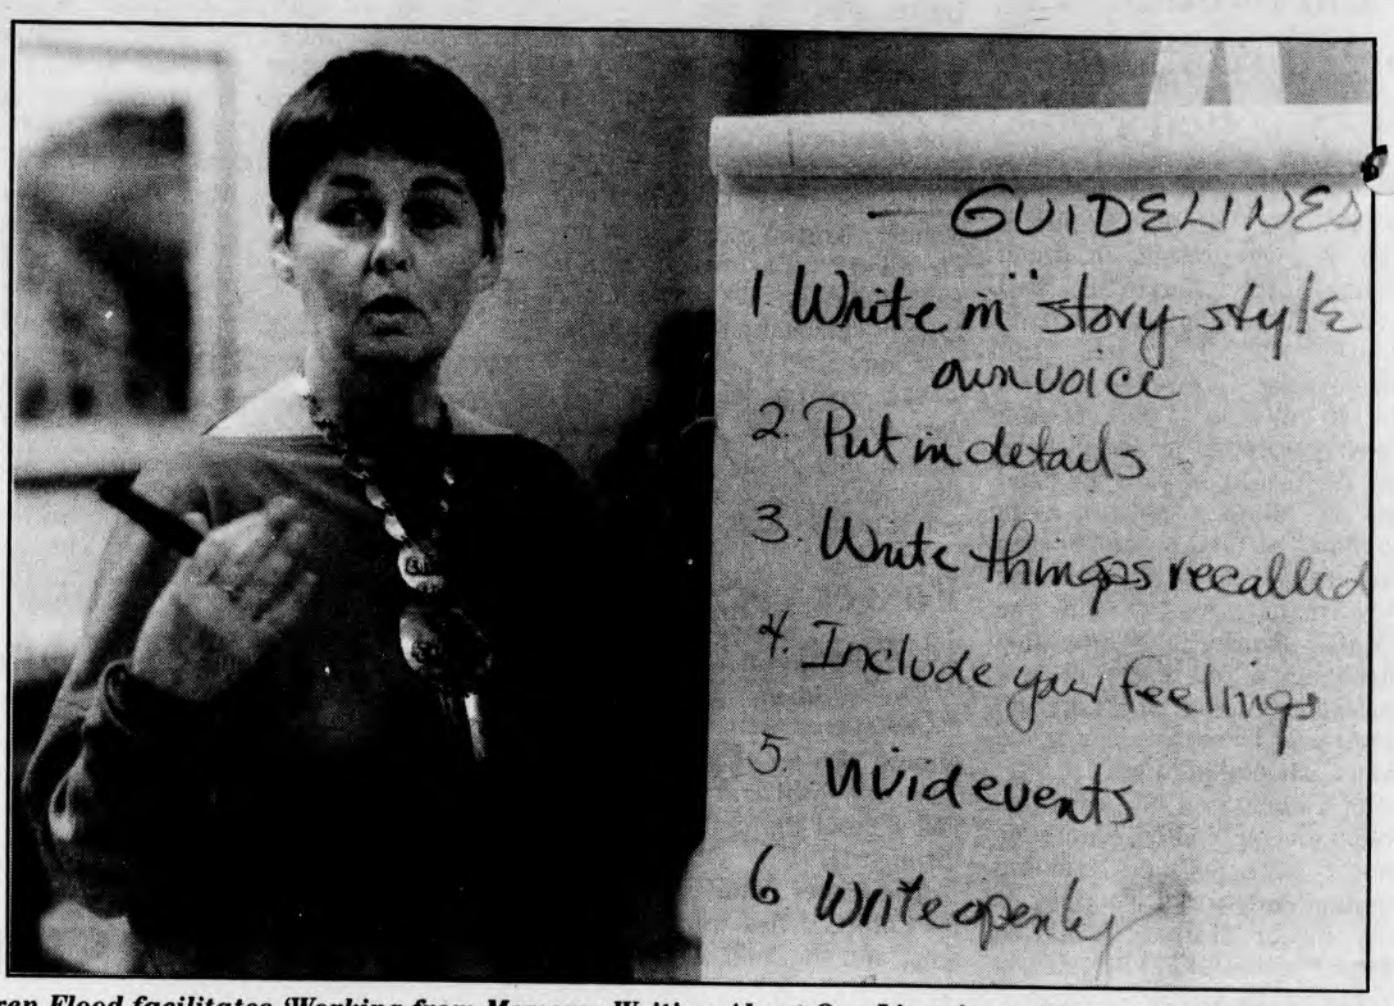
By ALISON SHYER
Special to the Mariner

When her daughter died last year, Norma Childress realized that it was left to her to be the family historian. Rhonda, who was 55 and suffered from a rare blood disease, had always been the one who did the family's remembering for them.

Mary Edmonds calls herself a frustrated journalist. She complains that in her generation no one asked any questions, no one got any answers. She's been thinking lately that she'd like to leave something behind for posterity, answer some of those questions.

'This work fell into my lap, but I quickly realized what a privilege it is to be a witness to people's life stories.'

— Karen Flood, workshop facilitator.



Karen Flood facilitates 'Working from Memory: Writing About Our Lives,' a writing workshop sponsored by the Council for Elder Affairs at the community center.

Both Childress and Edmonds — and eight other area senior citizens — just wanted a little technical support, needed a little push to document their decades of memories and insights. Enter Karen Flood and "Working from Memory: Writing about our Lives," a writing workshop sponsored by the Cohasset Council on Aging.

Flood, who is a private consultant, was hired at the last minute, when the original facilitator canceled. She has a degree in psycho-spiritual development from Lesley College, and jumped at the chance to run the class for senior citizens at the South Shore Community Center. She says she is not a writing teacher but is more concerned with helping people "access their memories and the meaning of their lives."

Until this class, Flood had never worked with seniors. She spends much of her time counseling, as she puts it, "from her own values." She is enthusiastic and highly concerned with the notion of personal development. Her clients tend to be school systems, therapists and even the Girl Scouts. She seldom works with corporations. "It's not about a profit motive."

The format according to Flood, was really up to the class. She merely set guidelines. One of her few rules was, "Don't ask any question you're not willing to answer yourself."

"I just wanted to build non-critical, non-judgmental ways of listening to stories. The idea was to enable them to share their stories, stories that need to be told."

After the first class and what Flood called "getting to know you time," each week everyone was asked to write two pages. The first few topics were assigned — "How did you get into your major life work?" for one — but as the weeks went by, the topic was left to the individual.

The workshop was originally scheduled to run only four weeks but ended up lasting 12. "It was clear almost from the beginning that four weeks wasn't going to be enough," said Flood. The class got permission from the center and continued.

At each two-hour meeting, some people would read what they'd written, some wouldn't. The criticism was not about right or wrong but about openness. The discussion and feedback was constructive: What worked? What posed a challenge? What would the listeners like to have heard?

Peter Palmer, 73, a semi-retired consultant and the only male in the group, said that the uncensorious atmosphere of the class "makes for a very pleasant get-together. You know you're not going to get put down."

Egged on by his wife Jean, 64, who also took the class, Palmer added that the success of the group must be credited to the fact that there were (almost) only women: "Nobody tries to take over," he conceded, "if there were men in the group, someone would always want to go first."

Indeed, for the participants — nine women and one man, with ages ranging from 64 to 83 — this method seemed to work well. They continue to meet on their own once a month.

The Palmers, who are from Dedham, said that they had long been discussing their mutual desire to document some of their history, including their family tree, but needed help with "style and learning how to get it all down." It was just coincidence that they noticed an ad in the Boston Globe for Flood's class.

Eleanor Smith, 83, retired 16 years ago from her job as the director of the Tufts Library in Weymouth. She had seen so many people in search of family histories — her own brother had done some genealogical research — and decided that she'd like to do some chronicling of her own. Besides, she said, "I haven't done much since I retired and I needed something to get me going."

Edmonds, a retired nurse, decided to write about the Coconut Grove fire, in which 490 people were killed. She had only been a nurse for about a year on that night in 1943, the same night as the big BC/Holy Cross game (whose outcome she can't remember) and her brother's wedding. It was after 1 a.m. when she was picked up and brought to Cambridge City Hospital, and then later Boston City Hospital. She worked for two straight days and did everything — treated the wounded, identified the dead and even made toast. After those two straight days of pain, death and misery, Edmonds never again reunited with any of the people next to whom she "did many things I had never done or seen before." After 53 years, Edmonds said, "I kind of think I'd like to leave something that's never been told."

Flood started another workshop on March 20 at the Cohasset Community Center, this time the eight-week workshop meets once a week.

"This work fell into my lap," she says, "but I quickly realized what a privilege it is to be a witness to people's life stories."

Although Kathy Bryanton, the director of the Cohasset Council of Elder Affairs, originally spearheaded this program in conjunction with Quincy College, future "Working from Memory" workshops will be held independent of the college. Bryanton introduced this class — as well as many others — because she "is not of the philosophy that bingo is what you should be doing in the senior center."

The class meets on Wednesday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon. For more information, call the senior center at 383-9112.

Nurse recalls Coconut Grove fire

The following excerpts are from the writing workshop at the senior center.

After two days, when things were beginning to get organized, I was relieved...My white uniform was long gone — everyone was in scrubs — hundreds of us — most of us nameless. I remember putting my head down on a cot several times, but I was always awakened 'cause someone needed either me or the cot.

I was going to write a profound dissertation about my tiny part in the Coconut Grove inferno one day — but so much of that has dimmed. And the words never did quite tell the story. It was more than 50 years ago. But I will never forget the smell.

— Mary Edmonds, 78, Cohasset

It's late 1945. I've been in the Army almost four years, but the war is finally over. Now I have to make some decisions concerning my future...I could stay in the Army. I was offered a commission as a radar officer. But what would my future be in the peacetime Army without a college degree?...To me, the choice was obvious. I'd had enough of the Army with its regulations, red tape, dress code, and do-what-you're-told-and-don't-rock-the-boat attitude...However, my interests were directed toward engineering school — career and family would come later.

— Peter Palmer, age 73, Dedham

I believe Helen was the fourth or fifth child to be born to the couple who were my maternal grandparents, making her my mother's sister. I knew nothing about her or that she ever existed until I was a teenager...she left the homestead in her late teens or early 20s to venture on her own, never to live with her biological family again...Helen did make an attempt to see her mother again, but that was thwarted by her protective brother...She was a woman ahead of her time all right, unfortunately she suffered for here independence. The Bannon family actually disowned her and that is what is truly sad...What a price she paid to be on her own!

— Jeanne Palmer, age 64, Dedham

I had met a wonderful Cadet at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy to whom I was married in 1934. This began a life so different from my former sheltered life. I was quite timid and unsure of myself. It was the era of formal calls, calling cards, white gloves and hats. Before my husband and I made a call on a senior officer and his wife, we studied up on current events in order to have something to say for the required 20-minute call. My husband was pushing me up the steps to the house and I was balking all the time, saying, "I can't carry on a conversation for 20 minutes." As anyone who knows me now — I certainly overcame that problem and probably have overdone it.

— Norma Childress, 84, Cohasset

The best cruise I ever sailed on was in late June and early July of 1973. It was a trip to the west coast of Africa to see a total eclipse of the sun, the longest total eclipse until the year 2150...The cruise was organized by many astronomy clubs, planetariums and university astronomy departments. The group had chartered a British ship, the P&O Lines Canberra, and had arranged a fine program of speakers, including the astronauts Scott Carpenter and Neil Armstrong, Isaac Asimov, the science fiction writer, and others....Heading for Africa, we were soon out of European shipping lanes and saw few other ships. We were a world unto ourselves...The day of the eclipse arrived, Saturday, June 30th. Long before the appointed hour, astronomers were filling up the deck space with telescopes, cameras and tripods. Gradually the shadow began to cover the sun. At the moment of totality, the corona was brilliant and it lasted for six minutes.

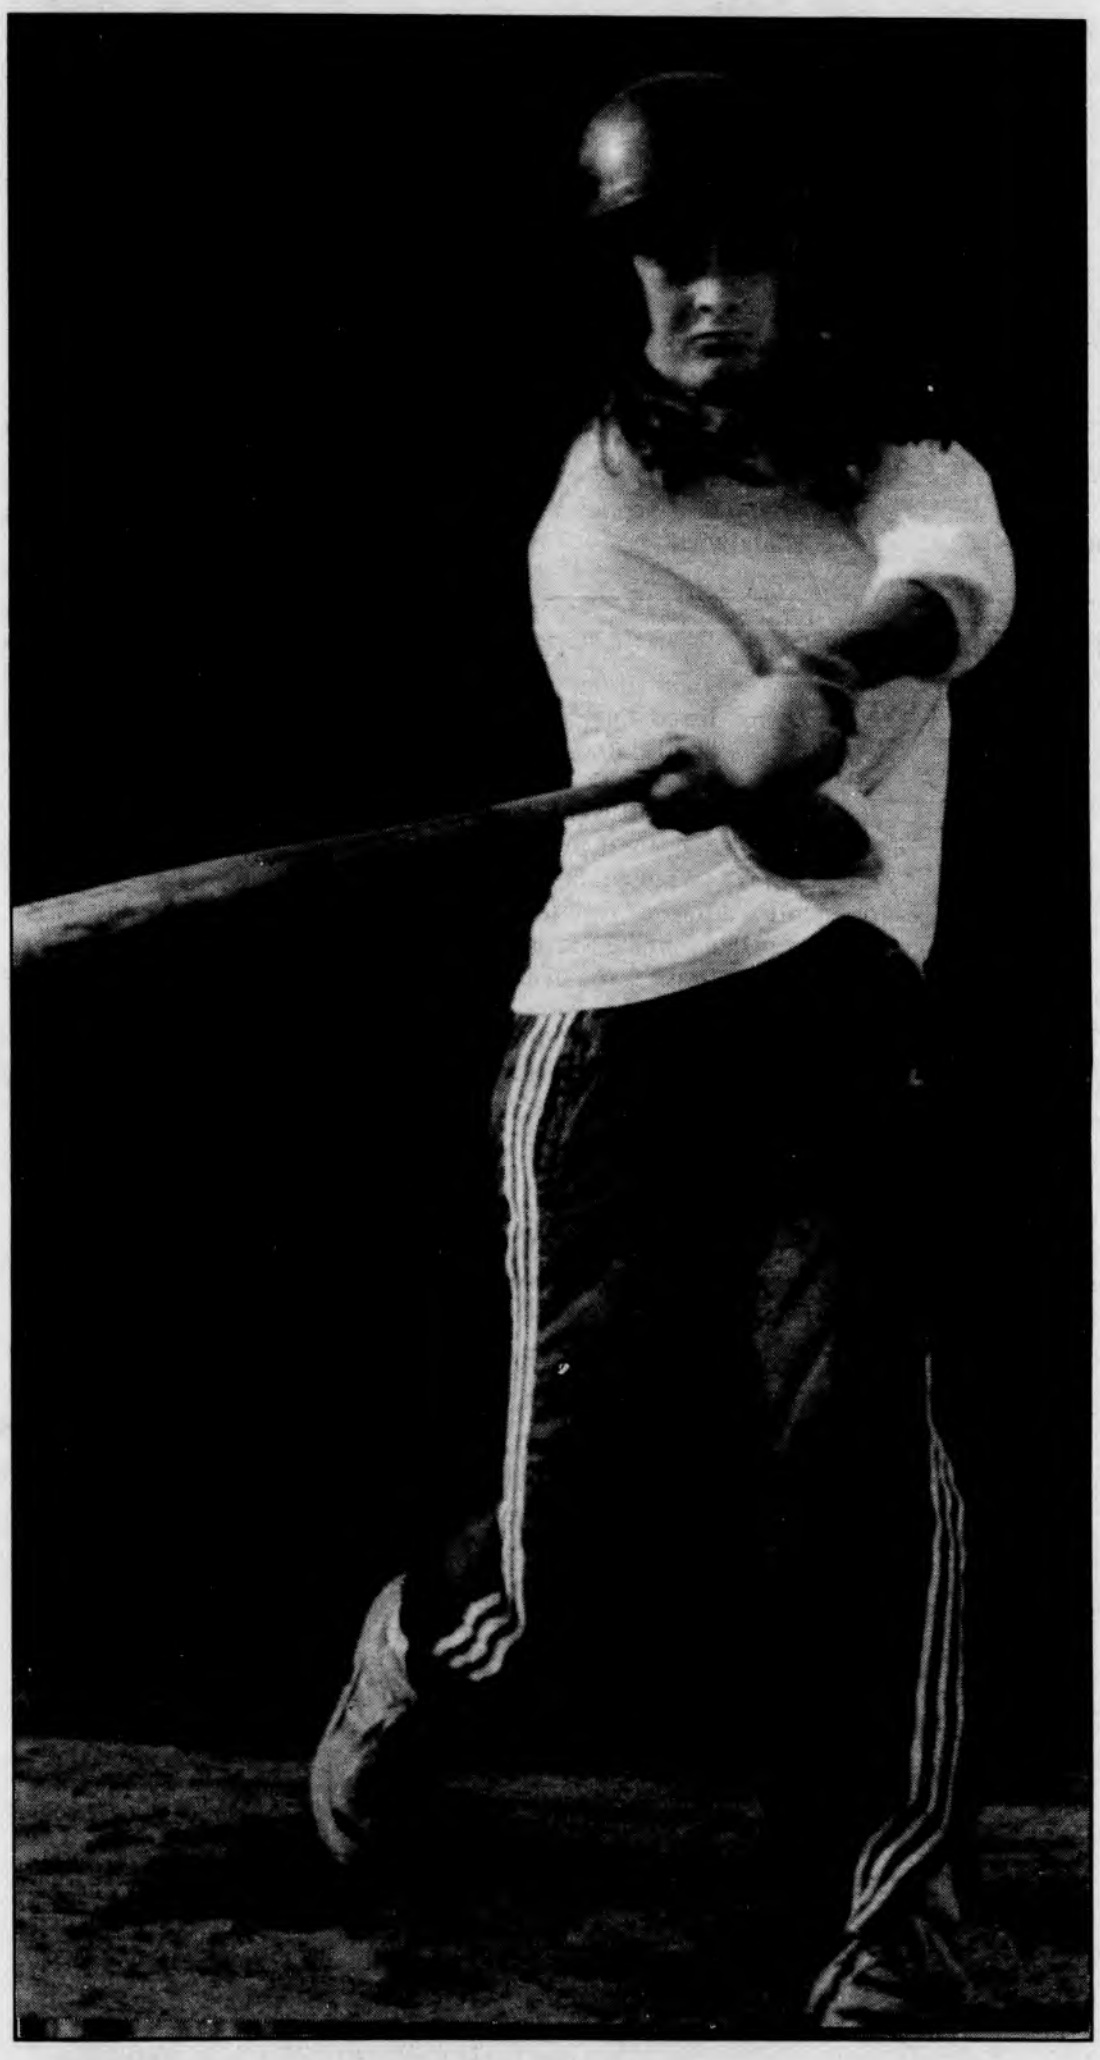
March (Race) Madness!



High pre-registration puts race on record pace

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

The usually tranquil Cohasset Common will be anything but this Sunday.

Pre-registration for the 20th Annual Cohasset Road Race by the Sea is up a whopping 50% from last year with just over 450 runners. That statistic alone practically guarantees the largest field ever will gather behind the starting line at 1 p.m. in front of the South Shore Community Center. Last year's race is the biggest to date with 850 official entrants.

The possibility of a record-setting field is just fine with co-director Tom Gruber, a member of the Cohasset Rotary Club. The club is sponsoring the race in cooperation with the SSCC.

"I think it's good for Cohasset," Gruber said. "The road race is bringing in lots of runners and I assume they don't come alone. It's a great showcase for the town with a couple of thousand people milling about.

"That's as big as Harborfest, practically."

In past years the majority of local runners have registered for the race the day before from 9 a.m. - Noon at the SSCC. Those runners not from the area fill out their entry blanks from 9 a.m. - Noon on race day.

The fully sanctioned 10K has also served as a tune-up for the Boston Marathon, which is held two weeks later. Gruber believes part of the reason for the expected large turnout is the fact that Boston is celebrating its 100th anniversary.

But that's not the only reason. Many of the same faces make Cohasset a not-too-be-missed race on their competitive calendar because of the efficient manner in which it's run and the course's overall charm.

Starting at the common it proceeds down Elm Street and turns onto Atlantic Ave. Runners pass Sandy Beach and then begin the winding stretch of Jerusalem Road, easily the most scenic section of the race. The course then turns onto the infamous Forest Street hill near the five-mile mark and then takes a left onto North Main Street and the finish in front of the town hall.

Cohasset has been ranked as one of the most scenic races in New England on the pages of New England Runner magazine and is also a fast course under favorable weather conditions.

Saturday is supposed to be clear with temperatures in the 50s. Gruber is hoping Sunday's weather is just as conducive to road racing.

"If Sunday is a continuation of Saturday it should be a good day," Gruber said.

Gruber said the partnership between Rotary and the SSCC in sponsoring the race has been a good one. The SSCC is sponsoring a dance and auction at The Chart House on Friday night beginning at 7:30 p.m.

"I think they've responded very nicely with their help" Gruber said.

Gruber also commended the work done by the Rotary, not just with the race, but other projects as well.

"We're always there to help out the community," he said. "We don't have a lot of members, but we do a lot for the people of Cohasset."

Olympic champion to attend race

Herb Elliot, the gold-medal winner in the 1,500-meter race at the 1960 Rome Olympics, will be the special guest at Sunday's Cohasset Road Race by the Sea.

Elliot, the greatest miler of his era and a legend in his homeland of Australia, is a former world record holder and retired from track racing undefeated in his premier event. He will be riding in the lead vehicle at the race.

Cohasset High softball player Megan Fahey steps into a pitch during practice. High schools along the South Shore opened their spring sports practices this week in anticipation of next week's season-openers in several sports.

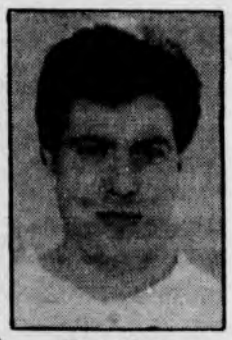
Don't dive into world of sports cards



Reardon

The visions are still vivid. You'd buy a couple of packs of baseball cards, tear them out of their wax wrappers and chew the rectangular piece of sweet gum, sifting through the cards to pick out the stars. In the mid '70s when I was buying cards routinely, a George Brett, Pete Rose, Carlton Fisk, Johnny Bench or Hank Aaron card would more than make up for an otherwise lousy pack.

Times have changed drastically, however. These days, where the special "insert" cards have added a new dimension to the market, dealers practically ignore the rest of the pack in search of that magic subset gem.

Cards spell money for dealers. And depending on how adept they are at buying and selling, these weekend warriors can make some serious money.

Dealers come out of the woodwork come Saturday and Sunday, set up tables they've paid between $20-50 each for in various function halls and malls around New England and try to peddle their array of cards, autographs and memorabilia.

The sports card market has been saturated with new companies, sets and special "limited edition" cards. Trying to keep up with all the new products is practically impossible.

But those who have the itch to start collecting again or try their hand at dealing sports cards need not get frustrated. Newcomers should decide what cards they want to deal or collect after attending a few card shows to get a feel of what interests them.

Unfortunately, because the bottom line in card dealing is profit, there are a number of dealers who will try to get your cash no matter what. I can count on one hand the number of card dealers and store owners I trust 100 percent. Of course there are other honest ones out there, but I haven't made the rounds enough to get to know them as well as some others.

So here's a few pointers of how to get started, what to avoid and some hints in buying cards.

*Start off small: Buy a few packs of cards at a local store or card show. Sift through them. Depending on the company and sport, you may just pull an insert.

*Check the value of the cards: While there are a number price guides for sports cards, nearly all dealers and collectors swear by the market cost from Beckett magazine. The periodical puts out a baseball, football, hockey, basketball, car racing and future stars price guide. The guides list the "star" players' price as well as the subsets and their prices. Players not listed by name are commons or semi-stars.

*Put any card worth $1 or more in a soft sleeve and top loader: Soft sleeves are good for those cards at less than a $1, but I recommend adding a top loader, which you can purchase at shows or shops, for those cards over $1. This seems to be the norm for most dealers, but it does fluctuate. The top loaders protect the card from "dinged" or worn corners and help keep the card in mint condition.

*Never pay full price for a card at a show: Why pay full price when there's no need to? Most dealers sell their cards at 25-50% off depending on what the card is. If a dealer wants the full price for a card, just walk away. You can do better with a little hunting around.

Buy low and sell high: This is tricky but it can be done. This is the key to business and financing no matter what the product. Sports cards are no different. There are dealers out there who will sell some of their cards far cheaper than the total price value. You have a better chance of getting cards at lower percentage if you have plenty of cash on hand. This is what the smart buyers do. One dealer I'm friends with has purchased cards as low as 15 percent of their total value. But dealers know he'll buy his cards on a weekly basis. He's a savvy dealer who's fearless when it comes to parting with a buck. In the end, both dealers are happy with their transaction.

*Be very careful buying autographed cards or memorabilia: The exception are cards in autographed subsets that are listed in price guides. Autographed balls, pucks and caps should come with a certificate of authenticity. But bogus certificates can be produced pretty easily. Again, buy autographs from a dealer or store owner you trust. I've heard of show dealers who forge signatures at the show then put them in their display cases at very expensive prices. Be warned.

*Be selective in your collecting: If you're a Ken Griffey Jr. fan, why not stick solely with Junior's cards? One collector I've met is a huge Dante Bichette fan and he buys nothing but the Colorado Rockies star's cards. Whether they be quarterbacks, goalies, pitchers or teams, every collector has a favorite category.

*Have fun: Sure, there are a lot of skunks in the business, but that comes with the territory. Most importantly, buy cards you like. Collect the players you want to collect. There is no written rule you have to have the biggest, most expensive collection on the block. Enjoy what you're doing and don't go broke doing it. After all, they are only cards.

South Shore Hospital is the first hospital in Massachusetts to earn consecutive maximum accreditation with commendation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

Second education foundation spelling bee spells success

By JIM KINCH
Special to the Mariner

The crowd was multitudinous, the tension was incessant, and some of the contestant's voices were tremulous at the start of the Second Annual Spelling Bee sponsored by the Cohasset Education Foundation on Wednesday, Feb. 28.

Rick Shea, CEF president, called the group at the high school cafeteria to order, and announced the incredible success of the event. Nearly thirty three-person teams (sponsored both by individuals and corporations) had raised more than $5,000 to fund the Skillful Teacher Program, in which Cohasset teachers are trained in techniques to improve their classroom skills.

Curt Collins, principal of Cohasset High School, served as moderator. As friends and family cheered them on, teams ranging from the "Wannabees" in matching caps and tee-shirts to "The Wise Men" (the Revs. Gary Ritts, Cliff Cutler and John Mahares) battled for the championship. Pencils scratched and papers flipped as each round progressed. Most teams fared so well in the beginning that Collins moved quickly to the toughest category to define the best spellers. The ranks began to thin as teams stumbled on words such as calculiform, trichinosis and jocosity. After 90 minutes, "The Soccer Club" (David Buick, Paul Cotter and Terry Kahn) were triumphant, and were awarded gift certificates to The Fire King Restaurant in Hingham. The second place finishers, "Carolyn's Hornets" (Carolyn Horn, Regina Shultz and Kyle Lubitz), won gift certificates to Buttonwood Books.

The war of words was videotaped by Jody Doyle, so that those who missed the fun can view it Friday, March 8, at 7 p.m. on Channel 3.

Much of the credit for the success of the event goes to the organizing committee of Chairperson Pam Speed, along with Midge Stone, Jack McCarthy, Rick Shea and Rick Flynn.

Special thanks go to the corporations who sponsored teams: Dunkin Donuts (two teams), Hingham Institution for Savings, Nitrogas, Hunneman Coldwell Banker and Hallmark 100.

The very generous donations of prizes and refreshments from The Cohasset Pizza House, Victoria's, Papa Gino's, Stop & Shop, Don Stazsko, Ed Kane and Betsy Detweiler are gratefully acknowledged.

The CEF has promised that next year the words will be even harder, so keep the dust off of those dictionaries.

Teen Center bake sale set

On Saturday, April 6, at the annual town Easter Egg Hunt, the Teen Center will sponsor a bake sale. Bakers are wanted and those who can find the time to support this community program and supply some baked goods will be appreciated.

Cakes, cupcakes, brownies and all "wrappable," transportable baked goods are welcome. Call Rose Collins (383-0760), Paula Knowles (383-1331) or Rosemary O'Connell (383-6552) to volunteer. Donations may be dropped off at Deer Hill by 11 a.m. or arrangements can be made with a committee member for earlier drop off.

The Teen Center maintains an on-going wish list which includes end tables, table lamps, a small dorm-size refrigerator, and a Super Nintendo system. Financial contributions are welcome and may be sent to Cohasset Youth Resources, PO Box 11, Cohasset 02025.

PAC meeting is April 2

The regular monthly meeting of the Cohasset Parents' Advisory Council will take place at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 2 at the Deer Hill School library. Donna Hartlage, principal of Deer Hill, is the guest speaker. An informal discussion will follow. For further details, contact Ann Whitley (383-9310) or JoAnn Pilczak (383-0268).

Artistic youth recognized

Two Cohasset Junior-Senior High School students, Julia Chase and Liz Good, received honorable mentions for their outstanding artwork in the 46th annual Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards competition.

Special honors were given to all Globe art award winners at a ceremony Feb. 11 at the State Transportation Building in Boston.

The competition, which is designed to recognize and reward promising young artists and encourage them to continue their studies in fine arts, is open to all students in grades 7 through 12 from public, private and parochial schools across Massachusetts. The program is administered by the New England Art Education Conference in cooperation with the Massachusetts Art Educators Association.

For more information about the competition, contact The Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards at 482-1313.

Osgood video presented

The Cohasset Quality Education Committee is sponsoring presentations of a video about the Osgood School facility on cable television Channel 3 on the following dates:

- Monday, April 1 at 7:15 p.m. before and immediately following the selectmen's meetings;
- Thursday, March 28, at 5:30 p.m.;

Scholarships are available

Academic-year Ambassadorial Scholarships are awarded for one academic year of study abroad. Multi-year Ambassadorial Scholarships are awarded for two or three years of specific degree-oriented study abroad, and Cultural Ambassadorial Scholarships are offered for three or six months of intensive language study and cultural immersion in another country.

Students who have completed at least two years of college study and are interested in pursuing study abroad may contact Peter Pearce at (617) 946-4200 for details and an application.

Kindergarten screening set

In accordance with Section 306.1 of the Massachusetts Special Education Law (Chapter 766), Cohasset Public Schools will conduct a screening program for children who will reach the age of five on or before Sept. 1, 1996.

The entry screening program will take place at Osgood School on April 10 and 11. Contact the school secretary at Osgood, 383-6117, for more information.

STUDENT OF THE MONTH/Mike Coates

It is important to acknowledge that students deserve recognition not only for outstanding deeds and achievements but for daily behavior and attitude, which commands our attention over time. Even more so when they represent growth and maturity. In short, the little things add up and they don't go unnoticed. Such is the case with a recent nominee for student of the month, Mike Coates.

Mike seems to have heard the wisdom of the sages who call out to seniors, "this is your last year of high school. Carpe Diem!"

Mike has seized the day by joining the football team. Coach Knurek praised Mike's work ethic and noted that he "had a positive influence on younger players." Coach Knurek also acknowledged that Mike's daily commitment to practice resulted in "dramatic improvement."

Mrs. Wondolowski has also noticed Mike. "He's shown tremendous growth since I knew him as a sophomore. He conducts himself in a way that young students should emulate."

Mr. Buckley echoes his colleague's sentiments and sees Mike a young man who decided to set a tone for his final year of high school very different from his previous years. From his courtesy and kindness, to his new classes and new athletic endeavor, Mike is showing us that you can teach an old student new tricks.

— Mr. Buckley

Mike Coates

School council nominations due on Friday, March 29

Each of Cohasset's three schools has a School Council made up of the principal, teachers, parents and a community representative. The council is charged with formulating a school improvement plan and meets monthly. Parent representatives are elected for two-year terms by the parent body for each of the schools.

There are five openings for parent school council representatives: one at Osgood, two at Deer Hill and two at the Jr./Sr. High. Individuals interested in serving should submit their names and a paragraph about themselves and their interest in serving on the council to the PSO Nominating Committee, Box 30, Cohasset 02025 no later than Friday, March 29. The election will be held April 11 through 18.

All parents who will have children at a specific school for the two-year period 1996-98 are eligible to serve on the council. For further information, call nominating committee members: Kathy Ofsthun (383-9396), Lesley Faber (383-2071), Susan Meikleham (383-6151), Jean Muir (383-1850), Susan Pile (383-6088) or Mary Sullivan (383-6666).

Social Service League scholarship is offered

The Social Service League of Cohasset is accepting applications for a $1500 scholarship being offered to any Cohasset resident furthering his or her education in the medical or social work field.

Application forms are available from the league office at 16 Highland Ave. weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. or at Cohasset High School. Applications must be returned by April 12. For more information, call 383-0771.

Hospital offers scholarships

The Friends of South Shore Hospital, the hospital's 800-member auxiliary, is offering four $750 scholarships to local high school seniors who are planning a career in health care.

Eligible seniors must live in communities served by SSH and must have been accepted to study health care at an accredited higher learning institution. Other factors include financial need, high school records, recommendations of guidance counselors and personal references.

Applications are available at SSH's main lobby information desk, 55 Fogg Road, South Weymouth. Completed forms must be returned by Monday, April 15, to Ms. Winston Hall, scholarship Committee chairwoman, 11 Downing St., Hingham 02043. For additional information, call Ms. Hall at 749-0664.

Community Center classes

Quincy College and Cohasset Elder Affairs are offering classes at Cohasset Community Center.

"Broadway Here We Come!" will be taught by Steve Dooner. Broadway musicals will be explored through recordings, videos and in-class performances. ($39/$25 seniors, for four Tuesdays, beginning April 2, from 9 to 11 a.m.)

Jennifer Laiks will hold a "Women's Writing From Around the World" workshop, where some of the most exciting new voices in today's literature will be discussed. ($75/$25 seniors, for eight Fridays, beginning April 12, from 2 to 4 p.m.)

"Investing for Today & Tomorrow" with instructor Joan O'Neil-Zona will meet for three Wednesdays, beginning May 1, from 9 to 11 a.m. Income-producing investments, common stocks, mutual funds and variable annuities will be discussed. ($39/family, $25 seniors)

Steve O'Brien is currently leading a class on "World War II Remembered" on Wednesdays from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

All-female civil service list request upsets union, vets

Board perplexed by state refusal to provide list

By DAVID JOHNSON
Special to the Mariner

After being told the civil service commission refused their request for an all-female list, selectmen Monday unanimously voted to seek a state-wide civil service list.

Selectmen were not pleased the request was turned down.

The action comes a week after the police union unanimously charged selectmen with discrimination in seeking the all-female list and a strongly-worded letter from the VFW suggested the town may be sued if what it called anti-veteran discrimination persists.

The state-wide list contains names of candidates who have passed the civil service police exam, including women, from all over the state. The town must consider candidates from the top of the list, who agree to accept the position if offered, which allows those uninterested in working in Cohasset (for example for geographic reasons,) to be by-passed.

Town administrator Gregory Doyon reported that the commission "felt the reasons (Cohasset presented) were not serious enough," to justify releasing the all-female list.

Two of the town's 13 patrolmen are females. In addition, Doyon said the town did not cite the need for more women to handle rape cases or perform female search and seizures, which are acceptable reasons for requesting an all-female list.

"I find this very weird," said selectman Jane Goedecke.

Selectman Michael Sullivan objected to the restraints civil service policy places on the town.

"I believe we should be able to advertise and pick the best person available," he stated.

In addition, Sullivan criticized giving preference to veterans.

"I'm not comfortable with the fact that someone's being a veteran puts him at the top of the list," Sullivan said.

When health board member and candidate for selectman, Robert Davenport, asked him why, Sullivan said, "It's discriminatory. It's important to hire the best person."

He added the category of veteran "seems to be very general. We have no information on their record." Veterans are no longer "required to fight for their country," but do so voluntarily, he said.

In response to another question from Davenport, selectmen said the last veteran was hired 15 years ago.

Robert Beggan of the school facilities committee, told Sullivan, "as someone who was drafted and sent to Vietnam 30 years ago, I agree with you, get the best person possible."

However, the situation has infuriated many local veterans. In a March 21 letter to selectman chairman Merle Brown, Ralph Perroncello post commander of Cohasset's VFW, said the organization "has viewed with dismay the board of selectmen's blatant and clumsy attempts to bypass veterans from consideration for a vacancy . . ."

He went on to claim that Cohasset "presently has the highest percentage of female officers of any department on the South Shore."

The letter suggests lawsuits from individuals or groups. "By hiring veterans, possible costly litigation could be avoided and past oversights in hiring veterans could be rectified. Remember, support of our nation's veterans involves more than marching with veterans one day a year."

Selectmen Peter Pratt supported veterans' preference, saying it is justified th "the public sector remembers a sense sacrifice." He said the policy rema important in peace time.

Milliken Field questions

After considerable discussion about how soon Milliken Field will be ready for baseball, selectman Michael Sullivan agreed to talk with Wayne Sawchuk of the field committee and report back at the next selectman's meeting.

Peter Laugelle said that the contractor is not likely to be finished for a few days more.

School athletic director Clark Chatterton said that some games could be played at other sites, including Norwell High School.

However, he said that there are not enough suitable practice sites for the baseball team.

Legal bill questioned

As the town's free cash dwindles to alarmingly low levels, selectmen have been increasingly anxious to hold down the town's skyrocketing legal costs.

Monday night, they tabled action on a legal bill from special counsel Bernstein, Cushner & Kimmell, for $17,000.

Selectman chairman Merle Brown objected to items such as $950 for copying which were included in the bill.

However, other selectmen said the amount is likely high because Kenneth Kimmell has been representing the town at the Cohasset Heights Landfill hearings, which has generated an enormous number of documents which must be shared among the landfill, the town and the various citizens' groups involved.

Kimmell's total bill for work related to the hearings will likely be $38,000, higher than the $23,000 originally estimated.

Between November and June, Cohasset will likely spend close to $250,000 on the CHL hearings.

Milliken Field bill approve

A bill for $6,555 from R.A.D. Corporation for work at Milliken Field was approved last week by selectmen.

Road race bake sale okay

The grade eight student council received permission from selectmen last week to hold a bake sale on the common during the March 31 Cohasset Road Race.

Town election is Saturday

Voters to decide on new school

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

The proposed $9.8 elementary school survived a move for reconsideration at town meeting Monday setting the stage for Saturday's override vote.

The project qualifies for 60 percent state reimbursement, so the town's share is $3.97 million.

If the override passes, the owners of the typical Cohasset home valued at $242,000 will see a nominal increase in

60 percent turnout predicted

With contested races for five offices and an override for a new school on the ballot, Town Clerk Marion Douglas expects to have a busy day Saturday.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at town hall.

While the Feb. 10 special election, in which the override for a larger new school/renovation project failed by 28 votes, drew close to 43 percent turnout, Douglas expects Saturday's annual town

May 4 override slated

By DAVID JOHNSON
Special to the Mariner

In a special election Saturday, May 4, voters will be asked to approve a compromise agreement calling for the town to pay half of the Strait's Pond sewer costs. If the item fails, those connected to the sewer will pay all the costs.

The single ballot question will seek a debt exclusion Prop. 2 1/2 override of $3,163,000, which represents half of the $6.3 million cost.

Residents on the sewer line will pay the other half of the cost through betterments, and pick up the annual operation and maintenance expense, for an average of $800 per year per household.

The compromise sailed through an unexpectedly amiable town meeting last week on a 442 to four vote.

The compromise was made more attractive by the last-minute announcement that the state will pay a much higher portion of the project than originally stated, greatly reducing costs and eliminating the projected $2,500 hook up charge to each household on the sewer line.

With the additional state aid, the annual cost of the override on the average tax bill will be $45 per year, assuming Hingham also participates. If that town agrees to use the planned pumping station and pipes to send some of its waste water to the Hull treatment plant, it will reduce Cohasset's share of expenses.

If Hingham town meeting should not agree, then the average cost would be $51 per year for the next 20 years to Cohasset taxpayers.

The approximately 345 households in the Strait's Pond area will pick up the other half of the cost as betterments.

With Hingham's participation, betterment charges will average $388 per year for 20 years; without that town joining,

Cable TV committees claim little to negotiate

By CHARLENE VANDINI
Cohasset Journal

Although cable television committees in six area towns are ready to begin negotiating new licenses with Continental Cablevision, they learned Tuesday there are few items on the bargaining table.

Representatives of the state cable television commission told committee members that the towns cannot set rates, cannot require particular cable television channels, and are essentially bound to renew their towns' licenses with Continental Cablevision.

The towns of Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, and Scituate are all served by Continental Cablevision, and are now beginning the contract renewal process. Representatives from those towns meet this week at the Hingham town office building, with state cable television commission officials, and representatives of the cable company.

Several committee members wondered, in light of these state regulations, what there is left to negotiate.

Hingham committee member Donald Willy said the towns were not told, 15 years ago, that they would be required to automatically renew their licenses for cable television service.

"What is there to discuss?" he said. "Now we're told we have no options."

Drew Horn, also from Hingham, added, "We can negotiate, but we have no leverage."

Helen Koronaides, assistant general counsel for the state cable television commission, said that even if the town committees use one of the four criteria to deny license renewals, the cable company must be allowed to remedy their complaints

Cohasset's Week

Legal bill questioned

As the town's free cash dwindles to alarmingly low levels, selectmen have been increasingly anxious to hold down the town's skyrocketing legal costs.

Last week, they tabled action on a legal bill from special counsel Bernstein, Cushner & Kimmell, for $17,000.

Selectmen chairman Merle Brown objected to items such as $950 for copying which were included in the bill.

However, other selectmen said the amount is likely high because Kenneth Kimmell has been representing the town at the Cohasset Heights Landfill hearings, which has generated an enormous number of documents which must be shared among the landfill, the town and the various citizens' groups involved.

Between November and June, Cohasset will likely spend close to $250,000 on the CHL hearings.

Barnes Field improvements

Bob Moody told selectmen last week that he wants to make Barnes Field, where Little League games are played, "somewhat like Fenway Park."

He plans to remove the green wood behind the back stop and replace it with fencing. The bleachers would be moved slightly away from home plate and placed behind the fencing and dugouts.

The field itself will receive sod and the Hingham Institution for Savings has donated an electronic scoreboard.

He agreed with selectmen that parking along North Main Street is dangerous and a parking plan will be reviewed.

Changes ok'ed at Red Lion

Selectmen last week approved a change in the liquor license at the Red Lion Inn. Longtime manager of the restaurant, Philip Smith, whose name was on the original license, is no longer employed at the inn.

Carl Akerblom, who bought the business at auction for $300,000 earlier this year, will be on the license.

The change is only temporary, since a change in license requires a public hearing. Akerblom's attorney Paul Kauffman said they will seek a new license with a hearing. He said the new manager will be present to answer any questions then.

Selectmen wanted to know about Akerblom's experience in the restaurant business.

Kauffman replied that Akerblom, a longtime Marshfield resident, worked for three years at a Miami Beach club, serving as bartender for one year and two years as manager.

In addition, Akerblom told the board that he holds an associate's degree in business and runs a contracting business.

Milliken Field questions

After considerable discussion about how soon Milliken Field will be ready for baseball, selectman Michael Sullivan agreed to talk with Wayne Sawchuk of the field committee and report back at the next selectmen's meeting.

Peter Laugelle said that the contractor is not likely to be finished for a few days more.

School athletic director Clark Chatterton said that some games could be played at other sites, including Norwell High School.

However, he said that there are not enough suitable practice sites for the baseball team.

Elected officials get raise

Noting that the town offered three percent raises to employees in the unions, selectman Martha Gjesteby said last week that the non-union officials should receive the same.

Earlier, 2 1/2 percent increases were voted.

Selectmen approved the increase, which represents a $4,000 increase in the budget, unanimously.

Jean Simonds is thanked

At their meeting last week, planning board members thanked Jean Simonds, who is stepping down after five years on the board.

Simonds, who is regarded by town hall insiders as thoughtful and hard working, was thanked for her contributions to Cohasset planning. The other board members said they would miss her.

For her part, Simonds said she has enjoyed serving on the board.

Housing slated for Beechwood/Rte. 3A

Engineer Paul Mirabito told the planning board last week that the W. K. W. Family Ltd. Partnership intends to build eight small houses on the northwest corner of the intersection of Rte. 3A and Beechwood St.

Mirabito said the houses would be small and located on lots about 3/4 of an acre.

The planning board approved a Form A subdivision plan, which divides the land into lots, but does not constitute subdivision approval.

Jane Goedecke honored

Outgoing selectman Jane Goedecke received a standing ovation during last week's town meeting.

Goedecke is stepping down from the board, on which she has served since 1990.

She served on the advisory committee from 1985 to 1990.

Selectman Chairman Merle Brown praised her "great strength of purpose" and cited her "mental and physical vigor" while serving on the board.

Open space funds ok'ed; Turkey Hill stage set

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Town meeting authorized spending $12,000 for obtaining professional services to assist in the preparation of an open space and recreational plan for the town.

This sets the stage for the town to apply for state money to put toward the purchase 20 acres of "Turkey Hill" off Rte. 3A in Cohasset near the Hingham town line. The land will be used for conservation purposes and be managed by the Trustees of Reservations, the private conservation group which also owns Worlds End in Hingham and the Thayer and Whitney Woods Reservation, which is adjacent to Turkey Hill.

"(This plan) puts the town in position to apply for state grant money for acquisition of open space and recreational space," Conservation Commission Chairman Thomas Callahan explained.

He said if this plan had been in place, the town could have applied for state money to offset purchases of the Hagerty and Lily Pond properties, which the town bought several years ago.

Callahan said the $12,000 figure is based on the amount that Hingham and Norwell spent doing their plans.

The Trustees of Reservations has an agreement with the landowners, the Sapanaro family, for the purchase of Turkey Hill. The conservation commissions of Hingham and Cohasset have agreed to submit an application for state grant funding to support 54 percent of the acquisition costs. Hingham plans to purchase the 30 acres of Turkey Hill in that town. The Trustees and two other private groups, Hingham Land Conservation Trust and the Cohasset Conservation Trust have embarked on a campaign to raise private funds to support the acquisition.

Town meeting also authorized the town to investigate the "ways and means" of acquiring the land. Callahan said the "best guess" is Cohasset's share will be about $109,000 to be requested at the fall town meeting. The price for the entire parcel is about $932,000 including acquisition costs. The Cohasset portion (20 acres) is assessed at $336,000 with $6,400 in annual real estate taxes paid to the town, $1,400 of which is paid by the radio tower on the site and will continue, Callahan said.

He said the benefits far outweigh the town's loss of $5,000 in tax revenue for the site, which, as one of the highest hills along the South Shore, has a panoramic view of the Boston Skyline.

"It's quite a bargain to purchase a truly unique piece of property," Callahan said.

"Let's not pass this opportunity up."

Selectmen support original pay increase

Prior to town meeting, selectmen rescinded their vote of earlier in the week awarding three percent pay increases to elected officials and non-union local employees.

They had felt that the increase was in line with what the four union contract's awarded to employees.

However, after being told by John Seavey of the personnel committee, that the union contracts gave 2 1/2 percent raises, selectmen changed their vote.

Hoopmen are honored

In one of several resolutions Monday, town meeting praised members of the Cohasset High School boys basketball team on their 19-7 season, for their sportsmanship and fair play.

"They are a credit to themselves and their community," said the resolution read by school committee member JoAnne Chittick.

The team won the South Sectional Championship but lost to Winchester in the Div. 3 EMass finals at the FleetCenter, March 12.

Sprinkler system gets nod

The town has accepted provisions of a state law requiring installation of automatic sprinkler systems in lodging or boarding houses.

The Red Lion Inn is the only building in town that will be affected, Fire Chief Roger Lincoln said.

"The law was enacted after a rooming house fire on the North Shore claimed 15 lives," Lincoln explained. He said there is a five-year grace period so the property owner has time to plan.

"Over the past 20 years or so, the town has enactd several important fire prevention laws," Lincoln said. "By accepting another law, we are protecting another group of our residents."

Library staff stays cool

The town will spend $7,000 to install air conditioning equipment in the staff offices at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Library trustee Sheila Evans explained the library has in hand specifications for a $50,000 air conditioning system for the whole library but held off because of "pressures on the free cash situation for the town."

Free cash is operating surplus budget not committed to other projects and is currently at about $10,000, Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said.

Evans explained engineers said the units are designed so they can cool the staff offices independently from the rest of the library.

Selectmen and the capital budget committee endorsed the request and praised the trustees for their "spirit of cooperation" in holding off on asking for money for the entire project.

Strait's Pond sewer articles flow by voters costs will be $435, on average.

In addition, residents will pay entirely for the operation and maintenance of the system, which will cost users, on average, $400 per year.

Originally, users of the sewer were going to be asked to pick up the total cost, which outraged many North Cohasset residents, and prompted fears that last weekend's town meeting would turn into a nasty brawl.

However, the session held at the high school was friendly, with several speakers going out of their way to complement each other and thank officials for the compromise.

Former selectman and former sewer advisory board member Diane Sullivan presented the amendment, which was drafted by several Strait's Pond area residents and worded by town counsel Paul DeRensis.

Later she savored the victorious vote, calling town meeting "a very pleasant, wonderful surprise."

She also predicted the question would pass on the ballot as well. Sullivan said "a good cross section" of Cohasset attended town meeting and supported the article.

In making her case, Sullivan appealed to community spirit.

"The town is a town, a community of all of us. We felt it was entirely unfair that one portion of town should pay. It should be treated as a community issue. We thought it (charging users the whole cost) was divisive and not equitable. We're here to appeal to you in your sense of fairness."

Although Edward "Ted" Guild, chairman of the sewer commissioners, supported the agreement, he reiterated that he still believed the original plan, because of the potentially exorbitant price of repairing a septic system in accordance with Title V rules. In Cohasset such repairs routinely cost $30,000 and in some instances, have hit $70,000.

Guild, selectmen and other officials originally felt that since property on the sewer line would be more valuable those benefitting should pay.

Last week, Guild announced that to help Cohasset residents with Title V septic repairs, the state will make $500,000 available each year for six years at 2 1/2 per cent interest. Each loan is estimated at $20,000.

Guild, selectman Peter Pratt and advisory committee chairman Roger Whitley all spoke on behalf of the amendment in an effort to ensure that the article passed.

Pratt said that if the town rejected the plan, it could face fines of up to $10,000 per day for failing to comply with the agreement signed with the state to clean up Strait's Pond pollution.

Earlier in the week, Guild had said the fine would likely be about $2,000 per day. However, regardless of the amount, selectmen were anxious to avoid costly litigation on the sewer and hence pushed for the compromise, even if they were only mildly enthusiastic about it.

During a selectman's meeting Saturday morning before town meeting convened, several Strait's Pond residents said they were reluctant to place the compromise on the ballot, since it if it fails they would pay all the costs.

However, selectman Michael Sullivan told them that officials could not endorse the compromise unless an override provision were included. He said that if the amount were included in the $16.9 million operating budget, it would force an override on general expenses. If that question failed, it would "cripple the town" Sullivan said.

A procession of residents supported the measure during the town meeting debate, which last more than one hour.

Joseph McElroy of Windy Hill Road, which is in the sewer area, stated that he has paid for a variety of projects in town which do not directly benefit his area, including legal costs associated with fighting Cohasset Heights Landfill, which some activists say threatens the Cohasset water supply, even though he receives his water from a private company in Hingham.

In addition, McElroy said the whole town has been paying for half the cost of providing sewer lines to the downtown Cohasset area for years.

"A town divided against itself cannot survive," he said, paraphrasing President Abraham Lincoln.

McElroy also said that if he is forced to pay all of the sewer costs, he will not vote for a new elementary school, since he does not have children who will attend.

One school supporter later called this statement "blackmail."

Patricia Walsh stated that the when the sewer commission was created out of the water department, it received the right to assess betterment charges without town meeting approval.

Guild agreed that this is true, but said that his board did not wish to assess a percentage of fees without seeking town meeting sanction, which he called a more fair process.

Robert V. Davenport of the board of health urged the sewer project proceed, calling it "the most environmentally safe solution." He said the area is rife with failing septic systems which have vexed health authorities for years. Some lots in the area are full of ledge and lack adequate space for new septic systems, while others are believed to be near underground water supplies which drain into Strait's Pond, a state-designated critical environmental area.

"The issue is fairness," said Steven Lucitt of Jerusalem Road, pointing out that a sewer plant is part of a municipal infrastructure which cannot be built by a group of residents by themselves. "We need the town. We are not North Cohasset. We are not a separate area of town. It is unprecedented and unfair to have ten percent of the population pay one hundred percent of $6 million." He added that the project will enable the entire town to avoid paying fines to the state over pollution.

Anson Whealler, also of Jerusalem Road, said "Article four may not be ideal, but the alternatives are so much worse."

One of the four people who voted against the article, Lynn Eisenhauer of Hobart Lane, called it unfair.

"I would love to be on the sewer," she said. "I would pay for it. What about all the residents who have to spend in excess of $50,000 putting in a new septic system for Title V? Now they've got a double whammy."

She predicted that there is a chance the measure may be defeated at the polls.

"A lot of people are intimidated at town meeting," she said, adding that people she knows who are also opposed to the article were unable to attend.

Eisenhauer also said she is opposed to other override item, the new elementary school, stating "We can't afford the taxes."

Town moderator George Marlette, who received considerable praise for moving the meeting along, credited last week's Mariner editorial, written by editor Mary Ford, for setting a tone of reconciliation at the meeting. The editorial, from which Marlette quoted at the start of the meeting, urged citizens to vote their consciences and respect other points of view.

Hagerty showroom to stay in town's hands

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

The town will retain ownership of the Hagerty house after all.

Selectmen had hoped town meeting would give them authority to sell the former showroom and office building of Cohasset Colonials, a furniture kit company that relocated to Hingham when the town bought the 2.2 acre harborfront site, including the house three years ago.

If town meeting authorized the sale of the house and 8,000-square feet around it, selectmen would have asked voters to rezone the parcel from light industrial to residential A to conform to to the rest of Parker Avenue.

Selectmen must now go back to the drawing board.

"We have tremendous interest in the desire of the town on what to do with his property," Selectman Jane Goedecke said. "We want to get closure on this so we can keep the building from falling down."

Several speakers, including Robert M. Davenport of Blackhorse Lane and Keith Knowles of Border Street, noted that they had the impression when town meeting approved buying the parcel in 1993 that the house would be sold to offset the purchase price.

"Let's get out as gracefully as we can," Knowles said.

But the advisory board recommended against selling the Victorian house.

"The town worked long and hard to get its hands on this valuable land and we feel it would be a shame to give it up," adviser Dan Evans said.

Dean Rizzo of the Chamber of Commerce said selling the house would get the town "out of the rental property business and return the house to the tax rolls."

Roger Whitley, who is advisory board chairman but spoke as a citizen, warned that 8,000 square feet should not be carved out of the parcel which abuts Government Island.

Last year the town had an offer from a business to buy the house which it would use as office space and a store. And a local citizen had expressed interest in renting the building from the town for a nominal feel and turning it into a marine educational center.

The Hagerty Property Committee, which is coming up with a recreational plan for the site, recommended to selectmen sin February that the house be sold.

Hagerty board chairman Alfred Moore, who is also planning board chairman, told selectmen in February that if the town does not sell the property, alternatives such as moving or demolishing the building should be considered. The building inspector has said the house needs extensive repairs.

Flag article defeated

Despite some strong lobbying by proponents, town meeting defeated a zoning change that would allow 75-foot flag poles displaying non-commercial flags in town through a special permit.

Although Wayne Sawchuk tried to persuade voters that the special permit would prevent problems, the majority was not convinced.

"If we don't include restrictions on the size of the flag in relation to the pole...we'll see the worst looking thing in town," Herb Towle warned.

Rocco Laugelle countered by saying no flag pole is too high.

"I wish we had one 150 feet high and see Old Glory flying."

Lucia Woods said while the 100 foot flag pole looks good on the town common, she would not want to see them all over town.

Ray Buckley, a POW in World War II, reminded everyone that the flag is a symbol of freedom and there is protocol, including that if the flag is flown at night, it be illuminated.

Tom Callahan, saying he meant no disrespect, said the use of large flags remind him of auto dealers and fast food establishments and do not belong in Cohasset.

Betty Ripley is honored

Town meeting honored former Cohasset treasurer-collector Elizabeth B. Ripley for her 28 years of service and dedication to the town. Ripley resigned recently to accept the position of treasurer-collector for the town of Marshfield.

Voters to decide on new school on Saturday their tax bill in fiscal year 1997, which starts July 1; about a $205 increase in each of the next four years; and about a $98 increase in each of the next 15 years, Town Accountant Michael Buckley said.

This is the second time voters will be asked to approve paying for a new school. The project has been scaled back from the $13.4 million new school/Deer Hill renovation project that was narrowly defeated at the ballot box Feb. 10. The new project is to build a new elementary school (to replace the aging Osgood School) on the Deer Hill campus but does not include renovations to Deer Hill.

The state will reimburse the town for 60 percent of the cost of the new school, officials said, but will not reimburse the town for upgrades and repairs to the Osgood School because of its age and the small size of its campus.

The project overwhelming passed town meeting, which on Saturday and again on Monday evening was packed with parents of school-age and preschool children, for the vote on the article.

Although the "school" article easily passed town meeting Saturday, prior to the close of the session, a motion was filed for reconsideration which meant debate could resume Monday. But the motion to reconsider failed to win a majority at Monday's continuation of town meeting silencing any more discussion on the article.

During Saturday's session, a motion to stop debate failed after members of the school facilities committee, which studied Cohasset's school needs and came up the the new school proposal, and the school committee implored the town meeting, stacked with parents, to give opponents a full hearing.

Discussion Saturday did continue, highlighted by Fred Quelle's presentation on population trends in Cohasset starting with the "gappers" born during World War II and progressing through the "boomers" and to the children of the "gappers."

"We do not have a crisis here in terms of the numbers of students the schools have to handle," Quelle concluded.

But Supt. Stephen Hart said studies show that many more students move into town than are born here.

But at Monday's session, school board member Jim Kirk said all options had been considered "over and over again."

'In the final analysis, this issue deserves to be put before the town Saturday,.'

— Jim Kirk, school committee.

"In the final analysis, this issue deserves to be put before the town Saturday," he said.

David Chase, secretary of the School Facilities Committee, said his board had conducted 65 meetings on the issue including informational sessions and formal presentations.

"We believe no new information has come forward," Chase said and asked that the vote to reconsider be defeated.

However, Roger Whitley, chairman of the advisory board, said although the majority of his board favored the new school project, they felt strongly that discussion should not be cut off and the subject should be reopened and reconsidered.

Lenora Jenkins of Jerusalem Road and Roy Fitzsimmons of Doane Street said the issue was fairness and said opponents did not get equal time during Saturday's session.

The new school will house grades Pre-K through 3. Officials say the Osgood must be replaced for safety and space reasons and a new school will enhance educational quality with modern, upgraded facilities including a cafeteria, gym and art and music rooms.

Town meeting voters also passed an article ensuring that the $180,000 recently put up by two private citizens — so that architectural plans for the new school could proceed in order to meet the filing deadline — would be reimbursed to the donors whether or not the override passes. The town must submit plans before June 1 to ensure that the project receives state reimbursement under its current formula.

The school department could not spend town money for the plans without town meeting approval because the override to pay for the project had failed.

Town counsel assured voters that there was nothing illegal about the money being donated privately.

Selectman Peter B[illegible]t explained that selectmen [illegible]t obligated to stand before town meeting and ask that these citizens be repaid but that voters had the right to defeat the article and therefore the private individuals would have to pay for the work to date.

Voters also approved forming a committee to investigate the most cost effective means for restoring the Osgood School to the tax rolls should the new school be approved Saturday.

The school committee has already voted to return the building to the town if the new school is built.

The override Saturday is necessary because the price tag of the project cannot be absorbed within the constraints of Prop. 2-1/2, the state law that caps the annual tax levy for municipalities at 2-1/2 percent.

Under Prop. 2-1/2 rules, debt exclusion ballot questions do not include the dollar amount because the figure cannot report the true cost of borrowing plus interest charges.

election to attract upwards of 60 percent of the town's 5,108 registered voters.

Absentee voting, which is often used to gauge election interest, has been high, she said.

Registered voters may vote absentee until noon Friday and ballots may be returned by a relative as late as early Saturday morning, Douglas said.

In addition to an override ballot question to ask for authorization to borrow for a $9.8 million new elementary school (see related story), voters will have lots of candidates for town office to choose from.

There's a four-way race for two seats on the board of selectmen. Incumbent Martha Gjesteby, who is seeking a fourth term, faces challenges from conservation commissioner Roseanne "Ronnie" McMorris, former advisory board chairwoman Nan Roth, and health board member Robert V. Davenport.

Talk-show host and historical commission member Wigmore Pierson, conservation commission secretary Patricia Anne Walsh, and Joseph D. "Joe" Buckley, president of Cohasset Elder Affairs are vying for the full-time treasurer-collector's position recently vacated by Elizabeth "Betty" Ripley.

Incumbent sewer commissioner Edward "Ted" Guild, who has served 13 years, is facing a challenge from Jack Noble.

Terry Atherton and Mike Mullin will fight it out for an open seat on the planning board.

And John Rafferty and Richard "Chip" Muncey are battling for the open seat on the board of water commissioners.

The school committee race for Nancy Sandell's seat is being sought by Keith Knowles, Richard "Rick" Shea, and Owen O'Malley.

Running unopposed are: George L. Marlette III for reelection as town moderator; Marion L.Douglas for reelection to the town clerk position; Sheila S. Evans, Doris R. McNulty, and Roger L. Lowe to the board of library trustees; James W.. Lagrotteria for reelection to the board of assessors; Kevin M. Ulmer who is seeking his first term on the board of health; John D. Muncey for housing authority; and Thomas Wigmore for the recreation commission.

Form A lots approved

Just before town meeting, the planning board approved plans dividing up land owned by Cohasset Heights Landfill in the event that the proposed zoning change to classify part of Rte. 3A a highway business district, passed town meeting. (The citizens' article was postponed).

By subdividing their land into lots, even though a building or subdivision plan is not in place, the landowner would ensure that any future building on the site would be done under the current zoning, which is light industrial.

Known as a Form A, the procedure puts lot subdivisions on record in the event that the zoning in an area should change.

The lots might never be built upon. Building and site plans would still have to be approved by the appropriate town boards, even if a Form A designation is in place.

Engineer Wayne Sawchuk presented two Form A plans, on behalf of Barry.

The 24-acre site of the former Deck Point housing proposal, has been divided into eight lots.

That land is owned by Crocker II Realty Trust, with which Barry is associated.

A second Form A plan was presented showing the consolidation of lots at the Cohasset Heights Landfill site, which Barry owns, further north on Rte. 3A.

Another Form A plan, which is not in the proposed zoning area, was approved for four houses owned by Harold Litchfield at the northeast corner of Rte. 3A and Beechwood St. By dividing up the property so each house is now on a separate lot, it would make them easier to sell.

Cohasset junior gardeners take home 15 ribbons!

Thirteen students from Cohasset participated in this year's New England Flower Show, the third largest flower exhibition in the world. The Community Garden Club of Cohasset sponsors the junior club for children in the first to eighth grades.

Christine Lovallo, a third-grader at Osgood School, was the winner of two first-place blue ribbons. Other blue-ribbon winners were: Amelia Butman, Mary Fegreus, Caroline Henderson and Kate Henderson.

Second-place red ribbons went to: Julia Lovallo, Kristen Lavigne, Lydia Guild and Nicholas Lavigne. Honorable mentions were awarded to Sarah Pease and Jessie Guild. Add them up and you will find the Junior Gardeners of Cohasset took home 15 ribbons from the New England Spring Flower Show. Everyone is proud of all the winners, and we certainly congratulate them for all their hard work!

Martha and Michael Gangemi told us their really exciting news last week — their brand-new baby girl, Julia Ann Frederick Gangemi was born Feb. 20. Julia joins her two big brothers, Michael, 4, and Lyle, 2. Congratulations to all of you!

The University of Vermont's College of Arts & Sciences sends us great news this week. Laura T. Andrews made the dean's list. Let's give her a round of applause for all her hard work. Keep it up!

Here is the latest word from Winston-Salem, N.C. — Kristen Jeanne Grassey of Ledge Way has qualified for the 1995 fall semester dean's list at Wake Forest University. To be named to the dean's list, students must achieve a grade point average of 3.0 or better for the semester. Kristen is a junior at the school. Congratulations!

Hope all of you will remember to thank Donald Staszko when you see him. As you know, he donated some Oshkosh B'gosh teddy bears to the Cohasset Police Department (the police officers use them to help calm children in need, or just to let a troubled youngster know they are there for them), and everyone applauds the idea!

Here's to Harold Litchfield, who this week begins his new role as the town's first public works superintendent, which means he will head the combined highway, tree and park and transfer station departments. You can bet he will do a grand, as he has been working for the town's highway department for 36 years.

At least we can hope there won't be any more snow to remove this "spring," right, Harold? Enough is enough already! By the way, thanks for the good job you and your men did with that, too!

Speaking of people who have dedicated time and effort to our town, wasn't it nice to see the townspeople recognize Jane Goedecke at Town Meeting last Saturday? The well-deserved standing ovation goes to show everyone how much Jane is appreciated.

I cannot imagine what she will do with all of her spare time now that countless hours won't be devoted to Cohasset! Well, time will tell — whatever you decide to do, thanks for all you have done. Enjoy your "retirement!" We will miss you as much as your fellow board members will, Jane!

Congrats to Tom Wigmore, who was recently appointed full-time communications officer. We all know Tom puts 100 percent into whatever he does, and he will do it in this job, too.

Finally, this weekend will certainly be a busy one! Of course, a reminder to vote heads the list. The annual Easter Egg Hunt will be held at Deer Hill School on Saturday (check this newspaper for more details), and the Teen Center is going to be holding a bake sale at the egg hunt.

Sunday brings the Easter Bunny — have a great time!

Don't forget to keep me informed about your activities — your news is our news!

Obituaries

Gerhard Birmann

Gerhard Birmann, 83, of Cohasset, died March 29 in New England Deaconess Hospital, Boston.

Born in Hannover, Germany, he had lived in Cohasset since 1974.

Mr. Birmann was a former electrical engineer for GTE Sylvania Electronics until his retirement in 1977.

He was the husband of Jean (Meacock) Birmann and leaves a son, Michael Birmann of Arlington; and two daughters, Brenda Birmann of Brighton and Christine Nichols of Panama City, Fla.

Services and burial were private.

Arrangements were made by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home.

Phyllis M. Kelley

Phyllis M. (Kussmaul) Driscoll Kelley, 77, of Cohasset, formerly of Belmont, died March 17.

She was a former probation officer in the Suffolk Superior Court, Boston.

Mrs. Driscoll was the wife of the late J. Harold Kelley and Nicholas J. Driscoll and leaves a son, the Rev. Nicholas J. Driscoll of Brockton; five stepdaughters, Margaret M. Koslowsky, Judith A. Gardiner, Maureen K. Brodigan, Carolyn K. Murphy and Susan R. Bettencourt, all of Belmont; 23 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated by her son March 20 in Our Lady of Mercy Church, Belmont. Burial was in Belmont Cemetery.

Arrangements were made by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset and Stanton Funeral Home, Watertown.

Donations in her memory may be made to Rosie's Place, 889 Harrison Place, Roxbury 02118.

Leela G. Thakurta

Leela G. Thakurta, 81, of New York, died March 25 at the Manhattan home of her children.

Ms. Thakurta came to the United States from Dacca, India (now Bangladesh) in 1934, at a time when not many people of Indian origin, especially women, traveled abroad for their studies. She came from a large and illustrious family of 16 children.

In her early days in California, she was a dancer and shared in a cultural and artistic exchange with many performing artists of that era. She continued her art throughout her life in the form of music, singing lyrical, folk and religious songs of her native Bengal, and most notable that of the famed poet Rabindranath Tagore.

Ms. Thakurta settled in America, raising a family of four, and worked as an elementary school teacher after completing a master's degree and doctorate studies at Columbia University in anthropology and child psychology. New York, Massachusetts and California were home to her and her family.

She was a longtime follower and supporter of the Vedanta Centre in Cohasset and finally, a resident of the Ananda Ashrama in La Crescenta, Calif.

Ms. Thakurta leaves two sons, David Harold Rodman and Douglas Wilmot Rodman; a daughter, Amita Rodman Mehta; two grandchildren; three great-grandsons; her former husband, Wilmot Lee Rodman; and a large extended family in India and America. She is the sister of the late Rev. Mother Gayatri Devi, spiritual leader of both Cohasset and La Crescenta Vedanta Centres.

Memorial services will be held at the Ananda Ashrama, La Crescenta, Calif. on Saturday, April 6, at 2 p.m. and at a date to be announced at the Vedanta Centre in Cohasset.

Arrangements were made by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home of Cohasset and Norwell.

Anne M. Hanlon

Anne M.(McCarthy) Hanlon, 72, of Hull, died March 27 following a brief illness.

Born in Somerville, she was raised and educated in Jamaica Plain and graduated from Saint Thomas Aquinas High School.

Mrs. Hanlon, a homemaker, was a resident of Hull for 23 years and also resided in Randolph for many years.

She was a communicant of Saint Ann Parish, Hull.

Mrs. Hanlon was the wife of Edward F. Hanlon of Hull and leaves four daughters, Joan Morey of East Bridgewater, Nancy Keane of Hanson, Mary Davis of Cohasset and Paula Hanlon of California; three sons, Edward and Mark Hanlon, both of Hanson, and Michael Hanlon of Hull; a sister, Eileen McDonough of Hull; nine grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

A Mass of Christian burial was celebrated March 29 in Saint Ann Church, Hull. Interment was in Saint Joseph Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Arrangements were made by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home.

Donations in her memory may be made to: The Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Dr., Braintree 02184.

Repeat override request is common

Citizens should not be confused Saturday about the town's right to put the override for a new school before the voters again.

We raise this point because of Mary Brennock's comments at town meeting Saturday.

The Oak Street resident said she was concerned because the school override had already been defeated and that special elections cost the town money.

"If Clinton loses the election, do we have another two months later?" she asked.

We want to be perfectly clear that we're not picking on Mrs. Brennock, who said it was her first experience speaking at town meeting. We applaud her courage and welcome her comments, not only on the "multiple" elections on the school but on the maintenance issues at Osgood that she feels strongly about.

But we hope that citizens aren't confused about the school department's "new" school project. This is not the same project that came before voters Feb. 10. It is scaled back so it does not include renovations and upgrades to the Deer Hill School.

It is entirely appropriate and very common for towns to return to voters after a failed override and come back with a project or request, it feels will be more palatable to the voters.

And that's exactly what's happened here. The narrow, 28-vote defeat on Feb. 10, helped persuade school officials that there is support out there for a new school and, with the current state reimbursement formula at 60 percent, a revised project is worthy of consideration by the voters .

Letters held

Astute readers may have noticed every week in the Question of the Week column, a note that we would accept Letters to the Editor on the issues up until the March 28 issue before the election.

That means this week, we are not publishing any letters about election issues, including the proposed new school.

Why?

We don't have a week's grace period to allow rebuttal. It's impossible for us to check the facts in all the letters we receive, so in the interest of fairness — we're not going to print any letters that may influence someone's vote this week.

Over the past few days, we've had innumerable phone calls and faxes with letters on both sides of the issues. Those who wish their letters to be published next week should call us at 749-0031 or submit an updated version.

McNabb, O'Donnell thanked for hard work

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

We often find many words for criticism, and reserve few for praise. And why not? It is much easier to find problems than solutions.

Please allow me some page space to extend a few words of praise.

It is true that our town government is built on volunteer skills. Our elected officers struggle between work, home and civic duty to bring out their best skills. This alone should give us all cause for admiration. Somehow we more often find room for ridicule. Wise up.

Next, we have been blessed with many citizens who give willingly of themselves to support causes to benefit the town. To them, well, thank you.

Recently, Cohasset closed the public hearings for the proposed expansion of the Cohasset Heights dump. By any measure, the hearings presented a grueling schedule for all concerned. For Kevin O'Donnell and John McNabb, it proved to be an endurance test.

Along with many members of SAFE, Kevin and John spearheaded an impressive and unprecedented defense of the townsfolk's interests. Their combined work included hundreds of research hours covering arcane and confusing regulation; late nights preparing testimony and rebuttal questioning as well as the hours dedicated to sparring with CHL.

The foundation for their activity is nearly eight years of fighting with CHL, the state and even the town to shut the door on this facility. Along with Linda Keller, Connie Afshar, Mary and Charles Gainor, and others, SAFE slowly and surely educated Cohasset on a deeply complex legal matter and devastatingly simple environmental matter.

John and Kevin's organized, methodical devastation of the CHL proposal reflects their long battle. Without Mr. McNabb's intimate understanding of environmental law, and O'Donnell's tenacity, the dump would have expanded years ago.

We still must wait for the Board of Health's findings before the town decides CHL's fate. Still, the time is right to thank two Cohasset citizens who represent the very best the town has to offer. Just as noteworthy, Kevin and John embody the spirit of cooperation, concern and determination carried by every active member in SAFE. To all of you, please accept my heartfelt thanks for a job well done.

Support for MS walk appreciated

To the Editor:

I am writing to thank the Cohasset Mariner, as well as the town of Cohasset and its residents, for hosting our "Cohasset by the Sea" MS Walk on Saturday, April 20. The event will raise funds for MS research and vital services to local families living with the disease.

This year's MS Walk coincides with the 50th Anniversary of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society (NMSS). Over the decades, the NMSS has provided more than $200 million dollars to multiple sclerosis research. Locally, for more than two decades, the Massachusetts Chapter has been one of the largest contributors to MS research in the country, annually sending approximately $1,000,000 to fund research and national programs. Finally, after so many years of striving, our efforts are beginning to pay off.. The past three years have brought significant breakthroughs in MS research, as well as renewed hope. Our chapter has redoubled its fundraising efforts in the hopes that one day soon MS will be a disease of the past.

By serving as our sponsor, the Cohasset Mariner is helping our Chapter continue to serve effectively the local families living with this difficult, unpredictable disease and to support new cutting-edge research. Many thanks to you and our many local sponsors, including: Quikava, WATD, Kimball's by the Sea, The Chart House, the Cohasset Mariner, Russer Foods, Plymouth Florist, Health Thru Hands, Marylou's News, General Suburban Aid/React, Kimball's by the Sea, and Belmont Springs Water Co. We would also like to extend our thanks to all your readers who register to walk or volunteer to help at the event.

Eli Rubenstein
Chairman of the Board of Trustees
National Multiple Sclerosis Society

Quick response appreciated

To the Editor:

We would like to send a big thank you to all the people who helped us out at Stop & Shop in Cohasset, March 5. Our son Andrew had fallen against the telephone and received a small gash on his forehead. He was very upset and very scared. The employees at Stop & Shop rushed around to help us out. Andrew is fine and says he won't fool around anymore at Stop & Shop.

To the employees, the police officer and the EMTs who helped us, we say thank you very much for your quick responses.

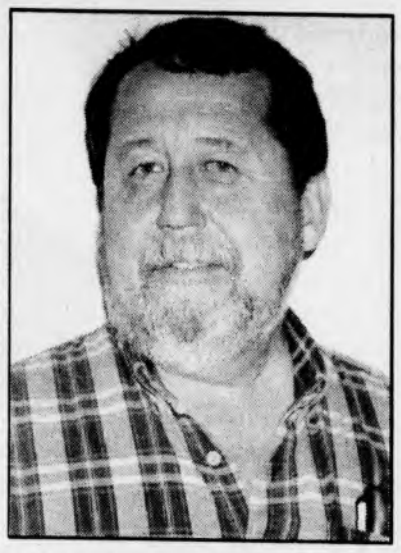
Meet the Candidates

Selectman

DAVENPORT



Name: Robert V.Davenport
Address: 135 Sohier St.
Age: 52
Family: Married, two children.
Education: Cohasset High School.
Occupation: Boat storage and brokerage business.
Years in town: 52.
Civic/municipal experience: Three years board of health; cemetery study committee; fire/police station study committee.

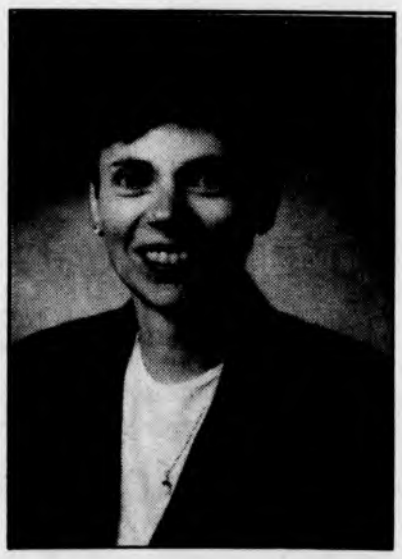
GJESTEBY

Name: Martha Gjesteby
Address: Old Pasture Rd.
Age: 67
Family: Married, four children, eight grandchildren.
Education: BS Chemistry, Simmons College.
Occupation: Former researcher Harvard Medical School.
Years in town: 35
Civic/municipal experience: Selectman (9 years, former chairman); school committee (6 years); planning board; capital budget committee (5 years); South Shore Coalition (former chairman), tri-town commission (Cohasset/Hull/Hingham); Metropolitan Area Planning Council (4 yrs. treasurer; 2 yrs. assistant treasurer; 2 yrs. secretary); joint regional transportation committee; second vice president Mass. Selectman's Assoc.; Chairman policy committee, Mass. Municipal Assoc. Public Works Committee; member executive committee Mass. Municipal Association; member Governor's local government advisory committee; Trustees of Reservations, Cohasset Historical Society; former board member Cohasset Community Center; former board member Community Garden Club.
Reason for seeking office:

"I have been a selectman for nine years and feel I have served the town well. There are still many unfinished projects that I have been instrumental in getting started and would like to see them finished. To mention a few: the public works department with the new municipal garage; a building maintenance department; the individual departments audits; and protection of our water supply that is being threatened by the proposed landfill expansion.

As a selectman, I have been elected to serve as 2nd vice president of the Mass. Selectman Assoc. and also as a member of the Mass. Municipal Executive Board. For a Cohasset selectman to hold these positions can be very useful for the town."

McMORRIS



Name: Roseanne "Ronnie" McMorris
Address: 89 Doane St.
Age: 43
Family: Married, four children.
Education: New England School of Law, J.D.; State University of New York, College at Brockport, B.A.; Mediator, Certificate.
Occupation: Mother and homemaker.
Years in town: 10.
Civic/municipal experience: Conservation commission, member and past chairman; joint sub-committee with board of health — Cohasset Heights Landfill; Parent School Organization (PSO), executive board; classroom volunteer; soccer and basketball coach; METCO host family.
Reason for seeking office:

"Cohasset is facing significant financial challenges and decisions that will affect the character of our community for years to come. I care about that future. I'm raising my family here, and plan to retire here.

"If we are to resolve the difficult questions facing the town, we need leaders who will bring us together to work for the good of the entire community. I sincerely believe I have the qualities and the ability to lead our town. I value the ideas and concerns of our residents, and will work to serve all the citizens of Cohasset."

ROTH

Name: Nan Roth
Address: 7 Highland Ave.
Age: 47
Family: Married, three children.
Education: BA Middlebury College, Vermont; MED Lesley College; MMHS Heller School, Brandeis Univ. (Masters in Management of Human Services).
Occupation: Teacher of special needs students, Weymouth Public Schools.
Years in town: 11, as a full-time resident.
Civic/Municipal experience: Advisory Committee (6 yrs), Chairman of Advisory Committee (4 yrs.), Volunteer for numerous organizations.
Reason for seeking office:

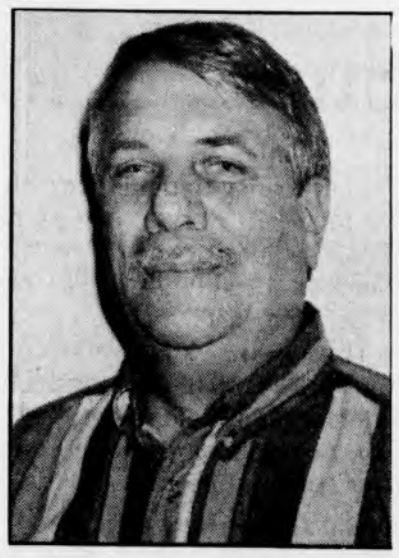
"I believe that I have the knowledge, skills and energy to work with others to guide Cohasset into the 21st Century.

Leadership on the Advisory Committee has given me broad knowledge of the complex issues facing Cohasset. I have reviewed every line of every budget for six years, and listened to employees and members of the community in a clear and cordial manner. I have built a thorough knowledge of our town's problems and finances.

I believe in careful and comprehensive planning, in openness of government and in concern for the rights and opinions of all citizens. I would like to preserve the special charm and character of Cohasset as we face the challenges of the future."

School Committee

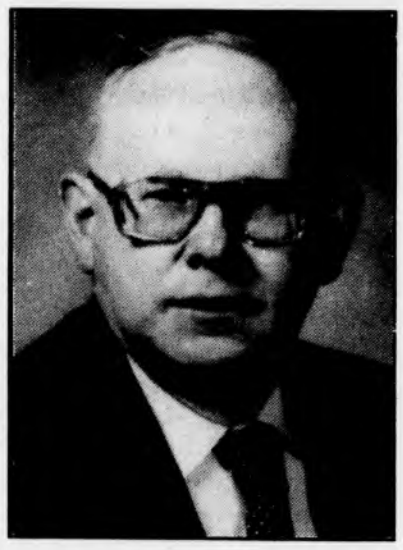
KNOWLES



Name: Keith F. Knowles
Address: 15 Border St.
Age: 52
Family: Married, four children.
Education: Suffolk University, Business Administration.
Occupation: Community Prevention Coordinator of the HALT Community Partnership, Plymouth, Mass.
Years in town: 25.
Civic/municipal experience: Cohasset Drug and Alcohol Committee, first chairman/2 yrs., member/6 yrs.; co-founder, the "Teen Depot," first president Cohasset Youth Resources, Inc. (teen center administrators); Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, director/5 yrs., president/2 yrs; Cohasset Harborfest, organizing committee and parade marshal/5 yrs.
Reason for seeking office:

"Currently, the majority of the citizens in Cohasset do not have a voice on the school committee. While the members of the committee are concerned and committed people, they represent a narrow group of our citizenry. I believe that the balanced representation of every taxpayer will benefit both our community and the schools themselves. My record of community service has demonstrated such a commitment to our town."

O'MALLEY

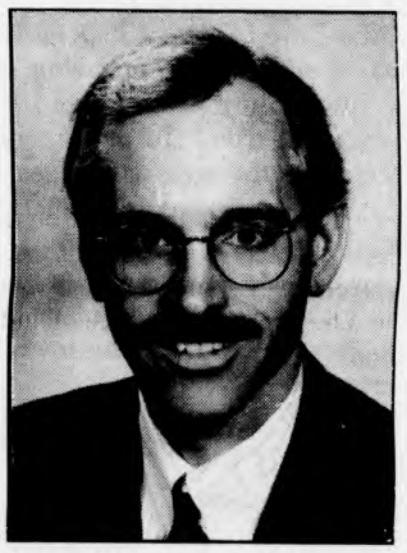


Name: Owen L. O'Malley
Address: 29 Sohier St.
Age: 58
Family: Single
Education: BC High, Boston College, New England School of Law.
Occupation: Teacher.
Years in town: 58
Reason for seeking office:

"I believe that the people of Cohasset should not, at the present time, build a new elementary school. Upgrading the electrical system and some repairs, as well as reconfiguration of inside parts of the Osgood School should be adequate for the foreseeable future.

"Major savings can be made in other areas of school spending, ie., in the health education budget, which savings would be helpful to the taxpayers and to the students as well. Most students have primary health care providers, and school ought not to be taking on programs and courses of action that are best left to others."

SHEA



Name: Rick Shea
Address: 52 Margin St.
Age: 44
Family: Married, three children.
Education: BA, Princeton Univ.; MBA Boston Univ.
Occupation: Controller, Genetics Institute, Inc.
Years in town: 8
Civic/municipal experience: President, Cohasset Education Foundation; Cohasset youth soccer and basketball.
Reason for seeking office:

"I am running for school committee because of my commitment to quality education and sound management. As a school committee member I will work to (1) implement high standards for teachers and students and measure performance; (2) implement best management practices; (3) ensure appropriate long range planning; (4) maintain a stable tax rate by working with the selectmen, advisory committee and other town boards; (5) seek alternative resources for school projects; and (6) reach out to all taxpayers and respond to their concerns."

Polls are open Saturday, April 6 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at town hall.

Meet the Candidates

Treasurer-Collector

BUCKLEY

Name: Joseph "Joe" D. Buckley
Address: 28 Linden Dr.
Age: 72
Family: Married, four children, eight grandchildren, one great grandson.
Education: BA in Business and Engineering, Northeastern University.
Occupation: retired Chief Financial Officer, Buckley Corporation.
Civic/municipal experience: Served on the Cohasset Advisory committee; four years as treasurer of Cohasset Elder Affairs; presently chairman of Cohasset Elder Affairs; seven years as SHINE (Serving Health Information Need of Elders) counselor; member of the School Facilities Committee; board of directors, South Shore Chamber of Commerce; 15 years, South Shore Economic Development Corp.; Board of South Shore Elder Services, vice chair of finance committee; Little League, Boy Scouts, director St. Anthony's CCD, Eucharistic Minister; Alcohol/Drug Committee (in the 70s).
Reason for seeking office:

"I believe I have the experience and the personality to make a significant contribution to the administration of the town I love. As long as I can remember we have always had wonderful treasurers in Cohasset, but with my election the town would have a chance to bring some business experience to the office. I would also see what is actually required to run the office and establish a plan so that we would have guides for future treasurers. I believe this plan would be useful in hiring and managing an appointed treasurer if the town decides that is what it wants."

PIERSON

Name: Wigmore A. Pierson
Address: 123 Atlantic Ave.
Age: 55
Family: Three children.
Education: BA, Lake Forest College; Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth College.
Occupation: President, Pierson Corporation, an investment management company.
Years in town: 11
Civic/municipal experience: Member, Cohasset Historical Commission; former member, Cohasset Historic District Commission; former member, first Drug & Alcohol Committee; Founder/host, Pierson to Person, public affairs TV program; member, Cohasset Chamber of Commerce and Cohasset Historical Society.
Reason for seeking office:

"One. I have believed for a long time that each person in our country should find an interest or activity and volunteer to give back to the local community where they are living or at the state, national or international level. Examples include, the Peace Corps in Peru, Partners of the Americas, appointments by Governors Sargent and Volpe, and as founder/host of Pierson to Person.

"Two. Because of my extensive business and investment experience, I am uniquely qualified for the position of treasurer-collector. The opportunity to serve our town in this capacity opened up after Elizabeth Ripley's unexpected resignation."

WALSH

Name: Patricia Anne Walsh
Address: 270 N. Main St.
Age: 65
Family: Married, five children.
Education: A.B. Harvard University.
Occupation: Secretary of the Cohasset Conservation Commission.
Years in town: 55.
Civic/municipal experience: Former elected member of Cohasset School committee; appointed only woman on state Mass. Interscholastic Assoc. (MIAA) board; elected Cohasset High School Communications Chairman; elected member and former Chairman Cohasset Democratic Town Committee; member Cohasset Planning Board's sub-committee to study open space; member several town study committees for League of Women Voters; served professionally as secretary to Selectmen, School Committee; Sewer Commission, Board of Health, Planning Board, Conservation Commission; community fund-raiser for $10,000 down payment for new St. Anthony's Church as chairman St. Anthony's Church Fair; president former St. Anthony's Sodality; Girl Scout leader; Chief Den Mother of two packs; former Old Colony Radcliffe Club treasurer; Treasurer Cohasset Town Committee; member board of directors Cohasset Community Center; Sunday School teacher.
Reason for seeking office:

"I love and want to serve Cohasset after 20 years of municipal experience. If you want a person who wants the treasurer-collector's office to be in more frequent communication with town departments and citizens concerning bonding debt effect on taxes; wants more capital debt planning; and has experience in payroll and bookkeeping and in buying and selling stocks, bonds and treasury notes, and someone who reads the Wall Street Journal and Barons, you will vote for Patricia Anne Walsh."

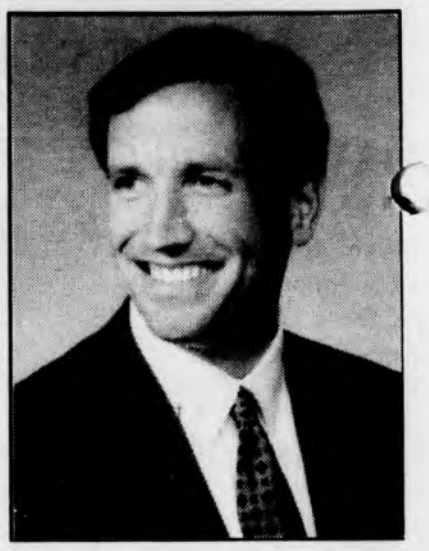
Water Commission

MUNCEY

Name: Richard D. "Chip" Muncey
Address: 377 South Main St.
Age: 28.
Family: Single.
Education: Cohasset High School. Attending Quincy College; holds Massachusetts Drinking Water Operators Licenses Grades 4D & 1T; is member of the American, New England, Massachusetts, and Plymouth County Water Works Associations.
Occupation: Water technician.
Years in town: 28
Civic/municipal experience: Nine years with Cohasset Water Department; currently employed with Pembroke Water Department.
Reason for seeking office:

"I am seeking the position of water commissioner because I have extensive knowledge of Cohasset's water system. I feel I would be an asset to the board of water commissioners. I would like to give back to the town that has given me my start in the industry."

RAFFERTY



Name: John P. Rafferty
Address: 4 Stoneleigh Lane
Age: 39
Family: Married, two children.
Education: MBA, 1993, The University of Connecticut; B.A. Economics, 1979, Trinity College.
Occupation: Banking/financial services. Former vice president & director at Shawmut Bank.
Years in town: 2.
Civic/municipal experience: Member, Cohasset Water Resources Protection Commission; Member, American Water Works Assoc.; Past Trustee, The Connecticut Historical Society; Past member, Leadership Greater Hartford, Education Task Force on Diversity.
Reason for seeking office:

"I have a keen interest in the water industry and would like to use my communication and financial skills to help the Town of Cohasset in managing its highly valuable water resources. Our water plant and distribution system was allowed to deteriorate over the last decade prompting the emergency repairs currently underway. We need someone on the Board of Commissioners with a business and financial background to make sure we manage the water department efficiently and spend our money wisely."

Planning Board

ATHERTON

Name: Terry J. Atherton
Address: 34 Clay Spring Rd.
Age: 49
Family: Married, two children.
Education: BS Civil Engineering, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; MS Civil Engineering, MIT.
Occupation: Transportation planning consultant.
Years in town: 20.
Civic/municipal experience: Chairman, DPW study committee; chairman, Public works garage study committee; chairman, Public Works Garage Building Committee.
Reason for seeking office:

"I feel that my education and professional experience in transportation planning are relevant qualifications for the planning board position. As chairman of the Public Works Garage Study Committee, I gained a detailed understanding of how other boards and committees function and know first hand the process that developers go through. As a resident of Cohasset for the past 20 years, my family and I have come to appreciate Cohasset's special qualities that make it unique. If elected to the planning board, I will do everything possible to preserve these unique qualities."

Polls are open Saturday, April 6 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at town hall.

Meet the Candidates

Planning Board

MULLIN

Name: Michael Mullin
Address: 14 Lamberts Lane
Age: 34
Family: Married, two children.
Education: Hingham High School; four years in the U.S. Army.
Occupation: Town of Hingham employee.
Years in town: 2.
Reason for seeking office:

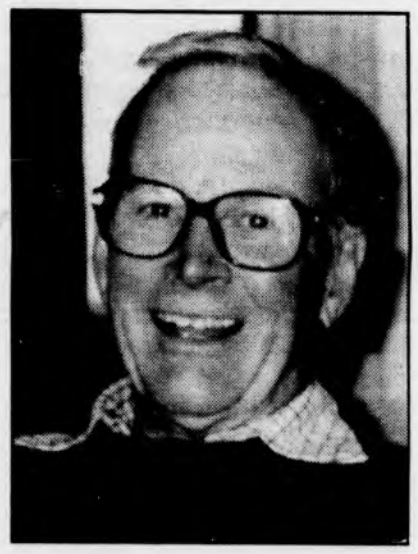
"Having spent 30 years in Hingham, I've seen the damaging effects that overdevelopment can have on a small town. I don't want to see Cohasset outgrow its small-town uniqueness.

"I decided that the best way to help prevent that is to become a part of the planning process.

"I don't claim to be anything more than a concerned citizen who has a vested interest in this town. Cohasset will be my daughters' hometown. I'd like to help the planning board make good, solid decisions concerning future commercial and residential development."

Sewer Commission

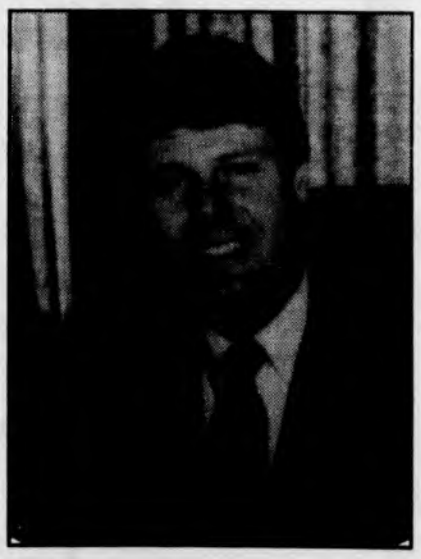
GUILD



Name: Edward M. "Ted" Guild
Address: 365 Jerusalem Rd.
Age: 73
Family: Married, four children, seven grandchildren.
Education: BA Harvard, Class of 1944
Occupation: Retired, former vice president of Ionics, Inc., Watertown, Mass. in charge of international operations.
Years in town: 23
Civic/municipal experience: 13 years, sewer commission.
Reason for seeking office:

"On Saturday, the town meeting overwhelmingly approved the first of two phases in the Cohasset sewer expansion program. I have been vitally interested in this since the early 1980s, and have been member of the Board of Sewer Commissioners for 13 years. I want to finish this important job for our town."

NOBLE



Name: Jack L. Noble
Address: 80 Summer St.
Age: 49
Family: Married, three children.
Education: Technical degree (Electronic Instrumentation)
Occupation: Account manager, senior sales engineer.
Reason for seeking office:

"I chose to run for this position as I am concerned about what is happening in Cohasset. I am concerned about James Brook, the harbor, and Strait's Pond area. I am also concerned that people are being forced to hook up to the new proposed systems and yet they will be asked to pay for the entire project themselves. I am also concerned that the present board isn't as open to the public as they should be and decisions are being made contrary to what the public may want. Nor is the public being consulted on some of these issues that directly affect them."

before a new contract is signed, or the company may appeal the towns' decisions.

She said this formal procedure was designed to protect the state's cable television providers who spent considerable amounts of money to wire the communities when the cable contracts were first awarded, in most cases a dozen years ago.

In considering the contract renewal, towns' decisions must be based on one of four criteria:

•whether the cable operator has complied with the terms of the existing license and with applicable law;

•whether the quality of service, response to subscribers' complaints, and billing practices have been reasonable in light of community needs, but cannot be based on the mix and quality of cable services;

•whether the cable company has the requisite financial, legal, and technical ability to fulfill the license;

•whether the cable company's proposal is reasonable to meet the future cable-related community needs and interests, taking into account the cost of meeting such needs and interests.

Koronaides explained that the state sets cable rates, and the towns cannot identify specific channels they want offered, but only the types of channels. For example, she said, the towns can say they want a 24-hour news service, but not CNN specifically. The right to select a channel that satisfies that towns' requests is up to the cable company.

Jill Reddish, executive director of the state cable TV commission, said the towns can make changes to the contract that was originally granted.

"You won't sign the same contract," she said.

She advised the towns' committees, "It's very important that you try to establish a relationship with the cable company."

The recently announced purchase of Continental Cablevision by USWest will not effect the negotiations, and the new licenses will automatically transfer to the new owners.

Reddish urged the towns to consider what services they want, and said they could use the length of the contract as a bargaining tool.

Jack Metivier, representing Norwell's cable TV committee, asked that if the state or federal government decide, at some time in the future, to discontinue their rate-setting functions, can this right be turned over to the towns, and a clause to that effect be inserted in the new licenses.

While the cable commission officials said they did not foresee the state relinquishing the rate-setting authority, Metivier noted that when the towns signed contracts 15 years ago, they did not foresee the changes in telecommunications law either.

But Dennis Harrison, chairman of Scituate's cable TV committee, said Continental Cablevision already knows what services the towns' want, but are under no obligation to respond.

"You don't have control over a lot of things here. That's the bottom line," Harrison said.

Willy from Hingham and Dick Smith from Scituate both noted that many cable subscribers in those towns have requested other channels, including the History Channel and a comedy channel.

Smith said Continental Cablevision claims it cannot provide that channel because there are not enough channels currently available.

"We ask for a comedy channel, and we get more shopping channels," Smith said.

In response to a question from Cohasset cable TV committee member Robert Hillman, Koronaides said only one town in Massachusetts has denied a cable contract renewal. In 1991, Watertown initially issued a "preliminary denial" its cable contract, but later renewed it.

As part of the negotiating process, towns may go through an "ascertainment procedure" to gather data which can be used to evaluate the performance of the cable company during the contract period. The state recommends that the towns hold public hearings, conduct surveys, and review Continental Cablevision's financial and customer service records.

Other committee members were also concerned that under the terms of recent federal telecommunications legislation, the cable television companies will be allowed to offer other services, but the committees cannot negotiate these services.

David Allen, also from Scituate, said these other services—for internet access and telephone services—could turn out to be more valuable than the television services.

"I don't see how you can plan anything," he said.

Continental Cablevision representatives said that some complaints—specifically the addition of requested channels—will be addressed as the company upgrades its equipment, and will be provided next year.

During an hour-long presentation prepared for the local cable committees, Brian Blais of Continental Cablevision outlined the extensive upgrading that the company has planned, including stringing fiber optic cable which will allow the number of available channels to be increased from 60 to 100, and ultimately to 500 channels.

This will also increase the reliability of cable services, and allow internet and telephone services to be provided through "hybrid fiber coax" cable—a combination of fiber optic and coaxial cable, he said.

With this new cable, a "smartbox" cable receiver box will installed on subscribers' televisions, which will allow "on-screen navigational" systems that subscribers can program to their favorite channels, as well as to allow one-button access to pay-per-view services and for recording.

A second joint meeting of the cable television committees is tentatively scheduled for May 6 in Scituate.

Budget passes town meeting

Without much discussion, voters last week approved the town's $16 million budget, for fiscal year 1997, which represents a four percent increase over the current budget.

Town accountant Michael Buckley told the meeting that the school department has increased four percent, employee benefits are up eight percent and all other budgets show a three percent increase.

State aid has increased two percent and local receipts are up three percent. Property tax revenues are up 2 1/2 percent, in addition to override amounts.

The tax rate, currently $14.50 per thousand assessed value, will rise to $15.04 next year, to $15.91 in fiscal year 1998, $16.22 in 1999, $16.63 in the year 2000, $17.54 in 2001 and $17.98 in 2002.

Sewer articles pass

In addition to the controversial Strait's Pond project (see story,) town meeting approved the other seven sewer department articles without much comment.

Several of the measures are housekeeping technicalities connected to the sewer expansion, while another authorizes some $200,000 for repairs to the existing sewer line and for related costs.

MBTA tours commuter boat facility

By ALICE COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

With the recent passage of the $267 million Seaport Bond Bill, which will allow for pier improvements, dredging projects and harbormaster training in coastal communities like Cohasset, the timing was right, said MBTA General Manager Patrick Moynihan to take a tour of the state's most successful, longest running commuter boat service in Hingham.

State Senator Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, who worked to ensure funding in the bill for specific improvements at the Hingham commuter boat terminal, invited Moynihan to tour the facility where the fleet of MBTA and private boats transport more than 2,500 people each day, in and out of Boston. During the summer months, tourists visiting the harbor islands increase that number to more than 3,000 said Ed Colby, a ticket seller at the terminal.

In addition to $750,000 in the Seaport Bond Bill earmarked for commuter boat terminal improvements in Hingham like a new covered walkway, a safer waiting area and restrooms, the $4.1 billion transportation bond bill now moving through the legislature includes another $50 million for improved water transportation in coastal communities throughout the state.

A separate MBTA project to improve and expand the terminal's parking lot is planned for August, said Moynihan, who noted that the expansion plan will provide room for about 300 more cars and will better use of the considerable land at the shipyard.

"Hingham is an area of particular interest primarily of the success we've experienced here so far," said Moynihan, who said there is interest within the state to expand commuter boat service to the North Shore.

Last month a trial boat service launched in Scituate during the winter wrapped up but Hedlund said he'd like to see permanent commuter boat service in Scituate and possibly from the Fore River Shipyard in North Weymouth as well.

Myrna Putziger recognized

Town meeting unanimously passed a resolution honoring zoning board of appeals chairwoman Myrna Putziger who is stepping down after 16 years on the board, 13 as chairwoman.

"She has led us on issues as complicated as the development of Shaw's plaza and as simple as your neighbor's deck," said Mark DeGiacomo of Putziger.

Position to be appointed

The town will seek special legislation to make the treasurer-collector's position appointed in three years. The change was endorsed by the government structure committee.

Selectmen Jane Goedecke said while elected treasurer-collectors have served the town well, going forward making the position appointed "will make sure we have the opportunity to get the best person for the job and we won't be limited to people from Cohasset."

Long-time Treasurer-collector Elizabeth B.Ripley recently stepped down to accept a position in Marshfield.Three people are running for the elected post

Term limits effort nixed

An article establishing a three-term limit on appointed boards was soundly defeated by town meeting voters Monday.

Selectmen and the advisory board said it is hard to find people to serve and said they felt it would be detrimental to the town.

Lou Simeone of the the Committee to Survey Structure & Functions of Town Government agreed, saying "why throw away a good pair of shoes when they're still comfortable."

Henderson is honored

Town meeting unanimously passed a resolution honoring long-time town counsel Richard A. Henderson for his years of service to the town. Henderson recently stepped down from the position to devote more time to his private law practice

Selectmen last weekend accepted outgoing town counsel Richard Henderson's resignation, with regret, effective March 15.

Paul DeRensis is the new town counsel.

Sandell is recognized

In a resolution presented by school committee chairman Ralph Kidder, town meeting recognized school committee member and former chairman Nancy Sandell for her nine years on the school board.

"She has always acted in good faith, with a good sense of humor, and she has always demanded excellence," Kidder said of Sandell.

Dr. Sceery is honored as Citizen of the Year

Reception held at Kimball's by the Sea

Staff photos/J. Paul MacDonald

Mariner Newspapers publisher Margaret Smoragiewicz presents Dr. Robert T. Sceery with the front page of the Cohasset Mariner heralding the award.

Michael Sceery, Dr. Sceery's son accompanied by his daughter, recounts life with his dad.

Two of Dr. Sceery's grandsons Ivan and Nils listen intently to the testimonials.

Dr. Sceery (center) is the third annual Citizen of the Year. Last year's recipient was Joseph "Joe" Buckley, left, and the first person to receive the award was T. Gerard Keating, at right.

Dr. Sceery, a pediatrician who has practiced in Cohasset for more than 40 years, was honored at a special reception for him and his family Sunday at Kimball's by the Sea. Dr. Sceery's boutonniere and Mrs. Sceery's corsage were provided by Exotic Flowers & Fine Gifts.

Dr. Sceery smiles as state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray reads a proclamation honoring him from the state House of Representatives.

Women's workshop offered

The South Shore Women's Business Network is sponsoring an interactive workshop for women, which will deal with the conflicts and stresses of women of the '90s. The program will be held on Thursday, April 11, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Sheraton Tara, Braintree.

"Breaking Through Barriers to Health and Wellness" will offer solutions and cover such challenges as juggling multiple jobs and roles, the impact of a polluted environment and being heard and healed in the traditional health-care system.

The program will be led by Vicki Donlan, facilities marketing manager of the Spence Center for Women's Health, Braintree, and Dr. Susan Emmer of Chiropractic and Family Wellness Care, Cohasset.

For further information or to register, write to: South Shore Women's Business Network, P.O. Box 577, Accord, Mass. 02018-0577.

Easter egg hunt is Saturday

The Cohasset Recreation Commission will conduct its annual Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday, April 6, at noon at Deer Hill School for children ages 3 through 11.

The Easter Bunnies will arrive via a Cohasset fire truck at about 11:45 a.m. at Deer Hill.

The Recreation Commission's annual egg hunt is made financially possible through donations made by the Cohasset Police Association, George H. Mealy, American Legion Post #118, Rotary Club of Cohasset and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #9146, Cohasset.

Costume committee presents program

The Cohasset Historical Society's costume committee will present "Underneath It All" on Wednesday, April 17, at 7 p.m. at the Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer St.

Guest speaker Sandra Pollock, a member of the costume committee, will present a program on the evolution of underwear from 1700 to 1930. Many items from the Society's extensive and sometimes curious collection that have never been displayed before will be exhibited.

The event is free to Society members and students, and $3 for non-members. All are invited to attend.

Parenting workshops offered

Two Pre-school Parenting Workshops are being offered in the pink room next to the bowling lane at the Cohasset Community Center on April 9 and 16, from 12:45 to 2 p.m.

On April 9, the topic will be "Understanding Behavior and its Influences" and "The Goals of Misbehavior."

"Methods of Effective Discipline" will be discussed on April 16.

Workshops are open to any Cohasset parent of pre-school-aged or younger children and will be led by Frank Fitzgerald, adjustment counselor at Osgood School.

"Parenting Young Children" by Dinkmeyer and McKay will be utilized during the workshop. The book is available at Buttonwood bookstore. Some limited free child care slots are available for three to six year olds. To register, call 383-6117.

Wolf—Jake Watts, 1st; Prescott Busk, 2nd, Brandon Smith, 3rd; Bear—William Carbone, 1st; Jochen Hermanns, 2nd; Jack Carrol, 3rd; Webelos I—Andrew Guild, 1st; Jonathan Degruchy, 2nd; David Santiago, 3rd.

Webelos II—Rob Lehr, 1st; Mark Chapman, 2nd; Michael Snowdale, 3rd.

The overall winner of the 1st-place races was Rob Lehr. The Wolf, Bear and Webelos I and II first-, second- and third-place winners will race in the District Pinewood Derby on April 13 at Camp Squanto, Plymouth.

Art classes begin April 8

Registration for spring courses at South Shore Art Center will continue through April 7. Classes for all ages and abilities are being offered, including watercolor, clay, special effects, paper-making, card workshops, color scheming, handmade photo albums and drawing.

A family workshop will be held on May 19 from 1 to 4 p.m. to teach the art of Gyotaku printing directly from a fish, making carp kites and decorating giant sea creatures.

For information, to request a catalogue or to register, call 383-2787 or visit the center. Hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m.

Career choices is topic

Nancy A. Raby, director of career services at Aquinas College, will speak at the April 10 meeting of the American Association of University Women, Hingham area branch. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Derby Academy library, Burditt Avenue, Hingham. The topic will be "Career Choices and Changes."

For more than 10 years, Raby has provided consulting services, conducted seminars and workshops in personal and professional development for women in business and offered individual career counseling. In 1984, she started a networking group for women in business.

Good Friday Walk April 5

Good Friday, April 5, will mark the 25th time that Braintree resident Kay Doherty will embark on a 20-mile journey to raise funds primarily for the children in the rural, poverty-stricken areas of our southern states.

The walk will commence from the Hingham Junior High School from 7 to 9 a.m. Each walker is asked to obtain sponsors for at least $1 per mile and sheets are available by calling Kay Doherty at Sharing, Inc., (617) 843-1676.

The route covers 20 miles throughout Hingham and Wampatuck State Park. There are a number of stops and first aid stations along the way, and walkers may walk any number of miles or the entire route. For those unable to walk, there is always a place to lend a hand behind the scenes or a walker looking for sponsors.

ARC plans dinner dance

South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens will hold its 45th annual dinner dance on Saturday, April 27, at Lantana's in Randolph. ARC is a non-profit United Way-supported agency, providing disability services in Cohasset and the South Shore area through their residential, employment, community, recreational and early intervention programs.

According to Jean Bailey of Cohasset, a member of the ARC board of directors, "This annual dinner is yet another example of the exceptional community base that South Shore ARC has enjoyed over the past 45 years. I'd expect more than 500 people to turn out for this gala, many of them from Cohasset."

Tickets are $35 and may be purchased by calling the ARC development office at 335-3023, Jean Bailey (383-1186), Maria Plante (383-9263) or Taffy Nothnagle (383-0895).

Last call for recipes!

It's not too late to submit recipes for the multicultural cookbook being published by the Cohasset Diversity Group, in conjunction with Cohasset PSO. Profits from the sale of the cookbook will help establish an awareness of diversity issues through community events, multicultural programs and schoolwide educational opportunities.

Young artists are asked to submit original black and white drawings on a 3x5-inch piece of paper for an art contest sponsored by the PSO/Diversity Group. The winning entry will be the cover design for the cookbook, and all remaining artwork will be dispersed throughout the cookbook as space permits. The artist whose drawing is selected will receive a free cookbook and diversity T-shirt.

Recipes and drawings may be sent to: Pearl Smith, 8 Flintlocke Ridge Road (383-6953); Catherine Davis, 52 Linden Dr. (383-2570) or Georgia Carroll, 16 Linden Circle (383-0577).

CHS students join SEMSBA

Ten students from Cohasset High School made their way through the Southeastern Massachusetts School Bandmaster Association audition process to be accepted as members of the 175-voice chorus, which performed March 23 in Sharon High School auditorium.

Student participants from CHS were sopranos Maren Cameron and Emilly Henderson; altos Katie Buckley, Jane Flaherty, Lindy Holway, Jacque Hurley and Karen Niessink; tenors Ron Nicynski and Mark Whitman and bass Chad Whitman.

The chorus, which was conducted by Elaine D'Angelo, a music teacher in Stoughton, was combined with the SEMSBA orchestra to perform a montage of songs from the 1920s as the finale.

Thirty towns participate in the SEMSBA, which was founded in 1953 to give students an opportunity to experience the enjoyment of performing together.

TEEN CENTER/news

Before the sun rose on March 23, a group of 23 seventh, eighth, and ninth graders boarded a bus for the First Annual Cohasset Recreational Department/Teen Center Ski Trip to Waterville Valley, New Hampshire. The students spent an entire fun-filled day schussing down slopes in warm, sunny, yet at times, snowy conditions. The trip was a great success!

Thank you to co-directors John and Amy Getgey, and to supervisors Kathleen Maddaus and Brian Heffernan. Brian, a former ski instructor, spent a portion of the day teaching some first timers the fine art of skiing. Also a special thanks to Dunkin Donuts and Atlantic Bagel Company for supplying the teens with a hearty breakfast.

The teen center will be closed on April 5 & 6. The next scheduled activity is an open house for sixth graders and their parents from 3:30 to 7 p.m., April 10. Please come and tour the Teen Center and meet some of the staff, who are open to suggestions and ideas.

Your Chance to Fix Government

By Mark Leccese
CNC State House Bureau

BOSTON -- All six million of us in Massachusetts are customers of state government, and who knows better how to improve a product than the customer?

So Community Newspaper Company is joining the Pioneer Institute for Public Policy Research in the Institute's 6th annual Better Government Competition.

This year's topic: public safety.

According to the Institute, "Effective public safety policies for the next millennium will have to address issues of privatization, regionalization, integration, and technology, among others."

In previous years, the competition has examined and sought better government ideas to address such problems as the state's fiscal crisis of the early 1990s, environmental laws, helping children, reforming welfare, and improving the performance of state and local government.

Many ideas that emerged from the competition have been implemented by state government, saving the taxpayers of Massachusetts millions of dollars and improving services.

The competition is open to anyone.

"So much of what we do and how we're supposed to think about these problems comes out of a proscribed mode, a viewpoint that comes from inside Route 128," said Better Government Competition Director Linda Brown of the Pioneer Institute.

"It seems to us the ordinary citizen doesn't have a chance to let us know what on his or her mind," Brown said. "Sometimes we overlook a mighty idea because it doesn't come from the usual suspects."

Although one of last year's winners was Attorney General Scott Harshbarger, Brown said, "If the idea is good, it doesn't matter if it comes from Scott Harshbarger or Mrs. Jones in Tewksbury."

Anyone with an idea is welcome to enter the competition: students, academics, non-profit organizations, state and local government employees, consultants, business people, and any interested citizen.

The Institute may provide an honorarium, if it needed for research, of up to $5,000.

The Pioneer Institute, founded in 1988, is a non-profit research institute that publishes academic studies on social and economic issues facing the state, works to improve schools in the state and helps the launching of private charter schools, and annually conducts the Better Government Competition and publishes the winning entries in a book.

BETTER GOVERNMENT COMPETITION ENTRY FORM

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

- A detailed description of the problem to be addressed
- A detailed explanation of the proposed solution
- An estimate of the potential public and private costs
- A discussion of the legal, political or other related obstacles
- An assessment for replicatiopn, indication how widely this approach might be applied in Massachusetts.

Race hits the big time

931 runners gather for 20th annual event

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

Cohasset didn't need Jack Nicholson, Goldie Hawn or Susan Sarandon filming a big budget Hollywood movie to draw a huge crowd to Cohasset Common on Sunday.

The only enticement 931 runners needed was the chance to blaze a trail over the 10K route of the 20th annual Cohasset Road Race By The Sea.

"It's a beautiful town," said women's winner Sarah Nixon of Medfield. "It seems like a great town race."

As beautiful as the town and course are, runners have to put the scenic landscape to the side and concentrate on navigating their way over the hilly 6.2 mile course.

Arthur Sorrell, a 36-year-old Laconia, NH resident, spread the lead pack out quickly, stringing together a pair of 5-minute miles to run away with a 32:15 victory. Sorrell's time gave him a comfortable 40-second cushion over runner-up and past winner Bob Chasen (32:55) of Weymouth. Chasen, 41, topped the Master's division with Whitman's Bob Ruel taking second (34:02) and Bob Lewis of Revere nailing down the third slot with his 35:09.

"It's a nice course," said Sorrell, who is hoping to run a sub-2:30 in the upcoming Boston Marathon. "If it was a little later in the season I'd have liked to run a faster time."

Matt Collins and Joanne Cannon-Hill were the first Cohasset finishers. Collins took 13th overall with a time of 35:40 and Cannon-Hill's 41:18 put her at 74th and sixth woman to finish.

Sorrell was lucky to make it to the starting line, arriving at Cohasset Common a scant 15 minutes before race time. Sorrell admitted the hills along Jerusalem Road and the grind up Forest Ave. slowed him down, but he still managed to averaged a 5:12-per-mile pace for the course.

Nixon (38:41) ran a strong race, but had company the entire way. She trailed eventual second-place finisher Tracey Corrigan (38:47) of Quincy through the mile before taking the lead.

Nixon maintained a sub-6-minute pace for the first two miles, but unlike the male runner's who couldn't stay with Sorrell,

Leahy, McKenna to lead '96 Laxmen into battle

By ELY KAHN
Special to the Mariner

Led by senior Co-Captains Ken Leahy and Chris McKenna, the Cohasset High School boys lacrosse team, playing in the South Division of the EMass League for the first time, faces two tough opponents next week. The Skippers take on Sandwich on Tues. April 9 in an away game before returning home for an April 12 tilt against Weymouth.

"This is our most demanding schedule ever," said head coach Ken Ekberg, now in his eighth season. "Hingham has two All-Americans, and Weymouth, Sandwich, Duxbury and Falmouth are all likely tournament teams. We'll have to play very well to get ourselves there."

The Skippers tested themselves in the preseason, scrimmaging Boston College High, Waltham and Concord-Carlisle. Against Concord-Carlisle, a team expected to contend for the state title, Cohasset lost by just a pair of goals and shut out its host in the second half. Senior Andy Collins struck for a hat trick and junior goalie Ely Kahn dominated the game's latter stages with several fine stops.

Collins will be joined on the first midfield by junior John Lacks, a Bay State Games gold medalist last summer, and senior Kevin Smith. "Collins moves to midfield this year seems to be the most improved player on the team," said Ekberg. Both Collins and Smith played attack last year. The second midfield will include juniors Bob Stansell, Matt O'Connor and Dave Noble. The third will feature seniors Ed Hamilton and Greg Shultz, and sophomore Adam Donovan. Sophomore Pat Leahy will see action at both midfield and defense, while sophomore middie Tucker Gledhill is sidelined indefinitely with an ankle injury.

Leahy, who scored 47 points (22 goals, 25 assists) in 1995 and who'll be playing

Diamond Kings aim for post-season

By JIM O'SULLIVAN
Special to the Mariner

It seems as if the Boston Red Sox were World Champions the last time the Cohasset Skippers Varsity baseball team earned a berth in the Massachusetts Division Three State Tournament. This year, skippered by Ron Ford and captained by hurler Greg Stevens, Cohasset will undoubtedly vie for one of the coveted tourney spots. With a strong pitching corps and a large group of versatile players, Cohasset seems to be destined to post a record good enough to reach the promised land.

Stevens, who also plays first base, pitches with a repertoire that includes a fastball, a change-up, and a wicked curve. With a cool demeanor on the field, Stevens shows great poise on the field and appears to be on the verge of a great season.

Mike Dunphy, a versatile right-handed hitting senior, is playing his first season in a Cohasset baseball uniform, after moving to Cohasset from Scituate. Dunphy's strong throwing arm, lightning speed and quick bat make him a valued addition to this veteran squad. Dunphy got a headstart on the season by attending a spring training clinic in Florida. Ford is hoping that Dunphy can prove a welcome addition to the team.

Eric Henry, another senior, is a second-year ballplayer, but plays like a seasoned vet. With a rifle arm and good speed, Henry will be a reliable force in left this year. He will probably see action behind the plate and on the mound as well.

Rafael Alarcon, Cohasset's foreign secret weapon, could be a big surprise for the Skippers this year. Rafael is a senior at CHS and playing in his first sports season for Cohasset. "Raf" as he is affectionately called, should help fill in spots in the outfield when Ford has the call.

Rob Buckley, a veteran catcher who also played second base last year for the Skippers, is expected to have a breakthrough season with the bat this year. A superb defensive player, Buck got off to a slow start last year at the plate. He recovered nicely and is expected to pick up right where he left off.

Grant Emde, Cohasset's centerfielder and, according to Ford, the "best base stealer on the team," is ready for a big season. Also a star as a running and defensive back in football, and a guard on the hardwood, Emde's vast range, strong arm, and brilliant baserunning make him a versatile asset to this year's edition.

Joe Magner is another one of those versatile Skippers. Magner took a season off last spring, so he has never played a full varsity season. But Ford still has high expectations for him. Another speedster on the basepaths, Magner is expected to pitch, play second and see action in the outfield this season.

Kevin McKenna, a savvy first baseman with a quick bat, hit third as a sophomore for the Skippers. Although he's not very fast on the basepaths, McKenna gets a good jump on balls and is a wizard at digging bad throws out of the dirt. With a sweet swing and good baseball instincts, McKenna is a mainstay on the right side of Ford's infield.

Doug Sheerin, also a transfer from Scituate, spends his winter season on the mat (Sheerin was selected to represent Cohasset in the state tournament), but heads for the diamond come spring. Speedy, with a good arm and a three-quarters delivery, Sheerin will see time in the outfield and on the mound this season.

Pat Hurley, a second year varsity player who started last year as a freshman, is Cohasset's third sacker. A heads-up player with a good arm, Hurley isn't afraid to get his uniform dirty, a necessary attitude if one is to play the hot corner. Hurley has three more seasons of wearing the varsity blue and gray, and he's hoping to take his good start last year and build on it.

Mark Kupsc, a sophomore like Hurley, is spending his first year on varsity. Stepping in to play second last year on the JV, Kupsc utilized his good range to help anchor the infield. Armed with a great knack for dropping down a picture perfect bunt, Kupsc should be a great addition to the squad.

Mike Rossi got his first sniff of varsity baseball last year when he was given the much sought after "call-up" for a few games. Rossi hit well and played superbly in the field.

Greg Taylor, another freshman phenom, started on varsity last year as an eighth-grader, playing outfield and pitching a little bit. This year, Taylor moves closer to the action, playing shortstop and pitching. Taylor should be valuable for the Skippers this season.

Equipped with a strong nucleus of veterans, a durable, live-armed pitching corps, speed on the basepaths and dangerous bats, the Skippers are prepared to make a tournament run.

for Providence College next spring, anchors the attack. Classmate McKenna (13 goals, three assists) takes over the crease. Sophomore Jamie Buick, the JV scoring leader last season, gets the third starting position. They'll be backed up by sophomore Eric Moore.

Kahn, also a BSG gold medalist, and classmate Matt Belson, a starter since ninth grade, lead the defense. Senior John Whitehouse, who's been strong in preseason, and sophomore John Kasemeyer will also start. Junior Ryan McWilliams and sophomore Tom Leahy will see plenty of action.

"We have talent," said Ekberg, "but, as usual, we lack depth."

Ekberg pointed out that the JV squad has 21 players and a new fifth-sixth-grade team has 29.

"The future doesn't look bad," he said.

Cohasset High swim team Co-Captain Jamie Kondrat and Lauren Devito had fine seasons for the Skippers as both were named to the South Shore League All-Star team.

931 runners gather for 20th annual event

Corrigan kept Nixon well within striking distance. And Nixon knew she was dogging her every minute.

"I saw her out of the corner of my eye a couple of times and knew she was right there," Nixon said. "At the end I was trying to keep up the distance between us in case she tried to kick and pass me."

Despite the duel she waged with Corrigan as they pounded down Jerusalem Road, Nixon was able to relax enough to take in the beauty of the course, which has been labeled by New England Runner Magazine as one of the top-10 scenic courses in the six states.

"The course was absolutely gorgeous, but hilly," she said. "It's a beautiful town. It seems like a great town race. I've been gearing up for the marathon so I've been running a lot of hills. I'm used to training on hilly courses, but racing on them is completely different."

Nixon held Corrigan off to win by six seconds. Melissa Mendel was just over a minute back (39:49) in third place.

Nixon has every intention of entering the race again. "Definitely," she said. "It's a beautiful race. And because I have two small kids, I look for family races."

Race director Roy Fitzsimmons, a member of the Rotary Club, which sponsored the race in conjunction with the South Shore Community Center, said the volunteers did a good looking out for the well-being of the runners by keeping rollerbladers and bikes away from the field.

"Our concern is the runners," Fitzsimmons said. "We always try to treat the runners well. The weather was perfect and the runners seemed pleased again.

"It's a fun day for everybody."

The race's Grand Marshal, 1960 Olympic gold medal winner in the 1,500 meters at Rome, Herb Elliot, said he thoroughly enjoyed the race and living in Cohasset since he moved to town last May.

"It's one of the special places on God's earth," Elliot said. "The whole character of the common; it's a beautiful place to live.

"It was a very special occasion for me. It was a beautiful day and I enjoyed being there."

Several Cohasset runners raced their way to the top of the age-group places. Bob Morgan took third in the 14-17 division with a finishing time of 44:19. Hull's Jamie Gallagher ran a sterling 34:58 for first, followed by Scituate's Fred Renner (41:40).

Cohasset runners swept the top-three spots in the Under-14 division on both the boys and girls side. Tim Baird (44:21), Dan Kinchla (47:08) and Mike Ernst (47:50) kept the out-of-towners in bay, while Maureen Equi (56:31), Maura Duffy (57:42) and Kathleen McCarthy (59:44) made it a clean sweep.

Colin Solomon of Boston took third in the Open division (33:50) behind Bligh and Sorrell. In the 50-59 group, South Shore runners swept the three spots with Marshfield's Tom Wright taking first (41:00), Arthur Dranin of Weymouth in second (41:49) and Rob Banks of Scituate racing to third (42:10).

Fred Wright made his trip from Houston, Texas well worth the trouble by winning the 60-and-over class with a fine 44:30. Wellesley's Paul Wood was second (49:10) with Bill Klier of North Weymouth rounding out the top three at 49:50.

Milton's Katie Lambert edged Lindsey Gilooly of Stoughton in the 14-17 division, 45:19 to 45:22. Walpole's Liz Timiney was just 16 seconds back in third (45:38).

Master's winner Susan Baker of Connecticut (42:00) bested second-place finisher Janey McViney of Hingham by 36 seconds (42:36). Antoinette Wojtasinki of Kingston was third in 43:20.

Hull's Andrea Hatch, who has run in every Boston Marathon since 1977, ran away with the 50-59 prize in 49:09. Scituate's Carol Renaud was a distant second (54:14), followed by Rachael Scott of Boston (54:44). Westboro's Rowland Marcotte won the 60-and-over division in 61:27.

The Posniak family has a great view of the runners as they watch the Cohasset Road Race from the front of their North Main St. home.

Hoop boosters commended

Commission thanks hoop boostersThe Cohasset Recreation Commission extends its gratitude to the Cohasset Basketball Boosters Club and the many individuals volunteering their effort and time in conduct of the 1995-96 basketball program.

While too numerous to mention all by name, special thanks should go to Karen Devine, Roy Davis and Bill Grimm who spent countless hours organizing the three leagues.

As one might suspect, the operation of a program consisting of approximately 350 youngsters takes many people and great efforts on their behalf. All are thanked and appreciated. Cohasset is a very fine community in which to live and work and it is because of our residents that this remains to be true.

Boat safety course offered

A Boating Basics safety course, sponsored by the Massachusetts Environmental Police, is being offered at their headquarters at Hewitts Cove Marina on April 9, 10, 16, 17, 23 and 24 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Personal watercraft certification is available.

The course, which is free of charge, is geared to beginners and young people entering the world of boating. Young people 10 years and older are encouraged to attend, with a parent if possible.

Successful completion of such an approved boating safety course is required under state regulation for individuals under age 16 who wish to operate a motorboat that is more than 25 horsepower without adult supervision.

The course will foster safe attitudes by developing an increased awareness of safe boating practices, legal responsibilities and general marine knowledge. Topics that will be discussed include: watercraft, accident prevention, legal requirements, safety equipment, safe boat operation, rules of the nautical road and aids to navigation.

A test will be administered during the final meeting, and upon successful completion of the course, safety certificates will be awarded to students.

Materials include a free manual and other literature and various audio-visual teaching aids. For further information or to sign up for the course, call the Safety Bureau at 727-8760 or (508) 790-9360.

10K road race, June 23

The Cape Cod Canal Region Chamber of Commerce and All Cape Health Care of Bourne, the premier sponsor, will hold the Fourth Annual Cape Cod Canal 10K Road Race/Run and Walk June 23, beginning at 10 a.m.

The 10 kilometer (6.2 miles) course starts at the Scusset Beach end of the canal. Participants will race along the paved road that parallels the canal to the finish at the railroad bridge in Buzzards Bay. Three water stations will be provided along the route.

Parking is available at the Cape Cod Canal Region Chamber of Commerce's office, adjacent to the railroad bridge. A shuttle will operate from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., to transport participants from the parking area to the starting line.

Trophies and $100 cash prizes will go to the first female and male finishers overall in the three categories, Run, Walk, and Wheelchair. Medals will be awarded to the first three female and male finishers in each division. The divisions are as follows: Juniors (under 18); Open (18-29); Sub-Master (30-39); Master (40-49); Senior (50-59); Veteran (60+); and Wheelchair. Prizes will be awarded for categories with three or more competitors.

Registration starts April 15. The entry fee prior to June 7 is $10; thereafter the fee is $12. Free T-shirts to the first 250 pre-registered entrants.

For further registration information call the chamber office at (508) 759-6000.

Worship News

St. Stephen's celebrates Easter; candlelight service Saturday

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., will celebrate the Great Vigil of Easter, a candlelight service on Saturday, April 6, at 7 p.m. The worship is dramatic, beginning with the church in darkness. Candles are lit, and at the moment when resurrection is proclaimed, the lights are turned on, signifying that the resurrected Jesus is the light that leads the world out of darkness.

Worship on Easter morning, April 7, will be at 8 and 10 a.m., with the full choir and choristers at 10 a.m. Both services, Eucharist with sermon, will be held in the church.

Worship on Maundy Thursday, April 4, will be at 7 p.m. The Eucharist commemorates the Last Supper and the importance of community for the church's life together in Christ. Following the Eucharist will be a simple meal of foods typical of Jesus' place and time — breads, cheese, olives, nuts, fruits and milk and honey.

A 24-hour Prayer Watch will begin on Maundy Thursday at 3 p.m. Parishioners are asked to sign up for an hour throughout the day to be in the church to read, pray or meditate.

Good Friday worship begins at noon on April 5 with an hour of quiet. The Prayer Book liturgy begins at 1 p.m. A service for children takes place at 2 p.m., followed by half an hour of quiet reflection and prayer to end the traditional three hours of worship while Jesus was on the cross. A number of parishioners and the youth group will participate in the annual 20-mile Good Friday walk, raising money to assist economically poor areas of the South, particularly in rural Mississippi.

Easter message at chapel

Special Easter messages will be offered in celebration of the resurrection of Christ at the annual General Conference of the church held the weekend of April 6 and 7 in Salt Lake City.

Members of the Hingham Ward from 13 area towns can join the church's nine million members worldwide watching the proceedings live via satellite at the LDS chapel at 379 Gardner Street. Sessions will be aired on Saturday and Sunday from noon to 2 p.m. and continue from 4 to 6 p.m. Between sessions on Saturday, a box lunch and Easter egg hunt are planned. The public is welcome to attend all sessions. Regular church services will resume next Sunday.

Church to hold potluck suppers

The Beechwood Congregational Church will host potluck suppers during the next several months. Following each supper, a segment of the "Life on the Edge" video series by Dr. James Dobson of Focus on the Family will be presented.

The series offers a powerful presentation that equips teens and those who associate with them with the necessary skills for successfully dealing with the challenges of adulthood.

The suppers will begin at 6 p.m. in Merritt Hall at the church, followed by a video showing at 7 p.m.

The following programs will be offered:

April 18— "Love Must Be Tough"; May 16—"The Keys to a Lifelong Love"; June 20—"Emotions: Can You Trust Them?"; July 18—"When God Doesn't Make Sense"; Aug. 15—"Pornography: Addictive, Progressive and Deadly."

For further information, call Steve at 545-6162.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 96E0024-PP1

To Thomas J. Schiavo of Hingham, John D. Schiavo of Marshfield, Anthony T. Schiavo of Hingham, and Anthony T. Schiavo, Jr. of Hingham all within the Commonwealth, and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by John D. Schiavo of 2103 Ocean Street, Marshfield in the County, of Plymouth representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of four parcels of land lying in Cohasset in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: PARCEL ONE: NORTHERLY by Lot 2A, as shown on a plan hereinafter mentioned on three courses, one hundred twenty-seven and 02/100 (127.02) feet; twenty-four (24) feet and forty-two and 40/100 (42.40) feet respectively;

EASTERLY by South Main Street, as shown on said plan, seventy-two and 73/100 (72.73) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by Lots 3 and 4 on two courses as shown on said plan, one hundred ten and 93/100 (110.93) feet and ninty-five and 09/100 (95.09) feet, respectively;

WESTERLY by Lot 5 as shown on said plan forty (40) feet.

Said premises contain 9,830 square feet of land and are shown as Lot 2B on a plan of land entitled "Plan of Land in Cohasset, Mass," dated March 9, 1946, drawn by Lewis W. Perkins, Engineer duly recorded with Norfolk Deeds with a deed of Mary Rose Fratus to Phyllis N. Fratus dated December 12, 1947, and recorded in Book 2728, Page 286. Excluding therefrom Lot B as shown on a plan entitled "Subdivision Plan of Land in Cohasset, MAss." dated June 21, 1961, drawn by Gilbert & Maloney land surveyor recorded with Norfolk Deeds as Plan No. 877 of 1961 in Book 3917, Page 745 which was conveyed by Joseph A. Silvia et ux to Sun Oil Company by deed dated August 2, 1961, and recorded with said Deeds in Book 3917, Page 745. Also excluding therein a triangular parcel of land as shown as parcel "B" on a plan of land entitled "Plan of Land South Main Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts September 16, 1980 1"=30' Engineer: Neil J. Murphy, 760 Route 3A, Cohasset, Massachusetts" and containing four hundered fifty-five and (455) square feet of land, more or less, according to said plan which was conveyed by deed of Richard J. Silvia to Sarah T. Brewer, trustee, by deed recorded in Book 5834, Page 113. The Said plan is recorded as plan 68 of 1981.

PARCEL TWO: Lot A as shown on the plan by Gilbert T. Maloney dated June 21, 1961, recorded in Book 3917, Page 745.

PARCEL THREE: A Parcel of land in Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, being shown as Lot 4 on the aforesaid plan of Lewis W. Perkins, Engineer, dated March 9, 1946, and bounded and described according to said plan as follows: SOUTHERLY by two lines by Spring street as shown on said plan, fifty-four and 12/100 (54.12) feet and forty-five and 88/100 (45.88) feet;

WESTERLY by other land of Mary Rose Fratus, one hundred nine and 18/100 (109.18) feet;

NORTHERLY by land of Joseph A. Silvia et ux ninety-five and 09/100 (95.09) feet; and

EASTERLY by Lot 3 on said plan, one hundred twelve and 14/100 (112.14) feet; containing approximately ninety-eight hundred (9800) square feet.

For title to Parcels One, Two and Three, see deed of Joseph A. Silvia and Ruth S. Silvia dated July 15, 1977 and recorded in Book 5356, Page 714.

PARCEL FOUR: A triangular parcel of land shown as Parcel "A" on the aforesaid plan of Neil J. Murphy, recorded as plan 68 of 1981, containing four hundred fifty-five (455) square feet of land more or less, according to said plan. For title see deed of Sarah T. Brewer, trustee, dated January 27, 1981, and recorded in Book 5834, Page 112.

setting forth that he desire that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than $187,000.00 dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham, 649 High St., P.O. Box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the eighth day of May 1996, the return day of this citation.

Witness, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this twenty-fifth day of March 1996.

Seaport bond bill may be boon for South Shore towns

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

Governor William Weld signed the state's $267 million Seaport Bond Bill last month and that's good news for coastal communities throughout the state including Hingham and Cohasset.

One of the bill's strongest supporters, state Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, who attended the signing ceremony Feb. 26. said the bill has a significant South Shore focus.

Hedlund said part of the bill allows for pier improvements, dredging projects and harbormaster training in coastal communities that will provide for a better recreational and economic environment and improve transportation facilities for South Shore residents.

At least $750,000 is earmarked for upgrading the the Hingham Shipyard Commuter Boat Terminal. A new pier allowing for improved docking, covered walkway, and waiting area are planned.

Various, much needed harbor dredging projects will also be addressed with the $50 million authorized in the bill.

Hedlund noted that, except for about $19 million of those funds ($18 million for dredging in New Bedford and $750,000 for a project in Gloucester), none of the dredging money is specifically earmarked for particular communities.

In Cohasset, where the increasingly shallow harbor threatens the livelihood of the town's commercial fishing fleet, local officials are awaiting federal legislation that will allow the dredging project to take place.

According to Selectman Peter Pratt, the lion's share of the dredging work in Cohasset, more than $1.2 million, will go on the federal government's tab as the area of federal jurisdiction makes up between 65,000 and 90,000 cubic yards. Funding for that work hinges on redefining the area of federal navigation which must be accomplished by an Act of Congress. Local and federal legislators have pushed the Cohasset legislation, which, attached to the Coast Guard Authorization Bill, has passed in the U.S. Senate and is awaiting conference committee to bring it to the House floor for a vote. No dredging work, in town, state or federal portions of the harbor and channel can take place until the act is passed and the permitting process can be completed.

Assuming the act passes this spring, the Army Corps of Engineers is looking to begin dredging in the fall of 1997.

Pratt said he is pleased to hear of the Seaport Bond Bill's passage.

"It brings more available funding into the crying need to address dredging issues along the coast," said Pratt, who noted that while the $300,000 committment already made by the state for dredging in Cohasset seems to be sufficient, the bond bill will provide some "give room" if the town should require additional funding.

"This puts more money into the statewide pot for these types of projects," he said.

In Hingham, the harbormaster expects another difficult summer for recreational boaters and countless groundings as mariners try to navigate a channel that is only 2-1/2 feet deep, up to and hour before and after low tide, and prevents the U.S. Coast Guard from entering the harbor to assist boaters.

Unlike Cohasset, the heaviest burden for dredging in Hingham will fall on the state and the town. And due to state budget constraints, officials now say, Hingham's $1.8 million project, which will remove 145,000 cubic yards of silt material, will likely be carried out over a three-year period with the state contributing about $400,000 each year and the town pitching in about $150,000 annually or $450,000 over the three-year timeframe. If the permitting process goes smoothly, harbor development committee members are looking foward to a November 1996 start for dredging. In the federal channel, Hingham faces another roadblock, said dredging coordinator Peter Lemonias. Despite repeated soundings, taken by the Coast Guard, recording the dangerously shallow channel and continual correspondence from the harbormaster to the Army Corps of Engineers, which responsible f dredging that area, that agency has y be convinced that a maintenance dred is needed.

In spite of the obstacles each community faces in getting their harbors dredged, both towns can be cautiously optimistic about the passage of the bill, the committment it makes to improving seaports, and the money it has dedicated for these projects, Hedlund said.

Still, Hedlund points out that the state's bond cap which forces various agencies to prioritize projects can delay both the funding and the dredging in both communities.

"It all boils down to priorities. We're competing with other interests around the state," said Hedlund, adding, "it's a matter of getting these projects ahead of other things."

"We have a receptive ear with the department of environmental affairs," said Hedlund, who said he will continue to advocate strongly for dredging projects in the communities he represents.

Wanted: a healthy village

Answers are sought for ailing downtown

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

About 25 business owners and interested citizens packed French Memories recently to brainstorm about the future of Cohasset Village.

Several merchants from Rte. 3A shops and Cohasset Plaza developer Donald Staszko were also on hand March 28 to show their support for the village, whose health, they agree, is vital to the town.

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce sponsored the meeting to address issues of concern including infrastructure, store vacancies, marketing the village as a place to shop and visit, and the impact of the train.

Chamber vice president Dean Rizzo said the meeting was called to assess interest; organize a task force to formulate an action plan; and look into forming a village committee to include two members of the task force, a chamber of commerce member, a selectman, a planning board member, and two citizens at large.

Jane "Tinka" McLean, a 50-year resident and former owner of The Linen Chest on Brook Street, said sidewalks and curbing are in dire need of attention. She said the diagonal parking is too angular and should be changed to improve traffic flow. She suggested Cohasset look at Duxbury where new sidewalks and curbing have made a difference.

Robert Gaughen, president of Hingham Institution for Savings, said he has received many positive comments about the former Cohasset Savings Bank building, which the bank renovated.

But he explained that while many say they'd love to open a shop in the village, they aren't confident they can make it.

Gaughen suggested bringing landlords, perspective occupants, and retailers together in a chamber sponsored symposium to look at the possibilities and build momentum.

Jerome Pfifer, Stagecoach Way landlord, said the village must be more vocal.

He said Cohasset takes its village for granted and urged support for a lobbying movement to let the town know "we're not going to be pushed around anymore."

"Route 3A catches people moving through, this is Cohasset," he said.

Elderly housing project for Beechwood floated

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

A local developer would like to build a senior citizen housing complex on seven acres in the so-called "Wolf Pit" area off the end of Beechwood Street near the town reservoir.

Wayne Sawchuk met with members of the Cohasset Housing Partnership this week to discuss the 28-unit condominium-style housing proposal, 25 percent of which would be dedicated as affordable housing or elderly/handicapped.

To qualify for a comprehensive permit — which provides "one-stop shopping for developers" by allowing them to go directly to the zoning board for approval — 25 percent of the total units would be sold at maximums of $72,500 for a one-bedroom unit to $83,500 for three bedrooms. These units would have deed restrictions preventing them from being sold later for profit.

Election turnout is one of the biggest on record

A record-breaking town election Saturday unseated a long-time selectman and passed a Prop. 2-1/2 override for a new $9.9 million elementary school.

Upwards of 62 percent of the town's registered voters participated in the election which featured six contested races for elected positions and a school ballot question.

The Prop. 2-1/2 debt exclusion, which will allow the town to borrow the money needed to construct a new school, squeaked through with an 80 vote margin.

In a four-way race for two seats, Martha Gjesteby lost her bid for a fourth term on the board of selectmen. Roseanne "Ronnie" McMorris, former chairman of the conservation commission, and Nancy "Nan" Roth, former chairman of the advisory board, edged out Gjesteby and trounced Robert V. Davenport, who decided to run for selectman and not re-election to the board of health (see complete results, page 11).

"I'm touched by the confidence voters showed in me," said McMorris who received the most votes in the selectman's

May 4 sewer override

Town Clerk Marion Douglas said April 16 is the last day to register to vote for the May 4 special override election on the sewer. The town clerk's office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. that day to accommodate citizens who would like to register.

Sewer Commission Chairman Ted Guild said informational "blue" booklets on the proposed Straits Pond area sewer project are free and are available at the selectmen's office.

The Prop. 2-1/2 debt exclusion override will allow the town to borrow money to pay for the project, half of which will be covered by betterments assessed to homeowners along the sewer line.

Brown takes reins again; as selectmen reorganize

For the first time in at least five years, selectmen will have the same chairman two years in a row.

Selectmen unanimously voted for Merle Brown to serve again as chairman. Michael Sullivan was elected vice-chairman.

Selectman Peter Pratt, who is up for re-election in 1997, nominated Brown.

Usually the chairmanship rotates each year and it is often held by a member in the final year of his or her term. Recent past chairmen have included Brown, Sullivan, Martha K. Gjesteby, Jane O. Goedecke and Edwin "Ned" Tebbetts.

Pratt, who must frequently travel out of state as director of the telecommunications program in the business research group division at Connors Publishing in Newton, said he did not have the time to devote to being chairman.

"The extent of my out-of-state travel would not allow me to do responsible work as chairman," Pratt said in a telephone interview. "Important work the chairman does is to make sure all parties are represented on the agenda.

"Although I wanted to be chairman, I felt it was the responsible thing not to pursue it at this time. That's why I nominated Merle Brown," he said.

License request tabled

Selectmen tabled action on a request by the Village Butcher & Deli for a Common Victualler (food) License until they have a chance to meet the owner, Michael Feroli, at next week's meeting. The new butcher & deli is at 1 Brook St. next to Cohasset News and will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Feroli will sell sliced meats, sandwiches, beef, pork, chicken and other related items.

Gjesteby is thanked

Selectmen Chairman Merle Brown opened this week's selectmen's meeting with a "thank you" to former selectman Martha K. Gjesteby. Gjesteby lost her bid for a fourth term in Saturday's town election.

"I'd like to thank Martha for all the years she's put in as selectman, school committee member, and on the planning board.

"She's done a great job for the town," he said.

During selectmen's comments at the end of the meeting, the other selectmen thanked both Gjesteby and Jane Goedecke for their service on the board. Goedecke did not seek re-election.

Storm policy drafted

Selectmen gave preliminary approval to a storm policy that would close, close early, or delay the opening of town hall because of hazardous weather conditions.

Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said labor counsel and town counsel have approved a draft of the policy.

Selectmen Chairman Merle Brown said the policy is not part of union negotiations.

The policy includes procedures for notifying departments when it may be necessary to close during the work day and alerting radio stations (after approval by the selectmen chairman) to announce closing or delaying opening of town hall.

It also provides for up to 30 minutes of tardiness allowable for employees due to stormy weather. Anytime over that would be billed as vacation time, personal leave, or accumulated compensatory time.

A telephone chain will also be established to notify employees of closing or delayed opening of town hall.

"The goal will be to make any closure or delayed opening decision by 6:45 a.m., so that the chain will be initiated at that time, and that all employees will be aware of the decision by 7:15 a.m.," the policy states.

A comprehensive permit would provide for a "multi-family" complex which otherwise would not be an allowable use in a"Residence A" district in Cohasset, Sawchuk said. Sawchuk stressed he understands the project is in an environmentally sensitive area and he intends to meet "every single guideline." The comprehensive permit would be sought because it is the only way a multi-family complex could be developed there.

The remaining units would be sold at market rates, starting at about $139,000. Under state law, there can be no distinguishing between the affordable and market-rate units in terms of size or appearance, CHP Chairwoman Chartis Langmaid explained.

To qualify for one of the affordable units, the buyer could not have more than $30,000 in assets and would have to qualify for first-time homeowner status by not having owned a home within the past three years.

The Cape Cod-style condominium project would have a common septic system. Each unit would have a one-car garage and there would be eight additional spaces for visitors. Buyers would have to be 55 years or older. Sawchuk said he was checking with the state to see if projects restricted to senior citizens are discriminatory,

Noting that the project is in the watershed protection district, Sawchuk said the plans meet all the setback requirements and is an area with "the least impact on the local neighborhood."

There is one abutting house on Doane Street and the site is buffered by the reservoir, Wompatuck State Park and the Aaron River.

Sawchuk, who is a Cohasset native, said he needed "input to see if this proposal would be good for the community."

Langmaid said her board had to do some homework on how the state rules on affordable housing have changed since the late 1980s.

"Our job is to promote any development which will add to the stock of affordable housing in Cohasset," Langmaid said. "We want it to work." She noted the board had not had a formal meeting in about four years due to a lack of projects.

All agreed that there is a large elderly population in town and little housing. Sixty-four Elm Street (behind the police/fire station), which is rental units, is the only elderly housing project in town. Condominium projects, Wheelwright Farm and 100 Pond Street, have large elderly populations and the units there sell from upwards of $250,000, Sawchuk said.

The local housing partnership works with the Mass. Housing Partnership, a state agency, in providing support for local housing initiatives with information, technical assistance, pre-development loans, and permanent financing for rental and home ownership.

Langmaid said she needed to determine if there is a restriction on what the CHP can promote.

"Our charge has always been to promote family housing, but that doesn't mean we wouldn't support a credible, workable, project that met the needs people have for affordable housing."

Sawchuk, who described the meeting as a workshop, says he has the land under a purchase and sale agreement and has six to nine months to obtain the necessary permits.

He said he could build a 10-lot subdivision there instead, but noted that four-bedroom, 2-1/2 bathroom homes would have more impact on the environment than the senior citizen housing, which he says would meet a need in town.

Selectmen Merle Brown and Ronnie McMorris attended the meeting. McMorris lives on Doane Street and Brown lives on Beechwood Street. McMorris said the neighborhood would have concerns about possible flooding problems if the area were developed.

Appointment is delayed

The civilian dispatch committee has recommended Joseph P. Dellapi, 29 Pettibush Lane, Duxbury be hired as a full-time dispatcher.

The committee liked Dellapi's background which included fire dispatch experience.

But, saying they did not want to set a precedent — selectmen wanted to hold off hiring Dellapi at "Step 5," which is $11.53 per hour when other full-time dispatchers are at a lower rate — until they conferred with the personnel committee.

"We are overstepping," Selectmen Chairman Merle Brown said.

Town Administrator Gregory Doyon explained that the dispatch center is short handed which presents scheduling difficulties. He said Dellapi was the only candidate with "good dispatch experience, especially on the fire side." Full-time dispatchers, Lindsay Coyle and David Weeks, resigned recently to accept other employment. Former part-time dispatcher Thomas Wigmore was hired to fill one of the full-time slots.

Snow deficit piles up

Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said as of Monday April 8, the town had a $125,314 snow budget deficit. The good news, Doyon said, was that Monday's storm required only one sanding crew so its impact was "minimal" on the budget. The figure does not include Wednesday's storm.

Planners nix subdivision plan

By BRIAN SURETTE
Special to the Mariner

The Planning Board last week unanimously refused support for preliminary plans by Jerusalem Road Limited Partnership for the construction of up to 28 houses on a 45-acre tract of land off Jerusalem Road.

Board Chairman Alfred Moore, in announcing the 3 to 0 vote (one member was absent), cited four major concerns which led to the decision, and predicted at least two other stumbling blocks if the developers wished to present their plans at another time.

Transportation engineer Jennifer Conley opened the public hearing by stating that a study conducted by her firm, Bruce Campbell & Associates, Inc., on behalf of developer Steven Cory, showed that at peak hours (7:30 to 8:30 a.m. and 5 to 6 p.m.), added vehicles from the developed land would not pose a hazard.

The additional 28 morning and 36 evening trips, she said, were well within acceptable limits, and would easily flow through the Jerusalem Road/Forest Avenue/Nantasket Avenue intersection.

Not all in attendance were in agreement with Conley's figures.

One resident noted that particularly high traffic volume in summer months gave the Jerusalem Road section of Cohasset a "seasonal" status lacking in other parts of town and, therefore, negating attempts to average in vehicles from any new developments.

"It's not just the increase in cars, but also the increase in noise," she stated. "Anymore cars put on that road and someone is going to get killed."

Cory's attorney, Charles Humphries, admitted that while plans called for 28 lots to be developed, because of concerns about the proximity of wetlands to lot boundaries, some lots might never be cleared for dwellings.

This prompted a resident to rebuke Humphries' wetlands statement.

"This is a 45-acre parcel of very attractive land, and it would not be an environmentally friendly development," he said.

Cohasset engineer John Modzelewski told board members that while the fears of area residents need to be addressed, this proposed plan was not a doom and gloom proposition.

"The impact of a 28-lot development will not be as drastic as some in the audience believe," he said.

In speaking for the board, Moore said the lack of addressed sewage hook-up, the length and grading of the development's one road (town waivers would have to be granted on both counts) and traffic safety were prime reasons for the board's decision to deny approval of the preliminary site plan.

"The whole project is not in the best interest of the town," Moore concluded.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

YOU AND YOUR AGENT

QUESTION: I have just been transferred and need to buy a home fast. I know the area I'd like to live in. What's the best action to take now?

ANSWER: The quickest method of selecting a home is knowing ALL that's available on the market. You won't get that information by charging around from one "For Sale" sign to another. Your best course is to seek help from a REALTOR – Preferably, one who is active in your selected neighborhood.

Be candid about your finances and what you can afford. This information will come out sooner or later and you'll waste your time looking at houses beyond your means.

Answers sought for downtown

Pfifer also said the town should demand the MBTA put a train stop in the village.

Staszko, who is also a director at Hingham Institution for Savings, urged the businesses in the village to work together by networking and talking up the village to other businesses.

Domenic Micarelli, president of the chamber and owner of Artist's Son Gallery in Jonathan Livingston Plaza on Rte. 3A, said the chamber can "be come the locomotive to see this through."

He said it is a "chemistry issue" and the village in its current state is sending the wrong message.

"You can usually tell how a business is doing just by looking at it, " he said. "When it's struggling, it looks run down."

Donna Green, an artist who operates her studio on Elm Street, said the village has something unique and it's not using it.

"We'll never compete with 3A," she said. "But we can create something down here that has energy, something that feels good."

Lora Labonte of Hunneman & Co. said the village has a great deal to offer tourists and it should work with tour companies to market itself.

"I don't see the residents as being enough support," she said.

There was also discussion on the need for public restrooms and an information center or bulletin board of some sort. Three members of the Village Renaissance Committee were on hand to offer their support and discuss their plans for flower boxes.

It was also suggested the task force look at Chatham and Osterville villages for ideas.

The task force will be meet at 5:30 p.m., April 18, at French Memories.

For more information, contact Dean Rizzo at 383-1994.

At their meeting this week, selectmen said they are supportive of efforts to revitalize the village.

They discussed the possibility of creating a one-way traffic pattern on South Main Street with a traffic loop through the town parking lot. Curbing is needed in front of the Independence Building which houses the Teen Center and selectmen thought parking could be angled differently in the village to improve traffic flow.

Selectmen, who reached a consensus that a village master plan is needed, expressed interest in attending the next task force meeting.

Ambulance billing update

The fire department billed for 19 ambulance transports last month for a total commitment of $6,585.48. The department received $9,038.39 in ambulance bill payments in March. As of April 1, the town has collected $76,696.26 out of a possible $90,774.63 in ambulance bills for a collection rate of 84 percent this fiscal year, which ends June 30.

Turnout is one of the biggest race with 1,470.

Roth was second with 1,368.

"I'm very happy, very relieved," Roth said following the results Saturday night.

Gjesteby said Monday she was disappointed and felt the board needed stability. In her nine years, there have been 11 different selectmen, she said.

"I felt the board needed someone with an historical perspective," Gjesteby said.

Richard "Rick" Shea, former chairman of the education foundation, won the open seat on the school committee, handily defeating Border Street resident Keith Knowles and Owen O'Malley of Sohier Street.

Humbled by his win, Shea said he won't forget the more than 50 percent who did not vote for him and would try and represent all citizens.

"I am happy with the school vote," he said about the ballot question. "But the closeness of the vote indicates we must be very careful when we go to vote for any override or capital spending and make our case carefully, making good economic arguments," he said.

Joseph "Joe" Buckley, who is on the Cohasset Elder Affairs board, beat local TV talk-show host Wigmore Pierson and conservation commission secretary Patricia Anne Walsh for the treasurer-collector's position.

Buckley, 73, who is retired, said it was about time he got back to work.

"I always thought it would be nice to retire for a few years and then go back again," he said, noting that he has been spending about 30 hours a week volunteering at the senior center with the SHINE program, which helps seniors wade through the health-care maze.

Terry Atherton, former DPW study committee chairman, was the winner in the planning board race over political newcomer Michael Mullin.

Atherton, who lost a previous run for the planning board, praised Mullin for getting involved and said he was looking forward to making a contribution on the planning board.

Edward "Ted" Guild won another term on the sewer commission surviving a challenge by Summer Street resident Jack Noble.

"I'm looking forward to finishing the job," Guild said about the town's sewer project.

And Cohasset native Richard "Chip" Muncey edged out John Rafferty of Stoneleigh Lane for the open seat on the water commission.

School Committee Chairman Ralph Kidder said the town made the right decision by passing the school question. A previous override question for a new school and upgrades to the Deer Hill School failed Feb. 10.

"I really want to thank the people," Kidder said. "They made the right decision, we need to do it (build a school)."

He added he was going to "steal" an idea Knowles proposed in the Cohasset Mariner's Question of the Week series and create an ombudsman position on the school board to improve communication.

Town Clerk Marion Douglas — who, with 2,254, was the top vote-getter of the day — said the turnout was 62.6 percent, the largest in at least 15 years. Town elections usually draw between 40 and 50 percent of the voters.

Citizens sought for train study

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Saying it will provide a chance to solicit more neighborhood input — selectmen will appoint a second committee to address concerns surrounding restoration of the train.

The charge of the new, seven-member "citizens" committee is to solicit through two public forums residents' concerns about safety, aesthetics, traffic flow, and neighborhood- and grade-crossing issues relating to the train and report those findings to the mitigation committee.

The committee is not being created to open up the train debate, selectmen stressed.

Last month, MBTA environmental manager Andrew Brennan suggested the town form a temporary mitigation committee,which will have an interest in how the rail line will be designed, focus on mitigation issues, and consist of public safety officials, department heads, and town board members. This committee — whose comments will be included in the environmental impact report which will be given to the state-appointed Citizens Advisory Committee, representing all towns along the train line, by Labor Day — will formulate a mitigation plan and report to selectmen within about 90 days.

The environmental impact report is prepared by the MBTA and, after review by the Citizens Advisory Committee, is sent to the state secretary of environmental affairs for action.

The Cohasset citizens train committee will report to the town mitigation committee, whose charge includes contacting committees in the other Greenbush towns to deal with those elements they have in common and reviewing the train report , an engineering firm prepared for the town, Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said.

One citizen at large, who will act as chairman of the citizens' committee, will also sit on the mitigation committee. Selectmen do not think having two town committees focusing on the train is redundant. They said the citizens committee will provide a vehicle for more people to get involved. Interested citizens should apply to the selectmen's office by Wednesday, April 17.

Sewer override

Town Clerk Marion Douglas said April 16 is the last day to register to vote for the May 4 special override election on the sewer. The town clerk's office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. that day to accommodate citizens who would like to register.

Sewer Commission Chairman Ted Guild said informational "blue" booklets on the proposed Straits Pond area sewer project are free and are available at the selectmen's office.

The Prop. 2-1/2 debt exclusion override will allow the town to borrow money to pay for the project, half of which will be covered by betterments assessed to homeowners along the sewer line.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

Cohasset equestrienne competes in Florida horse show

Abby Greer of Cohasset guided Golden Eye, owned by Amanda Reed of Norwell, over a jump at the 15th annual "Horse Shows in the Sun" competition at the Ocala, Fla., winter circuit 1996 event. Riders from 29 states and Canada competed at this year's show.

Greer, a riding instructor and horse trainer at River Wind Farm in Pembroke, trains riders and horses at all levels, from beginners of all ages to nationally recognized competitors.

As we have mentioned in past Around Town columns, there are a lot of Cohasset residents who will be involved in the 100th running of the Boston Marathon, which will take place next week. The Morse family, parents Sam and Trish and their sons, Dan and Nathaniel, of Cedar Street, are really excited to have a marathon runner staying with them while she trains.

Her name is Jean Driscoll, and she has won the Boston marathon six times in the wheelchair division. Jean trains for the event at Wompatuck, which is obviously a grand spot — her record speaks for itself! The reason the Morse family as the honor of Jean staying with them is that Sam's brother is her coach at the University of Illinois. She will speak to students at Deer Hill School while she is staying with the Morses. Perhaps you can ask your student all about her!

In the meantime, you can bet we'll all be watching for you to win again, Jean, and we wish you all the luck that we can muster for the event!

I had a nice chat with Barbara Elliot last week. She is finally pursuing a venture folks have asked her to do for a long time! Barbara is going to hold a dessert and card social on April 17 at 12:30 p.m. at the South Shore Community Center.

Barbara is running the event for the Council on Elder Affairs, but naturally everyone is welcome. She is asking a $5 donation. All who know Barbara know what a great card player she is — lots of "tricks" up her sleeve! And she will even award prizes to the winners! So go and have fun!

This Saturday, April 13, at 1 p.m., there will be a memorial service for Elizabeth Fink at Second Congregational Church. Mrs. Fink touched so many lives. She was a first-grade teacher at Osgood School for many years, and her enthusiasm for all that she did was famous — she spread cheer wherever she went. We certainly want to send our respects to her family and friends. She will be missed!

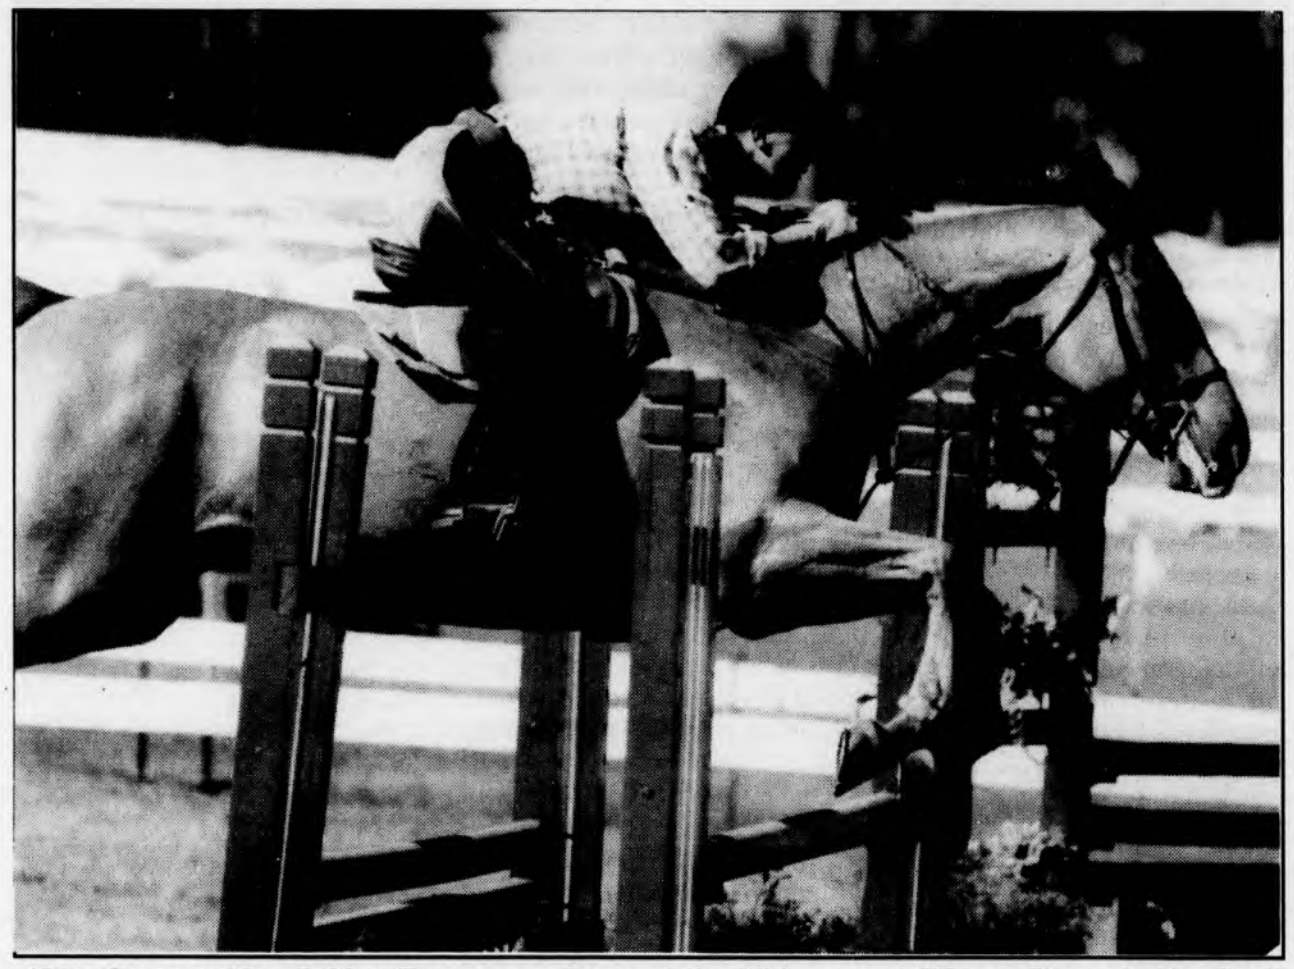
Joe Slotnick ('99) was a member of the 1995-96 Vassar College men's basketball team. The Brewers finished the season winning their last five games, to finish with a 14-win, 10 losses record.

Slotnick had a very productive freshman season, averaging 8.0 points per game. He led the Brewers in rebounding, pulling 9.3 per game, and was ranked 13th nationally for Division III in blocks, at 2.8 per game.



Abby Greer guides Golden Eye over a jump at the 15th annual "Horse Shows in the Sun" competition at the Ocala, Fla., winter circuit 1996 event.

Thomas M. Greco, son of Mr. Thomas R. Greco of Cohasset, has begun his first year at Middlebury College in Vermont. He joins approximately 680 other first-year students to form the Class of 1999 at the liberal arts college. He is one of 95 students entering at the start of the spring term.

If you have noticed Jack and Anna Maynard looking especially happy lately, let me tell you the reason why. Her name is Brittany Amber Gianibas, born to Martha and Nickolas Gianibas on March 13 at 4:24 a.m. Brittany, who weighed 8 pounds, 1 ounce, joins her older sister, Ashley Nicole, who is undoubtedly thrilled to have a baby sister! Margaret Gianibas is Brittany's paternal grandparent, and she lives in Hull, too! Best of luck to all of you.

That's the news for this week, except to say that we want to thank all of the people who ran for offices in last week's election — no matter what, you are all winners and have shown exactly how much you care for your town.We also thank all of those who served us in the past, and wish the "newcomers" the best.

Please don't forget to call me with your news.

Obituaries

John Antoine

Cohasset High graduate

John "Jack" Antoine, 32, of Cohasset and Long Beach, Calif., died April 2 in his Long Beach home after a long illness.

Born in Cohasset, he graduated from Cohasset High School in 1981. He also attended Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston. He worked at Nobles Camera Shop in Cohasset while attending high school and college.

Mr. Antoine was an account executive at Tri-Digital Co. in California for six years, and had worked seven years for Continental Airlines.

Mr. Antoine leaves his parents, A.J. and Marjorie (King) Antoine of Cohasset; a brother, Richard E. Antoine of Warner Robins, Ga.; three sisters, Nancy Antoine DiRocco of Milton, Patricia Lyne of Scituate and Jane E. Antoine of Wakefield; his friends, Richard Kesely of California and Ruth Ann Sargent-Ardizzoni of Scituate; a nephew and three nieces.

A memorial Mass was celebrated April 8 at St. Anthony's Church. Burial was private.

Donations in his memory may be made to the Amaryllis Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 269, Marshfield 02025 or to a charity of one's choice.

Arrangements were made by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

Elizabeth J. Fink

Service is Saturday

Elizabeth J. Fink, 73, of Cohasset, died April 1 at South Shore Hospital.

A Cohasset resident for 32 years, she grew up in Oswego, N.Y., where she attended State University College. She studied at Syracuse University and was a graduate of Bridgewater State College.

Mrs. Fink was a first-grade teacher at the Joseph Osgood School for 14 years, and was a member of the Harvard Institute for Learning in Retirement. She maintained an interest in learning throughout her life.

Mrs. Fink was a board member of Cohasset Community Center and was active in several quilting and gardening groups in the area.

She was the wife of Charles Fink and leaves two sons, Peter Fink of Arlington, Va., and Christopher Fink of Winston-Salem, N.C.; four daughters, Elizabeth Maceda of Boise, Id., Martha Palimeri of Durango, Colo., Meredith Stephens of Tyngsboro, Mass. and Susan Seid of Cheyenne, Wy.; three sisters, Barbara Johnson of Anderson, Ind., Margaret Murphy of Hampstead, N.C., Nancy Spang of Southampton, N.J.; a brother, James Mylott of Floral City, Fla.; eight grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at Second Congregational Church, Cohasset, Saturday, April 13, at 1 p.m.

Donations in her memory may be made to the American Red Cross, 285 Columbus Ave., Boston 02116.

Arrangements were made by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

Gerard J. Stanton

World War II veteran

Gerard J. Stanton, 79, of Cohasset, died March 28.

Mr. Stanton was born Aug. 16, 1916, the son of Joseph and Lazanni (Martin) Stanton of Boston and Ocean Bluffs, Mass. He attended Boston English High School.

He was employed as chief estimator of Mass. Electric Construction Co. until his retirement in 1980.

Mr. Stanton was an avid sailor and yachtsman who sailed with Sterling Hayden on around-the-world expeditions. He was co-founder and past commodore of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

He served with the U.S.Navy Ship Repair Unit with the Pacific Fleet during World War II.

Mr. Stanton was a former sewer commissioner for the Town of Cohasset and a member of the Knights of Columbus and Saint Anthony Parish.

He was the husband of Katherine F. (Magullion) Stanton, whom he married in 1944. They celebrated their 52nd anniversary on Feb. 5 of this year.

Mr. Stanton also leaves two sons, Gerard J. Stanton Jr. of Des Moines, Ia. and Robert Stanton of Cohasset; two daughters, Katherine Stanton Barker of Framingham and Mary Stanton Hynes of Southboro; a brother, Joseph V. Stanton of Virginia; and six grandchildren. He was the brother of the late Helen A. Stanton.

A Memorial Mass was celebrated March 31 in St. Anthony Church, Cohasset.

Donations in his memory may be made to: The South Shore Visiting Nurses Association, Coastal Office, 155 Webster St., Hanover 02339, or the Cohasset Sailing Club, Cohasset 02025.

Arrangements were by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

Town meeting

Before angry citizens throw the baby out with the bath water — we'll say from the outset that we think town meeting is still a healthy way to govern and deserves to be saved.

We don't agree that the town should be governed solely by elected officials like most towns are in other parts of the country are.

But town meeting is far from perfect as evidenced by what happened at both sessions of our recent town meeting.

For those who didn't attend or tune in — a horde of impatient and enthusiastic parents (who brought their children along) — tried to stop debate on the new school during the first session of town meeting. After a plea from school officials, the motion failed and debate continued for a short time, but not long enough to give opponents or fence sitters a fair forum to question and air their objections to the project.

Nevertheless, a motion was made to reconsider so the school article came up again during the continuation of town meeting the following Monday.

This time the school committee and school facilities committee urged that the vote to reconsider not pass. The advisory board asked that the school be reconsidered so discussion and debate could continue. The motion to reconsider failed – and hundreds of parents (with children in tow) again made a hasty and noisy exit.

Some said they were so upset by the discourteous and disrespectful behavior shown by some school supporters that they'd have to vote against the school.

We sincerely hope those people reconsidered and voted for the project on its merits.

And while we'd love for hundreds of citizens to attend every town meeting and stay through discussion on all the articles — that's not going to happen.

We agree with Town Moderator George Marlette, who says he's not opposed to having a few interested citizens get on with the routine business while others drop in when an article is of particular interest to them.

And we also agree with the many citizens who felt the proponents' behavior was rude, especially toward those who didn't share their enthusiasm for the new school.Those who behaved badly should remember that everyone in town will be paying for the school and with the slim 80-vote margin of victory in Saturday's election, their attitude could have lost the project.

The school committee said it will work toward educating parents on town meeting etiquette. We'd also like to see town meeting appreciation start earlier with attendance being a requirement in history or government classes for high school students.

Thanks, Martha

Former selectman Martha Gjesteby didn't get a town meeting resolution and standing ovation this time around — like former selectman Jane Goedecke, school committee member Nancy Sandell, zoning board chairman Myrna Putziger, town counsel Richard Henderson and treasurer-collector Betty Ripley did — because she wasn't planning to step down.

Mrs. Gjesteby finished a close third in a four-way race for two seats on the board of selectman Saturday and lost her bid for a fourth term.

We will miss Mrs. Gjesteby who has been a great friend of the press — and therefore your right to know.

We wish her the best and hope she stays involved on at least some of the innumerable state and regional boards on which she provides a voice for Cohasset.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stop town meeting mob rule

To the Editor:

I have participated in the legislative process of the Cohasset town meeting for more than 30 years. Never in all of those years have I witnessed the desecration of the principles of responsible town government that has been occurring recently.

We are witnessing an unfortunate phenomenon whereby the proponents of a particular article march in a large rowdy crowd of supporters, who clearly have no interest, understanding, or respect, for the serious legislative process that takes place in our town meeting. This crowd is then used to pack the house and strong-arm the issue through our legislative body. As soon as the vote is taken, the unruly crowd marches out and is soon replaced by another similar crowd brought in for a subsequent issue.

This sad situation is further compounded by the high-handed tactics that are used to muzzle responsible discussion of the issues that are so essential to responsible stewardship of our legislative process. This became painfully apparent Saturday afternoon (March 30) during consideration of the $9.89 million Joseph Osgood school replacement article. After this article was prefaced by an hour-long presentation by the proponents of this measure, who assert that we are suddenly faced with such a burgeoning school population and such an unsafe school structure that we must immediately begin construction of a new school, long before state aid for this endeavor becomes available and regardless of the devastating near term consequences to our town's tax rate.

Immediately after the proponents completed their presentation there was a call for the question. Recognizing that such blatant strong-armed tactics would be devastating to the override vote this coming Saturday, there was a 45-minute hiatus which was finally resolved by the proponents agreeing to allow other citizens to be heard on this matter.

As an individual who has spent many years in the field of educational data analysis, I rose to address the town about the detailed facts concerning the history of our school population, its relation to both the state and city birth rate and the effects of migration into and out of the town on our school population. My credentials in this field can be summarized by the fact that Chester Finn and Diane Ravitch, who, respectively, were the Deputy Secretary of Education under William Bennett and Lamar Alexander, chose me to do the data analysis for their book entitled "What Your 17-Year-Olds Know?".

When I got up to speak, the din in the room, after the 45-minute hiatus, was so great that it was virtually impossible to speak. The moderator failed to bring the meeting to order. The lights were not dimmed, as they were for other speakers, so my view graphs were literally unreadable by most of the audience. Six minutes into my presentation the town moderator called out from the side of the room that I was to "wind it up," and I was unable to present the second half of my data showing that migration into and out of Cohasset had left our elementary school population virtually unchanged over the past 10 years.

Supt. Hart was then given the floor where for three minutes he attacked my conclusions by asserting that the population of school age children in Cohasset had increased over the past 10 years, a fact that was clearly contained in my earlier presentation, but conveniently ignored the fact that by 1994 the state birthing rate had already dropped 10 percent from its peak in 1990 and that our entering school population will continue to drop until about 2008. He also quoted the assertions of "unnamed experts" who, apparently based on growth in the greater Boston area, concluded that Cohasset's school population would increase. He further asserted that the real culprit was migration of families into Cohasset. When I rose to challenge those assertions with facts derived from 10 years of past history of our Cohasset school system, the town moderator rolled up the view graph screen and I was not allowed to present this data.

The resolution that had been prepared to delay construction of the new school until state funding becomes available, which was given to the town moderator prior to the lunch break, with the stipulation that it would be introduced subsequent to the presentation of the material on which it was based, was effectively thwarted by a second call for the question from which there was no reprieve.

Although the desperate attempts of the proponents of this article, to suppress reasoned discussion of the issues surrounding the construction of the new school, raise serious questions concerning the validity of their rush to judgment on this matter, it must be recognized that there is a far more important issue at stake here. The very foundations of the legislative process involving rational debate and reasoned compromise, that were set in place by our founding fathers, are currently under the attack of mob rule. Hopefully the larger body of our citizens will recognize that if proponents of issues who employ these tactics are allowed to succeed in their endeavors, we will forever destroy the unique governing process that has so successfully served our country and our beautiful town for over two centuries.

Delahunt to meet with Cohasset Dems

William D. Delahunt, District Attorney of Norfolk County and candidate for the Democratic nomination for the 10th Congressional District seat being vacated by Gerry E. Studds, will speak to the Cohasset Democratic Town Committee at their monthly meeting on Tuesday, April 16, at 8 p.m.

The group will meet at the Unitarian Parish House on North Main Street, and all interested Democrats are invited to attend.

'Myths dispelled, fear quieted'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

The School Committee, the School Facilities Committee and the PSO have gotten what they wanted at the election Saturday, April 6, which is a new Osgood School to be built immediately.

In order to "come together and heal the wounds" it is important that the myths are dispelled and the fears quieted.

The present Osgood School is not the hazardous fire trap as it was portrayed. It is a structurally sound building that has direct outside access to most of the rooms in the building. Even the library/computer lab in the basement has an outside door. It takes 90 seconds to evacuate the entire building. There is no chance in the world that it will become another "Coconut Grove." Parents can send their children there with the full confidence of their predecessors that they are in a safe, conducive environment.

The building is very well constructed. It can have a sprinkler system installed, the age of the building has nothing to do with installation. The Red Lion Inn, which is considerably older, is being mandated to have one installed. Also, there is 440 electrical service, not 110 as stated.

The fear of a great population growth is not accurate. As Dr. Quelle tried to indicate through his research to the town meeting members, the birth rates are plateauing, then will start on a downward trend. Experts in the field concur that the small baby boom we have recently seen is not going to continue. On the other end of the system, we have seen an increase from 12 percent to 20 percent of students leaving at the high school level to enter private school.

There is a question on the funds needed for the sewer/septic system with the new school. Part of this cost was taken out of the original project in January and never added in for March. Plus we do not know anything about the wetlands in the area and if any playing fields can be built.

The financing will be a hardship to a number of households. It will mean an additional tax payment of several hundred dollars a year, for an unknown number of years, on top of the large debt service that we have been accruing. For FY97, our debt service has increased 142 percent. This means that all of the times in the last few years that overrides were passed, some of them are now going to hit the tax bills. Just because we voted "yes" for something at a town meeting, it did not mean that the item was automatically included in the following tax bill. We have more than $7 million of "yeas" that we have not been billed for.

The taxpayers group is not against sound educational programs. We are for sound financial planning of submitting the application in June, then waiting to begin construction until our position on the list comes closer to the top before we incur more debt to the town. We have not seen what we are building, we do not know what problems we will come upon in the wetlands, and with the legislative action last week we cannot guess when the state will begin repayment.

Town meeting behavior decried

To the Editor:

While hundreds of us sat through six-plus hours of the Town Meeting to hear the issues to include Article 15, the $9,890,000 Osgood School Replacement, most of the school supporters waited until that article and then arrived by the carloads. I had just voted to approve Article 14 to make sure that those who had loaned $180,000 to keep the school project alive didn't lose their money (even though I felt that the entire maneuver was illegal).

Then the democratic process fell apart because of these one-issue neophytes. Even the school committee and facility persons were appalled that their supporters made an immediate motion to suppress all discussion and vote Article 15.

They got their two-thirds discussion closure vote and I, as well as many others, left in disgust. Since the previous Special Town Meeting, Flansburg Associates (the engineers) had learned a lot and I needed to know: a. did their recent engineering work confirm current estimates, or, escalate or lower them; b. was it wise and necessary to spend $100,000+ on a temporary fire alarm system for the Osgood and would an on-site septic system have to be built at $250,000+ only to be replaced by a sewer hook-up within two years; c. had any improvements been made in efforts to time-phase the financial impact; d. did the PK-6 alternative look like it would save +/- their previously estimated $1,000,000?

Town officials bent over backwards to insert the $180,000 article and put Article 15 on the ballot only two months after a Special Town Meeting.

This behavior is inexcusable.

Contributions funded artist's arrival

To the Editor:

We at Deer Hill wish to extend our heartfelt thanks for the enthusiastic and extremely generous financial support offered us by these three organizations.

Having received over $1,000.00 in state and local grants for a residency with dancer/choreographer Nikki Hu and composer Guy Van Duser, we were still faced with a daunting $2,500.00 to be raised in order to fund our project.

The CEF, Diversity Committee and the Cohasset PSO came to our assistance and funded the balance.

This program will touch and enrich the lives of all Deer Hill students and we are very excited about bringing Nikki Hu to the community.

We couldn't have done it without you. Thank you for your generous support.

Election support is appreciated

To the Editor:

First of all I want to thank Gerard Keating, my chairman, and Ray Buckley, my treasurer, for all their help in my recent election. I would like to also mention by name everyone who helped me by making calls, working at the poles and all the other numerous ways, but I know I would forget someone. So please accept my heartfelt thanks. How about all those people who came out to vote for me? I appreciate each and every one of you.

Mary, Molly, Tanna and your respective newspapers did a fantastic piece of work supplying such fine and equal coverage to all the contestants. Thank you all.

I would also thank my opponents, Pat Walsh and Wigmore Pierson, for their fair and honest campaign. I started two months ago with two people I knew of, but did not know. I now have two very fine new friends. Saturday was tiring but we had some laughs on Social Security Row (a remark someone made as they passed us).

The people of Cohasset are great and if you give a little they return a lot.

Ronnie says thanks for support

To the Editor:

I want to thank everyone who supported me in the election last Saturday. The experience of meeting such a wide range of people who are knowledgeable about the issues facing our town will be extremely helpful to me as a selectman.

I am also grateful to the Mariner for allowing the candidates to discuss issues in print for the weeks prior to the election. It gives voters a chance to review the material at their convenience.

I want to continue to hear from you, the citizens of Cohasset as I serve as your selectman.

Jane Goedecke says thanks to all

To the Editor:

As I leave local public service after 11 years I would like everyone in Cohasset to know how much I appreciate having had the opportunity to serve on the Advisory Committee and the Board of Selectmen. I have met and worked with wonderful, committed people. I have gotten to know and admire our hard-working town employees. I have seen confirmed over and over again why this is a great place to live. My advice to the young or more recently arrived residents is to get involved in the civic life of Cohasset. It will enrich the town and it will enrich your own lives even more.

Not many people get sung to on their birthday by several hundred people...certainly a life experience I shall never forget!

Thank you all.

Make up of committee to study open space discussed

Conservation Commission member Susan Cope will take back to her board, the selectmen's recommendation that a member of the watershed protection committee serve on the new open space planning committee.

The new committee, with the help of a professional planner authorized by town meeting, will come up with a draft open space/recreational town-wide plan by October with the final report due in June 1997.

Last week, town meeting authorized spending up to $12,000 for professional services to assist with preparation of the plan. Once the plan is in place, the town can apply for state grants to purchase open space and recreational land, such as "Turkey Hill" off Rte. 3A, The town, along with Hingham, intends to buy "Turkey Hill," parts of which are in both towns. Several private groups are also participating in paying for the parcel which will be managed by the Trustees of Reservations, the private conservation group which also owns Worlds End and Thayer and Whitney Woods Reservation.

Road race help appreciated

Dear Editor:

We of the Cohasset Rotary Club wish to express our gratitude to all those who provided generous support for the 20th anniversary running of the Cohasset Road Race-by-the-Sea. The weather was magnificent. The fun walk was great. A record 931 runners competed in the road race in our beautiful town.

Without the assistance and support of the local and regional volunteers the race could not have been run. The Town of Cohasset did a marvelous job to coordinate and prepare the town after such a brutal winter. The South Shore Community Center was very supportive. Many local and regional businesses lent their sponsorship, for which we are extremely grateful. To the many other friends who provided help, thanks. Special thanks go to the race co-chair, Roy Fitzsimmons.

Without all of you, we could not have done it.

Private school bus service mulled

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

Bus driver and advisory board input will play a role in the school committee's decision whether or not to privatize some bus routes.

Superintendent of Schools Stephen Hart and school committee members have been meeting with bus drivers and the advisory board in recent weeks to decide what would be the best route for the town.

At the town meeting on March 30 Janet Figueiredo, who has driven a bus in town for 28 years, spoke out about the negative impact a private company would have on the bus drivers.

If a company is contracted it would hire Cohasset bus drivers as part of the agreement, but there would be some differences.

"There would be a loss of benefits, a cut in pay," Figueiredo said earlier this week. "The only way a contractor can be cheaper is to cut expenses."

The contracts were again sent out to bid, and are due at the end of April, but the criteria remains essentially the same.

The committee is looking into a variety of options that may reduce the cost of the in-house service. One suggestion is keeping a bus for eight years instead of six.

"We've been talking to the superintendent," Figueiredo said. "Basically, we've gotten our point across and I'm a little bit encouraged."

If decided upon, the contractor would serve the regular, kindergarten, late and athletics routes while the in-house service would pick up special needs busing and accessory routes.

The cost for the combination system, with the figures from previous bids, would be approximately $176,000. If the town remained with the in-house system it would cost approximately $212,000.

The main reason for the cost increase revolves around higher capital costs (the buses) and increased insurance costs.

If the combination route is chosen a $90,000 article for a new bus would also be dropped.

"We are looking at services, we have not closed any doors," said School Committee Chairman Ralph Kidder.

Figueiredo, one of six full-time bus drivers, said that she hopes the system remains as is.

She added that the personalized service the in-house program offers is worth the extra cost.

The bus drivers take the nursery school students on a tour so they will be ready for kindergarten.

At the end of the tour Figueiredo tells the students, 'Look for me (in September.) I'll be there and it won't be so strange.'

Figueiredo also said that the drivers will do an extra route every once awhile, at no cost.

Parents have been calling up, mostly at the elementary level, praising the bus drivers. The parents appreciate the close relationship the bus drivers have with them and their children.

Parents have also said that Cohasset doesn't have the problems other towns do with children being left on buses.

In other business, the school committee:

*Thanked School Committee Member Nancy Sandell for all her hard work over the last nine years on the committee. Thursday was her last meeting.

"She has been an inspiration to me, " said Hart. "(Sandell) has shown a dogged determination to look at the best interests of the (schools), not at what might cause the least disruption in the status quo."

Sandell took the opportunity to thank her fellow school committee members.

"It really has been a pleasure to serve with all of you," she said. "(You are) all working towards a common goal none of you with your own agendas... continue your role as an advocate for the children of Cohasset

"I think we've accomplished so much in nine years," she added.

* Heard a presentation by Hart outling the five calender choices for the 1996-97 school year.

In a nutshell, the differences in the calenders are the beginning of the year starting before or after Labor Day; Christmas vacation being a full two weeks — the students coming back on Jan 6, or the students coming back on Thursday Jan 2; and the closing date of school.

If the pre-Labor Day route combined with the shorter Christmas vacation is chosen students will get out on June 12, with five snow days it would be June 19.

Other choices push back the June date — the latest being June 25, which would be June 30 with five snow days.

February, starting the 17th, and April, starting the 21st, vacations will be reinstated for the 1996-97 school year.

Hart said that educators generally advocate ending the year early in June.

If teachers support the idea of returning to school before Labor Day parents and students will be surveyed as to what they prefer.

Last May there was some public outcry about the traditional vacation schedule being changed to a single vacation in March.

CHS social awareness group sponsors a Filipino child

By HOLLY BRENNOCK
Special to the Mariner

It is disturbing to know there are people in the world who are struggling to survive. The Social Awareness Organization of Cohasset High School is taking on a new challenge by sponsoring a child from the Philippines. Nine-year-old Jael Tambis has hopes of becoming a teacher. SAO members are working to help make that dream come true.

Jael's family of eight is supported by carpentry, and her family isn't wealthy. Metro Manila, the community where she lives, is congested due a lack of drainage and toilets. It is difficult for slum families like Jael's to afford basic utilities.

Her health is fair, considering her environment. Through collections made during school lunches, the SAO is raising money to help fulfill some of Jael's needs, and students are writing letters to her. Helping one child is just as propitious as helping many — it can still make a difference.

Social Service League scholarship is offered

The Social Service League of Cohasset is accepting applications for a $1500 scholarship being offered to any Cohasset resident furthering his or her education in the medical or social work field.

Application forms are available from the league office at 16 Highland Ave. weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. or at Cohasset High School. Applications must be returned by April 12. For more information, call 383-0771.

School screening is today

In accordance with Section 306.1 of the Massachusetts Special Education Law (Chapter 766), Cohasset Public Schools will conduct a screening program for children who will reach the age of five on or before Sept. 1, 1996.

The entry screening program will take place at Osgood School on April 11. Contact the school secretary at Osgood, 383-6117, for more information.

Parenting workshop set

The second of two Pre-school Parenting Workshops is being offered in the pink room next to the bowling lane at the Cohasset Community Center on April 16, from 12:45 to 2 p.m.

"Methods of Effective Discipline" will be discussed on April 16.

The sorkshop is open to any Cohasset parent of pre-school-aged or younger children and will be led by Frank Fitzgerald, adjustment counselor at Osgood School.

"Parenting Young Children" by Dinkmeyer and McKay will be utilized during the workshop. The book is available at Buttonwood bookstore. Some limited free child care slots are available for three to six year olds. To register, call 383-6117.

STUDENT OF THE MONTH/Kara Johansen

In all my 26 years of teaching, I have never met nor expect to meet again a person who has affected me and this school community as much as my nominee has. Quietly and effectively she has shaped and changed the views of the entire school towards people with differences. She is a shining star on dark nights. She says more with her eyes than any written or spoken word could begin to. She is an honors student overcoming obstacle after obstacle to achieve this marvelous goal. She is a true friend to her classmates who love, care for and protect her. She is a strong advocate for herself and others who are sometimes overlooked and discriminated against. She is a doer and an achiever. She does all of these things from the constraints that God has given her.

Whenever I am feeling sorry for myself, or I feel I just can't achieve what I am trying to achieve, I think of my nominee and that ever-contagious smile. I just shake my head and plug on as I know she would. As a teacher, I am supposed to be a molder of young men and women. It is rare after so long a career to find someone who affects you as much as you try to affect them. My nominee is such a person, and for all these reasons and thousands more that are too numerous to mention, I nominate Kara Johansen as not only student of the month, but my choice as the student of my career.

— Mr. Cisneros, science teacher

I would like to recommend Kara Johansen for her positive attitude and consistently good performance. Kara, under the most difficult circumstances, always gives 100 percent. In the classroom, Kara is a very active participant. Outside the classroom, she is a fun-loving, generous young lady. Kara is always willing to share a ride on the roller coaster with a friend or a TV program hosted by Alan Alda showing the world how she communicates. Her personal experiences have made her a very compassionate person. It has been a great joy to have Kara as a student.

— Miss Beaston, math teacher

Scholarships are available

Academic-year Ambassadorial Scholarships are awarded for one academic year of study abroad. Multi-year Ambassadorial Scholarships are awarded for two or three years of specific degree-oriented study abroad, and Cultural Ambassadorial Scholarships are offered for three or six months of intensive language study and cultural immersion in another country.

Students who have completed at least two years of college study and are interested in pursuing study abroad may contact Peter Pearce at (617) 946-4200 for details and an application.

Building bridges across subject areas

100 fourth-graders participate in interdisciplinary project

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

When fourth-grade teacher Dorothy McDonald told her classes that they were going to do an extra-curricular unit on bridges it sounded interesting.

Then she said they were going to use pre-algebraic formulas, figure out how much weight certain types of briges could hold and work on vertices and edges of polyhedrons. They were even going to construct their own bridges

Some of the students got a little worried.

"I thought it was going to be the hardest project in the world," said Emily Simmons, a fourth-grader.

When the five-month unit ended in February not only did the students emerge unscathed, they also had a great time.

"It was kind of hard, but it got to be easy," said fourth-grader Reed Smith .

His classmate, Alicia Sanchez, agreed.

"It was fun and you learned a lot," she said.

All disciplines, including physical education where students built a human bridge, were incorporated into the unit.

"I really designed this as if they were all gifted," said McDonald.

The culmination of the unit was on Feb. 28 when parents were invited to the school to see what the 100 fourth-graders had learned.

There were various displays set up where students explained to parents why certain bridges, ones with triangular supports, were sturdier than others.

The students, who were all dressed "groovy", also sang the 59th Street Bridge for the audience.

McDonald said that parents were thrilled with the sophistication of the students' accomplishments, and the fact that students worked in teams on certain projects.

Sanchez said that working in teams required cooperation, and everyone discussing something until it was agreed upon.

Another aspect of the project that students enjoyed was the hands-on experience.

"When she first told us about (the unit)
it was really cool because we weren't doing it out of the book," said Craig Laugelle, a fourth-grader.

"My favorite part was building the bridges," added Smith.

Sixth-grade peer leaders were also involved in helping the fourth-graders with some tougher concepts.

Two parents donated their time to paint a bridge, based on Monet's work, over the classroom door.

Four fourth-graders at Deer Hill display the bridges they constructed as part of a special project in Mrs. McDonald's classes.

Teachers were also impressed with the unit.

"Your an inspiration for us all to try more innovative ideas," said one teacher of McDonald's work.

Even without all the positive feedback, McDonald said she would continue doing an extra-curricular unit.

"I think choosing a theme and writing an interdisplinary unit is absolutely essential," she said.

Individual swimmers have shining season

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

The Cohasset High swim squad may not have had a world-beating record, but what the Skippers lacked in overall team depth they more than made up for in raw talent. And it's that ability head coach Liz Buckley sees as a vital cog in a solid future for the program.

"The swimmers were very dedicated and we have some talent coming back next season," Buckley said.

Co-captains Lauren DeVito and Jamie Kondrat both had superb seasons, capped by being named to the South Shore League All-Star team. DeVito qualified for South Sectional meet and the states in both the 500- and 200-meter freestyle events, while Kondrat put together strong races in both events on the men's side.

Diver Maura Duffy made an immediate impact this season with a fifth-place finish in the South Sectionals. Only an eighth-grader, Duffy went on to the All-State meet where she gained invaluable experience that will only help her in the coming seasons.

"She has a great future in diving," Buckley said, "and Maura is also great in the backstroke."

Along with DeVito and Duffy, the Skippers sent four other swimmers to the South Sectionals. Eighth-grader Alison Berg qualified in the 500 freestyle and individual medley, while Ashley Brister, Kate Stone and Meagan Leahy all swam together in two relay races. Berg also qualified for the state meet in the 500 freestyle as a result of her showing in the sectionals.

The boys breastroke was the most competitive event on the squad as Pat Leahy — named co-captain of next year's team along with Brister — John Crowley and Meagan Leahy touched the wall nearly simultaneously in a handful of meets.

"All of their times were just hundredths of seconds apart," Buckley said.

The Skippers will get an added boost when Derek Bugley becomes eligible to swim next season. Bugley transferred back to the high school after attending private school, but was ineligible to compete. However, Bugley was visible all season as he attended all of Cohasset's meets.

Jen Meehan, Kelly Straughn and Jessica Neisink all improved steadily as the season continued, and will be key members of the squad next season.

Laxmen blitz Walpole in opener

Several years from now the Walpole High lacrosse team's coaching staff will look back to its inaugural game against Cohasset and wince. Then the coaches will move on quickly to the squad's first win and reminisces about that contest with smiles on their faces.

There was nothing to smile about for the Rebels as the Skippers welcomed them to the rigors of varsity play with a 13-2 thrashing.

Cohasset was never threatened in its strong start to the season as nine different players scored and the defense limited Walpole to just nine shots on goaltenders Ely Kahn and Bob Stansell, who shared the duties in net for Cohasset.

Co-captain Ken Leahy got his season off on the right foot with a hat trick, while sophomore attackman Jamie Buick racked up five points with a pair of goals and three assists. Co-captain Chris McKenna struck for two goals, while Andy Collins fired home a goal and assisted on another. Kevin Smith, Dave Noble, Ed Hamilton, Adam Donovan and Eric Moore all registered single tallies and midfielder Matt O'Connor set up a pair of goals.

"We played well," said head coach Ken Ekberg of his Cohasset squad. "The tests are ahead, however.

The Skippers were expected to play Sandwich on April 9, but the snowstorm cancelled Thursday's contest against South Division foe Weymouth. Cohasset is scheduled to travel to Brookline for a non-league match on April 17.

Motley stars in lacrosse debut

The first girls lacrosse game played by a Cohasset High squad is now in the record books. And it wasn't a bad way to get the program off its feet.

4th annual 10K road race June 23

The Cape Cod Canal Region Chamber of Commerce and All Cape Health Care of Bourne, the premier sponsor, will hold the Fourth Annual Cape Cod Canal 10K Road Race/Run and Walk June 23, beginning at 10 a.m.

The 10 kilometer (6.2 miles) course starts at the Scusset Beach end of the canal. Participants will race along the paved road that parallels the canal to the finish at the railroad bridge in Buzzards Bay. Three water stations will be provided along the route.

Parking is available at the Cape Cod Canal Region Chamber of Commerce's office, adjacent to the railroad bridge. A shuttle will operate from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., to transport participants from the parking area to the starting line.

Trophies and $100 cash prizes will go to the first female and male finishers overall in the three categories, Run, Walk, and Wheelchair. Medals will be awarded to the first three female and male finishers in each division. The divisions are as follows: Juniors (under 18); Open (18-29); Sub-Master (30-39); Master (40-49); Senior (50-59); Veteran (60+); and Wheelchair. Prizes will be awarded for categories with three or more competitors.

Registration starts April 15. The entry fee prior to June 7 is $10; thereafter the fee is $12. Free T-shirts to the first 250 pre-registered entrants.

For further registration information call the chamber office at (508) 759-6000.

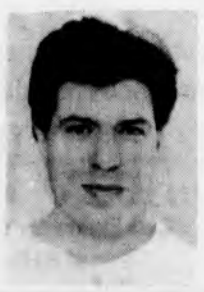
Boston plays the massive numbers game

When the gun sounds at high noon on Monday for the 100th running of the Boston Marathon, local communities will be well represented in the massive official field of 37,500 entrants. Chances are good that the 10,000-15,0000 unofficial runners expected to show up for the 26.2-miler from Hopkinton to the Prudential Center will include a fair share of South Shore marathoners.

Hanover runners who will be sporting numbers include Rob Finnigan, Mark Deasy, Steve Milton, Rob Bowles, Jim Pearson, Liz Taylor, Brad Powers, Pat L 'Italien, Julie Remondini and Carole Valair. Abington will have James Slattery, Wayne Smith, Chris Burgess, Steve Coleman, Joe D'Antonio, Catherine Donovan, Paul Donovan, Fran Hagerty, Paula Hagerty and Chris Lamb toeing the line on Main Street. Rockland has a formidable field in Gerard Fanning, Andy Bartczak, Mark O'Reilly, Frank Sicarini and Sue Simmons. The Cohasset locals will be trading their training along tranquil roads to racing in front of an estimated crowd of 1,500,000. The seaside entrants include Kerry Kates, Frank Wallingford, Matt Steele, Liam O'Connell, Geoff Nothnagle, Bruce McMeekin, Ken Warner, Mark Chase, Mary Algier, Don DeMichele, Richard Anderson, Dan DeMichele, Mike Kennedy, Jane Lanzillotti, Kurt Devries and Joanne Cannon-Hill.



Reardon

This year's race, more than any other in history, has revolved around the massive numbers involved. And they don't just include the amount of runners who will be lining up behind the starting line.

See page 16

Mariner Sports

EXTRA POINTS/Joe Reardon

There are behind-the-scenes statistics that boggle the mind.

*The race could potentially reach 120,000,000 households worldwide.

*Police along the course will be plentiful with 1,200 uniformed officers, 600 State Police troopers, 60 motorcycle police and 800 members of the National Guard.

*The marathon committee is especially concerned about the well-being of the runners after they cross the finish line. For that reason 2,300 medical personnel will be working hard on Monday. Add the 190 massage therapists, 122 physical therapists, 158 trainers, 12 chiropractors and 162 podiatrists and the runners should have more than enough attention coming their way if they run into problems.

*The medical personnel will have plenty of supplies to work with, starting with 5,000 bags of ice, 725 stretchers, 75,000 blankets, 9,000 tongue depressors, 400 sick bags, 400 ace bandages, 19,800 gauze pads, 4,000 adhesive bandages, 225 rolls of moleskin, 200 bars of surgical soap, 13,000 tubes of petroleum jelly. 7,500 band aids, 1,200 towels, 3,300 IV bags, 400 tourniquets, 10 oxygen tanks and 10 EKG machines.

*As for the post-race banquet, 20,000 pounds of Ronzoni Pasta will be cooked and topped with 6,000 quarts of tomato sauce. Famished runners are expected to down 7,300 pounds of fresh vegetables, 200 pounds of ground black pepper, 60,000 power bars, 70,000 packages of cheez-it crackers and 50,000 packages of jelly beans.

The course itself is one of the most unique in the world and must be run a few times for a marathoner to get a real feel for its deceiving characteristics.

Known mainly for its hills, Boston's elevation actually drops more than 100 feet from start to finish. Even the hills are not that big. What makes them difficult however is that runners have to negotiate them 17 miles into the race, when the glycogen starts to run low and the "charm" of the marathon begins to rear its head.

There's a big downhill through Wellesley Hills, just past the halfway mark, which runners are tempted to speed down. Don't. The marathoners are usually coming off a natural high after running past the fanatical Wellesley College students. Every year they're the best spectators on the course.

The master plan of running Boston is to get over the Newton Hills still feeling good. As you get closer to the Prudential, be prepared for the short, steep hill heading into Kenmore Square. By this point you can smell the finish line, but the hill is a grind just the same.

Good luck, and remember to spread your effort over the entire course. Don't leave 90 percent of it in Ashland. You'll be better off in the, excuse the pun, long run.

Trask fishing clinic, April 13

The South Shore Community Center is pleased to announce Lets Go Fishing with Harry Trask of Trask Tackle and Outdoor Sports. The clinic is set for April 13 from 10:30-11:30 a.m. Youngsters will be taught the basics of casting, baiting, knot tying and lure selection. The cost for the clinic is $7. Students should bring their rod, reel and fishing equipment. To register, call 383-0088.

Tai Chi offered

The South Shore Community Center is offering Tai Chi for beginners and advanced students. It is a form class which promotes health, balance, relaxation, and flexibility through slow, fluid movements. Please call 383-0088.

Cohasset Business

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce presents two checks for $2,200 to the Appalachian Service Project and the Harborfest Committee. From left are: John Flanagan, Charles Peterson, Gary Ritts (Second Congregational Church which organizes the ASP), chamber president Domenic Micarelli, Bob Martin (Harborfest Committee), and Dean Rizzo.

Unity Night is planned by chamber

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce will host a Unity Night on Wednesday, April 24, at the Chart House. Keynote speakers will be State Sen. Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) and State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset).

Several town officials and organizations will also participate.

The Chamber invites all residents, town officials, town employees and local businesses to attend the night of unity, which will provide an opportunity to unite together following recent town elections and meet many state and local government representatives.

Hors d'oeuvres will be served at 5:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m. The cost for Chamber members is $10 ($15/non-members). To make a reservation, call the Chamber hotline at 383-1010.

Chamber presents donations

The Chamber of Commerce presented donations from the proceeds of their annual auction to the Harborfest Committee and the Appalachian Service Project. Each group was the recipient of $2,200.

The Chamber thanks all those who donated goods and services to the auction, as well as those who attended and purchased auction items.

The Grand Tour

with Ginger Ferenz 383-2863

I thought Cohasset needed a break this week from what seems to be an endless winter! So here's a look back at a last burst of summertime at 47 Norfolk Road. Once again, Sue Cunningham worked her "green thumb" magic with her display of pinks — pale pink and fuchsia Impatiens on the ground that became huge mounds of color while her flower boxes were filled with more of the same. Tall pink Cosmos bloomed in their own bed, while blue Morning Glory climbed gracefully around the front entrance. Take heart everyone — spring will get here eventually!

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 96E0024-PP1

To Thomas J. Schiavo of Hingham, John D. Schiavo of Marshfield, Anthony T. Schiavo of Hingham, and Anthony T. Schiavo, Jr. of Hingham all within the Commonwealth, and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by John D. Schiavo of 2103 Ocean Street, Marshfield in the County, of Plymouth representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of four parcels of land lying in Cohasset in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: PARCEL ONE: NORTHERLY by Lot 2A, as shown on a plan hereinafter mentioned on three courses, one hundred twenty-seven and 02/100 (127.02) feet; twenty-four (24) feet and forty-two and 40/100 (42.40) feet respectively;

EASTERLY by South Main Street, as shown on said plan, seventy-two and 73/100 (72.73) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by Lots 3 and 4 on two courses as shown on said plan, one hundred ten and 93/100 (110.93) feet and ninty-five and 09/100 (95.09) feet, respectively;

WESTERLY by Lot 5 as shown on said plan forty (40) feet.

Said premises contain 9,830 square feet of land and are shown as Lot 2B on a plan of land entitled "Plan of Land in Cohasset, Mass," dated March 9, 1946, drawn by Lewis W. Perkins, Engineer duly recorded with Norfolk Deeds with a deed of Mary Rose Fratus to Phyllis N. Fratus dated December 12, 1947, and recorded in Book 2728, Page 286. Excluding therefrom Lot B as shown on a plan entitled "Subdivision Plan of Land in Cohasset, MAss." dated June 21, 1961, drawn by Gilbert & Maloney land surveyor recorded with Norfolk Deeds as Plan No. 877 of 1961 in Book 3917, Page 745 which was conveyed by Joseph A. Silvia et ux to Sun Oil Company by deed dated August 2, 1961, and recorded with said Deeds in Book 3917, Page 745. Also excluding therein a triangular parcel of land as shown as parcel "B" on a plan of land entitled "Plan of Land South Main Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts September 16, 1980 1"=30' Engineer: Neil J. Murphy, 760 Route 3A, Cohasset, Massachusetts" and containing four hundered fifty-five and (455) square feet of land, more or less, according to said plan which was conveyed by deed of Richard J. Silvia to Sarah T. Brewer, trustee, by deed recorded in Book 5834, Page 113. The Said plan is recorded as plan 68 of 1981.

PARCEL TWO: Lot A as shown on the plan by Gilbert T. Maloney dated June 21, 1961, recorded in Book 3917, Page 745.

PARCEL THREE: A Parcel of land in Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, being shown as Lot 4 on the aforesaid plan of Lewis W. Perkins, Engineer, dated March 9, 1946, and bounded and described according to said plan as follows:

SOUTHERLY by two lines by Spring street as shown on said plan, fifty-four and 12/100 (54.12) feet and forty-five and 88/100 (45.88) feet;

WESTERLY by other land of Mary Rose Fratus, one hundred nine and 18/100 (109.18) feet;

NORTHERLY by land of Joseph A. Silvia et ux ninety-five and 09/100 (95.09) feet; and

EASTERLY by Lot 3 on said plan, one hundred twelve and 14/100 (112.14) feet; containing approximately ninety-eight hundred (9800) square feet.

For title to Parcels One, Two and Three, see deed of Joseph A. Silvia and Ruth S. Silvia dated July 15, 1977 and recorded in Book 5356, Page 714.

PARCEL FOUR: A triangular parcel of land shown as Parcel "A" on the aforesaid plan of Neil J. Murphy, recorded as plan 68 of 1981, containing four hundred fifty-five (455) square feet of land more or less, according to said plan. For title see deed of Sarah T. Brewer, trustee, dated January 27, 1981, and recorded in Book 5834, Page 112.

setting forth that he desire that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than $187,000.00 dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham, 649 High St., P.O. Box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the eighth day of May 1996, the return day of this citation.

Witness, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this twenty-fifth day of March 1996.

Police status report for March

During March, the police department made a total of 12 arrests: three for outstanding warrants, two for operating under the influence of alcohol, two for possession of marijuana, and one each for being a disorderly person, assault & battery, minor in possession of alcohol, public drinking, and a motor vehicle violation.

"There was one breaking and entering reported," Police Chief Brian W. Noonan wrote in his monthly status report to selectmen.

The emergency dispatch center fielded 76, 9-1-1 calls in March, he said.

Noonan reported that PALS Officer Lisa Matos spent an average of three days a week teaching classes at the elementary level. PALS is Cohasset's DARE-like program, which is specially tailored to Cohasset schools and their needs.

Clean-up help needed

Cohasset High School students, under the direction of the Mosquito Control Board, will participate in a town clean-up of five sites along James Brook on Tuesday, April 23. Volunteers from the town are welcome to join in the effort.

For those who cannot participate in the actual clean-up but who would like to help out, equipment such as rubber boats, pruning tools and gloves are needed.

For further information or to volunteer, call Allison Ritts at 383-1422. Students may contact Holly Pereira during the day to let her know of their interest. Volunteers are asked to get in touch with either Ritts or Pereira by April 15.

The clean-up day provides an opportunity for townspeople to come together as a community and make a difference in the environment.

Join Harborfest parade!

The annual Harborfest Parade will take place on Sunday, June 16. The parade signifies the link between Cohasset Harbor and the Town Common as residents "Bless the Fleet" and parade to the Common for the annual Chowder Festival, which will culminate the Harborfest celebration.

The theme for this year's parade is "Cohasset's Maritime Heritage," and cash prizes for this year's floats are $250 for first place; $150, second place; and $75 for third place, with two special prizes of $50 each.

Jim Lagrotteria and Bob Martin of the Harborfest Committee have developed a float kit for anyone interested in using a pickup truck as a float vehicle. Through the generosity of Hingham Lumber Co., most framework materials will be provided.

Simple floats are the order of the day for the Norman Rockwell-style parade, and may be fabricated in one day with little or no expense and unlimited imagination. Harborfest celebrates the community, and the event is enhanced by the participation of the town's many organizations and neighborhood associations.

Anyone wishing to participate is asked to call Jim at 383-9385 or Bob at 383-0648.

Costume program slated

The Cohasset Historical Society's costume committee will present "Underneath It All" on Wednesday, April 17, at 7 p.m. at the Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer St.

Guest speaker Sandra Pollock, a member of the costume committee, will present a program on the evolution of underwear from 1700 to 1930. Many items from the Society's extensive and sometimes curious collection that have never been displayed before will be exhibited.

The event is free to Society members and students, and $3 for non-members. All are invited to attend.

Come to the senior class show

Several students of the 1996 Cohasset High School senior class have pooled the resources and talen[t] their classmates to produce the 1996 Senior Class [sh]ow. The curtain goes up on Friday, April 12, at 8 p[.m.] Cohasset High School auditorium.

The variety show will include singing, instrumentals, skits and dancing. Proceeds will be used to offset senior class expenses.

Tickets are $5 and will be available lunchtimes in the cafeteria at the high school and at the door on performance night.

Take a video cruise to Nova Scotia

A video cruising lecture on Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island will be offered by Ross Sherbrooke on Saturday, April 27, at 8 p.m. in Walton Rogers Hall of St. Stephen's Church.

Admission is $7 for adults and $5 for young people 18 and under. Proceeds will benefit Cohasset High School's EXCEL program for restoring a lifesaving surfboat. Refreshments will be served. Call John Bryant at 383-9094 for further information.

Large water leak plugged

270 gallons per minute were going down the drain

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

The discovery of a whopping leak in the town's water system — has department officials thanking their lucky stars.

A "very low tide" due to the alignment of the earth and the moon earlier this month — enabled the water department to spot a suspicious wet area in the marsh off Mohawk Way and Beach Street.

"All the water was out and the marsh was wet," said operations manager Dick Cohan who was out reading meters with supervisor William McAuliffe when they noticed the discrepancy.

Further investigation revealed the source of a major leak in a water main off Beach Street that accounted for loss of about 270 gallons per minute — or 16,560 gallons per hour — into the marsh.

Cohan said when he came on the job in Cohasset in September 1994 — he discovered about 30 percent water usage above the amount metered.

Cohasset High had a crash course in West African music and dance last week when The Art of Black Music and Dance spent two days at the school teaching students and faculty about traditional and contemporary African folk music. Workshops for individual classes, like the one shown here, were followed by a performance in front of the whole school. The climax of the event occurred when the faculty took the stage to perform with the dancers. The program was made possible through a grant from the Massachusetts Cultural Council and the school Parent Student Organization.

MBTA assessment relief could be in sight

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

After years of paying MBTA assessments and receiving no transit services, Cohasset may get a break.

If approved, a state budget amendment being pitched in both the House and the Senate could lift — what state Rep. Frank Hynes, D-Marshfield, called — an unfair burden on many towns and place it on the state.

Included in the 78-town MBTA district are 21 "fringe" communities — like Cohasset — which help support mass transit in the state through property tax assessments, but get no direct service.

The MBTA's funding formula, established more than 25 years ago, has been criticized by several legislators as an inequitable system.

"A property tax that people work hard to pay in order to support local services,

Local woman helps children in El Salvador

Kerry Gruber first volunteered more than five years ago to go with her parents to war-torn El Salvador to lend a hand.

What she didn't know then was that her work there would help her write an award-winning doctoral dissertation and develop a mental health program designed to help children and adults deal with the traumatic effects of war.

A Cohasset native, Gruber earned her Ph.D. in clinical psychology last year from St. John's University in New York, and in June she will present her dissertation, "Stress Disorder, (PTSD) in El Salvador" at the Second World Conference of the International Society for Traumatic Stress Studies in

James Brook clean-up

Cohasset High School students, under the direction of Jack Buckley and the Cohasset Mosquito Control Committee, will sponsor a clean-up of several sites along James Brook. The project was initiated in 1995 to celebrate Earth Day and foster a cooperative effort between Cohasset townspeople and CHS students.

Removing debris from the banks and stream bed of James Brook will enhance the attractiveness of the area and help eliminate mosquito breeding in the area.

To volunteer for the effort, or for further information, call Allison Ritts at 383-1422, Jack Buckley at 925-1284, or Charles Gainor (383-0498).

May 4 vote for sewer

Sewer Commission Chairman Ted Guild said informational "blue" booklets on the proposed Straits Pond area sewer project are free and are available at the selectmen's office.

A favorable May 4 Prop. 2-1/2 debt exclusion override vote will allow the town to borrow money to pay for the project, half of which will be covered by betterments assessed to homeowners along the sewer line.

Resignations are accepted

Selectmen accepted the resignation of Larry Mitchell, Cohasset's representative on the South Shore Vocational Technical High School board, effective June 30.

"We're going to miss him. He's done a good job," Selectmen Chairman Merle Brown said.

Margaret Bates also notified selectmen that she was stepping down from the Council on Elder Affairs (formerly called the Council on Aging) effective immediately due to health problems.

"I have enjoyed and will miss working with this active and productive group who continue to do such good work for senior citizens," Bates wrote in her letter to Elders Affairs chairman Joseph Buckley.

Brown said Bates "is a hard worker and we'll miss her."

Selectmen will send letters of thanks to both Mitchell and Bates.

Sidewalk surfacing

DPW Supt. Harold Litchfield told selectmen this week that he is working with Norfolk County Engineers on plans to resurface the sidewalks around the town common.

As an interim step, the DPW will resurface the sidewalk on the North Main Street side of the common between Jason and Long Roads and would like to have that work completed by the Festival on the Common in June.

Litchfield noted that the strip between the existing sidewalk and curbing is gone along that section of North Main Street.

He suggested the board walk the sidewalks with him "to see what's going on."

Litchfield said he would present his plans to the Common Historic Districts Commission before any paving takes place.

On another matter, the selectmen and Litchfield agreed that no improvements to the sidewalk in front of the Independence Building (Teen Center) on South Main Street should be undertaken until the town comes up with a master plan for the village. Litchfield said the road is narrow there and installing granite curbing may not stop cars from driving up on the sidewalk.

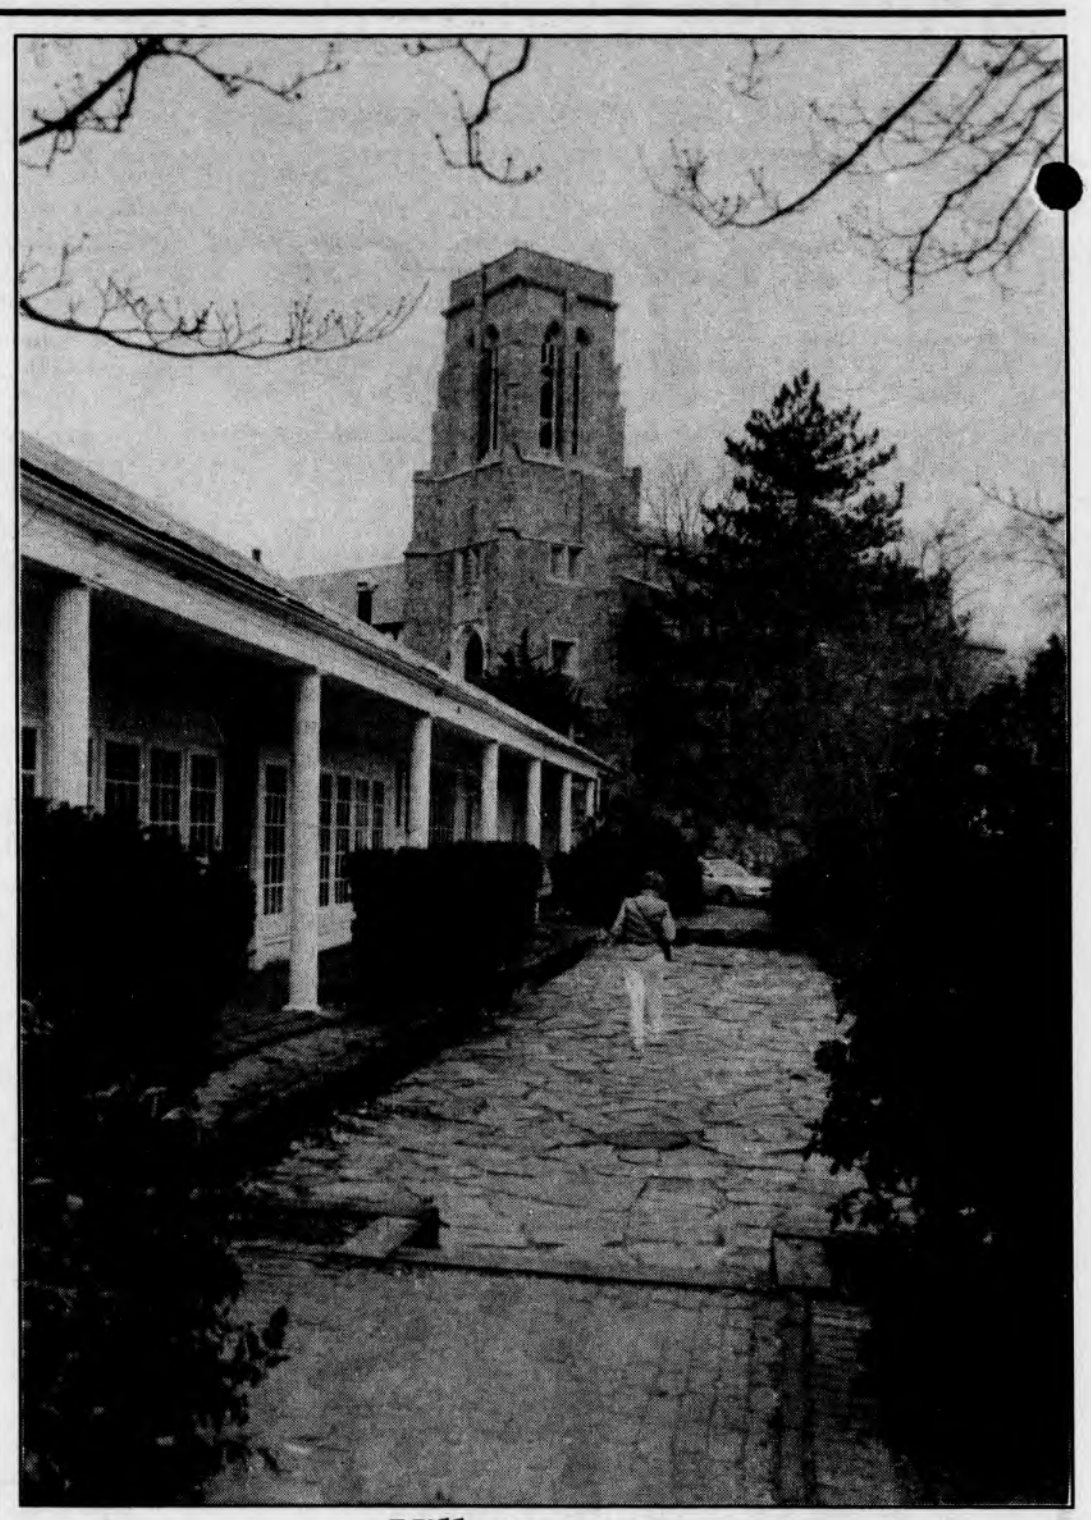
"We'll be buying a lot of tires," he said.

There has been concern that the sidewalk in front of the Independence Building is too narrow and poses a safety hazard to pedestrians and children on bicycles.

Food license approved

Selectmen approved issuing a Common Victualler (food) license to Michael Feroli, owner of the Village Butcher & Deli slated to open in about two weeks on Brook Street next to Cohasset News.

Feroli, who operated a similar store in Duxbury for two years, said he would sell beef, chicken, and pork cut to order along with some sandwiches and grilled food. He plans on having three small tables with a total of six seats for people who want to have a bite there.



Village scene

With St. Stephen's looming overhead, a shopper makes her way from the town parking lot up Stagecoach Way to the Village. The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce is spearheading a group to help revitalize the village. The task force meets at 5:30 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at French Memories. There will also be a Village committee general meeting at 5:30, April 30 at French Memories. Call Dean Rizzo at Aquarius Sunrooms (383-1994) for more information.

Hagerty board backs moving or razing Victorian house

By STACEY K. POWERS
Special to the Mariner

Following the recent town meeting vote and at the request of selectmen, the Hagerty Property Committee reconvened last week to make a decision on the future of the former Cohasset Colonials Furniture showroom.

Annual town meeting voted against selling the house and an 8,000-foot lot around it.

The "Hagerty property," which has been owned by the town for three years, is on the harborfront end of Parker Avenue. The 2.2-acre site, includes 19th century Victorian building dating back almost 140 years, as well as a metal building which was used a cutting room by Cohasset Colonials. Plans are to create a park on the Hagerty property which would be available to all residents.

In an effort to make some progress, committee chairman Alfred Moore urged the committee to "act decisively" in terms of recommendation they would make to selectmen.

Moore sees that the town has four options on what to do with the house: either rent the building as it stands now; fix up the building and rent it; or sell, move or demolish it.

The committee agreed that having the town act as landlord is not the most desirable situation but a longer lease — similar to the one that the lightkeeper's house on Government Island has — for about ten years would possibly work. This option would leave the burden of repair to the renter.

Committee members voiced concerns that if the house was torn down, the town might not be able to obtain a permit to build again on that site because any new building would have to meet current regulations.

Member Richard Barrow recommended that the town either demolish the house or remove it. The committee voted 6-4 in favor of Barrow's motion.

Ultimately, the committee feels that the whole town could benefit from the property being used for recreational purposes and also from the money generated by the sale of the house. Either way, the longer it takes selectmen to come up with a definitive resolution for the future of the house, the longer it will cost the residents of the town money. The bond for the Hagerty property is costing the average homeowner $15 per year on their real estate bill.

In a telephone interview, committee member Veneta Roebuck explained that permitting work for the parking lot and passive recreation area at the site has begun.

CHS students flock to community service

20 percent participate in volunteer programs

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

The state board of education may be leaning toward mandating a community service program for students, but for many at Cohasset High that isn't necessary.

Close to 100 students, or 20 percent, participate in the volunteer programs at the school.

Students in the Community Volunteer Program visit Rosie's Place, a women's sanctuary in Boston; those involved in the Social Awareness Group have set up a recycling program at the school; and members of the Student Council collected money for Travis Roy, the hockey player from Boston University who is seriously injured.

And those are only a few of numerous examples.

"I think a lot of it has to do with wanting to get involved," said senior Andrea Mercurio, who is a member of the volunteer program. "The sense of satisfaction (you get) for doing something for someone else."

Although the volunteer organizations have been active for several years, this year things are run a bit differently.

Ron Ford, a part-time physical education teacher at the school, was recently hired to bring the programs to the next level.

"My big role this year is to formulate a plan for the future and incorporate it into the curriculum," said Ford. He also fields requests for people who want help from the students.

He added that state board of education officials were discussing having students perform 100 hours of community service for credit. The students involved in the organizations now don't receive credit.

Mercurio said that the students participating in the programs are doing so voluntarily. They are busy juggling other things, such as sports and school work, but feel they are doing something of value.

Junior Jodi Colwill, also a member of the community volunteer program, added that those they help seem to appreciate it.

"I think they like the fact (that we come to Rosie's Place)," she said. "They take to us really well."

Ford said that the students learn a lot about other people by their involvement.

"Kids need to go out and see things that give them a better perspective on life," said Ford. "They hear about the barriers and then they see real people. People they can talk to; people they can relate to."

Maureen Duffy, a consumer science teacher and the faculty advisor for the volunteer program, agreed.

"I like to see students give up some of their time," she said. "(To help) others less fortunate or more lonely (than they are)."

The groups don't only volunteer outside of the town's borders.

Students visit nursing homes in town, help out at the food pantry and assist with the S.H.A.R.E. program, where participants must participate some form of community service to be able to buy the food parcels.

The Social Awareness Club also works both within and outside the community.

"There is a perception that communities like Cohasset don't have social problems," said Scott Newkirk, the staff advisor for the group. "The students started the club because they know otherwise."

The school had a similar club years ago, but it disbanded because of lack of interest.

It was reincarnated under a new name, mostly through the efforts of senior Caitlin Connolly, three years ago. It is now an active club with more than 20 members.

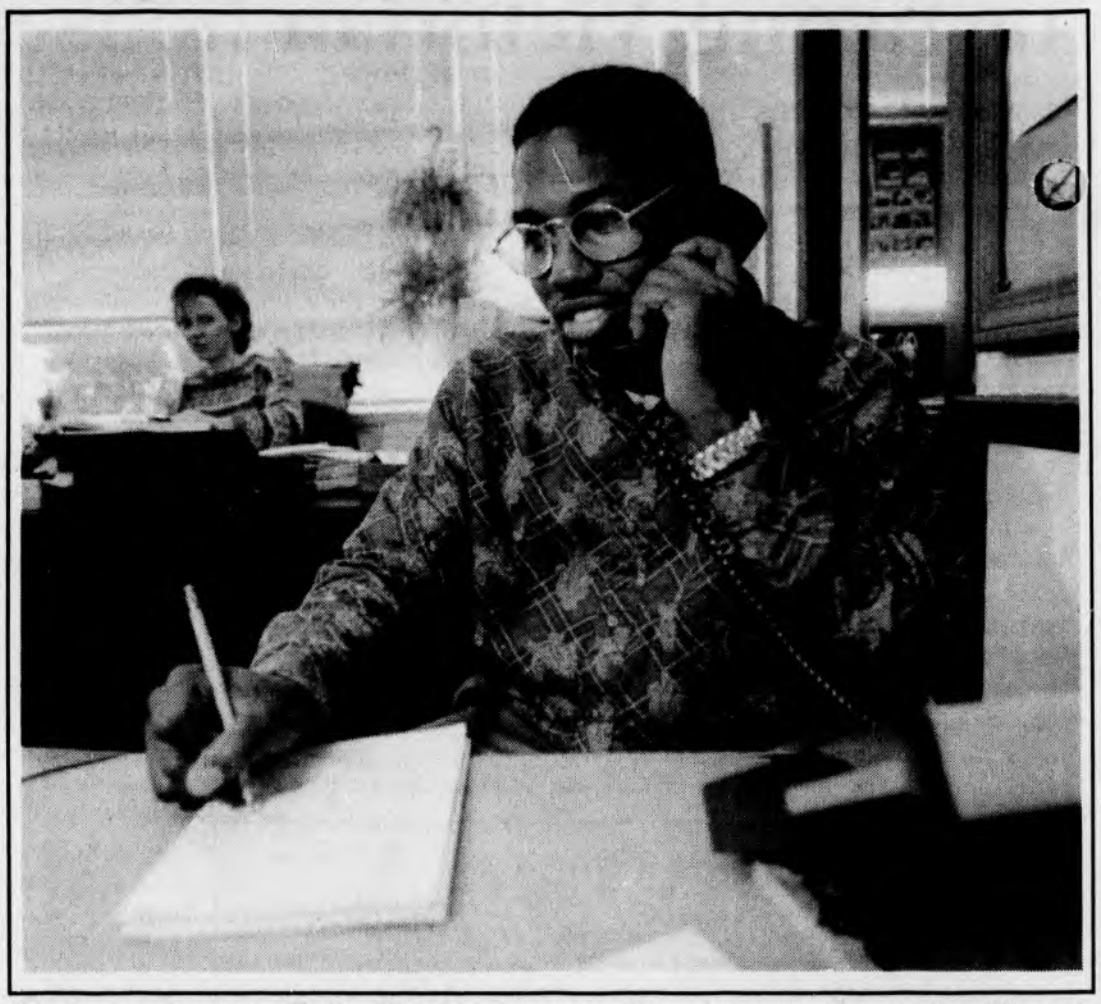
"There really wasn't a group that dealt with social issues, with political issues," said Connolly.

The club is involved with Amnesty International and writes letters to those unjustly imprisoned throughout the world. The group also recently adopted a child from the Philippines.

Connolly said that the club is kept updated on the status of those they try to help.

"It is neat that people can see that they make a difference," said Connolly. "It is wonderful that there is so much enthusiasm from the student body."

Newkirk said that the club has two meetings a month to evaluate what they have done — to see what worked and what didn't. And to discuss what they wanted to do in the future.



Student volunteer, Keith Wright, answers the phone in the main office at Cohasset High for school secretary Nancy Donovan. About 20 percent of students at the high school participate in community service activities.

The two organizations have a small budget, which is supplemented by donations from the Rotary Club and Parent Student Organization.

Next year, said Ford, the program will be woven into the curriculum at the school and class time may also be incorporated. He and Duffy recently attended a training symposium at Tufts University for community service leaders.

CVS has plans to participate in the April 20 multiple sclerosis walk. Five members participated in the Walk for Breast Cancer in the fall and raised more than $2,000.

For more information, call Ford at 383-6100.

Performing arts at DHS

Dancer/choreographer Nikki Hu and composer Guy Van Duser will spend April 22-26 at Deer Hill School working with students and staff. They will create a performing arts interpretation of the story "Sadako and the 1,000 Cranes," a highly acclaimed children's book about the life of a Japanese child after the bombing of Hiroshima. The story shows how one child can make a difference in the lifes of others.

The tale of hope and inspiration will be presented as a dance performance incorporating history, music, art and literature. Performances will take place on Friday, April 26, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. at Deer Hill School.

The project was funded in part by the Mass. Cultural Council, local lottery council and support from the Cohasset Education Foundation, Cohasset PSO and the Diversity Committee.

Landfill decision is due soon

By BRIAN SURETTE
Special to the Mariner

The board of health completed deliberations last week on the site assignment application by Cohasset Heights for a proposed 27.5 acre expansion to the Route 3A privately-owned landfill.

Board members Thomas Cook and Alix White, along with lawyers for the town, concluded their discussions on the lengthy two-month, 19-session public hearing.

Newly elected board member Kevin Ulmer, a former representative of one of the 10-citizen groups opposed to landfill expansion, will not participate in the final decision process. Ulmer was not able to attend all the Cohasset Heights hearing sessions and it was agreed by all that his would prohibit his participation.

If approved, the facility, which is located adjacent to Route 3A and Crocker Lane, would use 14.2 acres for additional landfill space, while the remaining 13.3 acres would comprise access roads, buffer zones and ponds for storm water retention.

Attorney Michael Leon, in outlining the board's goal, told Cook and White that it was their duty to weigh the facts and evaluate testimony from all of the witnesses that spoke before the board.

"Your job will be to render a decision based on the evidence," Leon said.

Cook and White are scheduled to receive a draft copy of their decision, Friday April 19. After reviewing this draft they will meet to finalize their decision on either April 24 or 29 (the exact date dependent on a prior commitment of Cook's). The official announcement date of the board's decision is April 30.

While the Cohasset Heights hearing sessions are officially closed to any further testimony, all board of health meetings on the Cohasset Heights application are open to the public.

License transfer okayed at Red Lion

An attorney representing the new owners of the Red Lion Inn presented selectmen with evidence this week that all past taxes on the property ,which was sold at auction earlier this year, have been paid.

At this week's board meeting, Paul W. Kaufman spoke for Carl Ackerblom, manager and part owner, who is also in the construction business.

The inn is undergoing some renovations and upgrades but any changes will not harm the 300-year-old building's character, Kaufman said. In fact, he reported, the owners will seek the help of the Cohasset Historical Commission to have the inn listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The inn has hired a consultant, who is a specialist in installing handicapped access to historic buildings without hindering their character, Kaufman said.

He noted that no major changes have been made to the menu and most of the employees have continued to work there.

Kaufman said all wait staff would take a refresher course on possible problems related to serving alcohol and the Inn would present a pledge to the police and selectmen with its own rules on how to run a business and be a good neighbor.

Future plans include creating a waiting room with a service bar for customers waiting for the dining room so they would not have to wait in the lounge which draws a different crowd, Kaufman said.

He and Ackerblom did not discuss the future of the guest rooms.

"We have to walk before we can run and feel our way around the needs (of the community)," he said.

Study shows traumatic effects of war on children

Jerusalem, Israel.

Gruber started college with aspirations of becoming a medical doctor. But after working in a student counseling service on campus at Brandeis University, she decided that developing relationships with people was something she liked to do, so she made the switch to psychology.

Gruber's initial connection to El Salvador came through her parents, both psychologists, who through the United Church of Christ in Norwell have done volunteer work in that country for more than 10 years.

While working in several volunteer capacities, Gruber said her parents discovered there was a great need in El Salvador for eye care.

Ophthalmologists travelled with the group to El Salvador, eye care clinics were established, and Gruber helped her parents hand out used eye glasses to those who needed them.

Gruber loved the country and its people and looked for ways to use her professional skills to help in El Salvador.

As the war ended in 1992, Gruber, who was looking for a subject for her doctoral dissertation, saw an opportunity to tie her work as a psychology student and as a volunteer in El Salvador together.

"The war ended at a convenient time for my dissertation," Gruber said, but noted that at that point her commitment to the people of El Salvador was so strong she wanted to do whatever she could for them.

Cohasset's Kerry Gruber in El Salvador with a child who has suffered from the traumatic effects of war in that country.

After 12 years of war, Gruber knew that people in rural communities, devastated by violence, would need mental health services.

According to Gruber, there is no mental health system in El Salvador.

But when she went to the U.S. Agency for International Development seeking funding in order to develop a mental health program for rural El Salvador, she was told that there was no need for any such program.

Gruber knew she would have to do research to demonstrate the need.

Gruber spent three months in a rural community near the Honduran border. Aside from some private donations, she had no financial backing.

"It became clear that if I got money from any institution, that it could hinder the project." Gruber explained that with any backing she could have been tied to some political organization which could jeopardize her safety as well as block the project.

There was safety in remaining completely alone in this project, she said.

For her study, Gruber surveyed children and caretakers in the combat/guerilla warfare area in which she lived, and also in a similar rural area near the Guatemalan border that did not see any combat.

Gruber was looking for symptoms like depression, anxiety and other behavioral problems associated with PTSD.

With the help of some local residents, the survey was given to more than 150 school-aged children ranging from eight to 12 years old.

Gruber's study showed that more than one third of the children exposed to combat and violence did in fact develop PTSD.

While her dissertation is complete and she has earned her doctorate, Gruber has not left El Salvador behind.

She continues to work toward getting a mental health program started in El Salvador that would treat the psychological effects of war on children and adults.

The program would involve group and community treatment for those affected by war, encourage them to acknowledge the war, and the problems it has caused for them — in other words, to "tell their stories."

"By telling their story, people begin to understand what is causing their nightmares. It makes it part of their history and helps them to put it behind them," Gruber said.

And her program could well serve as a model that could be used in any war-torn country where children are the most innocent of victims.

"I have a commitment to continue to do work in El Salvador, " she said, adding "I want to be able to take that model and develop it for other areas of the world."

Awarded $1,000 for her research work in El Salvador by the International Society for Traumatic Stress Studies, Gruber said she is encouraged by an increased interest in the field she has come to love.

"This is an area people are starting to pay more attention to," she said.

Dr. Gruber is on the staff of Neurobehavioral Associates in Hingham, Quincy and Brockton. She is also works at the Trauma Center at HRI in Brookline.

should not be a source of revenue for a regional transit system," Hynes said.

More than $5 million in annual assessments, paid by those communities, would come instead from the state budget, said state Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth.

In addition to eliminating MBTA assessments in fringe communities, this legislation would remove the more than $19 million in commuter rail assessments charged to all 78 communities within the district because the service is considered regional serving towns both in and outside of the district.

Hynes, who served on a legislative commission reviewing the financing of the MBTA, has pushed hard for assessment relief in fringe communities and has said eventually he'd like to see the state foot the bill for all 78 towns in the district.

Those 78 communities contributed $131 million to the MBTA's fiscal 1996 budget of $750 million.

But Hedlund said shifting the entire bill to the state would not be feasible.

"It'll be a hard enough sell to get this money," said Hedlund of the more than $24 million state subsidy sought. "We can't shift the total cost to the state."

Inherent in the commuter rail relief, said Hynes, is freezing the remainder of the MBTA assessments at the 1996 rate and a plan to establish an advisory board for commuter rail with representatives from all communities served by it.

Hedlund said rather than submitting the proposal as a separate bill, legislators will advance the change as a budget amendment.

"This will be the first chance to see if it has any legs," said Hedlund, who said there is no guarantee the matter will be approved this year.

But in Cohasset, Town Administrator Greg Doyon hopes it will.

According to Doyon, Cohasset will pay more than $150,000 in assessments - about $37,000 of that for commuter rail service - in fiscal year 1997, and he said the town supports any efforts to eliminate these charges.

"If we were to be exempted from payment it would fee up tax funds that could be used for many purposes in both the capital and operating budget," Doyon said.

"We're facing difficult years ahead with an increasing debt service, so anything helps," he added.

270 gallons of water going down the drain

"Thirty percent produced out of the plant was unaccounted for," he said.

Cohan explained that he started monitoring the storage tank in from 1 to 4 a.m. and initially found usage was 183 gallons per minute during those hours.

"That was a lot for a small town with no 24-hour businesses," he said.

This winter, the usage amount in the middle of the night rose 366 gallons per minute.

"We knew we had a big leak," Cohan said, noting that the department conducted an ongoing leak-detection program all winter.

Stopping this leak brings Cohasset to about the 12 percent mark for unaccounted water, which is good for a system which is 80-to-90 years old, he said.

After repairs were made "the (1 to 4 a.m.) usage went to about 91 gallons per minute immediately," Cohan said.

He explained that salt water ate away iron bolts attached to a coupling that was installed in the early 1970s causing the coupling to fail at the leak site. There were also two holes in the pipe itself.

Repairs to the leak are a stopgap measure until the new water main is installed later this spring.

Cohan noted that with the new water main loop on Forest Avenue, water pressure has been good. The woman, who lives across the street from the Mohawk leak, didn't even notice any problems with her water pressure, he said.

Legal expense gets nod

Selectmen agreed to pay new town counsel Paul DeRensis up to $5,000 to prepare a brief for the Department of Public Utilities on the new water rates requested by Mass. American Water Co. which serves North Cohasset. The rate hike is opposed by affected homeowners in town.

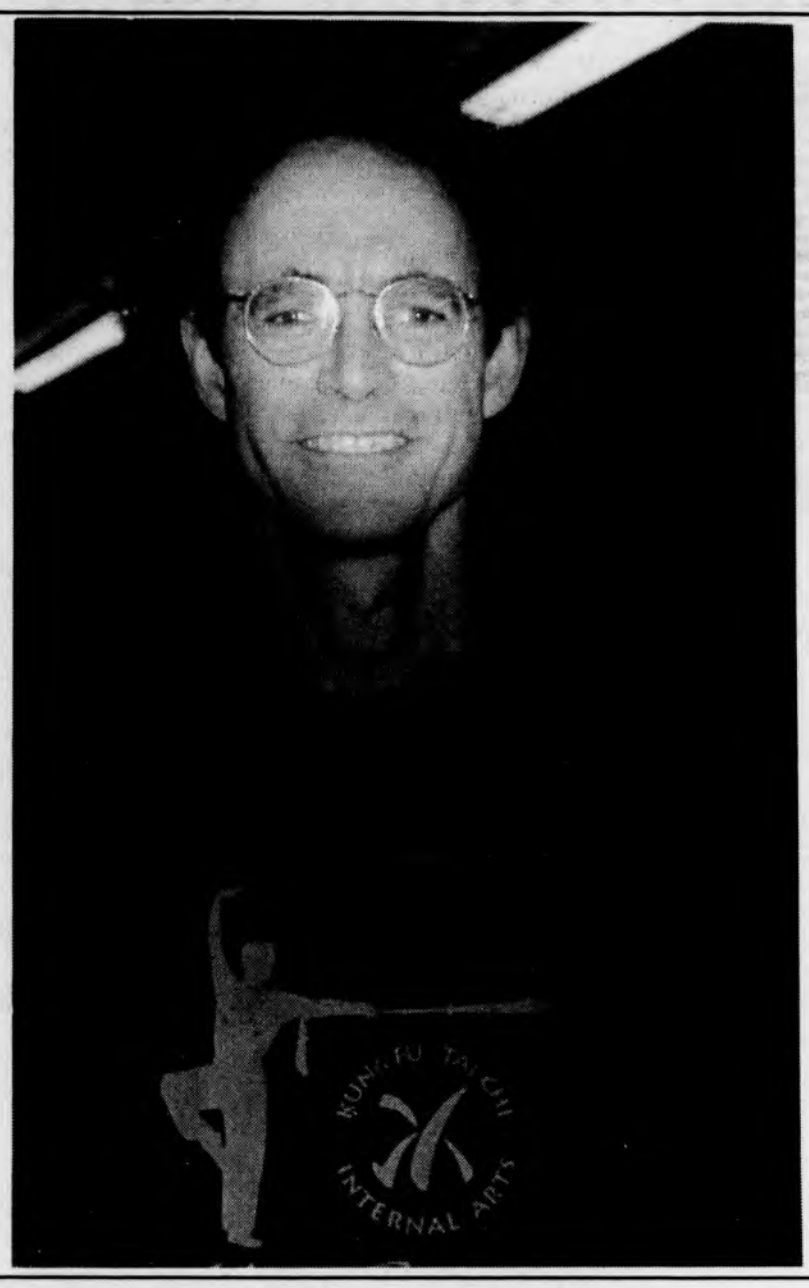
Celebrating 40 YEARS

PICTURE THIS/John Loupos



Name: John Loupos

Occupation: Owner and founder of Jade Forest Kung Fu/Tai Chi/Internal Arts, of the T.E. Healing Tao Center, and of South Shore Homeopathy.

Goal: To keep learning, and to live a productive life by providing other people with tools and resources for their own personal growth.

Best vacation: Scuba diving any place in the sunny Caribbean.

Best day of your life: So many of them, but probably delivering my son in a homebirth 15 years ago.

Biggest worry: That mankind will continue his shortsighted pursuit of quantity, profit & production at the expense of quality and process.

Favorite holiday: They're all okay.

Favorite season: Spring.

Favorite TV show: Jay Leno's Tonight Show. I like to end the day with a laugh.

Favorite movie: Too many to list.

Favorite book: I have favorite authors: James Michener, Robinson Davies, Tom Robbins. Plus lots of non-fiction.

Favorite junk-food: Blue corn chips with pesto sauce.

Most embarrassing moment: Being caught unprepared for anything.

Person you'd most like to meet: I can think of two...Benjamin Franklin, a man of wit, conscience, & foresight, & Samuel Hahnneman, a great medical doctor and the founder of Classical Homeopathy.

Pet peeve: Two of them actually. People who behave with prejudice and intolerance towards others. Also having to jump through hoops to finally get a live person on the other end of the phone.

Barnes Field concession

Hugh Morgan will again operate the concession stand at the Barnes Little League Field on North Main Street from April 20 to Sept. 2. Selectmen okayed Morgan's request this week.

Morgan plans to install picnic tables near the concession stand for the summer and assured selectmen that he will take care of any trash on a daily basis. Morgan will sell hamburgers, hot dogs, sausages, chips, candy, popcorn and cold drinks.

Morgan noted he did not have any complaints from the field's neighbors last year.

"Some were my best customers," he said.

Traffic sign installed

A reflective "Dangerous Curve Ahead" sign has been installed in the area of 310 Beechwood St. following an investigation by the town safety officer on the traffic danger at the curve.

Florence Jerome, who has lived at 268 Beechwood St. for 10 years, brought the matter to selectmen's attention in a recent letter.

"There have been many fender-benders and off the road detours in our front yard," Jerome wrote.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

Let's all wish Vi Tuthill a happy 92nd birthday!

After you finish reading this edition of the Mariner, we would be so pleased if you did something to make a soon-to-be 92-year-old special lady feel even more special! Just pick up a birthday card for Vi Tuthill so that she will know that we are all thinking about her on her wonderful 92nd birthday—then mail it to Mrs. Carl Tuthill, Norwell Knoll, 329 Washington St., Norwell 02061. The big day is April 24, so there is plenty of time to let Vi know you care!

Ryan Staszko, son of Mr. Donald Staszko and Dr. Barbara O'Pray of Cohasset, participated in a special "School of the Sea" program offered this winter to Tabor Academy students. The school, located in Marion, offered four different voyages which joined the Tabor Boy, a 92-foot schooner owned by the school, in St. Thomas, V.I.

Students took part in a challenging new course of instruction focusing on fragile coral reef ecosytems. What an ideal winter to be able to take a scientific course like this one — not only do students learn, but they also stay warm and soak up sunshine!

The Cohasset Council of Elder Affairs at 3 North Main St. has opened a Coffee Café, open from 9:30 to 11 a.m. The café sells coffee and baked breakfast treats for the enjoyment of those who stop by.

Join them, sit a spell and relax and chat over a delicious muffin and a hot cup of coffee.

We are happy to report that Herm Fichtner is at home after a lengthy stay at area hospitals and rehab. Of course we know that nothing cures like love, and Herm is surrounded with that, so we'll be seeing him walking "around town" in no time at all.

Academic honors for the winter term at Northfield Mount Hermon School have been awarded to junior Brett MacQuarrie, the son of Jane and Chris Kyricos. A member of the varsity soccer team, he served as co-captain of the Southeast Team in the 1995 Bay State Games.

He also has been a member of the NMH "As Schools Match Wits" academic TV quiz show team and is playing midfield on the school's varsity lacrosse team this spring.

At Northfield Mount Hermon, an independent, coeducational college-preparatory school, honors students must have a term average or at least a B, with no grade below B-. They must also demonstrate good citizenship and complete physical education and work program requirements.

Here is the success story of two 1995 CHS graduates. Kristin Niessink has been named to the dean's list at St. Michael's College in Vermont for the first semester; Kevin O'Donnell has achieved dean's list status at Emerson College, also for the first semester .

Both students have expressed a profound appreciation for the excellent education they received at CHS, and felt the preparation they received there certainly played a large role in their success in college!

Roger William University sends us news from the athletic department — #14 on the school's men's lacrosse team is none other than Cohasset's own Benjamin Redfield, a freshman who plays the midfield position. We'll undoubtedly be hearing more about Ben as the season progresses!

Everyone remembers Thomas Allen, a terrific CHS basketball player. Well, he is keeping up the pace! Thomas, a senior, was honored at Suffield Academy's spring athletic awards assembly on March 28. As co-captain of the boys basketball team, he was awarded a varsity letter in the sport. He also received an award for efficiency in foul shooting.

Thomas is the son of Zuline Gray Allen of Jamaica Plain. Suffield is an independent, co-educational college prep school in Suffield, Conn.

Did you know the Chamber of Commerce presented the proceeds of their annual auction to the Harborfest Committee and the Appalachian Service Project recently?

Each group received a donation of $2,200, a feat they should be very proud of! Hard work does indeed pay off, as does generosity!

We end this week by reminding you all of a few things that the Cohasset Food Pantry would be grateful to receive — paper towels and other paper goods, toothpaste, dish soap, shampoo, baggies, regular coffee, non-sugar products, canned fruit, white sugar and cream of wheat are foremost on the list, but anything that you can donate would be greatly appreciated!

EDITORIAL

Every day is Earth Day

Earth Day is rapidly approaching, and as we focus our attention on the environment, we should be mindful of how fragile it is.

Many tend to view environmental issues as global — global warming, acid rain, overpopulation, air pollution, hazardous waste, ocean dumping and ozone depletion — which must be addressed on a national or on an international level.

But working for change in government and big business is not enough.

Because our environmental problems are also the direct results of our own lifestyle choices, it is crucial that we change the way we live our daily lives.

That means taking responsibility, changing habits, changing attitudes, from the moment we rise in the morning until we lay to rest.

Do we need an electric clock to sound the alarm?

Do we need to turn up the heat to rid the early morning chill?

Do we need to run water as we brush our teeth?

Do we need to bathe, rather than shower, and consume so much water?

How do we make our morning coffee? With a throw-away filter? Do we throw away the grounds, or do we put the grounds in a compost heap?

And what about the morning newspaper?

Do we recycle that?

We are recycling some products, like newspapers, corrugated cardboard, glass, motor oil.

But it is not enough just to recycle these products.

We must create markets for them so that they won't be stockpiled out of sight and out of mind.

Newspapers can be recycled into other paper products — just as the Community Newspaper Company, the parent company of The Hingham Journal, aims to use recycled newsprint when it is available.

Glass can be ground up and mixed with asphalt for a new product called glasphalt for roadways or reflective signs.

A certain type of plastic that is recyclable is used by the soda pop — that's an old-fashioned word — industry.

That is kept out of the waste stream fairly successfully because consumers pay a five-cent deposit on those bottles.

Another heavy plastic used for milk jugs can be reused for another generation of plastic products such as furniture or combs or lunch boxes. And we often just toss those away.

There is a market for that plastic, and several communities are taking advantage of it, shredding the plastic for future use and keeping it out of the waste stream headed for the SEMASS incinerator in Rochester.

Protecting our environment no longer means preserving our quality of life, it means preserving life itself. And all of us must keep in mind that every day is Earth Day.

Debt exclusion vote clarified

To the Editor:

Over the past several days, I have received a number of phone calls asking for clarification of the Prop. 2-1/2 debt exclusion vote which is scheduled for Saturday, May 4.

A "Yes" vote would favor sharing the capital costs of the North Cohasset Sewer Project on a 50-50 basis between the taxpayers and the new sewer users. A "No" vote would favor assessing 100 percent of the capital costs to new sewer users. The project will go forward in either case. The only decision is how the capital costs will be allocated.

Citizen input has made a difference

To the Editor:

If, and when, the proposed expansion of the Cohasset Heights landfill is stopped, a major factor will be the increasing active citizen opposition to the expansion. The people of Cohasset need to know that their cards, letters and phone calls in this effort have made a difference.

Active citizen opposition to the expansion has been increasing steadily since 18 Cohasset residents sent in written comments on the first environmental impact report in 1991. At that time, we were told by MassPIRG that this was an enormous citizen response, since usually there are no citizen comments filed on EIRs.

Increasing numbers of Cohasset residents commented on each of the five other EIRs — 48 comments in 1992, 79 in 1993 and 155 on the so-called final EIR filed in 1994. About 300 people attended a public hearing on this "final" EIR on Feb. 7, 1994. There were 113 citizen comments on the Supplemental Final EIR in 1994, and 180 on the last EIR (the Comprehensive Site Assessment) filed in July, 1995. This adds up to about 400 Cohasset residents who have commented on one or more of the EIRs.

Citizen opposition has increased explosively in response to the site assignment application for the expansion filed by CHL last August. A total of 330 people sent in comment letters to the state DEP opposing the application. In the recent site assignment hearings held by the Board of Health, 15 ten-citizen groups were formed (150 people) — a record — to fight the expansion, and 267 people filed as participants.

Thirty-five participants presented oral testimony at the hearings, and more than 70 filed written comments. Thus, citizens had a large and meaningful role in the hearings.

The Board of Health is planning to vote on and sign its decision on the expansion at its meeting on Monday, April 29, at 7 p.m. at Town Hall. Based on the overwhelming amount of evidence presented at the hearings that the expansion will be a danger to public health, safety and the environment, I hope (and expect) the Board of Health will vote to deny the expansion. I urge all Cohasset residents interested in the decision to attend this important meeting of the Board of Health.

School support appreciated

To the Editor:

Thank you, Cohasset, for your votes in support of the new school project at Town Meeting and at the polls. Thank you, also, to everyone who worked for passage of the project during the last few months — those who made phone calls, worked on mailings, distributed handouts in all kinds of weather, put up or provided yards for signs, held signs at numerous locations around town and at the Common on election day, helped out at the polls and supported our work with financial contributions.

Generations of Cohasset schoolchildren will benefit from your hard work and willingness to invest in Cohasset's future.

Town government booklet proposed

To the Editor:

At its April meeting last week, the Cohasset Parent School Organization's executive board discussed some of the issues raised by the attendance of large groups of parents at the special and annual Town Meetings in January and March of this year. The PSO was pleased that so many parents made the effort to attend these meetings and vote on issues affecting them and their children, including the new school proposal and the town operating budget. Many of us knew parents who attended Town Meeting for the first time because of these school-related issues, but participated in all the business of Town Meeting, not just the school issues. For these voters, the school issue served to spark an interest in town government, and many of them plan to attend Town Meeting on a regular basis in the future.

We feel the disruption created at times by some parents entering or leaving the meetings or bringing young children with them is largely attributable to a lack of understanding of our town government operation and the difficulty of finding childcare for extended periods during the day on weekends and on school nights.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The PSO plans to work on both of these issues.

With respect to the childcare issue, we will work with student groups at the Junior/Senior High School to ensure that childcare is available, either on site or in people's homes, for every special and annual Town Meeting, and that the availability of childcare is publicized well in advance.

Furthermore, our community relations group plans to work with town officials and others to develop a booklet about town government which could be distributed to parents at school open houses in the fall and on an ongoing basis to families who move to Cohasset during the school year.

The PSO hopes to work with the town to correct some of the problems we experienced this winter and spring in a way that encourages the continued participation of our town's young families in town government.

Support for Matt's Olympic bid appreciated

To the Editor:

Matthew Collins and his family want to express their deep gratitude to those people in Cohasset: family and friends, acquaintances and crew supporters, for their tremendous encouragement and generous support for Matthew in his bid for the "96 U.S. Olympic Crew Team." Thanks especially to Ed Mulvey and the Pilgrim Cooperative Bank who made the fund-raiser for Matthew possible helping to enable him to make his Olympic bid. Matthew and his three teammates, all from the Bay State, lost to a team which was one of three training in Princeton, N.J. The deciding event was won by the Princeton team after five days of intensive competition on the Olympic course in Gainsville, Georgia. Seven crew teams competed for one team to represent the U.S. in the lightweight four event.

As most of you probably know, Matthew, a former United States gold medalist in the World Rowing Championship in the Czech Republic in '93 and U.S. Rowing's athlete of the year also in '93, took this year off from medical school to try for the '96 Olympic team. Without everyone's support this would not have been possible. With the time left before school begins again, Matt hopes to represent the U.S. in the British Henley in England or possibly the World Rowing Championships which this year are in Scotland. Hopefully we'll be there to cheer him on.

Thank you again family, friends, and crew supporters for your interest, support and generosity.

Student of month choice applauded

To the Editor:

I was more than overjoyed to see Kara Johansen chosen as Student of the Month (April 11) and deeply touched by the sincere heartfelt expressions of support for Kara by her former teachers, Ken Cisneros and Betty Beatson.

Kara has been in the Cohasset school system since kindergarten. Because of the wisdom and determination of her parents to have Kara educated within Cohasset, Kara has offered those who come in contact with her an illuminating, enriching life experience which would have been sorely missed had she not been amongst us. So often I personally feel Kara gives us so much more than we can ever return to her. The sentiments expressed by Mr. Cisneros and Miss Beatson and all her former teachers at Osgood and Deer Hill schools reflect the profound relationship that results from knowing Kara. I thank these teachers for nominating Kara as Student of the Month, and thank the Mariner for communicating their message to us all.

Although we all get tired of populist "buzz words" like diversity, surely the pleasure of interacting with Kara represents the rewards of encouraging the learning of diversity within our school system. It is my hope that the Cohasset community proudly continues to encourage each other to actively search for methodologies and strategies to educate every student, and to enjoy the pluralism which results in our community and society at large.

Train is not the answer

To the Editor:

As someone who has been commuting to Boston for 10 years, I speak from experience when I say the South Shore needs improved public transportation. Restoration of the Greenbush line, which the MBTA estimates will cost $300 million with mitigation, is not the solution. The MBTA has turned down the opportunity to obtain 80 percent federal funding for this project so we, as taxpayers of Massachusetts, get to pick up the tab.

Do you want your tax dollars spent on a rail line that by the year 2010 the MBTA estimates will only remove 1,330 cars out of the 105,000 that travel Routes 3 and 3A during peak morning rush hour?

Do you want your tax dollars spent on a rail line that plans to have 43 grade crossings over 17.7 miles of track (11 in Cohasset) while the federal government is currently paying for cities and towns across the United States to eliminate grade crossings because of their inherent danger?

If you think your tax dollars are going to be spent on a "convenient" walk-on station at Cohasset Village, guess again. The MBTA cannot promise this station will be built because of the dangers involved in the location of the 800-foot platform. When the MBTA starts saying they can't make any promises, you can pretty much count on it not happening.

Despite what Gov. Weld has said, the Greenbush line is far from being a done deal. There is still plenty of time to fight to ensure our hard-earned tax dollars are spent on public transportation alternatives that are solutions and not just financial burdens. It is discouraging to think apathy is the only thing standing in the way of this train.

Martha says thanks to all

To the Editor:

I wish to thank my supporters for their vote on election day. I also wish to thank the townspeople for all the years you had confidence in my analysis of the difficult decisions that an elected official has to make.

Good luck to all of the officials elected and to all who wished to be one.

Restore old Cohasset village homes

To the Editor:

Some thoughts regarding empty village storefronts:

Early this century, before everyone drove or had access to rides, there was need for shops, particularly food stores, in the center of town. To fulfill that need, enterprising Cohasset citizens attached disfiguring storefronts to fine old homes. If you stand up next to St. Stephen's you can look down and see tops of the houses and some historic detail, including a handsome mansard roof. You can see more details in Historic Society photos.

Today, with our mobile population and two large supermarket shopping centers plus many other stores located on 3A, the need has changed. To pretend otherwise is hardly realistic. Nor does it seem realistic to expect tourists, with no access to beach or boating, to flock here to shop.

But today we do have a real need: suitable, attractive, dwelling units for Cohasset empty-nesters and hometown young marrieds. I can imagine a Village Center with historic homes restored — some large, some small or divided, some to buy, some to rent. They would complement, enhance Lilac House, refurbished Red Lion, Donna Green's charming studio, and the still successful shops. Could this be a good investment for someone or a group? Would it be a likely project for "This Old House"?

Coverage of train criticized

To the Editor:

"Weldo ain't no friend of mine.
He wants to build the Greenbush line.
Pollution, noises, taxes too,
We don't want it, nor should you!
Sound off — No Train."

These are the words that echoed throughout Faneuil Hall Monday night at the Weld/Kerry debate. A very large group of people, including babies to grandparents, braved the cold, miserable weather to tote signs, and let their voices he heard. Only to be silenced once more by a very biased media.

Weld promised in 1990 that if the impacted towns did not want Greenbush, he would not approve it. As we all know, Hingham and Scituate voted the train down. In Cohasset it was a virtual tie, and in Weymouth there are a growing number of very concerned citizens. Thousands of voters said no train. Governor Weld lied, it is being pushed through our towns anyway. This is news, and it should be covered by the media, not covered up.

When the concerns, wants and needs of the many, are shut out by the need and greed of the few, democracy is gone, and this should be a wake up call to people everywhere.

Annual Health Fair to be held at Cohasset High School

The Annual Health Fair sponsored by the Social Service League and the Board of Health will be held on Thursday, April 25, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the upper gym, at Cohasset High School.

Free screenings will be conducted for cholesterol, blood sugar, cataract, glaucoma and blood pressure.

The Cohasset Rotary Club and the Hingham Institution for Savings have made donations to underwrite the costs of the cholesterol screening.

The Guild for the Hard of Hearing Mobil Van will do free hearing tests. The van has been funded again this year by the Pilgrim Cooperative Bank.

There will be professionals available for consultations in podiatry, ophthalmology, chiropractic care, oral cancer screening, and general nutrition information.

An oncology nurse from the Norwell VNA will be available to teach breast self-examination and appointments may be made for mammograms with the Mobil Diagnostics Van, which will be in Cohasset on Saturday, June 1.

Pharmacists from Walgreens and CVS will discuss both prescription and over-the-counter medications and drug and alcohol interactions.

Representatives from the South Shore Collaborative Tobacco Control Program, the Cohasset Police Department, the Cohasset Fire Department, and the Drug and Alcohol Committee will provide information and demonstrate the effects of drug and alcohol.

Healthful snacks and drinks have been provided by Stop and Shop, Dunkin' Donuts, and Atlantic Bagel Co.

All services at the fair are free of charge and the fair is open to all residents of the town.

There were 113 citizen comments on the Supplemental Final EIR in 1994, and 180 on the last EIR (the Comprehensive Site Assessment) filed in July, 1995. This adds up to about 400 Cohasset residents who have commented on one or more of the EIRs.

Citizen opposition has increased explosively in response to the site assignment application for the expansion filed by CHL last August. A total of 330 people sent in comment letters to the state DEP opposing the application. In the recent site assignment hearings held by the Board of Health, 15 ten-citizen groups were formed (150 people) — a record — to fight the expansion, and 267 people filed as participants.

Thirty-five participants presented oral testimony at the hearings, and more than 70 filed written comments. Thus, citizens had a large and meaningful role in the hearings.

The Board of Health is planning to vote on and sign its decision on the expansion at its meeting on Monday, April 29, at 7 p.m. at Town Hall. Based on the overwhelming amount of evidence presented at the hearings that the expansion will be a danger to public health, safety and the environment, I hope (and expect) the Board of Health will vote to deny the expansion. I urge all Cohasset residents interested in the decision to attend this important meeting of the Board of Health.

School support appreciated

To the Editor:

Thank you, Cohasset, for your votes in support of the new school project at Town Meeting and at the polls. Thank you, also, to everyone who worked for passage of the project during the last few months — those who made phone calls, worked on mailings, distributed handouts in all kinds of weather, put up or provided yards for signs, held signs at numerous locations around town and at the Common on election day, helped out at the polls and supported our work with financial contributions.

Generations of Cohasset schoolchildren will benefit from your hard work and willingness to invest in Cohasset's future.

Town government booklet proposed

To the Editor:

At its April meeting last week, the Cohasset Parent School Organization's executive board discussed some of the issues raised by the attendance of large groups of parents at the special and annual Town Meetings in January and March of this year. The PSO was pleased that so many parents made the effort to attend these meetings and vote on issues affecting them and their children, including the new school proposal and the town operating budget. Many of us knew parents who attended Town Meeting for the first time because of these school-related issues, but participated in all the business of Town Meeting, not just the school issues. For these voters, the school issue served to spark an interest in town government, and many of them plan to attend Town Meeting on a regular basis in the future.

We feel the disruption created at times by some parents entering or leaving the meetings or bringing young children with them is largely attributable to a lack of understanding of our town government operation and the difficulty of finding childcare for extended periods during the day on weekends and on school nights.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The PSO plans to work on both of these issues.

With respect to the childcare issue, we will work with student groups at the Junior/Senior High School to ensure that childcare is available, either on site or in people's homes, for every special and annual Town Meeting, and that the availability of childcare is publicized well in advance.

Furthermore, our community relations group plans to work with town officials and others to develop a booklet about town government which could be distributed to parents at school open houses in the fall and on an ongoing basis to families who move to Cohasset during the school year.

The PSO hopes to work with the town to correct some of the problems we experienced this winter and spring in a way that encourages the continued participation of our town's young families in town government.

Support for Matt's Olympic bid appreciated

To the Editor:

Matthew Collins and his family want to express their deep gratitude to those people in Cohasset: family and friends, acquaintances and crew supporters, for their tremendous encouragement and generous support for Matthew in his bid for the "96 U.S. Olympic Crew Team." Thanks especially to Ed Mulvey and the Pilgrim Cooperative Bank who made the fund-raiser for Matthew possible helping to enable him to make his Olympic bid. Matthew and his three teammates, all from the Bay State, lost to a team which was one of three training in Princeton, N.J. The deciding event was won by the Princeton team after five days of intensive competition on the Olympic course in Gainsville, Georgia. Seven crew teams competed for one team to represent the U.S. in the lightweight four event.

As most of you probably know, Matthew, a former United States gold medalist in the World Rowing Championship in the Czech Republic in '93 and U.S. Rowing's athlete of the year also in '93, took this year off from medical school to try for the '96 Olympic team. Without everyone's support this would not have been possible. With the time left before school begins again, Matt hopes to represent the U.S. in the British Henley in England or possibly the World Rowing Championships which this year are in Scotland. Hopefully we'll be there to cheer him on.

Thank you again family, friends, and crew supporters for your interest, support and generosity.

Student of month choice applauded

To the Editor:

I was more than overjoyed to see Kara Johansen chosen as Student of the Month (April 11) and deeply touched by the sincere heartfelt expressions of support for Kara by her former teachers, Ken Cisneros and Betty Beatson.

Kara has been in the Cohasset school system since kindergarten. Because of the wisdom and determination of her parents to have Kara educated within Cohasset, Kara has offered those who come in contact with her an illuminating, enriching life experience which would have been sorely missed had she not been amongst us. So often I personally feel Kara gives us so much more than we can ever return to her. The sentiments expressed by Mr. Cisneros and Miss Beatson and all her former teachers at Osgood and Deer Hill schools reflect the profound relationship that results from knowing Kara. I thank these teachers for nominating Kara as Student of the Month, and thank the Mariner for communicating their message to us all.

Although we all get tired of populist "buzz words" like diversity, surely the pleasure of interacting with Kara represents the rewards of encouraging the learning of diversity within our school system. It is my hope that the Cohasset community proudly continues to encourage each other to actively search for methodologies and strategies to educate every student, and to enjoy the pluralism which results in our community and society at large.

Train is not the answer

To the Editor:

As someone who has been commuting to Boston for 10 years, I speak from experience when I say the South Shore needs improved public transportation. Restoration of the Greenbush line, which the MBTA estimates will cost $300 million with mitigation, is not the solution. The MBTA has turned down the opportunity to obtain 80 percent federal funding for this project so we, as taxpayers of Massachusetts, get to pick up the tab.

Do you want your tax dollars spent on a rail line that by the year 2010 the MBTA estimates will only remove 1,330 cars out of the 105,000 that travel Routes 3 and 3A during peak morning rush hour?

Do you want your tax dollars spent on a rail line that plans to have 43 grade crossings over 17.7 miles of track (11 in Cohasset) while the federal government is currently paying for cities and towns across the United States to eliminate grade crossings because of their inherent danger?

If you think your tax dollars are going to be spent on a "convenient" walk-on station at Cohasset Village, guess again. The MBTA cannot promise this station will be built because of the dangers involved in the location of the 800-foot platform. When the MBTA starts saying they can't make any promises, you can pretty much count on it not happening.

Despite what Gov. Weld has said, the Greenbush line is far from being a done deal. There is still plenty of time to fight to ensure our hard-earned tax dollars are spent on public transportation alternatives that are solutions and not just financial burdens. It is discouraging to think apathy is the only thing standing in the way of this train.

Restore old Cohasset village homes

To the Editor:

Some thoughts regarding empty village storefronts:

Early this century, before everyone drove or had access to rides, there was need for shops, particularly food stores, in the center of town. To fulfill that need, enterprising Cohasset citizens attached disfiguring storefronts to fine old homes. If you stand up next to St. Stephen's you can look down and see tops of the houses and some historic detail, including a handsome mansard roof. You can see more details in Historic Society photos.

Today, with our mobile population and two large supermarket shopping centers plus many other stores located on 3A, the need has changed. To pretend otherwise is hardly realistic. Nor does it seem realistic to expect tourists, with no access to beach or boating, to flock here to shop.

But today we do have a real need: suitable, attractive, dwelling units for Cohasset empty-nesters and hometown young marrieds. I can imagine a Village Center with historic homes restored — some large, some small or divided, some to buy, some to rent. They would complement, enhance Lilac House, refurbished Red Lion, Donna Green's charming studio, and the still successful shops. Could this be a good investment for someone or a group? Would it be a likely project for "This Old House"?

Coverage of train criticized

To the Editor:

"Weldo ain't no friend of mine.
He wants to build the Greenbush line.
Pollution, noises, taxes too,
We don't want it, nor should you!
Sound off — No Train."

These are the words that echoed throughout Faneuil Hall Monday night at the Weld/Kerry debate. A very large group of people, including babies to grandparents, braved the cold, miserable weather to tote signs, and let their voices he heard. Only to be silenced once more by a very biased media.

Weld promised in 1990 that if the impacted towns did not want Greenbush, he would not approve it. As we all know, Hingham and Scituate voted the train down. In Cohasset it was a virtual tie, and in Weymouth there are a growing number of very concerned citizens. Thousands of voters said no train. Governor Weld lied, it is being pushed through our towns anyway. This is news, and it should be covered by the media, not covered up.

When the concerns, wants and needs of the many, are shut out by the need and greed of the few, democracy is gone, and this should be a wake up call to people everywhere.

Martha says thanks to all

To the Editor:

I wish to thank my supporters for their vote on election day. I also wish to thank the townspeople for all the years you had confidence in my analysis of the difficult decisions that an elected official has to make.

Good luck to all of the officials elected and to all who wished to be one.

Annual Health Fair to be held at Cohasset High School

The Annual Health Fair sponsored by the Social Service League and the Board of Health will be held on Thursday, April 25, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the upper gym, at Cohasset High School.

Free screenings will be conducted for cholesterol, blood sugar, cataract, glaucoma and blood pressure.

The Cohasset Rotary Club and the Hingham Institution for Savings have made donations to underwrite the costs of the cholesterol screening.

The Guild for the Hard of Hearing Mobil Van will do free hearing tests. The van has been funded again this year by the Pilgrim Cooperative Bank.

There will be professionals available for consultations in podiatry, ophthalmology, chiropractic care, oral cancer screening, and general nutrition information.

An oncology nurse from the Norwell VNA will be available to teach breast self-examination and appointments may be made for mammograms with the Mobil Diagnostics Van, which will be in Cohasset on Saturday, June 1.

Pharmacists from Walgreens and CVS will discuss both prescription and over-the-counter medications and drug and alcohol interactions.

Representatives from the South Shore Collaborative Tobacco Control Program, the Cohasset Police Department, the Cohasset Fire Department, and the Drug and Alcohol Committee will provide information and demonstrate the effects of drug and alcohol.

Healthful snacks and drinks have been provided by Stop and Shop, Dunkin' Donuts, and Atlantic Bagel Co.

All services at the fair are free of charge and the fair is open to all residents of the town.

Dispatcher is appointed

Selectmen this week approved the appointment of Joseph P. Dellapi of Duxbury as the town's newest civilian dispatcher.

They held off appointing Dellapi, who has fire dispatch experience, last week until they conferred with the personnel committee about Dellapi's rate of $11.53 per hour. They were concerned because other full-time dispatchers were hired at a lower rate.

The personnel board said the pay rate is okay. Dellapi started work Monday, selectmen said.

Cohasset's wrestling guru

Sweeney sets positive tone for Skippers' success on the mats

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

In his job description, Torin Sweeney could be referred to as Cohasset High's wrestling coach/teacher. That would be the best way to describe Sweeney's approach to spending the winter with the Skipper grapplers.

The two go hand in hand.

Sweeney, a physical education teacher at the Deer Hill School, is particularly uncomfortable about taking credit for the performances his wrestlers have turned in under his tutelage over the past 13 seasons.

"The most important thing to me is all the kids I've been associated with who've put the time in over the years," said Sweeney, who won his 100th career meet in the final dual-meet competition of the winter. "It's the kids who won 100 meets. I coached them. It's the kids I'd like to thank."

Still, it was Sweeney who had to sharpen the grapplers' talents and prepare them for the rugged dual-meet schedule and postseason competition.

He has done his job well.

Cohasset was the second-smallest team next to Holbrook in the Division 3 South Sectional meet this winter, but that didn't stop the Skippers from rumbling to a stellar third-place finish. Over the years Sweeney has coached 13 individual sectional champions, 24 state place winners and five New England place winners.

Sweeney has also had the unique opportunity to compete and coach for the same school. A 1982 graduate of Cohasset High, Sweeney was an accomplished wrestler during his schoolboy days. He finished sixth in the South Sectional meet as a freshman and improved to third his sophomore year. Sweeney then took the sectional title the winter of his junior year. He proved the first-place finish was no fluke when he battled his way to second as a senior.

After a year away from wrestling in 1982, his high school coach John Leone

Special to the Mariner

Spring is the time when things begin anew. Flowers bloom, babies are born and New England thaws. This spring promised to be no different, with the exception of the Cohasset High School baseball team. The squad seemed poised to jump out to a fast start, ready to earn a berth in the state tournament, making it a giant year for rebuilding the program.

And then, Mother Nature interfered. Instead of heading into the middle of April with three or four wins the Skippers are stuck at 0-1 after losing to East Bridgewater two weeks ago. Baseball, despite the loud voices of some, is a game designed to be played on grass, not Astroturf, and certainly not on the hardwood of a high school gymnasium.

Baseball should be played with a ball of tightly wound string wrapped inside horsehide, not with a rubber ball that is beaten into a cube after four hits. A pitcher should get the kinks out of his arm in the spring by throwing from a mound with his jacket and a sweatshirt on, not with a T-shirt and gym shorts, standing underneath a basketball hoop. He should throw to a batter who stands inside a batter's box, the wind whipping in his ear. The batter should feel the painful vibrations of a ball not hit solidly, rumble through his body. It is almost unconstitutional to hit a rubber ball thrown by a pitcher underneath a basketball hoop, standing in a net so other players don't get beaned. An outfielder should have to fight the glare of the sun and the trickery of the wind to catch a fly ball, no the rafters of a gymnasium. Baseball is meant to be played with spikes, basketball sneakers fall short. It's hard to get one's uniform dirty by diving on a waxed hardwood floor.

Yet this has been life for Cohasset baseball for the past two weeks. The grounders bound true off the wood and the flies get lost in the rafters. While teams all over Massachusetts are relaxing with their April vacations, Cohasset ballplayers will be stuck inside a cramped gymnasium, if they're lucky. Five teams vie for time in CHS's two gyms, creating a scheduling nightmare and testy coaches.

It's April. The temperature should read 65 degrees and sunny. Baseball has enough worries without the weather.

Driscoll wins unprecedented seventh consecutive Boston

Seven-time Boston Marathon winner in the women's wheelchair division Jean Driscoll of Champaign, Ill. used the Newton Hills to her advantage in racing to her seventh consecutive win in the women's wheelchair division in Monday's 100th anniversary of the Boston Marathon.

Driscoll, who also owns the course record and world record in the event, made history by tying the legendary Clarence DeMar for the most Boston titles ever. Driscoll's winning time of 1 hour, 52 minutes and 56 seconds gave her a 1:43 margin of victory over second-place finisher Louise Sauvage of Australia. The win earned Driscoll $12,000 in prize money.

Driscoll is a local favorite in Cohasset and Hingham. She spends the final weeks before the fabled 26.2 mile run training in Cohasset and the hills of Wompatuck State Park.

Lewis named hockey co-captain

Cohasset's Matthew Lewis, a sophomore at Xaverian Brothers High School in Westwood, was elected by his teammates as co-captain of the '96-97 varsity hockey team. Lewis plays forward and is especially efficient on Xaverian's power-play and short-handed lines.

Xaverian plays in the Catholic Conference League against such hockey stalwarts as Catholic Memorial and Boston College High.

Sweeney sets positive tone for Skippers' success stepped down from the position. Sweeney, who still had the wrestling itch in him, became worried when a successor had yet to be named.

At the age of 19, Sweeney talked to Athletic Director Clark Chatterton and became the squad's youngest head coach ever.

"I was afraid they were going to drop the program and I didn't want that to happen," Sweeney said.

Sweeney listened as much as he wrestled during his seasons on the mats and earned a great respect for Leone. "He was quite an inspiration to me, without question," Sweeney said. "Dedication was one of the biggest things he taught me. I learned from him that if you're going to do something, do it 100 percent or don't do it all.

"I really admired him a lot. He was a strong influence in my life."

Sweeney took over the program after an 0-10 season and the team began to improve every winter. The Skippers won once his first season then two the following year. Cohasset then moved closer to .500 with a 7-9 record in Sweeney's third season. By the fourth year, the Skippers battled to a stunning 11-6 record and was one of the dominant teams on the South Shore from '87-89.

Sweeney sees now more than ever the strides young people can make if they give what they're doing, whether it be wrestling, baseball or their studies, a total effort, they can achieve lofty goals they otherwise would have though unimaginable.

When he first took over the position, Sweeney didn't see the overall picture of a good coach's responsibility until he enrolled at Quincy Junior College and realized just how important the teaching aspect of the sport was. He became all the more focused on his wrestlers and his motivation to coach them and translate the disciplines of the sport over into everyday life.

"As a young coach I didn't see the whole education process," Sweeney said. "It's must more than just wrestling. It's a life experience. I try to show them what they can get out of this sport that will help them in life or in their quality of life."

Cohasset High wrestling coach Torin Sweeney, who is also a physical education teacher at the Deer Hill School, helps Courtney Caron along the parallel bars.

Although Sweeney is a strong advocate of the sport, he believes multi-dimensional athletes, in the long run, are the best athletes. He has never been a firm believer in a wrestler training and competing on the mats year-round. He does encourage kids to get involved in some activity and envies today's youth because so much is offered to them and there are so many more avenues they can take.

"I don't think it helps the kid to do just one sport," Sweeney said. "If you take the same kid and he plays three sports he has all different kinds of experiences. He learns how to win, how to lose, plays for different coaches and with different teammates.

"He can concentrate on his favorite sport in the summer. You get a more well-rounded kid that way."

Sweeney also likes the change of pace in his coaching. He coaches freshman football in the fall and this spring he is in charge of the JV softball squad, a position he thoroughly enjoys.

"It's such a nice change," Sweeney said. "I like to coach the girls. It's fun to see another group of students."

He probably does his most teaching when coaching the freshman football players. Sweeney goes through the basic skills and fundamentals needed to build a foundation upon by the time the kids move up to JV and then varsity.

During the summer Sweeney runs his own wrestling camp at the high school which has drawn between 35-40 grapplers the past two years. Sweeney finds it very important to drop in on other camps and talk with coaches. Sweeney says coaching is more of a learning experience now than when he first started.

"Once you have experience as a coach," Sweeney explained "if you stand pat, you get passed by. If you don't stay on top of that you can be in trouble."

Sweeney is always picking up and teaching his squad the newest moves and the ways in which they can be countered during competition. He wants his grapplers going into matches being as prepared as possible to wrestle their best.

Sweeney has seen the South part of the state become the "hotbed" of wrestling for the past six years. He believes the major reason is the continuity of coaches who stay with the program for extended periods of time. Traditions are built and philosophies are developed in different programs.

The results don't lie. Of the 14 weight classes at the Division 3 South Sectionals, the section was represented in the state finals in nine.

"We've certainly had the upper hand," Sweeney said.

Cohasset High has built its own wrestling tradition and Sweeney, though he won't admit it, is the common denominator in that success.

But he likes the fact that wrestlers who he was teammates with and the ones he coached come back to watch meets and help out at practice. And they're always welcome.

"It's a family that dates back 13 years from my coaching," Sweeney said.

Family. Maybe that's the secret of Cohasset's success.

Youngsters are key to Lady tracksters

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

Cohasset High girls track coach Ron Emmons has a major task in front of him. His number-one priority is to try to keep the Lady Skipper tracksters from losing their sanity after competing in one meet over the past two weeks.

As you may know by now, there has yet to be a spring this year. Winter turned up again last week and dumped up to eight inches of snow on the South Shore, wiping out the scheduled games and meets for a week.

Cohasset was able to get in one meet before the heavens opened and the team made the most of it with a 98-38 win over Norton on April 3.

"It's hart to keep the kids going," said Emmons, "but I can't really blame them. The key thing is that we're not worrying so much about winning, but rather improving with every meet."

Senior co-captain Faye Menis, the Lady Skippers' scoring leader since the seventh grade, had a big afternoon by assuring herself a place in the state class meet at the end of the season. Menis cleared 4' 10" in the high jump, won the long jump with a leap of 15' and went on to take the high hurdles and 200 meters.

Fellow co-captain Tammy Maitland, also a senior, sprinted to victory in the 400 meters and anchored the mile relay squad. Tara Hettstrom, an All-Star gymnast, showed she is just as talented on the oval by sprinting to a victory in the 100 and finishing a close second to Menis in the 200.

Seventh-grader Kate Henderson held off the pack on the backstretch on the second lap of the 800 meters to cross the line first in an impressive race from the front.

Several other of Cohasset's younger runners had strong performances as well. Seventh-grader Kathleen McCarthy was third in the high hurdles and Maureen Equi, also a seventh-grader was third in the 100. The pair teamed with McCarthy's twin sister Kerry and freshman Tamara DeVaughn to win the mile relay.

Eighth-grader Maura Duffy took second in the mile and javelin. Emmons said Allyssa McNamara, the team's top javelin and discus athlete on the squad last season, should do even better this year. He is also looking at other seventh and eighth graders to play factors in determining in how the Lady Skippers do in their meets.

Jen Chaistain should take some of the pressure off the amount of points Menis will have to score, judging by her performance against the Lancers. Chaistain won the shot put and finished second in the long jump and third in the triple jump. Juniors Rebecca Jenkins and Andrea Grew look to be the Lady Skippers' strengths in the middle distances and two mile, respectively.

Emmons said he likes the enthusiasm of his squad and believes many of the athletes are more talented than they realize.

"They're enthusiastic, young and in some cases have no idea what they can do," Emmons said. "It's so hard to tell how we're going to do because it's so early. Scituate is the team to beat, no doubt about it."

Emmons is picking East Bridgewater and Norwell to be just behind Scituate in the South Shore League. For Cohasset it is a season of questions, but there's no doubt the untapped talent is there in the Lady Skippers.

The Grand Tour

with Ginger Ferenz 383-2863

Before the birds return in spring —
While yet the trees are bare,
The snow-drop lifts her tiny face
And sniffs the wintry air.
She doesn't seem to mind the cold,
She doesn't fear the snow,
Compared with other garden flowers,
She's a little esquimau.

(From "These Blooming Friends, A Little Book of Garden Scandal," by L. Young Correthers.)

The Lehr's at 70 Red Gate Lane have a wonderful mass planting of wh[illegible] snowdrops and purple and white crocus. In the background peaks a willow-green garden arch leading to the side perennial garden soon to be in bloom.

Garden Club to meet

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will hold a meeting on Tuesday, April 23, at Walton Rodgers Hall in St. Stephen's Church.

The meeting will begin with a President's Tea at noon, followed by a lecture at 1 p.m. by naturalist and photographer Joy Viola, who will talk about wildlife and wildflowers of the Aleutian Islands. All Garden Club members are welcome.

The Garden Club will hold its annual luncheon on Tuesday, May 28, at the Chart House. The speaker will be floral designer Cindora Goldberg. Tickets will be available at the April meeting or by calling Mary Sullivan at 383-1295.

Clean-up help needed

Cohasset High School students, under the direction of the Mosquito Control Board, will participate in a town clean-up of five sites along James Brook on Tuesday, April 23. Volunteers from the town are welcome to join in the effort.

For further information or to volunteer, call Allison Ritts at 383-1422.

Student art is exhibited

The Art Forum Exhibition, at the South Shore Art Center through April 29, features a selection of artwork created by students (grades 6-9) from South Shore schools, including many from Cohasset.

They are: Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School—Kim Welby, Jake Motley, Starr Greene, Megan Connolly, Todd Bestick, Andy Curran, Susana Candia, Kyra Lea Cogill, Amanda Denz Collins, Evan Murphy, Caitlin Donavan, Bree McKenny, Grace Gardner, Erica Dean, Stefan Vanderweil, Jessica Niessink, Steve Sceery, Elizabeth Myers, Melissa Pyfrom, Meghan Corry, Karen Gray, Matthew Morde, Ted Goff, Devin Buick and Britt Covell.

Deer Hill School—Jeffrey Garber, Tim Baird, Robin Murphy, Amanda Watts, Courtney Anton, Matt Ogrodnik, Kerry Long, Joey Niessink, Corey Sullivan, Meredith Bates, Becky Ross, Marenda Brown, Jack Jerz, Bobby Protulis, Joel Carpenter, Emma Gardner, Jay Bertovich, Liza Parker, Brittany Carroll and KC Comacho.

The exhibit may be viewed in the Dillon Gallery. For further information, call SSAC at 383-ARTS.

Plants for sale on May 11

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will host a "Not Your Ordinary" Plant Sale on Saturday, May 11, at 9 a.m. in the Lighthouse Keepers' Cottage, Border Street, rain or shine.

A large variety of gardeners' choice plants will be featured, including perennials, small trees, ground covers, herbs, ornamental grasses and annuals.

Of special interest will be many uncommon and hard-to-find perennials.

Proceeds will benefit the club's many civic projects and the scholarship fund. Complimentary coffee will be offered.

Library fundraiser tonight

An Evening at Buttonwood Books and Toys in Cohasset is scheduled for Thursday, April 18, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The event, which will benefit Friends of the Cohasset Library, provides an opportunity to purchase gifts for special occasions and offers a 10 percent discount on all purchases and complimentary gift wrapping.

The Friends will receive a generous percentage of the evening's sales. Refreshments will be served.

Mad Hatter party set

A Mad Hatter Unbirthday Tea Party will be hosted by the South Shore Community Center nursery school on Sunday, April 21, from 1 to 3 p.m. Admission to the party, which welcomes the coming of spring, is $3.

Activities include making Alice in Wonderland cupcakes, party hats, wearable, edible necklaces, windstreamers, pin the tail on the Cheshire cat, giant teacup coin pitch and face painting.

Make-your-own-sundaes, Dwiddlely Dee and Dum cookies, doormouse breads and Queen of Heart juices will be offered to children, and specialty coffees from Quikava will be available for adults. For further information, call 383-0088.

Poster contest announced

The South Shore Community Center has announced a call for entries for its first annual school poster contest. The contest, entitled "Color It Community," is open to all South Shore schoolchildren in grades 1-6.

The purpose of the contest is to highlight the importance of the family and community, and posters may depict any aspect of "community."

Complete contest rules have been mailed to private and public schools on the South Shore. Winners will receive $150 certificates toward the purchase of a bicycle of their choice. The deadline submissions is May 17.

Winners will be notified by phone, and awards will be presented during a special ceremony at Harborfest on Cohasset Common on June 15. For additional contest or Harborfest information, call the SSCC at 383-0088.

Take a video cruise to Nova Scotia

A video cruising lecture on Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island will be offered by Ross Sherbrooke on Saturday, April 27, at 8 p.m. in Walton Rogers Hall of St. Stephen's Church.

Admission is $7 for adults and $5 for young people 18 and under. Proceeds will benefit Cohasset High School's EXCEL program for restoring a lifesaving surfboat. Refreshments will be served. Call John Brvant at 383-9094 for further information.

'Unity Night' is planned

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce will host a Unity Night on Wednesday, April 24, at the Chart Hou[se]. Hors d'oeuvres will be served at 5:30 p.m., follow[ed] dinner at 6:30 p.m. The cost for Chamber members [is] ($15/non-members). To make a reservation, call Chamber hotline at 383-1010.

First Parish presents play

Joan Jensen of Cohasset will perform the lead role of Mabel in Gilbert & Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance," to be presented on Saturday, April 27, at 7:30 p.m. at First Parish Church, Norwell Center.

In this interactive production, musical director Edwin Light will lead the audience as it learns the chorus parts, with the assistance of the principal singers and choir members.

Following intermission, the full cast and audience will perform a slightly abridged version of the show. Tickets are $10, including refreshments, and may be reserved by calling 659-6122.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TOWN OF COHASSET, MA
COHASSET SEWER COMMISSION

ATTENTION
COHASSET RESIDENTS
IN THE STRAITS POND AREA

Dear Cohasset Resident:

In accordance with Articles 4 and 5 of the March 30, 1996 Special Town Meeting, the Cohasset Sewer Commission has been directed to implement the design and construction of the North Cohasset Sewer system including its interconnection to the Town of Hull. Tutela Engineering Associates, Inc. has been retained by the Sewer Commission to conduct evaluation and design efforts. In order to adequately design the wastewater collection system and individual service connections, Tutela Engineering will need to gain access to your property to conduct inspections and survey. Their inspections will entail locating interior pipes, utilities and existing on-site wastewater disposal facilities.

Your cooperation with these inspection efforts would be greatly appreciated. The inspection will not only allow the North Cohasset sewer system to be designed in a timely manner, thus facilitating State funding efforts for the project, but will also allow our engineers the opportunity to design a service connection which will have minimal impacts to your property.

If you have any questions relative to this inspection program, please contact Mr. Daniel Coughlin, P.E. of Tutela Engineering Associates, Inc. at (508) 658-7493, or the Selectmen's Office at Town Hall (383-9900, Ext. 108).

Thank you for your cooperation
Edward M. Guild, Chairman
Cohasset Sewer Commission

Communication is key

School board to launch adopt-a-group plan

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

Stressing the importance of communication with townspeople, the school committee may just dub next year "The Year of Dialogue."

The phrase was the brainchild of School Committee Member James Kirk, but its import was stressed by all the members.

For the past two weeks school committee members have discussed broad goals for the 1996-1997 school year. The goals are under the umbrella of the previously outlined strategic plan.

Because of the two-week discussion period, both the opinions of retiring school committee member Nancy Sandell and newcomer Rick Shea were taken into account.

Last fall representatives from several town boards, as well as concerned community members and educators, gathered to discuss five-year goals for Cohasset's schools.

Committee members will vote on the Seniors could trade work for tax breaks

By MARY FORD and KIMBERLY KEYES
Cohasset Mariner

In the fall, Cohasset voters may be asked to consider giving the town's senior citizens a $5 credit toward their real estate taxes in exchange for each hour of work performed.

After getting feedback from the Cohasset Elder Affairs board, selectmen may consider an article for special town meeting to set up the program.

John Dwyer, 80, told the selectmen this week that seniors — who have no children in the schools — are a bargain and a work-for-taxes program deserves strong consideration.

Dwyer, who first presented the idea to selectmen in March 1995, had an ally this week in James Lagrotteria, chairman of the board of assessors.

"Seniors have a lot of knowledge and experience which can be put to good use," Lagrotteria said.

He explained the movement started in a town in Colorado in 1989, where seniors, seeking relief from the school tax, were

Tax watchdog group forms

By MARY FORD

A group of local residents have organized into a taxpayers group, according to the association's spokesman, Roy Fitzsimmons, 116 Doane St.

Concerned Cohasset Taxpayers made its official debut when it formed a ballot committee to formally protest the April 6 override for the $10 million new elementary school.

Fitzsimmons said the 30-member group "jelled" as a result of concern about the school project and the "horrendous" behavior at town meeting by school proponents.

An initial $13.9 million override for the new school narrowly failed at the ballot box in February so officials scaled back the project, which passed by an 80-vote margin at the April 6 town election.

Both proposals overwhelmingly passed town meetings which drew a large number of parents whose lack of courtesy toward those who had questions or opposed the project has been widely criticized.

Fitzsimmons, who moved to town in 1968 and sent all five of his children to Cohasset schools, said the group will act as a "watchdog" and send a representative to selectmen, school committee and advisory board meetings to monitor what's going on.

Goedecke gift is accepted

Jane Goedecke has given the town $725 left over from her campaign fund to go toward purchasing a new sound system for the town hall auditorium.

"As a last farewell to the board and town hall, I have been looking for a way to leave a little of me behind. It is hard to say good-bye!

"There is about $725 in my campaign account. I have always felt it belongs to my constituents and should in some way benefit them. I hope I have found a solution to both these needs," she wrote in a letter to selectmen.

Selectmen happily accepted the gift for the town.

The auditorium is known for poor acoustics.

Computer bid awarded

Ockers Corporation of Brockton was the sole bidder to install a computer network at town hall that includes several personal computers and a file server with 24-port capability.

Selectmen awarded the bid of $15,881 to Ockers.

"Pricing appears to be competitive and the town has had a positive relationship with this vendor in the past," Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said.

The system will initially hook up the treasurer, town clerk, town accountant, building office and planning board office and has off-site capability for expansion, Doyon said.

The money will come from funds that were appropriated for computers but not expended in articles passed in town meetings in 1993 and 1995.

Board members named

Richard B. Colburn, 64 Jerusalem Rd., and Paul M.Donovan, 11 Bancroft Rd., have been named to the Committee to Study the Structure and Functions of Town Government, Town Moderator George Marlette noted. Colburn and Donovan replace Wilson H. Pile and William Lean, Jr. respectively.

The "Troika," consisting of the moderator, selectmen chairman and advisory committee chairman, appointed David B. Coleman, 714 Jerusalem Rd. to the Capital Budget Committee, Marlette said. Coleman replaces George S. Kovach Jr.

Wanted: citizens to serve on train committee

Selectmen put out the call again this week for interested citizens to apply for spots on the "Citizen" Greenbush Mitigation Committee.

Selectmen intend that the citizen-at-large on the Greenbush Mitigation Committee will chair the "Citizen" Greenbush Mitigation Committee which is supposed to hold two open forums to solicit residents' concerns and report back to the Greenbush Mitigation Committee, which will report to selectmen.

So far only the following two residents have applied for the Citizen committee: North Main Street resident Ed Fegreus, who also sits on the state Citizens' Advisory Committee on the train, and Peter H. Pearce, 23 Forest Notch.

Selectmen said the committee is not being appointed to open up the train debate but to solicit through two public forums residents' concerns about safety, aesthetics, traffic flow, and neighborhood and grade-crossing issues relating to the train and report those findings to the mitigation committee, which must formulate a mitigation plan to selectmen within about 75 days.

The Greenbush Mitigation Committee, which includes the police and fire chiefs, department heads and town board members was scheduled to meet at 3:30 p.m. today (April 25) at town hall. The Citizens Advisory Committee, representing all towns in the Greenbush corridor, will meet from 7 to 9 p.m., May 1 at Weymouth Town Hall. The CAC will comment on the MBTA's environmental feasibility study on the train.

Open space group on hold

Selectmen are waiting for two more names for the Open Space Advisory Committee before finalizing the make-up of that board, which, with the help of a professional planner, will come up with a draft open space/recreational town-wide plan by October with the final report due in June 1997.

So far Conservation Commission member Susan Cope will serve on the board as well as Mary Muncie who will represent the recreation commission; Ronnie McMorris will represent selectmen; James Kinch will be the watershed protection committee representative ; and Jack Hubbard, who is a member of the private group the Conservation Land Trust, will serve on the committee along with a member of the planning board and historical commission who have yet to be named.

Once the open space plan is in place, the town can apply for state grants to purchase open space and recreational land, such as "Turkey Hill" off Rte. 3A. Plans are to ask special town meeting in the fall to appropriate funds to purchase Cohasset's acreage of that property.

Sewer, manhole repairs slated

By STACEY K. POWERS
Special to the Mariner

At a hearing before the Conservation Commission, Ted Guild, chairman of the Sewer Department, put forth a request for determination of applicability to restore certain sewer pipes and manholes located throughout town.

The town is under state mandate to upgrade the sewage treatment plant and expand its capacity by 1999. The excavation, which is slated to begin in July and last into October, will cure the leakage problem by rehabilitating the existing system and reducing extraneous water overflows. Sensitive excavation is being conducted now in anticipation of designing a new sewer treatment plant to replace the current one on Elm Street, which was built in 1965. Fixing the leakage problem now will enable the town to improve and expand the new treatment plant's capabilities.

The Sewer Department has mailed out 148 notification cards to residents who would be affected by the excavation on Border Street, Elm Street, Pond, Summer and Stockbridge streets, Margin Court, Elm and Summer streets rights of way. Only 114 cards have been returned confirming receipt of the information. The remaining undeliverable notices are a cause for concern for Commission Chairman Thomas Callahan. "These people need to know what is going to happen to their streets and property," he said.

Joe Boccadoro of the Earth-Tech company, consulting engineer for the Sewer Department, explained to the Commission that this will be a three-part project comprised of manhole repairs, pipe repairs requiring excavation and pipe repairs not requiring excavation.

The water level has risen so much that vast portions of the sewer system have flooded. Thee are a total of 12 manhole covers that need to be raised about frequent water levels. Four of the manholes are located in vegetated wetlands around Elm Street and Atlantic Avenue. The other eight are located in buffer zones on private residential property, including several along Elm Street. A small backhoe will dig an 18- to 24-inch ring around the circumference of the manhole to complete the work. Most will be raised about three feet. The manholes situated on residential property would only be raised approximately one foot above the ground.

When residents Ham and Shirley Tewksbury voiced concern over the condition that their yard will be left in after the work is done, Boccadoro assured them that pre-construction videos will be taken to insure that yards are restored as "near as possible to original condition." He also indicated that plantings and shrubbery would be provided to cover and surround the manhole cover.

The pipe repairs that would require excavation are adjacent home pipes that are connected to the facility. The current service connection will be excavated and replaced.

There are several pipes that require "no dig technologies" to repair poor joints. These are primarily located on Border, Pond and Stockbridge streets. Chemicals applied from inside the pipes to complete the restoration will be used so as not to affect the surrounding wetlands.

The Commission will issue a decision next week.

In other business, the Commission approved a request by Town Administrator Gregory Doyan to dismantle and move an existing metal building located on the site of the former Cohasset Colonials Furniture Company.

Recycling is made simple by NSRF

Through a donation made by North Shore Recycled Fibers/The Newark Group, residents of Cohasset have recycling information at their fingertips 24 hours a day by dialing a recycling hotline (1-800-800-6881 or (617) RECYCLE.

A grant from NSRF, one of the state's leading recycling companies and a key provider of recycling services to the town, ensures that Cohasset's recycling message will remain part of a non-profit, statewide recycling hotline dubbed "E-Call." When Cohasset's zipcode is entered following a call to the hotline, a voicemail message will be played, detailing Cohasset's latest recycling news.

TOWN OF COHASSET, MA
COHASSET SEWER COMMISSION

ATTENTION
COHASSET RESIDENTS
IN THE STRAITS POND AREA

Dear Cohasset Resident:

In accordance with Articles 4 and 5 of the March 30, 1996 Special Town Meeting, the Cohasset Sewer Commission has been directed to implement the design and construction of the North Cohasset Sewer system including its interconnection to the Town of Hull. Tutela Engineering Associates, Inc. has been retained by the Sewer Commission to conduct evaluation and design efforts. In order to adequately design the wastewater collection system and individual service connections, Tutela Engineering will need to gain access to your property to conduct inspections and survey. Their inspections will entail locating interior pipes, utilities and existing on-site wastewater disposal facilities.

Your cooperation with these inspection efforts would be greatly appreciated. The inspection will not only allow the North Cohasset sewer system to be designed in a timely manner, thus facilitating State funding efforts for the project, but will also allow our engineers the opportunity to design a service connection which will have minimal impacts to your property.

If you have any questions relative to this inspection program, please contact Mr. Daniel Coughlin, P.E. of Tutela Engineering Associates, Inc. at (508) 658-7493, or the Selectmen's Office at Town Hall (383-9900, Ext. 108).

Thank you for your cooperation
Edward M. Guild, Chairman

Seniors could trade work for tax breaks

paid $4.50 per hour with a maximum of $450 per household for town work which offset their tax bill.

"It spread like wildfire," Lagrotteria said about the program.

Closer to home — Duxbury started the program 18 months ago and Marshfield is considering adopting a similar program. The Duxbury plan is administered by the Council on Aging, Lagrotteria said.

The Duxbury Council on Aging tries to match up seniors with suitable jobs, Director Oliver "Woody" Woodruff said.

Participants must be at least 60 and can work up to 100 hours in a fiscal year. Income doesn't matter.

Duxbury's town meeting approved $5,000 last month for its program, Woodruff said. The money is in an account controlled by the Council on Aging. A work completion form, signed by Woodruff and the head of whichever department the taxpayer worked in, goes to the town collector, who credits the taxpayer's account, Woodruff explained. More than 50 seniors signed up for the program and jobs ranged from helping the town clerk with census forms to counting cranberry crates hauled by harvesters to the town's bog.

State Sen. Robert Hedlund has cosponsored a bill to codify these programs in all Massachusetts towns.

"Property taxes aren't going down," noted Hedlund, whose hometown of Weymouth has launched a similar pilot program. The state Department of Revenue has raised questions about how the programs are implemented, he said, but that shouldn't stop Cohasset from going ahead.

Lagrotteria noted that the average house in Cohasset is valued at $308,000 with a tax bill of $4,466.

"Some seniors are tax poor and property rich," he said.

Currently in Cohasset, some seniors may qualify for property tax abatements if they are a disabled veteran. Surviving spouses and those over 70 may qualify if they meet certain income and net worth caps. The town also allows tax deferrals of property taxes for seniors by placing a lien on the property with the taxes and interest being recouped when the property is sold. For more information about abatements, call the assessors' office at 383-9900.

Dwyer, who lives on Old Pasture Lane, told selectmen Monday said he's ready to go to work.

"If (DPW Supt.) Harold Litchfield needs arrows painted at the catch basins all over town — I'm available," he said.

He explained that too few citizens get involved early in the budgetary process.

"I've walked into meetings and been asked 'Why are you here?'," Fitzsimmons recalled.

He said the group plans to oppose the May 4 override on the sewer project. The debt exclusion override, if passed, would allocate costs between users and the taxpayers and add about $45 per year on the average tax bill. The $6 million project will go forward regardless of the outcome of the Prop. 2-1/2 vote.

"It's a fairness issue" because the whole town is being asked to pay for an improvement that only benefits some, Fitzsimmons said about the group's opposition to the override.

Brad Balzer, department director at the state Office of Campaign and Political Finances, said taxpayer groups must register as "ballot question committees" if they participate in election-related activities. If they take a position on a state ballot question, they must register with the state.

Fitzsimmons said his group registered with the town clerk's office before the April 6 election and spent $380 on a flyer about the budgetary impact of school override.

He said Concerned Cohasset Taxpayers will invite Barbara Anderson, founder of the state-wide Citizens for Limited Taxation, to speak at one of their meetings.

Another matter of concern for the group is the punch-ballot system used in Cohasset elections. Fitzsimmons claims that some of the town's elderly citizens may think they have punched and in reality may not have punched the card through.

He said the 119 blanks on the April 6 school ballot question reveal that "there's a problem."

"The vote is too sacred" for some votes not to be counted, he said.

Osgood committee make-up

After considerable discussion this week, selectmen decided on the make up of the Osgood School Re-use Committee which will determine the most effective means of returning the Osgood School to the tax rolls.

The school will be closed and turned over to the town once the new school, authorized by town meeting, is built.

Selectmen decided the Osgood committee should consist of two neighbors to the school, a Realtor/developer, a member of Cohasset Elder Affairs (formally the Council on Aging), a member of the planning boards, and two members of the housing authority, Rich Silvia and John Muncie who have already expressed interest in serving.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

LAND OWNERSHIP PRO AND CON

QUESTION: I am thinking of buying some land. What are the pros and cons of land ownership?

ANSWER: Money is made on raw land only when you sell. During the holding time, there is usually no income. Cash outlay is required for property taxes, insurance and mortgage payments. There is no deduction for depreciation.

Does this mean land is a poor investment? On the contrary, with very few dollars invested, it is possible to make a small killing on land through the use of land options, leverage and acquisition just prior to a change in land-use. One of the nice things about land ownership is that it takes almost none of your time in management.

Hagerty buildings to go

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

The Victorian house on the town-owned Hagerty site is up for grabs.

Acting on the recommendation of the Hagerty committee, selectmen authorized the demolition or removal of the house, which once housed the showroom and offices of Cohasset Colonials, a furniture kit company.

The town will solicit bids for the razing or removal of the house and ask for separate bids for the removal of the cutting room, a metal building which is the last of the factory structures at the site. The concrete slab, that the cutting room sits on, will remain there for the time being.

Selectmen had wanted to sell the house to try and recoup some of the money the town spent to buy the 2.2 acre harbor-front parcel but town meeting did not want to lose the land the house sits on or its surrounding 8,000-sq. foot lot which would have been sold with the house.

Town Administrator Gregory Doyon explained that for the removal of the house, the town would require a performance bond (to make sure the work gets done), insurance, and all necessary permits. The bid will go to the "highest responsible bidder" and bids could be as low as $1, as high as $1,000 or "whatever," he said.

Last fall selectmen authorized the demolition of the cutting room, but nothing has been done with that structure because it is is being used for storage of town equipment, Doyon said.

Selectmen decided to solicit bids for the removal of the cutting room and are hopeful that someone will "pay to take it away" because it is a useful structure, chairman Merle Brown said.

Selectman Michael Sullivan urged the board to reconsider and keep the cutting room, which with a facade would be aesthetically pleasing and could have some useful purpose — such as containing restrooms — once the Victorian house is gone. However, Sullivan's fellow board members could not be persuaded and his motion failed for lack of a second.

The town bought the Hagerty site three years ago and plans have been in the works ever since to create a passive recreational park there for all residents to enjoy.

May 4 vote for sewer slated

Sewer Commission Chairman Ted Guild said informational "blue" booklets on the proposed Straits Pond area sewer project are free and are available at the selectmen's office.

A favorable May 4 Prop. 2-1/2 debt exclusion override vote will allocate costs of the $6 million project between users and the tax payers and add about $45 a year onto the average tax bill.

The Cohasset Maritime Institute is building a home.

Rebuilding a home, actually.

CMI members and volunteers are renovating the old boat house on the former Hagerty property.

The boat house will be used as as a base of operations for CMI, and also as a symbol of local history.

"The most important piece (of the project) is bringing back to life this part of local history — the maritime heritage," said Jack Buckley, a science teacher at Cohasset High and CMI founder. "And the educational opportunities it will provide for students, as well as people in the community."

Buckley added that many people don't realize that Cohasset was the first town in the United States to have a lifesaving station. Most people think Hull holds that distinction.

The boat used by CMI, and the related ExCel (advanced) program at the high school, is a surf boat.

Surf boats, which are powered by oars and a sail, hold from nine to 12 people and were used by the original lifesavers.

The boathouse, which used to be part of a larger building where racing shells were manufactured, can house a surf boat.

Volunteers have been working on the project, but most of the refurbishing lies ahead.

In order to raise money for the structural repairs and other costs, CMI is holding a fund-raiser on Thursday, May 2 at 7:30 p.m. at Bancroft Hall at the Lightkeeper's House on Government Island.

The fund-raiser will feature Mary Malloy and Stuart Frank, maritime musicians and historians, who sing songs and tell tales.

"We found a home at the harbor and we are inviting people to help out," said Buckley speaking of the fund-raiser.

CMI is a community organization, and true to form, the work will be done in the fashion of the old barn-raisings, Buckley added.

It will cost a minimum of $5,000 to restore the boathouse, and that includes a lot of free labor, Buckley said with a smile.

The boathouse recently got six new pilings, or "legs", which were driven into the marsh. The pilings further secured the boathouse, and were installed by volunteers David Marks and Sandy Carter.

Rowers John Daley and Steve Woll also did some cosmetic and structural work on the building.

CMI focuses on fostering maritime education and rowing in Cohasset harbor.

Without a home base, members have been using the docks at the yacht club and the sailing club for their surf boat, which was restored in 1991.

CMI will continue to use the various docks after the boathouse is completed. One of the reasons is that because of the tides the boathouse will not always be accessible.

The boats are used by students in the ExCel program, which Buckley heads up, and by the members of several rowing programs.

ExCel students are in the process of restoring a second surf boat with the help of Mike McNabb, a local shipwright.

Students and CMI members go out to learn how to row and sail, and to study and explore local history, said Buckley.

Students will row out to certain sites to study the ecology and collect water samples.

"It engages students with all of their senses," said Buckley. "They are physically and emotionally involved in the activities."

A great deal of teamwork and perseverance is required to row the surf boats, which are important qualities to develop, said Buckley.

"(Rowing) requires making good judgments, and persevering in the face of a little adversity --instead of folding and calling it quits," he said.

Rowers will often go out on the water in inclement weather. Buckley said this fosters a respect for the lifesavers who used to row out to help boats in distress.

Some parents got together to form "Women with Big Sticks," after Buckley took them out and showed them what their children were involved in.

Buckley said that recreation, socializing, education and the environment are all important pieces of CMI's mission.

Tickets for The Maritime Chanties fund-raiser are $15 for adults, $7 for students and $5 for youth rowers. For more information, call 925-1284.

School committee to launch adopt-a-group plan goals for next year at their next meeting on May 2.

Questions about the new school proposal underscored the importance of communication, said members.

The committee discussed having each of the five members adopt a particular group, or two groups.

The groups may include, teachers, parents, community members, students and the media.

At each meeting members will give a report on the progress, or problems, their subcommittee has met with.

Members also discussed holding open houses at the schools, so everyone in the community could stop in and see what was happening in the system.

School Committee Member Maureen Jerz said that there are many positive events occurring in the schools that people aren't aware of.

"There are a lot of things going on here that people don't realize," she said.

Kirk added that it wasn't only important for people to know what was going on — they should also have the opportunity to comment and question.

"(We need to) get the word out and get questions in," he said.

School committee members also discussed sending out newsletters.

A student representative to the committee, Ryan Sawchuk, said that one way to improve communication would be to televise the meetings.

Other goals, the committee discussed, involved the monitoring and strengthening of teacher evaluations, the maintenance of buildings, and further linking of different subjects.

"I feel pretty good about where we are," said Supt. Stephen Hart.

The goals set by administrators and teachers have to tie into the broad goals instituted by the school committee.

In other business, the school committee:

• Welcomed new member Shea, and elected Ralph Kidder to his second year as chairman. Jerz was elected vice chairman, and Chittick secretary.

• Chose Jerz and Chittick to act as liaisons with the school facilities committee on the school new school project.

• Discussed the adoption of a policy which would require the school committee to be kept informed of thefts or drug/alcohol infractions that are committed in the school system.

Chittick said this policy was important so school committee members can answer questions parents might have about the incident. Students will not be identified by name.

• Discussed the progress being made by the architects on the new school proposal, and the current funding proposal before the state Senate.

Some townspeople had voiced concerns over a possible cut in state funding for this year.

The school building assistance funds, which are mandated by the state to reimburse various cities and towns for school projects, were approximately $11 million last year, Hart said.

This year only $5 million was initially recommended by the state House of Representatives; however, that figure was amended to approximately $11 million.

The $11 million figure was passed by the House and is now in the Senate.

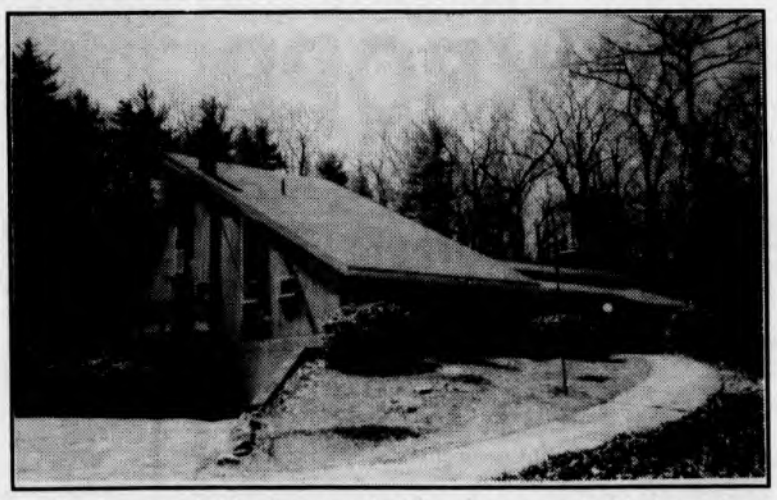
NORWELL - "A WORLD APART"



Set gently on a knoll and surrounded by three wonderfully private acres is this dramatic contemporary home. Constructed for its present owner it reflects extraordinary quality and innovative architectural design. Brick pavers lead to a double entryway, and a large open foyer with clerestory windows steps down to a 32' living room and sitting room wing, highlighted by parquet flooring, vaulted ceilings and a magnificent center fireplace. The dining room has a custom built, free standing china cabinet, large triple window and cathedral ceiling. A generous kitchen boasts vaulted ceiling, indirect lighting, abundant storage and a separate dining area. The private 24' Master Suite features double cedar closet, private bath and sturdy oak stairs to a bright and spacious study/loft. Beautifully tended grounds and acres of privacy envelop the home while walls of windows and glass invite the outside in. Southern exposure gives an added passive solar advantage.

If unique is what you prefer and quality is something you appreciate, this is a home that will impress you and quite possibly take you to its heart.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

Not Your Ordinary plant sale is May 11

It really did seem like spring is finally here last weekend, and here in time to enjoy it is a brand new Cohasset resident, Mackenzie Lee Dickson, born April 10 at 4:05 a.m. She weighed 6 pounds, 13 ounces, and her parents, Kelly and Robert Dickson, are enchanted with her already, as are her siblings, Devon Clifford Dickson, Crystal Marie Jacobs and Tiffany Rose Jacobs. MacKenzie's maternal grandparents are Clif and Peg Dickson of Cohasset; her paternal grandparents are Martha and Al Frey of St. Petersburg, Fla. Everyone, have a wonderful time with your precious little girl!

The Saturday that all of you avid gardeners are anxiously awaiting is rapidly approaching — mark your calendars now! On May 11 at 9 a.m., the Community Garden Club of Cohasset will host a "Not Your Ordinary" plant sale at the Lighthouse Keepers' Cottage, Border Street, rain or shine. The event will feature a large variety of gardeners' choice plants, including perennials, small trees, ground covers, herbs, ornamental grasses and annuals. Of special interest will be many uncommon and hard-to-find perennials.

A word to the wise — Go early for the best selection! The Garden Club stocks up wonderfully well, but word is out as to how good the plant sale is, so people cannot wait to get there! Go early for the best selection. Not to worry — they will also provide you with complimentary coffee! Proceeds from the sale benefit the club's scholarship fund and many civic projects.

Happy belated birthday greetings go to Craig Mulcahy, and here's to another wonderful year for you, Craig!

Cohasset residents Shirley Marten (left) and Nancy Hamilton have been elected to the board of overseers of South Shore Health and Educational Corporation, the parent company of South Shore Hospital. The overseers represent the community in electing the hospital's officers and directors and advise on the extent to which community needs are met.

Middlebury College junior Robin Lawrence, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Robin Lawrence of Cohasset, took advantage of an opportunity offered by the school's study abroad program to spend last fall in Spain. In order for Robin to participate, he had to maintain a grade average of B- or better, have a facility with the language of the country and provide a strong academic rationale for studying abroad. Hopefully we will be hearing of your fall in Spain soon, Robin!

Let's hope Robin talked to Douglas F. Schultz about school in Spain, because that is where he will be spending his spring semester — in San Sebastian, to be exact! Doug, the son of Gerald and Regina Schultz, is a member of the Class of 1997 at Colby College, where he is majoring in government. We bet he'll have some stories to tell us upon his return, and we'd love to hear them!

While on the subject of education, what better time is there to bring up the Catherine W. Mulcahy Scholarship? Many remember Mrs. Mulcahy as one of the most outstanding educators in Cohasset. She started as an elementary school teacher (one who all the parents wanted their children to have, of course) and wound up her illustrious career as Osgood School principal. She ruled with a firm hand, but a loving heart, and students and parents alike adored her.

Now the Mulcahy family will be offering a scholarship in her name on Class Night, and with any luck, she could even be there to present it! The scholarship will be presented to the student who best demonstrates leadership and dedication to the service program at CHS, and whoever earns it should be very proud of themselves indeed!

Second Congregational Church is holding a Time and Talent Auction May 18 at 7 p.m. in Bates Hall (downstairs in the church). They held a similar fundraiser last year, and it was super! You can bid on anything from a gourmet dinner to tennis lessons; you can be chauffered for a change or go for a sailboat ride. There are some tickets to sports events. You get the idea — there is something for everyone!

There is no charge for the event, and there will be complimentary wine, soda and cheese. All monies earned will go to the Cohasset Food Pantry and the church's organ fund.

We just heard Erik Henry will be attending Bowdoin next fall! Talk about exciting news! We are so happy for you, Erik, but CHS will certainly miss you and your athletic prowess. Erik was co-captain of the soccer and baseball teams, for example.

We are certain mom and dad, Jerry and Charlie will miss you, too, but we'll bet there will be many trips to Bowdoin in their future!

Hats off to Joanne Hill, who ran the Boston Marathon last week. We know there are many more of you Cohasset runners out there who competed or ran for your special cause or just ran for yourself! Call and let us know all about it!

Shirley Piepenbrink

43-year resident

Shirley (Brendy) Piepenbrink, 72, of Cohasset, died April 19 at Life Care Center of the South Shore, Scituate following a long illness.

Born in Illinois, she was a Cohasset resident for 43 years.

Mrs. Piepenbrink was a private duty nurse in the local area for many years and was involved in the American Ex-Prisoners of War group.

She was devoted to her family.

Mrs. Piepenbrink was the wife of Frederick Piepenbrink and leaves four sons, Frederick Jr. of Cohasset, Thomas S. of Hull, Kirk L. of Marshfield and Robert T. of Cohasset; a daughter, Susan Piepenbrink of Cohasset; a sister, Beverly Kampf of California; and five grandchildren.

A memorial service was held April 24 at Second Congregational Church, Cohasset. Burial was private.

Arrangements were made by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home of Cohasset and Norwell.

Donations in Mrs. Piepenbrink's memory may be made to Second Congregational Church, Cohasset 02025.

Just a suggestion

We'd like to offer a suggestion to selectmen that we think townspeople might appreciate.

With a five-member board, Monday meetings can drag on a bit. We're not complaining. It's our job to sit there and pay attention.

But in the spirit of openness and accessibility — perhaps selectmen could adopt a policy of setting aside 10 minutes earlier in the meeting (such as at 8 or 9 p.m.) so any citizen in the audience who may have a question or concern could be heard.

We're not suggesting doing away with the agenda and encourage anyone with an issue to call the selectmen's office and be placed on the agenda for an upcoming meeting.

But because the agenda is set Thursday — on occasion, a citizen may have something that can't wait for the following week or has a simple question to bring before the board that doesn't pertain to one of the items slated for discussion. Or the citizen may be unfamiliar with selectmen's meetings and how a place on the agenda is secured.

Whatever the case, we think it's a shame to see a resident sit through the lion's share of a three-hour meeting to finally give up and go home.

Even though selectmen have the best of intentions when they reassuringly say "only three minutes more," more often than not — that three minutes turns into 30 as it did Monday.

A "reserved time frame" might also encourage more people to attend the meetings if they thought they could bring something up.

In Scituate, selectmen call for questions or comments from "walk-ins" at the beginning of their weekly meeting. Oftentimes there are no walk-ins and the meeting just moves on.

But if there is someone with a question or concern it is dealt with at that time or if they determine it can't be handled briefly, it is put on a future agenda.

Village update

As your community paper, we promise to follow the Village revitalization effort being spearheaded by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

We believe it's critical that Cohasset has a lively, healthy town center. While restoration of the train and talks of a master plan are long-range — improvements could be made in the short term to greatly enhance the village.

A group of about 20 concerned citizens and merchants met again last Thursday to brainstorm some more about what can be done to attract businesses and shops and keep them here.

Another session is slated for 5:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 30 at French Memories.

Action items include surveying the village to determine how many vacancies there are; discussing sidewalk improvements with DPW Supt. Harold Litchfield; and forming a task force to work on ways to make the village more viable.

Try to come Tuesday or call Dean Rizzo with your comments and ideas at 383-1994.

As Dean says "Let's keep the momentum going!"

Citizens groups thank town for support

To the Editor:

The 15 ten-citizen groups who intervened in the recently completed Site Assignment Hearings of the Board of Health on the proposed Area 5 expansion of the Cohasset Heights Ltd. landfill would like to thank the citizens of Cohasset, Board of Selectmen, Conservation Commission, and Board of Water Commissioners for their support of legal services and expert testimony provided during the hearings.

Because state regulations required the Board of Health to approve the expansion unless they determined that it would be a danger to public health, safety and the environment, it was important that the board be very thorough in its review of the application. Also, since these regulations required the Board of Health to base their decision only on the record of evidence established during the hearings, expenditures for legal representation and expert witnesses were essential.

While the hearings were long and costly, we feel the level of effort and funds provided by the town were a good and worthwhile investment. This intervention by the Town of Cohasset established a record of overwhelming evidence on which the Board of Health can make an informed decision.

We appreciate the support given by the town for these hearings. Thank you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

MBTA's spending is decried

To the Editor,

I was appalled recently to read the Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation (April 4, '96) bulletin regarding the pace of capital spending at the MBTA. The report states that MBTA capital spending has more than doubled in two years — $153 million in '94 to $360 million in '96 and another 10 percent increase slated for '97. One of the most appalling facts is that 70 percent of the growth in total state debt since 1992 is attributable to the MBTA. To support new capital spending, the MBTA will issue $400 million in additional bonds in '97 and '98 which will bring the MBTA debt to $3.3 billion by 1999. This figure has nearly tripled in less than 10 years.

The numbers go on and on and up and up with huge dollars going into new commuter rail extensions and operating costs on existing lines. Why doesn't the MBTA practice the same spending discipline as other state projects? Why are they allowed to spend taxpayers' dollars with so little control? Massachusetts carries the third highest debt in the nation. A fact that affects the state's credit worthiness. The spending pace of the MBTA must be slowed down. No one denies the need for convenient and effective transportation but not at the expense of other capital needs such as education which competes for funding with the MBTA.

In early 1997, the MBTA plans to begin construction of the Greenbush line. A $300 million capital expenditure with $20 million in annual operating costs. All this to take approximately 1,300 cars off Routes 3 and 3A by the year 2010. The 43 dangerous grade crossings, noise, pollution and safety issues aside, Greenbush is a blatant example of wasteful and unnecessary capital spending by the MBTA. Unnecessary, because it will not do enough to relieve traffic congestion in proportion to the cost. It is time the Weld administration take this bull by the horns and say enough is enough!

Rafferty thanks supporters

To the Editor:

I would like to express my sincere thanks to all (1,102) of the people who voted for me in my campaign for water commissioner. I am happy that so many of you heard my message and expressed confidence in me. Chip Muncey has solid water utility experience and represents a good addition to the board; it's too bad that we both couldn't have joined together.

This was my first political experience. I learned some good lessons, made many new friends, and gained invaluable perspective about the political process and about the many key issues facing Cohasset. I thoroughly enjoyed the entire campaign and look forward to remaining involved.

I also would like to thank the Mariner for sponsoring the weekly question. It was a great way to have the candidates focus on the important issues.

Tax burden is too high

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

At the start of our town meeting, Mr. Buckley, our town accountant, gave a well-prepared picture of our town's financial condition. The bottom line of his presentation was that without approving any major new budget items, our tax bills will increase by more than 20 percent over the next five years.

With that introduction, our town officials proceeded to advocate that "in the interest of fairness" the town pick up half of the cost of the forthcoming sewer items. We were not given a rigorous accounting of the cost of these measures, but only a flimsy estimated cost, averaged over 20 years, for a hypothetical $280,000 house. We were not told how these figures were arrived at or how badly this debt would balloon our tax bills over the next five years.

This clever bit of strategy was carefully crafted to produce an unholy alliance between those individuals facing state-mandated sewerage and the proponents of the new school, which swung enough votes in the school override election to enable that measure to squeak by with an 80-vote plurality.

Let us now examine the consequences of this largess. Using Mr. Buckley's figures for servicing the $9.89 million school debt, which assumes the 60 percent state funding for the school arrives in five years, and the flimsy 20-year averaged cost estimates for the proposed sewerage items, under the optimistic assumption that they will be uniformly spread over the 20-year time frame, the 20 percent tax increase that Mr. Buckley told you would occur in the next five years if no major new budget items are approved, now expands to a more than 32 percent increase over the next five years.

To make matters worse, this year's funding for the state's School Building Assistance Program came out of the House Ways and Means Committee with only $5 million. The House did vote to increase that figure to $11 million, but even if that $11 million gets by the Senate and the Governor this year and if this level of funding is maintained in subsequent years, it will be 10 years before Cohasset will see a dime of state funding for the Osgood School replacement. By that time Cohasset taxpayers will have shelled out more than $7 million rather than the $3 million in up-front money that our town officials led us to believe would be required when they wanted us to approve this project. Such fiscal irresponsibility can no longer be tolerated.

Our town records show that over the past several years, 60 Cohasset families have lost their homes in foreclosures. Other families have fled before their personal financial condition reached that level of criticality. Clearly, many Cohasset residents are living on the brink of financial disaster; and unbounded tax increases will force many of them into the abyss. We must call a halt to the piling of higher and higher long-term debt burdens on the backs of Cohasset homeowners. We must take a first step in that direction by turning down the proposition 2-1/2 override in the town election May 4.

Sharing sewer costs opposed

To the Editor:

The people in North Cohasset are very lucky. They are going to have a sewer and will never have to worry about paying for a Title V septic system. They are going to get a bargain, too. The state is going to pay, with our tax dollars, 30 percent of the construction costs.

Now here comes the bad part. We are being asked to vote on May 4 to raise our property taxes again in order to pay for the remaining one-half of their sewer system. Why aren't we being asked to pay for the entire amount? Because the property owners in North Cohasset know that even with just the state money, they still get a great deal and would pay far less than the cost of individual septic systems. The remaining half they want the property tax to pay would be a bonus.

I f things go as they want, the state would pay 30 percent, our property tax, 35 percent, and property owners in North Cohasset, 35 percent. Remember also that not everyone in town would pay an equal share, and we all have different assessments. Some property owners would pay much more than others for a system they will never use. Is this fair?

By the way, when you have to replace your septic system, you will pay 100 percent of the costs. I urge you to carefully consider and vote "No" on May 4.

Yes vote for sewer urged

To the Editor:

I would like to thank the citizens of Cohasset for their unanimous support in adopting the amended motion relative to sewering at our most recent Town Meeting.

The issue of sewering in Cohasset has been ongoing since 1979-'80, when a judgment against our town from the Superior Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts mandated the clean-up of certain areas — specifically at that time, James Brook and Cohasset Harbor. Shortly thereafter, Strait's Pond was listed ACEC (Area of Critical Environmental Concern) and became priority one on the Department of Environmental Protection's list.

It was not until the warrant was posted for our Special Town Meeting that I realized the Board of Sewer Commissioners proposed that the 220 residents of this area be burdened with the entire cost of the $6.6 million bond. At this same time, these 220 residents of Cohasset are facing a 164 percent water rate increase commencing June 1, 1996 by the Mass-American Water Co. of Hingham.

In my opinion, this precedent being set by the Board of Sewer Commissioners is as ludicrous as the chairman of the School Committee mandating that only parents who have children attending Cohasset Public Schools pay the entire cost of the $9.9 million bond for the new Osgood School.

My immediate reaction was that this home, built by my husband and me almost 36 years ago, is 2,112 feet from Strait's Pond. Our septic system (even while our six children lived at home) has never given us a problem. The system is located in the rear of our home, with more than adequate leaching extending down into a wooded area which ultimately leads to Cohasset Golf Club.

To defeat this sewer article, as drafted by the Board of Sewer Commissioners, because it was setting a precedent that was totally unfair and unjust, would not benefit the Town of Cohasset.

The taxpayers of Cohasset would be in violation of the court order and subject to penalties of up to $10,000 per day.

There are many Cohasset residents who feel the way I do. Municipal projects benefit the entire town. For example, when the Elm Street Wastewater Plant was constructed, the reservoir expanded and upgraded, including the building of a new water treatment plant, clean-up of Little Harbor, Cohasset Harbor, James Brook, Beechwood Street culvert, to name a few, there was never any mention of dividing our town and not supporting these municipal projects, even though no direct benefit would be realized by us.

It was only after attending many meetings and participating in discussions, both pro and con, that virtually in the "11th hour" prior to Town Meeting, the Board of Sewer Commissioners made it possible for a new motion to be voted. In the 351 cities and towns in the entire Commonwealth of Massachusetts, there is not another municipality mandating that 100 percent of bonding costs be assessed to lest than one-tenth of its population.

The Town of Hingham will share 50/50 with those proposed to be sewered, and this percentage seems fair and equitable. The Board of Selectmen, the Advisory Board and the voters at our most recent Town Meeting voted to support this new motion.

Increased funding from the state, together with the Town of Hull adding 15,000 more gallons per day, enabled the sewer commissioners to expand the service areas. The street listings and dollar figures are available at Town Hall in a blue booklet entitled "Wastewater System Improvements."

Included in the 50/50 "Yes" vote is the opportunity for non-sewered homeowners to upgrade their septic systems. $500,000 per year for the next six years is available for applicants to borrow at the same 2.7 percent interest rate over 20 years (similar rate as homeowners in proposed sewer areas).

For non-sewered households, the 50/50 "Yes" vote would mean that if your home is assessed for $300,000, in the year 1999, the annual cost will be $51 (less than $1 per week). Of course, if your home is assessed for less than $300,000, the annual charge in 1999 will be less.

Please keep in mind that all of us in the Town of Cohasset are taxpayers. The 50 percent shared by the town includes those of us who are also paying the other 50 percent.

For the environment, clean air, clean water — and the betterment of the Town of Cohasset — please vote "Yes" on May 4.

THE COUNCIL CORNER/Kathie O'Neil

School councils have a busy month

The following is a compilation of the minutes of School Council meetings held this month.

Jr./Sr. High — Much of the meeting was spent reviewing part of the student handbook. Areas of discussion and/or change were: grade weights, including the addition of an A+ grade and tardiness, absence and attendance policies. Also included in the discussion were senior project and Middle School exam changes. The Strategic Plan was reviewed with a focus on the areas of plant conditions, School Improvement Plan and accreditation. The next meeting will be held May 15.

Deer Hill — Council members dealt with a number of issues at their last meeting. A 6th-grade dance has been organized through parent, student and faculty collaboration. It will be held April 19 from 3 to 5 p.m. Council members continue to focus on ability grouping and the provision of a challenging curriculum. This is an ongoing topic of discussion. A parent has expressed an interest in possibly developing a foreign language program. Next month's meetings will be on May 7 and 14.

Osgood — A great deal of the meeting involved discussion on the vote related to the new school. Another area of focus by the council was professional development with regard to the upcoming dates of May 8 and 9. The children will be provided with an interesting presentation by community volunteers while teachers work on ways to enrich the curriculum. Also examined were the School Improvement Plan and the "Strategic 5-Year Plan." The next meeting will be April 23.

Art can be used to enhance curriculum

To the Editor:

I recently had the privilege of observing a theatrical production at the Deer Hill School in Cohasset, given by four classes of fifth graders. It was a perfect example of the way the arts can be used to enhance core subjects in the curriculum. The subject of the play was the Underground Railroad. The students spent weeks researching the history. Then, with the guidance of various faculty members, the students wrote scripts, created sets, learned songs and rehearsed their play, which told the story of American slaves escaping to Canada in the 1800's.

The importance of the arts in learning has long been recognized for their value in helping to give children the basic tools to aid them in the school and in their lives. In the past several decades philosophers and psychologists have learned that the arts help children to think. Songs and games help young children learn their numbers, alphabet, coordination, sense of rhythm and sense of self. Older children are rewarded in "make-believe" through drama, storytelling, music, dance, drawing and painting. The arts build self-esteem in all ages. In the creation of this wonderful piece of entertainment, the students at Deer Hill School learned about the historical subject, and also about creativity, sharing, teamwork, respect for others.

The arts teach one of the basic elements needed to get along in life: learning how to learn. In recognizing diverse learning styles, and the need to integrate head, heart and hand, the arts-integrated curriculum provides the means for this to happen. However, for years the arts have been the first subjects to be set aside when the school budgets get tight. With the new mandates set forth by the Department of Education of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to involve the arts in the basic curriculum, educators are beginning to realize what artists and musicians have known all along. It is the stuff of life.

The faculty and staff of the Deer Hill School seem to be ahead of the game. The production was wonderful. The children were serious, well-behaved, motivated, imaginative, totally engaged in what they were doing, and having a good time. I hope that there will be lots more of this in the future. And not just in Cohasset.

Pupils explore American slavery through original play

History came alive for 100 Deer Hill fifth-graders, last month as they performed "Follow the Drinking Gourd," a play they wrote and researched themselves.

This original four-act play was the culmination of a project initiated by fifth-grade teacher Dayle Dickinson and Deer Hill art teacher Ann Berman. They wanted to combine the visual arts with a curriculum subject, and put into practice the theory of multiple intelligences espoused by Howard Gardner of the Harvard Graduate School of Education, which says that there are many human capacities beyond verbal and math that should be nurtured in schools.

The subjects of art, music, social studies, and literature were combined to give students the opportunity to explore an area of American history in great depth. Slavery, and the Underground Railroad prior to and during the Civil War, was selected because it's a part of the fifth-grade study of American history.

The students read about the subject for one month. The fifth-grade teachers nearly emptied the Deer Hill library, the Paul Pratt Library, and the Lesley College library of every book about slavery from its earliest inception through the Civil War and post Civil War, up to the present day. Students learned about slavery in other cultures. They read journals, fiction, poetry and historical accounts.

The students made a timeline organizing what they'd learned. Under fifth-grade teacher Frank Deakin's guidance, they used computers and card catalogs in their research, and to type their play, stories, and poems. In science, Ray Levine taught the constellations and how they were used by slaves to find the way on unmarked paths. Katherine Whitley and Dayle Dickinson oversaw the writing portions of the project. In addition to writing the play, the students wrote stories and poems based on what they'd learned.

There are four fifth-grade classes. Each class was given the task of writing and performing one act of the play. The play's action is based on a picture book by Jeanette Winter, "Follow the Drinking Gourd."

Each classroom was divided into small writing groups. The first step was talking about the scenes, staging, and dialogue. Each group wrote drafts, did editing and produced a final draft. The final draft of each group was then read to the class. At this point each class of approximately 25 students went through the act, cutting and pasting the best parts from each group's best effort.

Once each class had its act in final form, tryouts, scenery, and other preparations began. Meanwhile, music teacher John MacInnis taught students five songs that would be woven into the action of the play and sung by all 100 students. The songs included "Follow the Drinking Gourd," "One More River," and "Go Down Moses." The students not only learned the words and music, but why these songs were meaningful to the slaves.

Deer Hill fifth-graders Sara Dennis, Shana Sullivan, Molly Flannigan, Ely Kahn, and (at front) Rachel Judge perform in "Follow the Drinking Gourd," an original play, wrote and researched by the pupils themselves.

In art class, students created traditional African drinking gourds that were displayed in the hall of the school leading to the performance. Each gourd was carved with personal family stories. The students also made miniature gourds that were given to each member of the audience at the conclusion of the two performances.

The stories and poems written by the children were from the point of view of a slave. They created concept maps that organized the information they'd learned. They drew maps depicting the routes of the Underground Railroad. All this work was on display for the audience to enjoy.

Several parents helped coach the students in acting and assisted with some of the more complicated scenery. There was a student-created river that rippled. Students were trees. Conor Mangan, a Cohasset High School senior with an interest in theater, helped coach some of the actors after school. In fact, the preparations often spilled beyond the regular school-day hours.

Because of lunch hours and other regularly scheduled uses of the Deer Hill cafeteria/auditorium, all 100 students got to rehearse together only three times prior to the first performance. The play was a huge success. Students spoke lines clearly and could be heard at the back of the hall.

Dickinson said, "There wasn't the fooling around one might expect from some students this age, because this was their creation. They were committed to this performance. Perhaps the most important thing the students learned was that despite the demeaning cruelties experienced by the slaves, they never lost their hope."

Dickinson said that the interdisciplinary approach may be used next year to study the westward movement in the U.S. In the meantime, this project isn't quite over. The students will be writing evaluations on what they learned and what they liked about this project.

Senior class plans graduation activities

Cohasset High School senior class parents have organized festive year-end activities for the Class of 1996. Each year the PSO, with the help of a large group of parent volunteers, traditionally hosts a reception before the senior prom and a breakfast afterwards.

Family and friends are welcome to great prom-goers at a reception on Thursday, May 30, from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Residence. Students will travel by boat to the prom at the Boston Harbor Hotel. A breakfast will follow at midnight at Second Congregational Church.

The sale of graduation invitations supports the reception and breakfast. Invitations and individual name cards may be ordered by calling Carol Riley at 383-6215 by Friday, April 19. Invitations are $1 each, with a minimum order of $5, and individual name enclosure cards are $10 for a minimum order of 50.

A new parent initiative this year is the creation of an A-V show, "The Way We Were," to be shown at Class Night June 6. Judy Ritts and Heidi Maitland have asked all senior class parents to collect memorable photos or videos from kindergarten to senior year, identify them and deliver them to Second Congregational Church (mail slot delivery available at any hour) by Monday, April 22. Individuals who would like to help with the video or accompanying audio are asked to call either Maitland or Ritts. All items will be returned at Class Night.

Thanks goes to senior Alli Ritts and her parents, Gary and Judy Ritts, for an excellent Senior Show April 12. The capacity crowd gave a standing ovation for the student director and her talented troupe of performers.

Another new idea this year is a "Class Gift" from the senior parents to CHS. Parents plan to donate a bench near the new athletic fields in memory of Rosemarie Mercurio, the mother of class president Andrea Mercurio. To join in the gesture, send a check payable to Kyle Lubitz and mail to: Kyle Lubitz, 54 Red Gate Lane, Cohasset.

Senior parents who would like to help with the senior class reception are asked to call Carol Riley or Annette Sawchuk. To assist with the breakfast, call Gail Stevens or Regina Shultz.

PSO phone-a-thon, April 30

PSO volunteers will conduct the group's annual fundraising Phone-a-Thon on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, April 30 and May 1.

School council elections

All parents of school children for the 1996-'97 school should have received a ballot for each school in which they will have children enrolled next year.

Parents are encouraged to read and consider the information provided prior to voting for school council representatives during this week and next.

Ballots will be accepted in the front office of each school until 4 p.m. on Thursday, May 2.

Anyone who did not receive a ballot is asked to call Kathy Ofsthun at 383-9396.

Arts performed at Deer Hill

Dancer/choreographer Nikki Hu and composer Guy Van Duser is spending April 22-26 at Deer Hill School working with students and staff. They will create a performing arts interpretation of the story "Sadako and the 1,000 Cranes," a highly acclaimed children's book about the life of a Japanese child after the bombing of Hiroshima. The story shows how one child can make a difference in the lifes of others.

The tale of hope and inspiration will be presented as a dance performance incorporating history, music, art and literature. Performances will take place on Friday, April 26, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. at Deer Hill School.

The project was funded in part by the Mass. Cultural Council, local lottery council and support from the Cohasset Education Foundation, Cohasset PSO and the Diversity Committee.

CHS celebrates spring

Cohasset High School will celebrate the arrival of spring with a Spring Concert on Wednesday, May 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Choral director Bryan Marks will lead the singers through selections encompassing a wide spectrum of musical styles. Instrumental director Marcia Lajoie will conduct the concert band and hand bell choir in an eclectic variety of pieces.

The Senior Chorus and Concert Bank will have just returned from participating in a festival and high school competition in Williamsburg, and the concert will welcome them back and applaud their efforts. The event is free, and all are invited to attend.

The PSO executive board has an open position for Cohasset Chairman of the Special Needs Committee. Please consider this rewarding position; you wuld work with co-chairman Lyn Previte. Call Lyn at 383-9723 with questions.

Self-image PSO topic

The PSO annual spring meeting on May 7 at 7:30 p.m. is proud to sponsor Dr. Catherine Steiner-Adair, a research associate at the Harvard Project on the "Psychology of Women and Girls' Development." She is a well-known author and nationally recognized speaker and will discuss recent research on girls' development and how parents and schools can strengthen girls' resistance to socio-cultural values that undermine self-esteem and lead to poor self and body images. Dr. Steiner-Adair will offer concrete ideas on improving the situation, followed by a question and answer period. The meeting will be held in Cohasset High School cafeteria.

Her teachings on girls' development help individuals become more aware of the many cultural and social pressures which are detrimental particularly to girls, but also to boys. Parents of sons are also encouraged to attend.

The new PSO board will also be introduced at the meeting.

Cohasset Business

Village issues tackled at forum

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

The conundrum facing Cohasset Village is how to attract businesses so more people will come to town.

But more people won't come without shops to attract them and shops won't come without more people, citizens say.

"It's a Catch-22," said concerned resident Patty Connors, 134 S. Main St.

About 20 residents, merchants and business people met again last week at French Memories to grapple with the future vitality of the village.

"People told me in 20 years there's been a lot of talk but nothing's been done," said Dean Rizzo, vice president of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce. "This year, let's start to do things, let's make progress."

The group brainstormed on problems and possible long- and short-range solutions for more than two hours.

It was decided a single task force committee would be created to spearhead the effort and keep momentum going. The task force will be under the umbrella of the Chamber of Commerce, which is 145-members strong. Concerns about possibly jealousy from chamber members who own businesses on Rte. 3A were dismissed by the group's president Domenic Micarelli, owner of The Artist's Son Gallery in Jonathan Livingston Plaza on Rte. 3A. He stressed a healthy village benefits all and there is nothing stopping any shopping area from organizing to form its own revitalization group if needed.

Connie Afshar, an interested resident, volunteered to survey the village to come up with a list of vacancies and what the rental prices are. And local architect Frances Andrews said she would ask DPW Supt. Harold Litchfield about infrastructure improvements such as repairs to the sidewalks.

In addition to Connors, Afshar, and Andrews — Anna Abbruzzese of the Village Renaissance Committee, Robert Gaughen of Hingham Institution for Savings, and Stagecoach Way landlord Jerome Pfifer expressed interest in serving on the task force.

One topic debated was what constitutes the village. The consensus seemed to be that it stretched from the harbor to the Music Circus.

Local businessman John J. Flanagan of Edward D. Jones & Co. noted that there is a Washington D.C.-based organization called "Main Street Project" which is dedicated to providing guidance for revitalizing downtown areas and might provide some assistance.

Joe McElroy, who is president of the Cohasset Lightkeeper's Corp., the private group that refurbished the lightkeeper's house on Government Island, felt there might be some state "historical preservation" grants available.

He strongly suggested the village market the town's theatrical and maritime history.

Connors, who formerly lived in the North Shore town, said "old town Marblehead" works and so can Cohasset with the right combination of looks, shops and businesses.

A general village meeting is slated for 5:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 30 at French Memories. Interested citizens are invited to attend.

Force is on Yoda's side

Ketchum hurls no-hitter against Hull

By JIM O'SULLIVAN
Special to the Mariner

Freshman pitcher Ben "Yoda" Ketchum tossed a no-hitter to lead the JV baseball to victory on Tuesday against Hull High. Oblivious to the gusty winds, Ketchum struck out 12 of the 21 batters he faced and didn't surrender a walk in completely dominating the Pirates squad.

The only blemish came after a third strike was swung on and it skidded to the backstop. Ketchum's strikeout victim beat the throw to first, nixing a perfect-game bid. However, he would get no further than second as Ketchum pitched his way out of the inning.

Nicknamed "Yoda" by a boyhood friend, Ketchum got some support from his teammates as well. Chris Pratt made two excellent grabs in center field and Pete Minnar made a snare in left. J.P. Laugelle blocked a grounder and fired to a lunging Eric Hanian at first for the out. Catcher Sean Parkinson called a solid game behind the plate and Al Schwerin had a strong day offensively with three singles. Laugelle also hit well, tripling to right-center, while Greg Parkinson beat out a pair of bunts for infield hits. Pinch-hitter Ryan Story also added a hit. Ketchum ended the game by striking out the side in the seventh.

Ketchum said he hadn't prepared for the game any differently than any other.

"I thought about what I think about before every game," he said, "which is to try my best and to throw strikes. I didn't realize I had the no-hitter until maybe the firth or sixth inning. I tried not to think about it that much.

"For the last batter, I was nervous, but I just tried to concentrate and throw strikes. It's a good feeling."

Ketchum's mastery of the Pirates could possibly earn him a promotion to the varsity squad. For now, however, he is just savoring one of the rarest achievements in baseball.

Locals become part of marathon history

Moses Tanui thwarting defending champion Cosmos Ndeti's bid for a fourth consecutive title.

The inspiring run of America's new No. 1 sweetheart, Uta Pippig, despite some unpleasant personal matters she encountered along the way.

The crowd.

The hype

The bandits.

And of course, the hills.

After all the preparation for the largest Boston Marathon ever held, the 100th anniversary of the race is finally in the record books.

And the results of the local runners are in.

The 26.2-mile classic was deemed an overwhelming success by participants and spectators alike. However, a problem did flare up when the computer used to record the finishers by picking up the signal from a chip tied on the runners' shoes malfunctioned. What resulted were times that were off by a few seconds.

Cohasset had 16 runners among the crowd of 38,500 who gathered in Hopkinton and made the trek through the country roads of Ashland, into Framingham and Natick, over Wellesley Hills where the college girls where there to greet them with wild glee. After crossing over Route 128, the runners took the turn at the fire station in Lower Newton Falls and headed into the Newton Hills, the culmination of which is the fabled "Heartbreak Hill" at Boston College.

From there the course headed downhill to Coolidge Corner and along Beacon Street, through Kenmore Square and finally to the finish in the shadow of the Prudential Building.

Cohasset's Joanne Cannon-Hill finished in 14,987th with a time of 3 hours, 51 minutes and 2 seconds. Also completing the race were Richard Anderson (4:21:48, 23,717th), Kurt Devries (4:30:32, 25,730th), Geoffrey Nothnagle (4:26:40, 24,876th), Don DeMichele (4:21:49, 23,719th), Kerry Kates (4:48:09, 28,897th), Michael Kennedy (4:21:47, 23,714th), Mary Algier (4:13:04, 21,608th), Matthew Steele (4:46:05, 28,534th), Kenneth Warner (4:24:03, 24,254th), Daniel DeMichele (4:21:49, 23,720th), Bruce McMeekin (5:13:04, 32,182nd), Jane Lanzillotti (5:02:18, 30,967th), Mark Chase (5:52:18, 34,640th), Liam O'Connell (5:01:05, 30,841st) and Francis Wallingford (5:11:45, 32,027th).

If any of these runners never compete in a marathon again, they still have the distinction of being able to say they ran in the "Marathon of the Century." And it's my guess people will no longer ask runners if they've run a marathon or ran in the Boston Marathon. The question will more than likely be whether or not they ran in the 100th anniversary of the Hopkinton-to-Boston classic.

Penalties make difference in laxmen's Duxbury loss

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

Physically, the Cohasset High varsity lacrosse team played well enough to win Tuesday's 11-10 loss to Duxbury.

Mentally, however, the Skippers proved to be their own worst enemy as the Green Dragons took advantage of four fourth-period penalties to score three goals and put the game away.

"We did enough things that just weren't fundamentally sound," said head coach Ken Ekberg. "If we played a little smarter it was a game we could have won."

The loss brought Cohasset's record to 3-2 on the season, a mark Ekberg is luke-warm to. The Skippers haven't had any problem defeating the average teams, but the established, solids strong have proven to be a problem.

True, Cohasset gave Weymouth a tough battle in its 11-9 loss, but it is the teams the calibre of the Wildcats that the Skippers will have to beat if they want any chance of being competitive in the tournament.

Cohasset was hardly outplayed by the Green Dragons, pulling out to a 7-4 lead at the half. What's all the more upsetting about the loss is that the Skippers weren't beaten physically by Duxbury, a problem Cohasset has run up against in past sea-

CHS Varsity baseball squad reaches .500

Skippers are sharp in Cape Cod victories

By JIM O'SULLIVAN
Special to the Mariner

After more than two weeks of indoor practices, the Cohasset High varsity baseball team embarked on a frenzied stretch of the season, akin to a major league schedule. With a 3-2 loss to Norton last Thursday and a pair of wins Saturday against Provincetown (13-10) and Chatham (21-10), the Skippers began a hectic run of five games this week.

Last Thursday the Skippers sent eighth-grade sensation Joe Pergola to the mound against Norton, a team which is perennially one of the best in Eastern Mass. Under the watchful eye of catcher Rob Buckley, Pegola pitched masterfully for 3-2/3 innings, allowing no runs and just one hit. Facing a former All-Star pitcher, the Skippers managed to scrape up two runs.

In Saturday's doubleheader, Joe Magner, Greg Stevens, Mike Dunphy, Greg Taylor and Eric Henry provided the pitching punch for the sweep.

Magner pitched well against P-Town despite a sore arm. Stevens came in after three innings, did his job, and retired to the outfield. Dunphy, who was making his varsity pitching debut, had a good outing.

The bats also had a say in the victory with the entire lineup getting in on the action. Freshman Al Schwerin had his first varsity hit, a line drive to center field, while exchange student Rafael Alarcon also debuted at the plate. Stevens came on in the end to preserve the game for Cohasset.

The Skippers then went on an offensive barrage in the second game, exploding for 21 runs behind the fantastic hitting of Taylor, McKenna, Buckley and Magner. Taylor pitched three innings, striking out four batters and making a fantastic play in the process. A Chatham batter hit a weak bloop over Taylor's head to the second-base side of the bag. Taylor leaped for the ball, missed it, but alertly stuck with the play and fired to first baseman Kevin McKenna for the out. Henry made a great defensive play by spearing a drive in mid-air which was heading to the left-center gap.

Taylor's heroics were not limited to the mound, however, as he went six for nine for the day and driving in nine runs. He scored seven runs, stole two bases and was the winning pitcher in the Chatham game. McKenna finished five for 10. He had six RBI and made several key defensive plays at first base. Dunphy and Stevens came on to close the game with Stevens earning the save.

The Skippers' ventures on Monday did not go quite as well as those during the weekend as Hanover romped to a 13-0 win on Cohasset's brand new field.

Facing a five-game week with a pitching staff already plagued by slightly sore arms, head coach Ron Ford chose Pergola as his starting pitcher. Athletic Director Clark Chatterton threw out the first pitch in the debut game.

Pergola pitched well through three innings, but was the victim of faulty fielding behind him. Hurley offered some defensive help when he dove to catch a weak pop-up behind the mound, then somehow propped himself up and whipped the ball to Magner at third for the double play. Facing a potent Hanover lineup, Pergola appeared to settle down after three innings when he trailed 6-0.

However, the worst was yet to come for the eighth-grader. He was hit in the forearm by a pitch from Hanover's Brian Mahler. Pergola was able to shake it off at first, but left the game after the half-inning.

Ford sent in reliever Jim O'Sullivan, an untested righty with good control but suspect velocity. Despite flawless fielding by Dunphy and Hurley, O'Sullivan allowed five runs, leaving after the sixth inning. Henry finished out the game and pitched scoreless ball in the seventh.

Mahler limited the Skippers to two hits with two hit batsmen.

Cohasset rebounded on Tuesday to squeeze out a 16-13 win over Hull. Taylor pitched 7-1/3 innings, striking out nine. Ford juggled his already tired pitching staff, letting Taylor, Magner and Stevens all see time on the mound.

Buckley, Magner and Rossi had key hits, while Grant Emde and Greg Stevens both made excellent catches in the outfield.

"We're hitting well," said Ford, who saw his team raise its record to 3-3. "Our pitching has been excellent, considering the erratic schedule we're playing; but we need to improve our defense.

With a .500 record, Cohasset appears to be hitting its stride. With four games next week, a new field, deep pitching rotation, and an abundance of solid hitting, Cohasset is at a crucial point where the tournament could be a possibility.

Little League parade set for Saturday

The annual Little League parade will held this Saturday, April 27. Players and coaches should assemble at the Red Lion Inn between 7:30 and 8 a.m. The parade will begin promptly at 8:15 a.m., led by State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, followed by Glenn Pratt driving his antique fire engine with the 1995 Major League champion Rangers aboard.

The parade route will go through town and end at the Harold Barnes Little League Field. Ceremonies will begin with the playing of the National Anthem by the Deer Hill School Band.

A high point of the ceremonies will be the recognition of a generous donation of a new electronic scoreboard by the Hingham Institute for Savings Bank.

Jones named All-American

Former Cohasset High sports standout Ray Jones became Trinity College's third wrestler to earn All-American honors with a seventh-place finish at the Division 3 Nationals held at SUNY-Cortland. Unseeded, the junior sociology major grappled his way to a 4-2 record at the nationals, good enough for the All-American honors. Trinity placed 36th of 57 teams. Jones previously finished second in the 167-pound weight class at the New England Championships. Trinity finished the season with a 3-13 dual-meet record under head coach Sebby Amato.

sons against several teams.

"We haven't played anyone else who has gotten the better of us physically on the field," Ekberg said.

The Skippers continued to generate a strong offensive game. Ken Leahy continued his scoring spree with four goals. Andy Collins, who was playing injured, had a pair of tallies and John Lacks found the back of the net once to go along with an assist.

Defenseman Matt Belson scored his third goal in five games and has earned the praise of Ekberg for the two-way game he has mastered.

"He's really a key to getting the ball out of our own end," Ekberg said.

Cohasset will try again on Friday against a dangerous Hingham High squad. The Harbormen have been up and down all season, but a team that has made the semifinals the past three years in state tourney can't be taken lightly.

Ekberg is confident the Skippers can go head to head with Hingham, but if Cohasset expects to come away with a victory it will have to avoid penalties and play its best two-way game of the season. If not, the Skippers are in for a long afternoon on the field.

Goalie Ely Kahn was solid in net for Cohasset, turning away 27 Weymouth shots in the Skippers' 11-10 loss on April 11.

"That's as good a game as we've ever had in goal," Ekberg said. "Hopefully, we won't have to have it again."

The Weymouth game was played on the Wildcats' home field instead of Cohasset because of the snowstorm. Cohasset got off to a fast start before falling behind, 4-1, then rallying to take a 5-4 lead. Weymouth tied the game with only three seconds remaining in the first half. Three consecutive goals gave the Wildcats an 8-4 lead, early in the third period.

The Skippers, however, weren't finished. Cohasset connected for three goals in the opening seven minutes of the fourth quarter to tie the game at 8. Weymouth then stubbornly pushed itself to a two-goal lead, 10-8.

Cohasset's final burst came with three minutes remaining. Kahn hit Leahy on a long clearing pass, setting up a fast-break goal to cut the Wildcats' margin to 1. Weymouth, though, whipped home its final goal of the game to clinch the win.

Leahy registered his third consecutive hat trick of the season and sophomore attackman Jamie Buick raised his point total to 11 with a pair of goals and an assist. Lacks had two goals and Matt Belson scored his second goal in as many games. Kevin Smith and Matt O'Connor each added an assist.

"We played pretty well," Ekberg said. "We just don't have the depth of talent to overcome mental errors, and we had too many of those today. To beat a quality team, we have to play very smart."

Against Sandwich on April 9, the Skippers thoroughly dominated a squad which beat them twice last spring. Cohasset rolled to an 11-3 win as Leahy and Chris McKenna each rang up hat tricks. Leahy added two assists and McKenna had one. Buick scored a couple of goals to go along with an assist, while Matt Belson and Collins had a goal and assist apiece. Lacks fired in a goal to round out the scoring.

Kahn had 16 saves and backup goalie Bob Stansell looked good with three saves when Kahn drew a first-period penalty.

"Defensively we played well," Ekberg said. "Ely showed leadership and character, and senior John Whitehouse did an excellent job. Offensively, we still haven't jelled."

Skippers' tennis season brightens up with first victory

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

The start of the Cohasset High boys tennis team's South Shore League season this spring was uglier than a Marge Schott press conference.

When just five players showed up for the team's first practice, head coach Lou Tedeschi had to talk Athletic Director Clark Chatterton to give the program some time. Two more kids joined the squad and Chatterton gave the team his blessing.

The Skippers were then thrown directly into the SSL fire and came away with two quick losses against Norwell and Scituate, two schools whose tennis programs rival Notre Dame's rich football history.

Tedeschi wondered what affect the losses would have on his young, inexperienced squad. He fretted whether or not his players would go AWOL after Cohasset's lopsided defeats. Thankfully, he found his players had more intestinal fortitude than he gave them credit for.

"I was quite concerned about the team's morale with such devastating losses," Tedeschi admitted, "but the kids stuck in there."

It's a good thing they did because they were able to enjoy their first win of the season last Thursday, a 3-2 defeat of Norton.

Cohasset's future actually looks hopeful. There's no doubt the Skippers are young and will struggle through several matches this season. But consider the indispensable experience the five seventh- and two eighth-graders (there is one senior on the team) will get by playing varsity tennis at such a young age.

And there is talent on the team that is far from reaching anything close to its full potential. Connor Magner mopped up the Lancers' No. 1 singles player with a 6-3, 6-1 victory. Chris Golden did the same at No. 2, winning 6-1, 6-2.

The Skippers fared just as well at doubles as the team of Jeff Scribner and Brad Powell rolled to an easy 6-1, 6-1 decision. Brian Tracy lost a close match, saving Norton from being swept at singles. Heath Heinz, Will McAuliffe and Ted Thompson should also see their share of playing time this season.

"Hopefully the win turned the tide," Tedeschi said. "I suspect we'll do the same type of thing enough times to keep us going."

The first-year coach knows Cohasset will have a rough road ahead of it, but is confident the Skippers can be competitive as the season progresses and the players become more confident on the court.

Of course, Tedeschi is looking at the overall scheme of things with the knowledge that youth is on Cohasset's side. And even though the team has to compete for players against the more glamorous spring sports (ie. lacrosse and baseball), Tedeschi is banking more kids playing tennis as the program grows stronger.

"We want to go through the season with our head held high and work for the years to come," Tedeschi said. "The enthusiasm the kids have will hopefully become contagious. I think we can get more kids through word of mouth.

Public Notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT NORFOLK DIVISION DOCKET NO. 96P0926GI

NOTICE OF GUARDIANSHIP of MENTALLY ILL

To CATHERINE MABARDY of COHASSET in said County and all persons interested in the estate of CATHERINE MABARDY and to the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health, a petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that HELEN SUNUNU of DENNIS in the county of BARNSTABLE be appointed guardian of mentally ill with surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before ten o'clock in the forenoon on May 29, 1996.

WITNESS, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham this seventeenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-six.

Thomas Patrick Hughes

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS SHERIFF'S SALE NORFOLK, ss DEDHAM, 1996

Seized and taken on execution and will be sold by Public Auction on Thursday, the 30th day of May A.D. 1996 at 11:00 o'clock A.M. at the Deputy Sheriffs Office at 638 High St., in Dedham in said County of Norfolk, all the right, title and interest which George Roukounakis aka George K. Roukounakis had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the 29th day of January A.D. 1996, when the same was seized on execution in and to the following described real estate:

of that certain parcel of land situate in COHASSET in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth, bounded and described as follows:

Northerly by a Town Way, two hundred nineteen and 60/100 (219.60) feet;

Easterly by South Main Street, one hundred thirty five and 60/100 (135.60) feet;

Southeasterly and Southerly by the Middle line of James Lane, on land now or formerly of the Cohasset Savings Bank, two hundred ninety one and 72/100 (291.72) feet;

Westerly by land now or formerly of said Cohasset Savings Bank, eight and 44/100 (8.44) feet; and

Northerly, thirty one and 96/100 (31.96) feet, and Westerly, eighty one and 68/100 (81.68) feet, by lot numbered 1, shown on the plan hereinafter referred to.

Said parcel is shown as lot numbered 2 on a plan drawn by Lewis W. Perkins & Son, Engineers, dated March 9, 1960, as approved by the Land Court, filed in the Land Registration Office as No. 15947B, a copy of a portion of which is filed in Norfolk Registry District with Certificate No. 65673, Book 329.

The northeasterly corner of the above described land within a space located approximately as shown on said plan is subject to the provisions of a taking by the Town of Cohasset, dated September 13, 1934, duly recorded in Book 2042, Page 91.

The above described land is subject to and has the benefit of, usual, passageway rights in said James Lane located one-half of its width on such land and the other half on said Cohasset Savings Bank Land.

The above described land is subject also to and has the benefit of a stipulation between Maude D. Sweeney and the Cohasset Savings Bank, et al, filed with the papers in this case on December 4, 1935, a copy of which is filed in the Norfolk Registry District with Decree No. 1746.

Terms of Sale: 1. Non-refundable certified check for $2,500.00 to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of the auction. 2. The balance of the purchase price to be paid within 14 days of the sale. 3. Sheriff's Deed to be issued to purchaser upon payment in full of sale price. The deed shall convey the premises subject to, and with the benefit of, any restrictions, easements, improvements, assessments, encumbrances, liens or claims in the nature of liens which are, by operation of law, conveyed with the premises. 4. No representation is or shall be made by Seller as to the status of any mortgage.

The Grand Tour

with Ginger Ferenz 383-2863

It's time to dress up our homes in springtime colors! The lamp-posts at the entrance to Windy Hill Road have been decorated with sprays of forsythia and pansies while the fence posts have bunches of daffodils displayed. Think Spring!

Plants for sale on May 11

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will host a "Not Your Ordinary" Plant Sale on Saturday, May 11, at 9 a.m. in the Lighthouse Keepers' Cottage, Border Street, rain or shine.

A large variety of gardeners' choice plants will be featured, including perennials, small trees, ground covers, herbs, ornamental grasses and annuals.

Of special interest will be many uncommon and hard-to-find perennials.

Proceeds will benefit the club's many civic projects and the scholarship fund. Complimentary coffee will be offered.

New field is a dream

Barnes upgrades score on opening day

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

The calendar may have read that Cohasset Little League's Opening Day ceremonies were held in late April, but to league President Bob Moody the electricity surrounding the biggest day for the town's young baseball players was as satisfying as any Christmas.

Kicking off with the 44th annual parade with state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray leading the way, more than 300 kids from 5-12 years old made their way from The Red Lion Inn to the Harold Barnes Field.

What was waiting for the players was a new field and facility that the whole town could be proud of and enjoy.

More than $12,000 of donations from businesses and residents went into renovating the home of Cohasset Little League to bring it up to modern standards. The result was an all the more enjoyable atmosphere to view a game on a warm spring morning.

"I felt these were my kids and this is their Christmas present,"

Landfill expansion application rejected

Owner, Paul Barry says he'll appeal

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Opponents of the proposed expansion of Cohasset Heights Landfill won a hard-fought victory this week with the health board's decision to deny the landfill's site assignment application, which was the next step in the approval process.

But the owners of the private Rte. 3A landfill aren't willing to concede defeat and plan to appeal the ruling.

Paul Barry, who owns Cohasset Heights with his brother John, awaited the decision quietly in the back of the meeting room which was packed with town officials and members of S.A.F.E., the grassroots group that has taken a stand against the expansion every step of the way.

Barry, who has waged a battle with the town for nearly a decade to expand the Rte. 3A landfill, said he hasn't given up.

"I can't give up," Barry said. "I believe in what I'm doing."

Barry, 21 Mohawk Way, wants to expand beyond the 20-acres he is now limited to. There are some 48 acres at the site.

SAFE member Kevin O'Donnell, 196 Fair Oaks Lane, said Monday the decision was like "Christmas in April."

But used to lobbying and expecting the unexpected — O'Donnell was ready with a letter Tuesday (see page 10) to urge citizens not to pull the plug on money for legal fees just yet.

The town has spent upwards of $300,000 in legal fees just this fiscal year in matters relating to Cohasset Heights.

Who will pay for sewer to be decided at polls on Saturday

Saturday voters can opt for the town to share the cost of installing sewers in the Strait's Pond area of town.

The single ballot question will seek a debt exclusion Prop. 2-1/2 override of about $3.2 million which represents half of the projected $6.3 million cost of the project and would add about $50 a year to the average tax bill.

Residents on the sewer line will pay the other half of the cost through betterments, and pick up the annual operation

Cohasset's Week

Ten minutes for walk-ins

Selectmen will set aside 10 minutes at 8 p.m. on their meeting nights to address any concerns from the members of the public who have issues that are not on the agenda.

If the matter cannot be handled briefly, it will be placed on a future agenda, selectmen said this week.

The idea for a break, during what are often three-hour plus meetings, came from a Mariner editorial suggesting selectmen set aside a few minutes during the meeting for the public at large.

Wadsworth steps down from Hagerty committee

David Wadsworth, senior curator with the Cohasset Historical Society and member of the Cohasset Historical Commission, has stepped down from the Hagerty committee.

The Hagerty committee is charged with establishing a recreational plan for the 2.2 acre harbor-front site the town bought three years ago.

But Wadsworth said he disagrees with razing the Victorian house at the site and decided the time had come for him to leave the committee.

Selectmen accepted Wadsworth's resignation with regret this week.

The Hagerty committee had backed selling the house but town meeting did not approve, so selectmen voted recently to have the house demolished or moved.

Wadsworth said the only way to move the house would be to float it out. Ironically, it was moved to the site in the 1800s from Border Street. The house once belonged to Capt. Aubrey Crocker who was captain of the America's Cup defender "Puritan" against the British challenger, "Gallata," he said. It was moved to Parker Avenue in the early 1900s via Eltman's meadow named after John Eltman who operated a boat yard at what was later to become the Hagerty Company site.

"They used to move houses around like billiard balls," Wadsworth said.

Green space to return

The sidewalk along the town common between Jason and Long Roads will get its green strip back after all.

Selectmen decided last week to loam and re-seed the strip that has given way to gravel and dried dirt due to cars parking on top of it.

Two weeks ago, DPW Supt. Harold Litchfield suggested the area be black-topped from the existing sidewalk to the granite curbing, but selectmen said last week that would inappropriate for a 300-year-old town green.

Before they authorize any work, selectmen will meet with Litchfield and the fire and police chiefs to walk the Common. Due to the narrowness of the road, future plans could include returning to a one-way traffic pattern on that section of North Main Street. Selectmen are also considering eliminating parking on the Common side of North Main Street because they worry drivers will continue to be park on the sidewalk once its repaired and the green strip is installed.

Plans to move the telephone poles have been scrapped because it would cost as much as $2,000 per pole.

Fire chief contract renewal

Per the contractual agreement, selectmen notified Fire Chief Roger Lincoln this week of their intent to renegotiate his contract which expires in six months. Lincoln was hired nearly 2-1/2 years ago to replace John Nadeau who left to accept another position.

Landfill legal budget reaches new Heights

Selectmen must grapple with legal costs surrounding litigation and the site assignment hearings regarding Cohasset Heights Landfill.

Best estimates at the moment are the town is about $22,000 in the red and not all the bills are in. The town appropriated about $290,000 for legal fees for CHL issues through special and annual town meetings for FY'96 which ends June 30.

Selectman Peter Pratt said there is a glimmer of hope the town could get some relief from the state. With state Sen. Robert Hedlund's help, the town will seek reimbursement for $325,000 it expended in legal costs for the Site Assignment Hearings which recently wrapped up. The hearings covered the landfill's plans to expand.

Selectmen feel money spent on the hearings is in fact an unfunded state mandate and will seek state relief on that basis.

Dispatcher steps down; former dispatcher rehired

The newly hired dispatcher, Joseph Dellapi of Duxbury, has resigned to accept other employment, Police Chief Brian Noonan said last week. He explained that in July, Dellapi has the opportunity to return to a former job and decided to resign now rather than complete all the training for the Cohasset post. Selectmen approved hiring Dellapi two weeks ago at the rate of $11.53 per hour because of his experience in fire dispatching.

Acting on the enthusiastic recommendation of the Civilian Dispatch Committee, this week selectmen approved the rehiring of former dispatcher David Weeks, who resigned to accept a post with the state police. Weeks was rehired at the same rate as Dellapi, two pay steps above what he was making when he recently stepped down.

In a letter to the board, Weeks wrote "I realize I just recently resigned my position as a dispatcher to pursue, what I blindly thought, was a better job with the state police. I was wrong. I realize the position in Cohasset, although not as much money, was the goal I had been searching for."

Town Administrator Gregory Doyon described Weeks is a "good trainer" and "an outstanding dispatcher" who would be an asset to the department. Doyon said the market for dispatchers is "climbing fast" as more towns adopt enhanced 9-1-1 service, so higher pay rates in the future might have to be considered.

While selectmen agreed, they were concerned that hiring Weeks back at two steps higher after just three weeks off the job might set a dangerous precedent. So they decided to put a letter on file about why the higher pay rate was being offered.

Selectman Ronnie McMorris had the most reservations and wanted to have the matter of higher pay for dispatchers pursued as "a whole group and not individually."

But because the department needed someone right away and due to being short-staffed, would spend money on overtime, selectmen agreed to approve rehiring Weeks at $11.53/hour.

Selectman Michael Sullivan said the town "is lucky (Weeks) is coming back."

Selectman Nan Roth asked that the personnel committee review the pay scale for all civilian dispatcher positions to see how competitive Cohasset's pay scale is when compared with other towns.

Composting bins available

Thanks to the town's good recycling efforts, the state has awarded Cohasset a $1,310 grant toward the purchase of 45 composting bins for home use.

The Department of Environmental Protection said Cohasset was selected because its program demonstrates a commitment and an ability to enhance recycling in both Cohasset and the Commonwealth.

The town will sell the composting bins at the RTF and use the money to purchase more bins, Selectmen Chairman Merle S. Brown explained.

TOWN OF COHASSET, MA
COHASSET SEWER COMMISSION
ATTENTION
COHASSET RESIDENTS
IN THE STRAITS POND AREA

Dear Cohasset Resident:

In accordance with Articles 4 and 5 of the March 30, 1996 Special Town Meeting, the Cohasset Sewer Commission has been directed to implement the design and construction of the North Cohasset Sewer system including its inter-connection to the Town of Hull. Tutela Engineering Associates, Inc. has been retained by the Sewer Commission to conduct evaluation and design efforts. In order to adequately design the wastewater collection system and individual service connections, Tutela Engineering will need to gain access to your property to conduct inspections and survey. Their inspections will entail locating interior pipes, utilities and existing on-site wastewater disposal facilities.

Your cooperation with these inspection efforts would be greatly appreciated. The inspection will not only allow the North Cohasset sewer system to be designed in a timely manner, thus facilitating State funding efforts for the project, but will also allow our engineers the opportunity to design a service connection which will have minimal impacts to your property.

If you have any questions relative to this inspection program, please contact Mr. Daniel Coughlin, P.E. of Tutela Engineering Associates, Inc. at (508) 658-7493, or the Selectmen's Office at Town Hall (383-9900, Ext. 108).

Thank you for your cooperation
Edward M. Guild, Chairman
Cohasset Sewer Commission

Mooring list swells as town readies for boating season

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

Boating season is around the corner when more than 220 recreational mariners will join the town's commercial fishing fleet in the increasingly shallow waters of Cohasset Harbor.

As the town awaits a much needed maintenance dredging, harbormaster John Winters anticipates more boat groundings before and during low tides this season.

"We'll have a lot of trouble this season," Winters said, adding "boats are going to run aground during and even two hours before low tide. We'll do a lot of towing."

Winters said the town's 42 commercial fisherman, who will share the harbor with recreational boaters, often lend a hand to fellow mariners in trouble and aid the harbormaster and his two assistants in towing boats that have gone aground.

'We'll do a lot of towing.'

— Harbormaster John Winters, on the shallow conditions in the harbor.

And despite close quarters in the harbor, the 266 moorings available are inadequate for the numbers of both commercial and recreational mariners hoping to float their boats in Cohasset waters.

Winters said the mooring list has crested to 309 this season, with an average wait of about ten years. For commercial fisherman the wait can be more like 15 or 20 years depending on the size of the mooring needed, Winters noted. The mooring fee for vessels, which goes toward dredging and other harbor projects, is $5 per foot annually, Winters said.

Residents are placed on the mooring waiting list on first-come, first-served basis and pay an application fee of $10. Those on the list must reaffirm their place by April 1 of every year. Those who fail to do so are given a second chance through a late notice and $25 fee. If the late fee is not paid within 15 days, the name is scratched from the list, said Winters, who noted that most people are pretty faithful when it comes to reaffirming that spot on the waiting list.

In the past, some boaters complained about mooring favors being given, but Winters said this system seems to be working out well.

"We're running this as tight as possible," he said.

Town Administrator Greg Doyon refers any harbor-related complaints to the harbormaster but agreed with Winters that Cohasset's system for granting moorings works.

One practice, that has been questioned, occurs when owners allow others to temporarily use their moorings while they are not using them. Doyon said this is done only with the permission of the harbormaster who has full discretion over how long someone is permitted to have his boat in someone else's mooring.

Cushing Plaza reconstruction well underway

Bergson's coping well with drainage work

By CHARLENE VANDINI
Cohasset Mariner

Officials from Shaw's Supermarkets and the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce plan a ground-breaking ceremony at Cushing Plaza on May 13, but for all intents and purposes, the ground is already broken.

Shaw's spokesman Bernie Rogan said this week work is well underway for construction of the retention pond that is a key component of renovation of the shopping plaza.

In addition to the shopping plaza's 8 acres, the company purchased an adjacent 16 acres to remedy long-standing drainage problems at the site. Without the drainage system, stormwater will continue to sheet across Route 3A.

This work must be done first, he said, to handle stormwater run off that may occur during construction. He added that part of that drainage area will not be cleared and will remain a wooded lot.

At the present, Bergson's restaurant is an island in a sea of construction, while the drainage system work goes on around it.

Bergson's spokesman Eric Pearson said the construction work has not harmed business at the restaurant, and the company is "very pleased" with the work that is being done.

"It will be a major improvement," he said, adding that Shaw's has been cooperative and helpful.

Major demolition work, to remove the buildings at the rear of the shopping plaza will begin later this summer.

"Appleseed's will be the first to go," he said, referring to the building formerly occupied by the women's clothing store.

The Rockland Trust Company and a dentist's office will be relocating to a building across Route 3A by August 1.

Beyond that, Rogan said, there is no firm timetable for completion of the new supermarket.

He added that a formal ground-breaking "needs a ceremony," but the ribbon-cutting when the store opens will be a major event.

Who will pay for sewer to be decided and maintenance expense, for an average cost of $800 per year per household.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at town hall.

The town clerk's office does not expect the same degree of interest in this election as was the case in the town election which drew 62 percent or the school override in February when about 46 percent of the town's registered voters participated. As of Wednesday, only 80 absentee ballots had been returned, which is low. The number of absentees is often a gauge of election interest.

However, those in the affected area are working hard to get out the vote and hope the override passes.

Members of the new tax watchdog group, Concerned Cohasset Taxpayers, are opposing the override.

Under Prop.2-1/2 rules, debt exclusion override ballot questions do not include the dollar amount because the figure cannot report the true cost of borrowing plus interest charges.

For the approximately 345 homes to be sewered, betterments will average $435 per year for 20 years ($870 per year if the override fails). In addition, residents will pay entirely for the operation and maintenance of the system, which will cost users on average $400 per year.

Open space group formed

This week selectmen finalized appointments for the Open Space Advisory Committee, which, with the help of a professional planner, will come up with a draft open space/recreational townwide plan by October with the final report due in June 1997.

Conservation Commission member Susan Cope will serve on the board as well as Mary Muncie who will represent the recreation commission; Ronnie McMorris will represent selectmen; James Kinch will be the watershed protection committee representative; and Jack Hubbard, who is a member of the private Conservation Land Trust, will serve on the committee along with Terry Atherton of the planning board and Ellen Freda of historical commission.

Once the open space plan is in place, the town can apply for state grants to purchase open space and recreational land, such as "Turkey Hill" off Rte. 3A. Plans are to ask special town meeting in the fall to appropriate funds to purchase Cohasset's acreage of that property.

Summary of decision rejecting CHL expansion

By JOHN McNABB
Special to the Mariner

The Board of Health voted April 29 to deny the Site Assignment Application filed by Cohasset Heights Ltd. (DHL) for their proposed 500 tons per day construction and demolition (C&D) waste landfill and 100 tpd materials processing operation (MPO), because the Board found that the expansion would violate the following seven siting criteria:

1. NOISE. The Board found, based on the testimony of CHL witness David Keast and a report he prepared, that noise generated from the expansion and MPO will at two locations at the CHL property line, increase by 26.5 decibels and 37 decibels above background levels, which would be an increase in noise four to eight times greater than current levels that will violate both state and federal noise control standards, and that the expansion will exacerbate an existing nuisance condition that currently reduces the use of Whitney Woods nearby. The noise level estimates were calculated based on the noise that an oscillating jaws rock crusher used at the MPO would create, and from the expected landfill activities and from a landfill gas flare.

2. DUST EMISSIONS. The Board found that the operation of the MPO would be dust and noise emissions from the movement and processing of stockpiled material, and the deposition of lead and asbestos dust on Whitney woods and nearby homes, and that the MPO would create substantial dust emissions which would create an opaque dust cloud from time to time that would create a nuisance condition in Whitney Woods and be a danger to public health, safety, and the environment. The Board also found that the dust emissions would violate federal air pollution control standards and result in a danger to public health from the emissions of small particles of dust (10 microns or less in size) which can be inhaled into the lungs.

3. DISTANCE FROM GROUNDWATER. The Board found that the proposed landfill area does not have the required four-foot separation from groundwater, and that monitoring wells showed that at one location there was only a distance of two feet from maximum high groundwater to the ground surface. The Board also found that CHL is proposing to dig into the ground to place the landfill liner not four feet above groundwater, but at one point 40 feet into groundwater, a clear violation of the environmental regulation for landfills which, like the "Title V" regulation for septic systems, requires a four-foot separation to protect groundwater from contamination.

4. TRAFFIC. The Board found that the proposed expansion would increase truck traffic on Route 228 by 36 percent, which will endanger public safety at the many Route 228 intersections which are already congested, along the Cushing Street alternate haul route, and will exacerbate the current public safety risks to school children in Hingham and pedestrians.

5. WETLANDS. The Board found that silt-laden storm water from the existing landfill has significantly and adversely affected adjacent wetlands, and that because the proposed storm water control system for the expansion is seriously undersized, the proposed expansion will result in significant further discharges of sediment to wetlands in violation of local, state, and federal wetlands and clean water act requirements. The Board also found that the use of Area 5 for landfilling will prevent CHL from preventing further adverse wetlands impacts from the existing landfill, since much of the land area proposed for Area 5 will be needed for additional sedimentation ponds to mitigate impacts to the wetlands.

6. SIZE OF FACILITY. The Board found that the proposed landfill site is not large enough for both adequately sized sedimentation ponds and the proposed landfill and associated facilities, since the proposed detention basins are undersized and are located immediately adjacent to the landfill boundary and at the toe of the landfill slope, with direct discharge to abutting properties without any buffer zone.

7. PROXIMITY TO TOWN WELLFIELDS. The Board found that the proposed landfill expansion is 15,000 feet upgradient of the town's Sohier Street and Ellms Meadow well fields, and that groundwater from the expansion area will likely flow through faults and fractures in the bedrock from Area 5 to the wells, and that therefore the proposed landfill expansion would constitute a danger to public health, safety, and the environment and that the site of the proposed landfill is not suitable for assignment as a landfill or landfill expansion.

Landfill expansion application is rejected

spent on legal fees by the town since the early 1980's at more than $750,000.

O'Donnell, who is an attorney, explained work for the appeal has basically been done in the past two months of hearings which include more than 3,000 pages of testimony.

He said the cost of defense now is "a fraction of what has already been spent ...and is a necessary part of the investment in the protection of our water supply and public health."

SAFE member John McNabb Jr. described the health board's decision as "bullet proof and should easily withstand any appeal by CHL."

As a private business, the landfill pays about $30,000 per year in taxes, including about $2,000 for machinery, listed as personal property, and employs a total of five people.

The original permit was granted in 1978 to James Tyeryar, who sold it to the Barrys in 1982. Paul Barry moved to Cohasset from Newton shortly thereafter.

Last fall, the state Department of Environmental Protection gave CHL qualified approval for the 27.5 acre project as suitable for accepting construction and demolition debris. The state decision left town officials and local environmentalists feeling betrayed and threw the landfill expansion plan back into the town's court.

The Cohasset Board of Health had to consider facts presented at a series of hearings which encompassed everything from traffic impacts to bedrock fractures where underground pollutants could make their way to the town's water supply, according to testimony presented.

Monday the board voted to deny the site assignment application for CHL's proposed 500 tons per day construction and demolition debris landfill and materials processing operation because the board found the expansion would violate seven siting criteria (see related story).

Although opponents view a landfill as a threat to the health and safety of the townspeople — to Barry it fills a universal need.

"It's all part of us. How many here haven't had a new roof or expanded deck?" Barry asked referring to the construction and demolition debris that the landfill accepts.

"No one ever said 'a facility like this isn't needed.' "

Wanted: more citizens for train committee

Selectmen put out the call again this week for interested citizens to apply for spots on the "Citizen" Greenbush Mitigation Committee (not to be confused with the "Staff" Greenbush Mitigation Committee, which consists of town officials and one citizen at large).

Selectmen intend that the citizen-at-large on the seven-member Citizen Committee will serve as chair of that committee which is supposed to hold two open forums to solicit residents' concerns and report back to the Staff Committee, which will report to selectmen.

So far only the following residents have applied for the Citizen committee: North Main Street resident Ed Fegreus (who serves as one of Cohasset's representatives on the state-appointed Citizens' Advisory Committee on the train), Peter H. Pearce, 23 Forest Notch, and Nancy Butler, 56 Margin St.

Selectmen said the Citizen Committee is not being appointed to open up the train debate but to solicit through two public forums residents' concerns about safety, aesthetics, traffic flow, and neighborhood and grade-crossing issues relating to the train and report those findings to the Staff Committee, which must formulate a mitigation plan to selectmen within about 75 days.

The Greenbush Mitigation Committee, which includes the police and fire chiefs, department heads and town board members was scheduled to meet at April 25 at town hall but had to reschedule because there wasn't a quorum present.

Selectmen said they were surprised there has not been more interest in the Citizen Committee because restoration of the train has been a controversial issue in town.

Health board readied to ink decision at meeting last week

By BRIAN SURETTE
Special to the Mariner

The Board of Health last week reviewed and refined its final decision on the proposed 27.5-acre expansion of the privately owned Cohasset Heights Landfill.

Board members Tom Cook and Alix White denied Cohasset Heights Landfill site assignment application Monday (see related story).

In a crowded meeting room last Thursday, board members Thomas Cook and Alix White, along with attorney Michael Leon, discussed the 50-plus page document.

Newly elected board member Kevin Ulmer did not participate in the decision process, as he was a representative of a group opposed to the expansion during the hearing process.

Leon opened the meeting by telling Cook and White their decision was a legal determination and that they were required to approve the application unless they found expansion would pose a hazard to public health and safety or was a potential danger to the environment.

Discussion focused on potential impacts, including noise, traffic, dust and air quality. But it was the subject of possible dangers to area water supplies that attracted most of the attention, with Leon saying it was paramount to protect all water supplies, both public and private.

The board briefly touched on reasons for the state Department of Environmental Protection's approval of CHL's site suitability application.

Leon said the DEP decision was made in error due to a lack of study data presented by Cohasset Heights, and he informed Cook and White they could broaden their scope of information and render a decision based on the larger body of evidence presented to them during the two-month hearing process.

"You are to set borders of magnitude," Leon told them.

White concurred, adding, "We have to go for the bigger picture."

After reviewing the decision, Cook appeared pleased. "This very well summarizes the testimony and hits all of the highlights," he said.

The tone of the board was not a comfort to CHL owner Paul Barry, who sat through the meeting with a resigned look on his face.

John McNabb, vice president of the anti-expansion group SAFE (Stop Any Further Expansion), felt the board had found at least seven areas for denial of the Cohasset Heights expansion.

Cook asked Leon if the decision was written for "lawyer-type people."

"You write this decision with an eye that someone will appeal it," Leon answered. "Either the applicant or someone else will not be happy with this, so you have to assume that a judge will review it."

Any appeal would go through the state Superior Court and will have to be filed within 30 days from the date of the board's decision.

In closing the proceedings, the board reserved the right to make additional comments on their decision right up until the moment it is announced (see related story).

Decision on common driveway held off

The Planning Board last week postponed a decision on a common driveway application by builder Mark Patrolia for Fair Oaks Lane after safety concerns were raised by abutters.

Patrolia was seeking an easement on town regulations which state that common driveways may serve only two homes. Additional homes must either have their own driveways or another access onto a main road. Fair Oaks Lane runs off of Sohier Street, and Patrolia wants to build two additional homes on the end of the lane.

Fair Oaks residents Philip and Cherie Miles, whose property encompasses the existing driveway, objected to Patrolia's plans on the basis that the proposed 8-foot width of the driveway is not wide enough for additional traffic from new development, and poses a safety concern in the event emergency vehicles require access to the area.

Speaking through their lawyer, the Mileses asked board members to require that Patrolia's driveway plans be expanded to a minimum width of 15 feet.

Chairman Al Moore agreed safety concerns were relevant, and stated the board would ask for input from the fire department before it could render a final decision on Patrolia's plans.

In addition, the board requested Patrolia have a topographical map showing the elevations of the two homes he proposes to build completed for examination by the board to determine how they would impact the area.

Moore scheduled a hearing for May 15, at which time the board will rule on Patrolia's application. In the meantime, he asked all parties to get together and try to iron out their differences so the board can render a decision favorable to all.

In other business, the board approved plans by Black Rock Road resident George McGoldrick to expand his existing garage, and appointed newly elected member Terry Atherton as the board's representative to the town's Open Space Committee.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

Louise's dedication to Girl Scouts deserves applause

Let us begin by giving a delightful lady a round of applause for a super job well done — the lady is our own Louise Smullen, and the job performed is 35 years of service to the Girl Scout organization in our town! Louise received a pin at the Patriots Trail annual dinner. All who are involved with the Girl Scout program wanted to recognize her dedication, especially Cohasset's girls, who what to say "thank you."

We must also tell you about Angela Parasi, who won the Gold Award from the Girl Scouts — she has to feel so honored and proud. It's a feat that not many are able to accomplish.

Jessica L. Jenkins, a sophomore from Cohasset who is enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences at Northwestern University, has been named to the dean's list for the winter quarter. Congrats go to you, Jessica. Glad to see your hard work paid off!

Hopefully by now everyone has heard about "Herb Day," a day set aside to honor two of Cohasset's finest gents. Herb Jason and Herb Towle are the honorees. Everyone wants to recognize them for a lifetime of commitment and service to Cohasset and its maritime history. The event will take place on Government Island in Cohasset Harbor from 2 p.m. until sunset. Enjoy singing by Lilly Sestitio, Dan Anderson's famous seafood chowder, exhibits, camaraderie and reminiscing, along with a potpourri of fun and surprises.

For more information, call Ira Stoughton at 383-0747 or Kit Bryant at 383-9094. The date to circle on your calendar is May 19, a Sunday that will surely be remembered for years to come!

Cohasset has another tiny resident in its midst — let's all welcome Madeline Ann Curley, the wonderful, brand-new baby girl born to Lauren (Bradley) and Joe Curley. Madeline was born April 19 at 2:43 a.m. She weighed seven pounds, 20 ounces and was 20-1/2 inches long. Madeline's maternal grandparents are Margaret Pitt-Bradley and Dennis Bradley of Arlington, Virg.; her paternal grandparents are Christina Edda of Clinton, Conn. and Peter Curley of Madison, Conn. We send our congrats to all of you!

While perusing the paper this week, please be sure to note the updated schedule for the spring sports season. It includes all corrections and revisions caused by the bad weather!

And while on the subject of sports, look what we found while doing a little spring cleaning — a September 1972 photo of the football breakfast that was held at the Red Lion Inn. Most of the families still live here in Cohasset. See how many you can recognize!

Hats off to Megan Rhodes, who was named to the dean's list at Curry College for the fall semester.

Heather A. Brennock has achieved dean's list for the fall semester at Westfield State College. She is majoring in elementary education.

Rhonda and Carl Young, along with his siblings, Carl and Stephanie, wish to announce the birth of Christian Joseph Young, born March 14 at 6:48 p.m. He weighed eight pounds, nine ounces. Christian's maternal grandparents are Russell and Eleanor Whitney of Cohasset; his paternal grandparents are Carl and Barbara Young of Pembroke. Congratulations to all of you!

Sr. Anne Monica Ruane, principal of Notre Dame Academy, Hingham, has announced the honor roll for the second quarter, and Cohasset is well represented! On the principal's list is Julie Catalano; Lauren Campbell, Jennifer Cellucci and Sally Hamill received first honors; and second honors recipients are Stephanie Canton, Kelleen Dwyer and Julie Smith. All of you deserve kudos. Here they are!

Last Sunday was a happy/sad occasion for Judy and Peter Kulturides. Their family had a good-bye party at the Log and Line, which has almost been home for the last 24 years! Family and friends gathered to honor them for all the things they have done — the wonderful food, laughter, love and memories that came out of that little restaurant are too numerous to mention. But everyone remembers them!

We want to wish you a happy and healthy life, and we will always be grateful to you for all the good times you and your restaurant provided. Most of all, relax in the morning!

That's the news from here. Hopefully you will have some of your own to let us in on — call me!

Fairness

Some of your neighbors need your help. Faced with state-mandated sewers, the people in the Straits Pond area of Cohasset are asking that their fellow taxpayers pick up half the tab for the projected $6.3 million project.

If your home is valued at $280,000 that would add about $50 a year to your tax bill.

We are sensitive to those who are alarmed at the town's increasing tax rate. And with another major capital project on the agenda — a new school — many feel they have reached their limit. But we hope they will consider voting yes on Saturday.

The town can no longer put off improvements and upgrades to the town's infrastructure — whether it's the water system, sewers or schools.

Public works projects benefit all taxpayers directly or indirectly.

The Straits Pond sewer project is going ahead whether or not the override passes. But we hope a dangerous precedent isn't set Saturday that would send a 'user should pay all' message which will ultimately hurt the town and could force some residents out of Cohasset.

Play ball!

Cohasset Little League Opening Day ceremonies always provide a slice of Americana. This year was no exception.

But added to the excitement Saturday were the Barnes Field upgrades and additions, including a brand-new scoreboard. More than $12,000 in donations from businesses and residents went into renovating the home of Cohasset Little League.

In this effort, everyone involved with Cohasset Little League has demonstrated how teamwork can make a difference. We take our hats off to them.

We're planning to take Little League president Bob Moody's advice and stop by to catch an evening game and sample one of Hugh Morgan's famous sandwiches. Hope to see you there!

'Let's not weaken our resolve'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Re: Cohasset Heights limited appeal costs

To the Editor:

The Board of Health has voted to deny the application of Cohasset Heights Limited (CHL) to expand its private landfill.

Cohasset Heights' owner has indicated a number of times throughout the process that he would appeal a denial.

How much will a court appeal cost?

The appeal on this case is a "Record Review." There is no jury. No witnesses will testify. The lawyers will go to court and argue before a judge whether the Board of Health had "sufficient evidence" to make their decision.

The town's attorney will be able to point to the two months of hearings printed in 19 volumes of testimony containing 3,324 pages from the 67 witnesses and the 144 exhibits. One exhibit contains 38 violations by CHL. The record contains an overwhelming amount of evidence about the current severe adverse impacts caused by the present facility, the danger of continued adverse impacts in the future and that CHL is a danger to the health, safety and environment in Cohasset.

The main expense of this case was the hearing. The work for the appeal has basically been done. The cost of defense of a "Record Review" is a fraction of what has already been spent on presenting live expert testimony. Defense costs are a necessary part of the investment in the protection of our water supply and public health.

After all the time, effort and finances that have been utilized to obtain this denial, now is not the time to weaken our resolve.

Cohasset Youth Baseball says thank you

To the Editor:

On behalf of Cohasset Youth Baseball Association I would like to thank the Board of Selectmen, the Department of Public Works, the Tree, Park and Cemetery Department, the Police and Fire Departments, Steve Wigmore and Glenn Pratt for helping to make last Saturday's Little League Parade a success.

I would also like to thank the many townspeople who came out to watch our future Hall of Famers march so proudly through town. I greatly appreciate the support the town has shown towards our program over the years.

I would like to invite everyone to swing by the Barnes Field and see the many improvements that have just been completed. Please be sure to catch an evening game and see our new scoreboard which was so generously donated by The Hingham Institution for Savings. While you're there don't forget to stop by our snack bar and have one of Hugh Morgan's famous sandwiches.

Finally, I would like to thank our State Representative Mary Jennette Murray for finding the time in her busy schedule to help open up the season by throwing out the first pitch.

Brook cleanup help appreciated

To the Editor:

Early on the morning of Tuesday, April 23, 70 people gathered in the Cohasset High School auditorium to get ready for the James Brook Cleanup. Among the group of volunteers were students, teachers and members of the community. Mr. Gainor, one of two representatives from the Mosquito Control Board who participated in the activities, spoke about the risk of eastern encephalitis and the importance of clearing the area around James Brook. Removing natural and human-made debris from the water helps keep the water moving, thereby preventing the existence of stagnant water serves as breeding grounds for mosquitoes. By the end of the day ten loads of debris along with trash bags full of litter were removed from our three sites along James Brook. Students worked alongside teachers and members of the community to make a difference in the environment on this National Day of Service.

We, along with the Mosquito Control Board, The Massachusetts National and Community Service Commission, and the Conservation Commission are pleased with the results of the project. An equal amount of work, however, preceded the clean-up. We spent a lot of time writing letters and looking for support within and without the school. The Massachusetts National and

Override is cost-effective solution

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

I wish to respond to recent letters to the editor that express a negative attitude toward the proposed Straits Pond Wastewater Collection System.

I am alarmed by the number of people who view the Straits Pond environmental problem as a neighborhood rather than a town issue. Straits Pond is owned by the whole town, and Straits Pond is not Cohasset's only environmental problem to be solved. The current proposal to divide the costs between the users, the town and the state is fair. When a town starts dividing itself into a collection of special-interest groups with a users-pay-all mentality, community spirit becomes undermined, and people start competing with each other, instead of caring about and supporting each other.

It is true that this new sewer will serve only Straits Pond area residents. However, when the existing Cohasset treatment plant is expanded and upgraded in a couple of years, Straits Pond residents will be paying for a portion of that project which benefits much of the downtown area. Each group that benefits from a single project also has its turn in paying for the projects that do not benefit it. This is called teamwork.

Please vote "YES" on May 4 for the Proposition 2-1/2 override; it is the most cost-effective solution, and it will provide for a clean, environmentally safe Straits Pond that benefits everyone.

Sharing sewer costs is fair solution

To the Editor:

This is in response to a flyer distributed by Cohasset Concerned Taxpayers regarding the Cohasset sewer issue, to be voted on Saturday, May 4. It relates to the question of "fairness."

1. How "fair" is it to hand someone a $26,000 sewer bill ($16,000 for the sewer and $10,000 useage over 20 years) when their current septic system works fine?

2. How "fair" is it to ask someone to pay 100 percent of their own sewer project, when they've been paying part of the downtown sewer project for almost 20 years?

3. How "fair" is it for a town to mandate a sewer project and not participate in its cost?

4. How "fair" is it to compare the average cost of upgrading a septic system in Cohasset ($15,000) to a $26,000 sewer expense?

5. How "fair" is it to suggest this is an "incredible value" because sewered homes will increase in value? The market dictates home values and sewers are just one of the factors contributing to the value.

Finally, nobody wants higher taxes.

But is it "fair" to ask 350 homes to absorb a $6.6 million mandated municipal project which benefits the whole town?

Please vote "yes" on Saturday, May 4.

New school costs discussion warranted

Dear Selectmen Chairman:

I recommend that you schedule a discussion on what was learned with the $180,000 that we spent doing the new Osgood School site assessment.

Previous to that work, I attended a school facilities meeting at which it became apparent to me why the school lobbies were unwilling to explain the components of their $9.85 million cost estimate. Specifically, Superintendent Hart and Bob Beggan acknowledged that because they had not done the site assessment, they couldn't risk being specific, nor could they use anything other than the maximum reimbursable factor authorized by the state: $143/square foot.

While detailed plans may not yet be available, we have the right to know whether the $9.85 million was in the ballpark, or whether it was low or high.

As you know, the scandalous cut-off of discussion precluded any answers to these questions at Town Meeting.

None of us want to see a repeat of the Hingham cost overrun fiasco.

Excel benefit a success

To the Editor:

Thank you for giving so much publicity to Ross Sherbrooke's lecture on cruising in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. While it was put on by the Cohasset Yacht Club, it was a benefit for Jack Buckley's Excel program at the high school.

This is a worthy cause, and allied to the interests of the yacht club. We are glad to be able to give something back to the community. As of Friday evening, it looks like a full house. Thanks for helping to make it happen.

Community Service Commission awarded us a $200 grant which was used to feed the hungry workers and to pay for substitute teachers. We were pleased with the number of voices that rose up from the people in support of our cause.

We would like to thank all of the organizations and individuals from our community who helped make such a wonderful day possible. We hope that people will applaud what this group has accomplished. Furthermore, we hope that everyone can make an honest effort to make every day Earth Day and every moment an opportunity to respect and protect our environment. So maybe the next time you pass that plastic cup sitting by the roadside, you will think of our crusade, take two seconds to pick it up, and join in our efforts to keep the beautiful town of Cohasset free from the dangers of waste. Murray announces candidacy for re-election

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) has announced she is a candidate for re-election to her seat in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. The veteran lawmaker will run for an 11th term representing the 3rd Plymouth District, which is comprised of the towns of Cohasset, Hingham and Hull.

"I want to continue serving the people of Cohasset, Hingham and Hull," said Murray. "Representing the interests of my constituents in the 3rd Plymouth District has been my top priority, and I wish to continue that important job on Beacon Hill."

Her legislative priorities include increased local aid, tax reform, improving public safety, and reducing the size and cost of state government. She also opposes legalizing casino gambling.

"There is a lot of work left to do at the State House," said Murray. "We must upgrade our state's seaport and correctional facilities and provide local aid to our communities, while keeping taxes in line. We must also keep casino gambling from coming into Massachusetts because it will not provide long-term economic benefits."

Representative Murray is the ranking member of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Local Affairs and on the Joint Committee on Counties. She was first elected to the House in 1976, and previously served as a Cohasset Selectmen, and a member of the Cohasset Housing Authority.

Rep. Murray also served on the Human Services Committee and the Committee on Taxation, as well as the Ethics Committee. She served as Chairman of the Special Commission to investigate structural problems at the University of Massachusetts, Boston Campus under Former Speaker George Kevarian.

She is a member of the Special Commission on Veterans, the MWRA Caucus, the Elderly Caucus of the House of Representatives, the Literacy Caucus the South Shore Legislators' Caucus, and the Southeastern Massachusetts Legislative Caucus.

Yes vote on override urged

To the Editor:

We reside on Straits Pond and have since 1959, and are currently are under a state mandate to force all of us to be put on a sewer system.

The problem if the override fails, is that those who live in the "state designated" area will pay for 100 percent of the cost for this "improvement."

When did we in this town force the "recipients" of a town program to pay 100 percent of the cost?

1. When people have no children in the school system do they not pay for the schools? Do they not pay for school bus transportation?

2. When we all have to pay to cap the landfill do we consider that some homeowners have very, very little to dispose off? But they have to pay for it.

3. When a certain section of town road needs new asphalt, new storm drains or new road signs, don't we all pay for it?

4. When the "middle" section of town is forced to have sewage, don't we all pay for it?

5. When residents are "fighting" a legal matter, don't we all have to pay for it, whether it would affect them or their immediate neighborhood?

6. When the police or fire department are needed in one section of town more than others, don't we all pay for it?

7. Did we ever, ever vote to force the homeowner who needs more sand on his road in winter to pay for more sand? More plowing? More road maintenance?

Do we think it is wise that something the town needs (state mandated) be paid for by only a few?

Please let us not forget the 99 percent vote that the people in town voted for at the Town Meeting regarding this amendment.

As caring people we hope Cohasset votes for "total town responsibility" and "fairness" on Saturday, May 4. We hope the large majority will vote YES!

Forman, Teague to speak at May 16 forum

Julie Guild, chairman of the Cohasset GOP Town Committee, announced the group's annual dinner will be held Thursday, May 16, for all South Shore towns. Featured speakers will be Plymouth County Sheriff Peter Forman, former Minority Leader, of Plymouth and present Minority Leader and congressional candidate Ed Teague of Yarmouth.

Patriot Ledger State House correspondent Carolyn Ryan will moderate the forum, which will be held at Walton Rodgers' Hall of St. Stephen's Church on historic Cohasset Common. GOP leaders will discuss GOP prospects and issues in 1996. A social hour will be held at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. A $15 donation is requested.

All South Shore residents are invited to attend. Also invited are District Attorney Michael Sullivan of Abington, County Commissioner candidates Peter Paulding of Plymouth, and Chuck Toupence of Pembroke, and candidate for Treasurer Matt Striggles of Bridgewater. Sen. Robert Hedlund of Weymouth, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset, County Commissioner Bob Stone of Whitman and Norfolk County Treasurer Ob Hall of Needham have also been invited.

Reservations may be made by calling Avis Sweeney (383-1184), Polly Logan (383-0031) or Carl Harris (749-7167).

Cohasset Common listed on National Register

The Cohasset Common Historic District is the town's latest addition to the listing in the prestigious National Register of Historic Places.

The Common District ,which extends along North Main Street from Depot Court to Sohier Street and includes all of Highland Avenue, joins Cohasset's Government Island and the Caleb Lothrup House in receiving the honorary designation from the National Park Service.

"We share with you a sense of pride that the Cohasset Common Historic District" has been listed, said Massachusetts secretary of state William F. Galvin in a letter to David Wadsworth of the Cohasset Historical Commission.

The Common District includes the 1713 Joseph Bates house, the 1722 Unitarian Parish house, the 1747 Meetinghouse, the 1824 Second Congregational Church, the 1857 Town Hall, and the 1900 St. Stephen's Church. Architecture includes the Georgian, Federal, and Greek Revival styles.

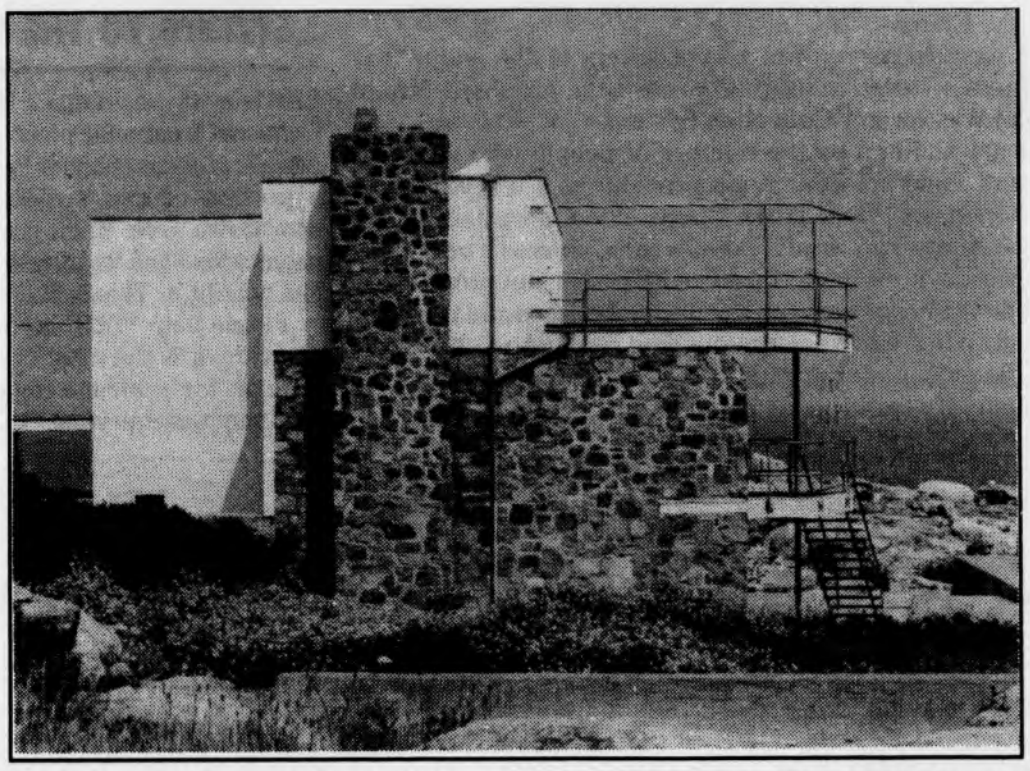
Placing the district on the National Register does not place additional restrictions on homeowners. The district is already regulated by the Cohasset Common Historic District Commission. An additional review of a building project would occur only if federal funds are involved or a federal permit were needed. Members of the Massachusetts Historical Commission met with residents last August to allay any concerns about the national designation.

A Cohasset home at 357 Atlantic Ave. designed by world-famous architect Walter Gropius may be the next Cohasset listing, Wadsworth said.

Gropius' international style of architecture played a major role in the evolution of modern American architecture, according to Wadsworth. The Cohasset house, built in 1939, is considered to one of four that established the International style of Gropius in this country.

American architects later adapted aspects of Gropius' style, such as flat roofs, box-like structures, and functional designs. Born in Berlin in 1883, Gropius founded the famous Bauhaus school of architecture. He left his homeland after becoming unhappy with the Nazi government.

The historical commission filed an application in the spring of 1995 to have the Gropius house listed. Once an application is filed, the review process can take upwards of 18 months, Wadsworth explained.



This Cohasset home at the north end of Sandy Beach was designed by world-famous architect Walter Gropius and may be the next Cohasset property to be listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Kindergarten cut-off extended for Charter School

The state's Executive Office of Education approved a charter amendment for the South Shore Charter School that will allow students to enter kindergarten before the age of 5.

In many local public schools including Hingham and Cohasset, students entering Kindergarten must be five years of age prior to September 1. The cut-off date is decided by local school boards.

The wavier granted by state Secretary of Education Michael J. Sentance will allow students at the South Shore Charter School enter kindergarten as long as they are five years old by December 31.

According to South School Charter School Headmaster Timothy Anderson the 17- member board of trustees that governs the school requested the charter amendment after several parents complained about arbitrary cut-off dates that prevent some students who are ready for kindergarten before their fifth birthday from starting school.

But according to Hingham Supt. of Schools Gary Baker Ph.D. early education teachers in town feel strongly about the Sept. 1 cut-off and say that students that start school too early can face problems later.

Cohasset Supt. of Schools Stephen Hart agreed. Like Hingham, Cohasset too changed its kindergarten cut-off date from Dec. 31, to Sept. 1 several years ago, and Hart said the school department is comfortable with this policy.

When asked if having this extension gives the competing public charter school an unfair advantage over neighboring public schools, Baker said it is just another example of the extent of flexibility charter schools have been given.

"I don't think anyone has claimed that there has been a level playing field," he said, noting that Charter schools are not required to have a governing school committee or teacher contracts.

"There is a lot more flexibility with Charter Schools than other public schools," Baker added.

And unlike kindergarten which has a specific cut-off age throughout the commonwealth, Hart noted that there is no age threshold for first graders, making it possible for a parent to send a child who's missed the Sept. 1 cut-off to the charter school at age four and re-enter Cohasset public schools in first grade at age five. In such cases or in situations where a student moves in from out of state and has already attended kindergarten at an early age, Hart said the department works with parents to be sure that students are ready, socially, emotionally and academically for first grade.

Next year's kindergarten, first, second and fifth grades have already been filled at the Charter School, said Anderson.

Applications are still being accepted on a rolling admissions basis until classes are filled for the 1996-97 academic school year, he said.

The school will be expanded to include 330 students in grades K-12 this year.

Permit sought for harbor work

The Cohasset Yacht Club is seeking permission for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to reconfigure and expand its boating facility in Cohasset Harbor. The plan calls for maintaining a 42-slip dock, boat railway and launching ramp, relocating a 20-slip spider float and installing 84 new slips.

The application for the federal permit was filed with the Engineers in compliance with Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899, which provides for federal regulation of any work in, under or over navigable waters of the United States.

To assist in evaluating the work, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than May 23. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Timothy Timmermann at the New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 424 Trapelo Road, Waltham, Mass. 02254-9149.

Treasurer/collector wording reviewed

Last week selectmen went over suggested wording for the home rule petition which will set the stage for the treasurer-collector's position to be appointed rather than elected.

Town meeting approved the change once the current three-year term expires. Linden Drive resident Joseph Buckley, who won a three-way race for the position in the April 6 town election, supports moving the position to an appointed one once his term ends.

Poster contest announced

The South Shore Community Center has announced a call for entries for its first annual school poster contest. The contest, entitled "Color It Community," is open to all South Shore schoolchildren in grades 1-6.

The purpose of the contest is to highlight the importance of the family and community, and posters may depict any aspect of "community."

Complete contest rules have been mailed to private and public schools on the South Shore. Winners will receive $150 certificates toward the purchase of a bicycle of their choice. The deadline submissions is May 17.

Winners will be notified by phone, and awards will be presented during a special ceremony at Harborfest on Cohasset Common on June 15. For additional contest or Harborfest information, call the SSCC at 383-0088.

South Shore Community Center offers spring classes

South Shore Community Center is offering classes this spring.

Helping to celebrate Vi Tuthill's 92nd birthday are Corinne Cahill (left) and Alfred Odermatt. Cahill and Odermatt also congratulated Tuthill for her 25 years of service as a volunteer with Cohasset chapter of the American Red Cross Bloodmobile. The former Summer Street resident was the chairman of the donor group for her church, Second Congregational Church, and also volunteered on bloodmobile days in the canteen. Odermatt is a past chairman of the Cohasset bloodmobile and Cahill is the current volunteer in charge of the Cohasset chapter. Mrs. Tuthill is now residing at Norwell Knoll nursing home off Rte. 53 in Norwell.

Sale to benefit service project

Donations of unwanted furniture, art work, boats, books, knick-knacks and other "treasures" are being sought for the Appalachia Service Project's annual yard sale, scheduled for Saturday, May 11, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Second Congregational Church.

Donated items may be dropped off at the church, located next to town hall on Cohasset Common, any weekday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., or evenings on Wednesday, May 8, and Thursday, May 9, from 7 to 9 p.m. Pick-ups can be arranged by calling Ami Argus at 383-9325.

ASP also welcomes donations of construction tools. Black & Decker has offered to rebuild or replace any old or broken B&D tools.

All proceeds will benefit the 1996 Appalachia Service Project this summer, when 84 Cohasset high school students and adult advisers will travel to Appalachia to repair homes for needy families.

Herb Day party

Herb Day, honoring Herb Jason and Herb Towle for a lifetime of commitment and service to Cohasset and its maritime history, is planned for Sunday, May 19, from 2 p.m. to sunset on Government Island, Cohasset Harbor.

There will be singing by Lilly Sestitio, Dan Anderson's famous seafood chowder, exhibits, along with other fun-filled activities and surprises.

For more information, call Ira Stoughton at 383-0747 or Kit Bryant at 383-9094.

Managed care forum May 22

The Cohasset Elder Affairs' SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders) program is sponsoring a forum on HMOs and managed care on Wednesday, May 22, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Lightkeeper's House on Government Island.

The meeting will provide an opportunity to learn about HMOs and the concept of managed care and how it affects Medicare benefits. Speakers will include Diane Paulson, lead attorney of Greater Boston Elderly Legal Services, Medicare Advocacy Project; John May, representative of Mass. Association of Health Maintenance Organizations; and Monica Henderson, health insurance specialist of the Health Care Financing Administration, Office of Managed Care.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling 383-9116. Coffee and refreshments will be served.

Force concert set

Force Productions, a local production company comprised of local musicians, will present an all-ages concert featuring six local bands on Friday, May 3, at Cohasset High School, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The concert will feature Blind VR, Drain, Fun In The Kitchen, Stick Figure Stanley and J-Base. Bands will have merchandise available, and refreshments will be served.

Admission is $5 at the door, with a portion of the proceeds to benefit the CHS rowing team. Doors open at 6 p.m. Call 748-9727 or 824-7680 for details. For directions to CHS, call 383-6110.

Teen Center news

There will be an open house at the Cohasset Teen Center for all 6th graders and their parents from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m., Friday, May 10.

Come and see the center and meet the directors! Board members of Cohasset Youth Resources, Inc. will also be on hand. Juice and baked goods will be served. The Teen Center is at 24 South Main St. in the old Independence Building.

All Paws event is planned

All Paws Rescue is planning its fourth anniversary celebration to help homeless animals and to build All Paws Rescue House, on Sunday, May 19, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Wompatuck State Park, Hingham. Another goal of the celebration is to strengthen the All Paws Humane Education Program.

Activities will include "Paws on Parade," a one-mile walk through scenic Wompatuck Park, led by All Paws "alumni"; a pet show; "Best Friends" photo contest; field trials and demonstrations, fingerprinting of young children for their parents' personal files, courtesy of the Plymouth County Sheriff's Department; and music, clowns, pony rides and facepainting. Refreshments will be available.

For further information, call 749-0968.

Join Harborfest parade!

The annual Harborfest Parade will take place on Sunday, June 16. The parade signifies the link between Cohasset Harbor and the Town Common as residents "Bless the Fleet" and parade to the Common for the annual Chowder Festival, which will culminate the Harborfest celebration.

The theme for this year's parade is "Cohasset's Maritime Heritage," and cash prizes for this year's floats are $250 for first place; $150, second place; and $75 for third place, with two special prizes of $50 each.

Jim Lagrotteria and Bob Martin of the Harborfest Committee have developed a float kit for anyone interested in using a pickup truck as a float vehicle. Through the generosity of Hingham Lumber Co., most framework materials will be provided.

Simple floats are the order of the day for the Norman Rockwell-style parade, and may be fabricated in one day with little or no expense and unlimited imagination. Harborfest celebrates the community, and the event is enhanced by the participation of the town's many organizations and neighborhood associations.

Anyone wishing to participate is asked to call Jim at 383-9385 or Bob at 383-0648.

Plants for sale on May 11

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will host a "Not Your Ordinary" Plant Sale on Saturday, May 11, at 9 a.m. in the Lighthouse Keepers' Cottage, Border Street, rain or shine.

A large variety of gardeners' choice plants will be featured, including perennials, small trees, ground covers, herbs, ornamental grasses and annuals.

Of special interest will be many uncommon and hard-to-find perennials.

Proceeds will benefit the club's many civic projects and the scholarship fund. Complimentary coffee will be offered.

Garden Club annual lunch

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset held a meeting on Tuesday, April 23, at Walton Rodgers Hall in St. Stephen's Church.

The meeting began with a President's Tea at noon, followed by a lecture at 1 p.m. by naturalist and photographer Joy Viola, who talked about wildlife and wildflowers of the Aleutian Islands. All Garden Club members are welcome.

The Garden Club will hold its annual luncheon on Tuesday, May 28, at the Chart House. The speaker will be floral designer Cindora Goldberg. Tickets are available by calling Mary Sullivan at 383-1295.

Social Service League to meet

The Social Service League of Cohasset will hold its Annual Meeting and Luncheon Tuesday, May 7, at 11 a.m. in Walton Rodgers' Hall, St. Stephen's Church.

The program, entitled, "Winslow Homer Retrospective," will be presented by Mary Robinson. For further information, call 383-0771 or 383-0821.

Paul Pratt Library Corner

Book sale to start

A used book sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday, May 10 & 11 and from 2 to 5 p.m., Sunday, May 12 at the Paul Pratt Library.

The books that are left after the sale will be given away.

The sale is sponsored by the Friends of the Paul Pratt Library with proceeds to benefit the library. Thousands of donated books and library discards will be sold for 50 cents each.

Library news is noted

Don't miss Eleanor LeBlanc's art exhibit which runs through July 7. The new Apple computer has arrived for the children's room. The volunteer recognition evening is June 20 at the home of Barbara and Jeff Power.

$7,000 approved for air-conditioning

Town Meeting, by unanimous vote, approved spending $7,000 to air-condition the staff offices at the library. Approval of air-conditioning for the entire library will be considered this fall.

Special thanks goes to Sheila S. Evans, chairman of the Paul Pratt Library board of trustees, for all her efforts to ensure a comfortable, cool library during the summer.

Newfoundland cruise talk a hit

Saturday, April 27, yachtsman Ross Sherbrooke entertained members of the Cohasset Yacht Club and friends of the ExCel rowing program at the Cohasset High School with a video presentation of his sailing adventures in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island over the last three years.

Most of the ports on the South Coast of Newfoundland are connected to the rest of the world only by the sea and by microwave. There are no roads for several hundred miles. The small ports were devastated by the fishing ban. In some ports the only jobs are held by government workers. Others have been abandoned completely.

"It's eerie sailing into this beautiful harbor and finding no one there — only us chickens," said Sherbrooke.

Sherbrooke's pictures of the magnificent Newfoundland scenery — steep mountains falling sheer into the water — contrasted sharply with the low, sandy, thinly populated but equally remote Magdalen Islands, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. His talk gave a great sense of being there.

The lecture was given to raise money for the ExCel program at Cohasset High School, which need materials for restoring a lifesaving surfboat. Jack Buckley, director of the ExCel program, said, "This event will go far to help us achieve our goals for the kids."

Montessori School celebrates May Day

Old Colony Montessori School will hold a May Day Celebration on Saturday, May 4, from noon to 1 p.m. at Brewer Reservation, Hobart Street, Hingham.

All are welcome to participate in a fun-filled hour of song and dance, ending with a traditional May Pole "ribbon-weaving" dance by the junior class.

Participants are asked to park on the street and walk through the forest to the field. Volunteers are needed to bring refreshments. Raindate is Saturday, May 11, at noon.

Village effort gets thumbs up

Selectmen told Dean Rizzo of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce that they are enthusiastic about the chamber's efforts to spearhead a village revitalization effort.

Rizzo has conducted three meetings so far and is establishing a task force including merchants, citizens, landlords and business people to help formulate an action plan to help the village.

Selectman Peter Pratt asked Town Administrator Gregory Doyon to investigate the possibility of applying for some state grant money through the open space bill which could possibly be used for planning or infrastructure such as sidewalks.

Selectmen said they would set up a meeting with the sewer commission, historical commission, council on elder affairs, the chamber and public at large to discuss the village and what can be done.

In the meantime, Rizzo said the task force would continue to meet and push forward with a plan to improve the village and make it more attractive for shoppers and merchants.

The Comeback Kids

Laxmen rally from 5-0 deficit to beat Barnstable

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

The Barnstable High lacrosse team learned an important lesson in its 10-9 loss to Cohasset on Tuesday: The Skippers may sometimes be down, but it's dangerous to rule them out.

Maybe it was the long bus ride to the Cape or some other unknown factor, but Cohasset (3-3) limped its way to a 5-0 deficit by the end of just the first period, unable to spark any life into its offense along the way. With a "non-existent defense" according to head coach Ken Ekberg, Barnstable was able to use its patented drives down the middle of the field to take the seemingly unsurmountable lead.

However, it was the Skippers who decided they had enough of being treated like unwelcome guests and tightened up their defense in the second period. Cohasset worked hard to gain as many possessions as possible and closed the middle of the field

Skippers take two of three on diamond

The Cohasset Skippers varsity baseball team continued its odyssey which will hopefully result in a berth in the state tourney. Playing five games in as many days, the Skippers finished off last week with three games against Scituate, Provincetown and Norwell. With a tiring pitching staff to juggle, head coach Ron Ford faced a challenge against the Skippers' rivals.

Against Scituate on Wednesday, Cohasset pulled out a 3-2 victory, largely due to a game-breaking double by freshman Al Schwerin. Schwerin, who was called upon by Ford to step up from the JV level and compete for the the varsity squad, has performed quite well. Schwerin has shown poise beyond his years at the plate. Greg Stevens hurled for Cohasset, throwing seven complete innings in what may have been his strongest outing of the season.

Provincetown's game looked as if it would be a tougher one because the Skippers had already handed the Fisherman a 13-10 loss at Chatham over the weekend. However, the Skippers overcame this and, behind the arm of eighth-grader Joe Pergola, who allowed only three hits, dealt the Fishermen their second loss in less than a week to the boys in blue.

Unfortunately, the Skippers' luck, along with the weather, didn't hold against Norwell on Friday. Playing in cold conditions which later turned rainy, Cohasset fell to the visiting Clippers, which had a starting nine comprised of eight seniors and one junior. Cohasset started two seniors, three juniors and five freshmen. The Skippers also had to compete with the weather. Rain came down in spurts, forcing three rain delays, including a ludicrous stall of 30 seconds. Despite home runs from Mike Dunphy, Kevin McKenna and Greg Taylor, Cohasset couldn't keep pace with Norwell, which is having an excellent season. Eric Henry threw several quality innings for Ford and catcher Rob Buckley came up with some key hits for the home team.

Cohasset had two games scheduled this Monday and Tuesday, but both were rained out, creating further havoc for athletic directors and pitching staffs all over the South Shore.

Softball registration set for May 5

Girls softball sign-ups and evaluation day will take place on Sunday, May 5 in front of Cohasset High School.

Girls in Division 1 (grades 3-4) can register and perform the basic skills of throwing, catching and hitting from 1-2:30 p.m. Older girls in Division 2 (grades 5-6) can sign up and attend an evaluation clinic from 2:30-4 p.m.

All girls should wear comfortable clothes and bring a glove. Interested girls who are unable to attend the clinic should call Susan Carr at 383-0331 in order to be placed on a team. Softball season will officially begin on May 21 and end with a jamboree pizza-pool party on June 30.

Summer youth hockey sign-ups slated for Saturday

Sign-ups for the Cohasset Blue Devils will be held Saturday, May 4, from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at Deer Hill School. This will be the only sign-up.

The summer team is designed for existing Peewee players and Squirts who are moving up. The cost of the registration is $15. This is a tryout team, and players will be notified regarding the time of their tryout.

Barnes upgrades score on opening day

Moody said. "But they can't open it for a week."

Although last Saturday marked the beginning of the Little League season in Cohasset, the first official game won't be played until this Saturday morning. Newly-laid sod must set and last minute work still has to be done on the field. Then it's play ball.

Probably the biggest addition to the field is the electronic scoreboard, the $3,000 in funds for which were donated by the Hingham Institute of Savings. The fully functional board replaces the wooden scoreboard which used to be situated in the same area as its modern replacement. Covered in plastic, the scoreboard was set up two weeks ago and wiring was completed last week so it would be ready for opening day.

Gone too is the Harold Barnes Field sign that was erected several years ago at the entrance to the parking area. A handsome sign has been attached to the concession stand, replacing the aging wooden structure. Moody believes it to be a perfect location.

"It looks like it belongs there to begin with," he said.

Work on the field was done by Tomasi Landscaping, which used a Little League engineer to ensure the proper measurements of the diamond. Sod was laid in the 25-foot area behind home plate, as well as cuts around the bases. A warning track of crushed stone was evenly spread around both dugouts and the wooden backstop was replaced by a chain-link fence.

For the players' safety, on-deck circle cages were built just outside the fencing near each dugout. The cages will ensure the on-deck batter won't accidently hit another player or coach with a bat while taking his practice swings.

Moody said two sets of aluminum bleachers will replace the wooden bleachers that were formerly used by spectators. The new bleachers were shipped last week from Ohio and are expected to be put in this week.

Moody credited the community and businesses for the improvements done on the field. Not only does it reflect well on the league, Moody also believes it says a lot for Cohasset on the whole.

"As soon as I walked on the field everyone was telling me how good the field looked," he said. "It makes a statement when people come into town. It shows people we care about our kids."

And the aesthetics of the field can't help but be appreciated by passersby.

"People slow down and some pull in and park to look at the field," Moody said.

The parade itself was an event in itself. Players marched in their colored uniforms with Glenn Pratt following behind in his antique fire truck. Riding on the truck was last year's Little League champion Rangers squad.

Leo Fiori presented the second annual Leo J. Fiori Award to the Lehr-Barnes Insurance Company, recognizing it as the business which has financially supported Little League over the years.

Hingham Institute of Savings Bank President Robert Gaughen accepted a plaque in recognition of the donation for the electronic scoreboard.

Other businesses which played a part in the field's renovation included Barry Waste Services, South Shore Sand and Gravel, Little Harbor Electric, Granite City Electric, Hancock Paint, Russel D. Field & Sons, Hassan Sign and South Shore Fencing.

Laxmen rally from 5-0 deficit

where Barnstable was thriving in the first.

Then the offense began a controlled march to assert itself in the game. Andy Collins, Jamie Buick, John Lax, Chris McKenna and Dave Noble all scored for the Skippers to bring them within a goal. Ken Leahy, who finished with a hat trick and four assists then tied the game 6-6 by halftime.

"He really just took over," said Ekberg of Leahy. "He's the guy who makes stuff happen out there."

Goaltender Ely Kahn was as sharp as he has been all season, turning away 23 Barnstable shots, many of them point-blank scoring chances to frustrate the bigger of the two squads.

Ekberg has never been one to be tight-lipped when it comes to penalties. And although he wasn't thrilled with the four consecutive penalties called on Cohasset in the fourth period, he said they were more the result of aggressive play in his squad's attempt to swarm Barnstable when it had possession of the ball.

Ekberg was extremely pleased with the way the Skippers didn't let down after falling behind so early in the game.

"The comeback today really showed me something about these kids," he said. "I'm definitely encouraged. I don't remember too many teams which have come back from 5-0 in the first period."

The manner in which the Skippers won should serve as a definite confidence builder for them as well. Cohasset played tight games against Duxbury and Weymouth, only to wind up on the losing end. The Skippers are looking to carry their momentum into Friday's game against Falmouth and Marshfield next Wednesday.

"They worked very hard on groundballs," Ekberg said. "We made an adjustment at the crease and that was a big help to us."

Cohasset was the one to strike hardest in last Friday's meeting with Hingham. The Skippers took a 3-1 lead, but some tough penalties and the Harbormen clamping down on defense turned the two-goal lead to a two-goal deficit (5-3) by the half. Hingham forced Cohasset to throw the ball away and give it up while clearing it out of its zone.

"They just beat us," Ekberg said. "It wasn't a matter of us losing."

Lax led the way with a pair of goals and an assist, while Buick, McKenna, Leahy, Kevin Smith and Bob Stansell also came up with tallies for the Skippers.

Tai Chi offered

The South Shore Community Center is offering Tai Chi for beginners and advanced students. It is a form class which promotes health, balance, relaxation, and flexibility through slow, fluid movements. Please call 383-0088.

SSH hosts golf tournament

The seventh annual South Shore Hospital golf tournament will be held Monday, June 3, at Hatherly Country Club, North Scituate. Proceeds will support hospital programs and services that are available free of charge to the community. In 1995, SSH provided $7.3 million in care to those unable to pay for services.

Last year's tournament raised $46,000 to help support the hospital's new cardiac catheterization laboratory. Corporate sponsorship opportunities are available. Call Jill McDonough at South Shore Health and Educational Foundation at 340-8848 for more information or to register. Hingham resident Dick Dempsey is chairman of the tournament.

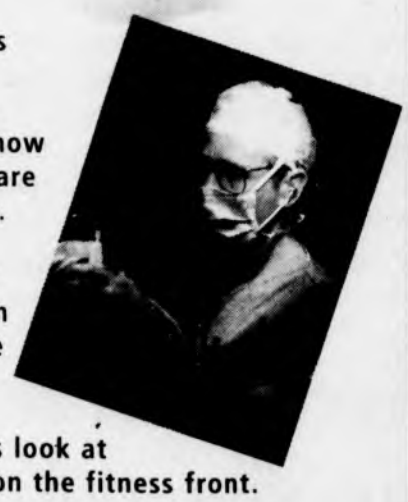
Health & Fitness

Putting the focus on wellness.

Community Newspaper Company's Health and Fitness section will be arriving in your local newspaper the week of May 20th.

This special section is designed to focus on the issues affecting our lives.

We'll look at everything from how to choose an HMO to how to care for your aging parent.



We'll consider the changing trends in childbirth and the latest developments in laser surgery, as well as look at what's happening on the fitness front.

Osgood pupils study birds

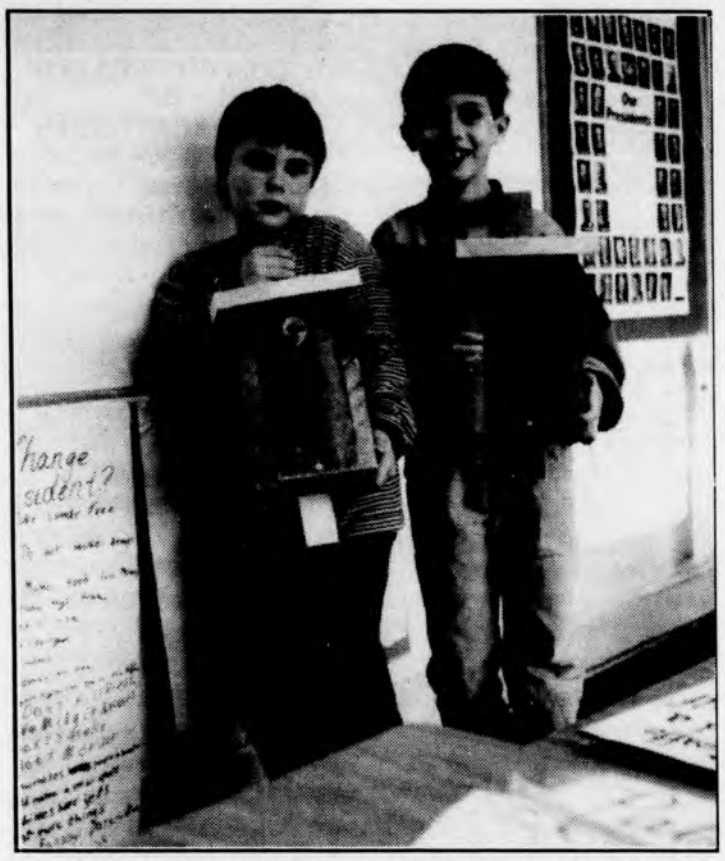
For several months this year, second-grade students at Joseph Osgood Elementary School have studied about birds. In addition to their classroom work, they have been using the nature trail on the school property, listening for bird calls and looking for signs of bird activity.

During the week of March 19, second-graders built a bird nesting box. Elementary schools have a partnership with Mass. Audubon Society, which provides a school naturalist who works with elementary classes throughout the year. The school naturalist program was made possible by a generous grant from the Cohasset Education Foundation.

Audubon naturalist Ellyn Einhorn instructed students in the building of nesting boxes and provided the nails and seven pre-cut pieces of wood. Twenty-five hammers were donated by Georgine Butman, and parent volunteers and Audubon helpers worked with small groups of students as they constructed the bird homes. An information sheet for parents was tucked inside each box.

Einhorn discussed the kinds of birds that would make their nests in the boxes, along with the safest and most appropriate locations for them.

Second-graders had smiling faces as they left school with their nesting boxes, which would offer a safe nesting site for area birds.



Second-graders Nathan Roberts and Michael Martone show the nesting boxes they built as part of a joint program with the Mass. Audubon Society, which provides a school naturalist who works with elementary classes. The program was made possible through a grant from the Cohasset Education Foundation.

Gala art opening is May 14

Deer Hill School will host a Gala Art Opening Tuesday, May 14, at 7 p.m. The art show, entitled "Favorites 1996," represents the artwork of all Deer Hill students, who have chosen their favorite artwork of the year. There will be refreshments and music. All are invited to attend.

Deer Hill School will also celebrate the grand unveiling of a permanent clay installation created by DHS sixth-grade students, along with displays from Deer Hill's recent artist-in-residency program with dancer Nikki Hu and composer Guy Van Duser.

For additional information, art teacher Ann Berman at DHS, 383-6115.

Pupils exhibit at Audubon

Art students at Joseph Osgood School in grades 1-3 are having an Art Exhibit, "Colorful Nature . . . Colorful Art," at the Massachusetts Audubon Center, Route 3A. The exhibit represents all creative art students and runs from May 6-16.

Active parenting series continues this week

Parents can learn how to raise cooperative, responsible children by watching "Active Parenting Today" on cable TV. The The series begins this week.

"Understanding Your Children" will introduce viewers to the "Four Goals of Behavior" on May 6 at 9 p.m. and May 8 at 7:30 p.m.

"Developing Responsibility" will be shown on May 13 at 9 p.m. and May 15 at 7:30 p.m., showing how to use logical consequences and positive "I" messages.

On May 20 at 9 p.m. and May 22 at 7:30 p.m., "Winning Cooperation" will help parents see the importance of communication skills and problem-solving.

"Active Parenting in a Democratic Society" will show model family meetings, using five steps for active problem-solving, on May 27 at 9 p.m. and May 29 at 7:30 p.m.

The program will be broadcast on Channel 53, and is sponsored by the Health Education Department of Cohasset Public Schools.

Tobacco poster contest set

Fourth-grade students are invited to create posters that "tell the truth about tobacco" for a poster contest sponsored by the South Shore Boards of Health Collaborative Tobacco Control Program and local DARE and SAFE programs.

Posters should be no larger than 11"x14". Students should write their name, address, telephone number and school on the back of the poster. All participants receive certificates and smoke-free cards.

The first-place poster from each town will be published in a 1997 South Shore Tobacco Free calendar. First-, second- and third-place winners will receive T-shirts and water bottles. All posters will be displayed in students' towns during the week prior to "World No Tobacco Day" on May 31.

For further information, call (617) 829-4301.

PSO spring meeting set

The PSO annual spring meeting will take place on Tuesday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Dr. Katherine Adair Steiner from the Gilligan School of Harvard University will speak on "Adolescence!"

Astronomy at Deer Hill

Rolf Egon, president of the South Shore Astronomical Association, visited Deer Hill School to present a slide show of current photographs of the wonders of the solar system.

Fifth-graders enjoyed hearing true stories of meteorites that had landed in various locations in the United States. Egon also spoke about the comet Hyakutaki and the approaching eclipse.

John Peters of Scituate, also a member of the SSAA, spoke to fourth-grade science classes about the stars and solar system. Both students and teachers were impressed with what they learned from the two experts.

Class plans graduation activities

Cohasset High School senior class parents have organized festive year-end activities for the Class of 1996. Each year the PSO, with the help of a large group of parent volunteers, traditionally hosts a reception before the senior prom and a breakfast afterwards.

Family and friends are welcome to great prom-goers at a reception on Thursday, May 30, from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Residence. Students will travel by boat to the prom at the Boston Harbor Hotel. A breakfast will follow at midnight at Second Congregational Church.

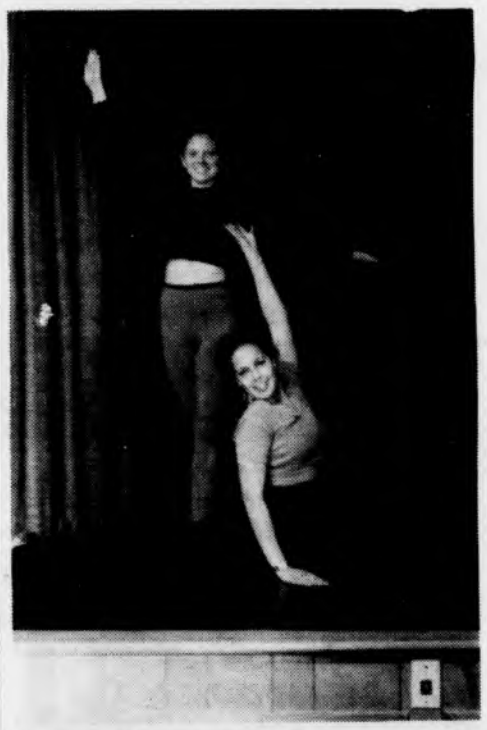
A new parent initiative this year is the creation of an A-V show, "The Way We Were," to be shown at Class Night June 6. Judy Ritts and Heidi Maitland have asked all senior class parents to collect memorable photos or videos from kindergarten to senior year, identify them and deliver them to Second Congregational Church (mail slot delivery available at any hour) by Monday, April 22. Individuals who would like to help with the video or accompanying audio are asked to call either Maitland or Ritts. All items will be returned at Class Night.

Another new idea this year is a "Class Gift" from the senior parents to CHS. Parents plan to donate a bench near the new athletic fields in memory of Rosemarie Mercurio, the mother of class president Andrea Mercurio. To join in the gesture, send a check payable to Kyle Lubitz and mail to: Kyle Lubitz, 54 Red Gate Lane, Cohasset.

Senior parents who would like to help with the senior class reception are asked to call Carol Riley or Annette Sawchuk. To assist with the breakfast, call Gail Stevens or Regina Shultz.

Senior Show was a big hit

With "We'll Get By With A Little Help From Our Friends" — the closing song from their April 12 Senior Show, which included dancing, music and skits — members and helpful friends of the 1996 graduating class of Cohasset High School managed to create a true masterpiece. Special thanks to everyone who had anything to do with it. Bravo to the high-spirited and talented seniors and to the community and warm audience who supported them. The show raised nearly $1,200 toward the senior activities fund.



Faye Menis and Patricia Bull perform in the recent Senior Show.

Katie Ross and Holly Russell are a hit in their number.

Laura Slotnick, who served as master of ceremonies, and Alli Ritts, the show director, are all smiles after the successful senior production.

Food drive is Saturday

30 families use local pantry

By CHARLENE VANDINI
Cohasset Mariner

On May 11, letter carriers from the Cohasset post office will be delivering mail as usual and, for the second year, will collect non-perishable foods for donation to the Cohasset food pantry.

Postmaster James Hooley said the letter carriers hope to repeat the success of last year's collection, when more than 1-1/2 tons of food was collected.

Food pantry volunteer Bob Thompson said that any items that residents wish to donate are greatly appreciated. When asked for suggestions for donations to the pantry, Thompson noted that if possible, the pantry prefers smaller sizes of items, and has had requests for some items, particularly from families with small children.

Thompson said the pantry can use "juice boxes" which children take to school, as well as many requests for "Spaghetti-o's," and apple juice.

The pantry can also use dry cereal,

New director finds art center is the perfect fit

By ALISON SHYER
Special to the Mariner

David Lloyd Brown, the South Shore Art Center's new executive director, took his first step into the art world at the age of 5, when he did his first painting, a seascape in oil. Since then he has never looked back.

By anyone's measuring stick, Brown, 38, has had, and continues to have, a successful career as a visual artist. He is currently showing his work in Owen/Patrick Gallery in Philadelphia and has had over a dozen solo exhibitions and been a part of 30 group shows throughout the United States since 1979.

'I wake up every day thinking, 'My gosh, I get to go to work at this wonderful place with a wonderful staff.'
— David Lloyd Brown.

He has also been teaching since he was 18, the summer before he started at Mass. College of Art. He went on to receive a master of fine arts degree from Cornell and has taught both undergraduate and graduate students at Penn State University, where he was an assistant professor for 4-1/2 years; Yale University, where he was a visiting artist; and MIT, to name a few.

But it is living and working in his studio in Boston from which Brown draws his strengths as an administrator. And he truly is surrounded by the arts: he is co-founder of the 249 A Street cooperative in South Boston, an artist-owned building of studios/residences. He is but one of 35 artists in his building.

"My experience comes from being an artist," he said, "and in the process of being involved for so long, one

North Cohasset voters may be back in the fall

By MARY FORD

Saturday's sewer vote may have failed but its supporters haven't given up.

Those leading the push in North Cohasset for sharing the cost of the project with the town — blamed confusion about the finances of the plan and the lack of leadership of town officials on its 68-vote defeat at the polls.

North Cohasset citizens say it's possible they'll try to join forces with their counterparts in the 400-430 homes in the central Cohasset area to bring a similar plan before the fall's special town meeting. Central Cohasset residents could also face

Punch-card ballots faulted

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

To Hingham's Town Clerk Thomas Hall, it's still a bad memory.

A 1991 Hingham override vote was challenged in court where a judge held the punched-card ballots up to the light to make a determination on the vote.

"The vote went from six plus to two minus," Hall recalled.

But since the state primary election in September 1992 when Hingham's new optical scanning machines went into use — Hall hasn't looked back despite a glitch the first time out when he bought the wrong pens and the machines couldn't read the ink. With optical scanners, voters must connect an arrow with a marker next to a candidate's name or question before inserting the ballot into the machine.

Cohasset's "punch-ballot" system has come increasingly under fire of late because recent election results are close

Cohasset's Week

Ten minutes for walk-ins

Selectmen will set aside 10 minutes at 8 p.m. on their meeting nights to address any concerns from the members of the public who have issues that are not on the agenda.

If the matter cannot be handled briefly, it will be placed on a future agenda, selectmen said this week.

The idea for a break, during what are often three-hour plus meetings, came from a Mariner editorial suggesting selectmen set aside a few minutes during the meeting for the public at large.

Composting bins available

Thanks to the town's good recycling efforts, the state has awarded Cohasset a $1,310 grant toward the purchase of 45 composting bins for home use.

The Department of Environmental Protection said Cohasset was selected because its program demonstrates a commitment and an ability to enhance recycling in both Cohasset and the Commonwealth.

The town will sell the composting bins at the RTF and use the money to purchase more bins, Selectmen Chairman Merle S. Brown explained.

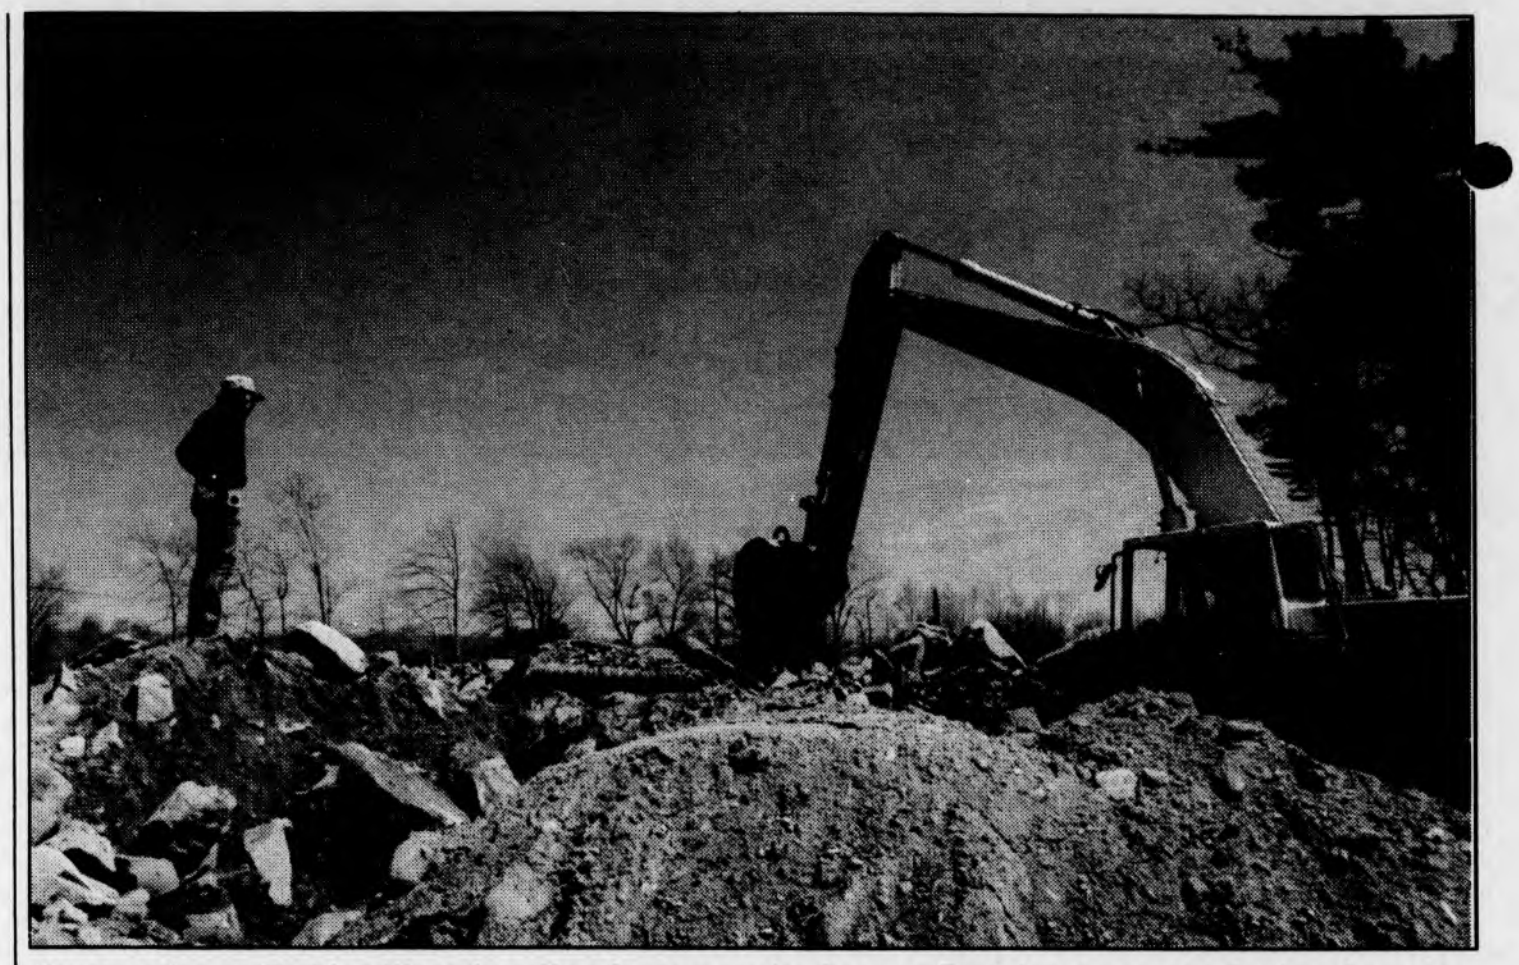
Citizens named to train committee

Selectmen named the following residents to the seven-member Citizen Committee formed to comment on solicit concerns about the train: Peter H. Pearce, 23 Forest Notch; Nancy Butler, 56 Margin St.; Margaret Charles, 85 Linden Dr.; John Rafferty, Stoneleigh Lane; Mary Foley, 184 Lamberts Ln.; James Mullen , 337 S. Main St.; and Ed Woods 231 Jerusalem Rd.

North Main Street resident Ed Fegreus, who also applied and serves as one of Cohasset's representatives on the state-appointed Citizens' Advisory Committee on the train, can act as an ex-officio member, selectmen said.

Selectmen intend that the chairman of the Citizen Committee will serve as the citizen-at-large on the town's Staff Mitigation Committee, which will report to selectmen.

Selectmen said the Citizen Committee is not being appointed to open up the train debate but to solicit through two public forums residents' concerns about safety, aesthetics, traffic flow, and neighborhood and grade-crossing issues relating to the train and report those findings to the Staff Mitigation Committee, which must formulate a mitigation plan to selectmen within about 75 days.



Construction at Cushing Plaza is well underway as site foreman Paul Arena oversees laying the water-line near Bergson's. An official ground-breaking ceremony is planned at the plaza for May 13.

John McNabb, 53 Pond St., and Melvin Waldfogel, 9 Cedarledge Village, have been appointed to the recycling committee, selectmen announced this week.

Cohasset's Week

Maritime Institute lease is renewed

Selectmen this week renewed Cohasset Maritime Institute's lease of the town-owned Hagerty boat house through Dec. 31, 1997.

CMI founder Jack Buckley told the board that the non-profit organization used the $4,850 provided by the town to shore up the boat house with the installation of six new pilings. This summer CMI plans more renovations to the structure which is the base of operations for the educational center fostering maritime education and rowing in Cohasset Harbor. CMI leased the house from the town for $1 in December 1994.

Boards have openings

A licensed Realtor is needed to serve on the Cohasset Common Historic District Commission. There is also a vacancy on the mosquito control committee, the personnel committee and the zoning board of appeals needs an associate member. Interested citizens should call the selectmen's office at 383-9900.

Open space consultants hired

This week selectmen approved hiring three consultants to assist the recently formed Open Space Advisory Committee, to come up with a draft open space/recreational town-wide plan by October with the final report due in June 1997.

Larissa Brown of Cambridge, who bid $6,000, will serve as the lead consultant on the project; Hyla Ecological Services of Concord, which bid $3,200, will consult on wildlife and wildlife habitat; and Applied Geographics of Boston, which bid $3,690, will do the mapping.

Conservation Commission member Susan Cope, who also serves on the Open Space Committee, said ten separate companies submitted a total of 13 bids (some bid on more than one aspect of the job).

"We interviewed two for each component of the plan," Cope explained. "We're extremely comfortable" with those chosen and checked out their references, she said.

"We reviewed all proposals for thoroughness," she said.

Selectmen also approved a transfer of $922 to make up the shortfall between the bids' total and the $12,000 approved for the project at town meeting.

Once the open space plan is in place, the town can apply for state grants to purchase open space and recreational land, such as "Turkey Hill" off Rte. 3A. Plans are to ask special town meeting in the fall to appropriate funds to purchase Cohasset's acreage of that property.

New director finds art center is the perfect fit

develops certain skills that are not necessarily useful in producing art, but which I feel are very useful for the Center. I want to give something back to a community that's been very good to me."

Indeed, Brown is clearly excited about his new job and its prospects. He said he feels very lucky to be the director. "I wake up every day thinking, 'My gosh, I get to go to work at this wonderful place with a wonderful staff,' " he stated.

Brown is upbeat and positive about the state of the arts. He talks about the National Endowment for the Arts and about state and federal funding in a matter-of-fact way, his voice devoid of any bitterness. Instead, he has a realist's perception, a businessman's approach. He is proud of the Center and believes it makes a very good candidate for grants.

"Even with the best intentions, the arts fall short of big public support," he said, "but we are always interested in applying for any funds, public or private. We have the ability, the staff, the facility, the track record. We can put together serious exhibitions to properly use the grants. It is important to maintain this level, regardless of the cuts."

To keep the Center on the cutting edge and expand its appeal to other communities, Brown is looking into two new satellite exhibition centers which he hopes will increase the visibility of local artists.

"One of the functions of an executive director is to facilitate those kinds of shows," Brown states. "It's not always easy for artists to orchestrate the logistics."

The Cohasset Public Library is a work in progress. In the next year, Brown plans to use the space for one-person shows as well as group presentations. He also has his sights set on two "more urban" spaces: the Landmark Building in Boston, where the Center is just wrapping up two years of exhibition rotations and embarking on its third, and the Federal Reserve Bank which, because of restrictive policies, is an ideal setting for a non-profit group.

"The Center has really come a long way since it opened in the '40s," he said. "Its most recent successes" — including the current exhibition space as well as its ownership of the building, whose mortgage has finally been paid off — "have really moved the Center onto a different level. We have become a place that all of New England can benefit from. We encompass 14 towns between the south of Boston and all the way down to New Bedford and Fall River," he added, "so that we truly are the South Shore Art Center."

Hoping to branch out even further, Brown is planning to pursue Internet possibilities and hopes to create a homepage on the worldwide web. Although the Art Center is not yet on-line, Brown does have some experience in cyberspace: one of his last projects as executive director of the Brush Art Gallery and Studios in Norwell, his most recent position, was creating such a page.

"The web page we set up at Brush pulled in artists from all over the country" Brown stated. "Even when the exhibit was over, it lived on. The (Internet) is not for everyone, but only for those who are intrigued by it."

Residents of the South Shore are not the only ones who will reap the benefits of having a new and ambitious executive director. Brown admits that while he has very little free time, he continues to produce and show his art. And he has been surprised to find that his overwhelming and challenging new job has not left him drained, as one might imagine, but "charged" with a renewed energy for his art. He is working very hard at "living in the moment," especially because the moment in which he's living right now is so fulfilling.

"(This job) is very much my dream job. Maybe you just got me on a good day, but I am in a good productive space for myself, both as an artist and a productive member of society."

The Art Center is putting out its bi-annual call for entries for new gallery artists. All portfolios and credentials will be voted in by a panel, including senior members of the gallery artists. Only three or four will be chosen of the dozens received. The deadline is May 9. The next call for entries will be in the fall.

30 families use local pantry

macaroni and cheese, canned fruits, cans of whole kernel corn (not creamed corn), coffee, and granulated sugar, he said. Cleaning and paper products are also needed, including laundry and dish washing detergents, cleanser, bathroom tissue, and paper towels.

Hooley said residents may leave their donations near their mailboxes, where the letter carriers will collect them. He noted that most mail deliveries are made by mail trucks, so residents should not be discouraged from leaving several or large-sized items, but any donations—large or small—are welcome and appreciated.

"Whatever is out there, we'll collect," Hooley said.

He also said that all food this is collected is distributed to Cohasset families who use the pantry.

The food items will be returned to the post office and distributed to the food pantry staff, which will have the items available to the 30 families who use the pantry.

Thompson said the food pantry staff and families who use the pantry are grateful for the efforts of the letter carriers and the post office staff. The donations from last year's collection kept the pantry stocked through the summer when donations customarily drop off.

Punch-card ballots faulted

and there seems to be a high number of "blank" votes cast.

In Saturday's single-ballot question vote on financing the sewer project, there were 34 blank ballots — too high a number, some say.

Roy Fitzsimmons, 116 Doane Street, who is a member of the newly formed Cohasset Concerned Taxpayers, brought the matter up at the selectmen's meeting this week.

Fitzsimmons wondered why someone would make the effort to come to the polls on a rainy day for a single ballot question and then not vote.

He said many Cohasset citizens are elderly and frail and may not be inserting the card properly or may be unable to punch it through.

But registrar Domenic Baccari, 55 Reservoir Rd., said help was readily available at the polls if someone needed assistance.

"I don't know anybody who indicated any problem," he said.

Explaining that there was even a machine to practice on, Baccari said signs were also posted saying if help was needed to ask an election worker.

And he maintained the process is a simple one.

"Once you stick the card in properly, the stylus can go right through."

Town Clerk Marion Douglas said the punch-ballot system has been in use in town for at least ten years.

"I like the punch card myself," she said, pointing out that "every system has its quirks."

Douglas also said that voters have to take some responsibility for making sure they vote properly.

Hall said Hingham spent $30,000 for six optical scanning machines. He now swears by the machines which make the counting process a lot quicker.

Duxbury's town clerk Nancy Oates said that town went to the optical scanners two years ago. Duxbury also has a computer that plugs in and provides a quick read-out of results. The town initially rented the scanners to try them out and she has quickly become a fan.

"The tallies are done in a flash and people find it easier than punching those crazy holes," she said.

Realtor/developer sought for Osgood committee

Selectman Peter Pratt put out the call this week for a Realtor/developer to serve on the Osgood School Re-use Committee which will determine the most effective means of returning the Osgood School to the tax rolls. Interested citizens should call the selectman's office at 383-9900.

The school will be closed and turned over the the town once the new school, authorized by town meeting, is built. Others on the committee include two neighbors tot he school, a member of Cohasset Elder Affairs, a planning board member, and tow members of the housing authority.

CHARITABLE FUNDS AVAILABLE

The George E. Curtis Charitable Trust is accepting applications from charitable organizations which provide nursing care, day care, respite care or home care for low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm. To be eligible for the grant award, the charitable organization must be exempt from taxation and must be able to use the funds in Plymouth County and contiguous towns. Priority will be given to those programs which offer direct aid to eligible individuals in their homes by maintaining such individuals in his or her home so as to improve the quality of home life.

Funds are also available to assist in the design, construction and equipment of facilities for use by low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm so as to improve the quality of their living arrangements. Individuals are not eligible for funding. The deadline for submitting a completed application is June 24, 1996.

North Cohasset voters may be back in the fall

paying the entire bill for that phase of the project.

An article, which overwhelmingly passed the March 30 special town meeting and set the stage for the May 4 Prop. 2-1/2 override, would have allowed the town to pick up the half the tab for the projected $6.3 million 'Straits Pond/Hull Street" project and would have added about $50 a year for 20 years to the tax bill on a home assessed at $280,000.

The "Straits Pond/Hull Street" project, which will connect about 345 homes via a sewer main to the Hull treatment plant, is the first step in a town-wide solution to address failing septic systems and an inadequate sewer system. The town is under a court order to solve its sewer woes or face steep, state-imposed fines.

"I'm going to wait for things to quiet down and analyze what happened," said Maria Plante, 798 Jerusalem Rd., who fought passionately for shared payment.

Plante said judging from unfavorable comments she's received on election day and earlier this week, she surmised that many people did not understand what they were voting for. The vote was 989 to 921 against the override; the turnout was about 38 percent.

"'One fellow on Ripley Road stopped me and said,'Too bad you lost,' " said Plante. Part of Ripley Road is included in the proposed central Cohasset sewer expansion area.

"I said, 'I didn't lose — we all lost.' "

Supporters argued that it is unprecedented for users to pay the entire cost for a public works project. Plante cited the example of the cost of construction of the town's water plant going onto the tax base. North Cohasset residents do not gain a direct benefit from the water plant because they are on Hingham water and ironically, they face a 164 percent increase in their water bills to help pay for a new plant in Hingham.

Diane C. Sullivan, 708 Jerusalem Rd., who worked with Plante to get the word out said central Cohasset residents didn't seem to understand "the way we go, they will go."

The Straits Pond/Hull Street project will cost the user about $870 a year in betterment charges. Central Cohasset residents will be faced with about $830 a year to pay for the project in that part of town not including additional operation and maintenance costs estimated at about $400 a year.

"It's a setback," Sullivan said about the failed override. "We are disappointed that we didn't make our position better understood."

"But there's no need to panic as Yogi Berra would say 'It's not over, 'till it's over,' " she said.

Sewer Commission Chairman Edward "Ted" Guild said there is still time for residents to be hooked up to the sewer system to regroup. Bills for the new sewer in North Cohasset won't be issued to users until the system is operational which is estimated to be the first quarter of 1998.

Guild explained that the actual cost to install sewers the central part of town is greater (about $9 million), but the state provides a larger subsidy for parts of that project so the net effect on the user is about the same as that in North Cohasset.

Some homeowners, who do not live in a part of town to be added to the sewer line, objected to the override on the grounds that they are faced with costly septic system repairs under the state environmental code, known as Title V, and no one will share their costs.

Guild said however, those homeowners can obtain some financial relief for septic system repairs under the state's newly established septic program.

The state has allocated $500,000 a year for six years to subsidize septic system repairs in Cohasset up to a maximum of $20,000 per house in the form of low-interest, 20-year loans. Guild noted that otherwise a homeowner would be faced with "writing a check" for the cost of the repair up front.

Roy Fitzsimmons, 116 Doane St., who is part of Cohasset Concerned Taxpayers a group opposed to the override, was pleased with Saturday's vote.

"Now the tax rate will go up about 29 percent as opposed to 33 percent," said Fitzsimmons who also opposed the recent $9.9 million school override.

Plante said she would be looking toward the sewer commission and other town officials for leadership on the shared-payment issue.

"I think the selectmen should request the sewer commission meet once a month at a reasonable time at night when people can come with questions," she said.

Guild said the sewer commission held seven "highly publicized hearings, all at convenient hours" on the sewer since November 1994. The commission's routine monthly meetings are held at 6 p.m. and a meeting was held at 4:30 p.m. because that was the time the engineer could make it, he said.

Plante said she will hang on in North Cohasset despite the sewer and water bills, but some others aren't.

"There are 11 houses (in our area) for sale," she said.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

A yard sale for a good cause is Saturday

It is almost time for the Cohasset/Appalachia Service Project to get underway. On June 22, 48 high school students, 13 college-age CITS and 22 adult advisers will travel to three counties in West Virginia to spend a week doing home repair work. They drive by bus and van, spend their nights sleeping on the floors of local schools, eat in school cafeterias and spend five days working on 12 homes of impoverished and needy families.

You have seen the many fund-raisers they have held throughout the year to raise more than $43,000 for construction supplies, transportation and room and board. This Saturday, May 11, at Second Congregational Church from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. is when they will hold their yard sale. (Call 383-9325 if you have an item you wish to donate.)

On May 18 and 25, there will be car washes at the same location, or you can purchase "stock" for $20 per share. For more information, call Gary Ritts, who has directed the project for the past nine years, at 383-0345; Ami Argus at 383-9325; or Pam DeLorenzo at 383-6904. They will certainly appreciate your (tax-deductible) contribution.

We send belated Happy Birthday wishes to Joseph Tansey this week. His birthday was April 20. How old?, you ask. 100 years old! And still working! Joseph's family held a wonderful birthday party for him at Kimball's By-the-Sea, with more than 50 of his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren in attendance. You can bet the day was a happy one for everyone! Again, Happy Birthday to you, Mr. Tansey.

Recent news from Massachusetts Maritime Academy informs us that Peter A. Collins of Cohasset was awarded one of the highest positions given to Senior Cadets. Five bars are awarded to only five senior cadets who most exemplify leadership qualities at the academy. The five chosen senior cadets will be totally in charge of all cadet responsibilities at the school. Peter's direct area of responsibility will be the training of all underclassmen aboard the 600-ft. training ship, The Patriot Ship. Peter will implement education, safety and maintenance training on board the vessel.

Did you know the Social Awareness Organization of CHS has undertaken the responsibility of sponsoring a child from the Philippines? Her name is Jael Tambis, she is 9-years-old, and she yearns to be a teacher someday.

SAO is trying to make that dream come true, and we bet they will! This is just one more thing our teens are doing to make us sit up and take note — and feel proud!

We never did congratulate Jean Driscoll, the winner of the wheelchair division in the Boston Marathon! In case you don't remember, Jean stayed with the Morse family of Cohasset, and everyone was cheering for her to win!

She did more than that, though; she was good enough to speak to our students at Deer Hill in her spare time. Every one of the children fell in love with her, and students and teachers were inspired by Jean and her wonderful ways. A special thanks goes to her for touching so many people!

The Sisters of Saint Joseph Retreat Center, Cohasset, is planning a fund-raiser, its first event ever, to be held in conjunction with the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset. They have purchased a block of tickets to an Evening of Irish Music with Phil Coulter, the internationally renowned Irish musician, on Saturday, July 20, at 8 p.m.

In addition to the performance at the Music Circus, initial plans include a limited picnic supper at the retreat center before the performance, and a raffle of prizes, with the fortunate winners to be drawn at a later date.

The sisters will be most grateful for any way in which you can respond to this, their first fund-raising endeavor! In addition, the "promise a musical evening where the mundane falls away and is replaced by spirit-filled melodies." For further information, call the retreat center at 383-6024.

Hats off to Caitlin Connolly, who was chosen as the Massachusetts winner of the Prudential Spirit of Community Awards. She received citations from Governor Weld, Mary Jeanette Murray and Cohasset selectmen. Caitlin is one of 52 students nationwide recognized for their leadership skills and community service by the national association of secondary principals.

Caitlin will be in Washington, D.C. for four days and will have lunch and dinner with the Senate. Hopefully she will give us all a full report upon her return. It is such an honor, with lots of fun to go along with it — a learning experience indeed!

How nice it was this weekend to see the Little Leaguers back in their brand-new park, enjoying the new field while their parents had a double treat — they got to watch their "stars" from brand-new bleachers while "soaking up the rays"! It was really great. Just one word of caution — drive slowly. Kiddos will still be darting out into the street for one reason or another.

That's it from here — all the news that's fit to print. Please call with yours!

Harborfest marching band to form again

The Cohasset Harborfest Marching Band is forming to perform in the Harborfest Parade Sunday, June 16. As many of you recall, Rev. Ed Atkinson organized a marching band for the 1995 Harborfest, welcoming all to dust off instruments and join in the fun. Atkinson's band delighted and amazed those watching along the parade route.

The band is forming again for the 1996 Harborfest Parade, sadly without Mr. Atkinson, who died in July 1995. The formula remains the same: simple music, two rehearsals, a uniform of khaki pants or shorts with T-shirts, provided by the Harborfest Committee. Fun is guaranteed!

We can use all marching band instruments. We will rehearse at First Parish in Cohasset (Trueblood Hall) Tuesday, June 4 and 11, at 7 p.m. Music will be provided ahead of time. Please call Sandy Bailey (or leave a message) at the office at First Parish (383-1100) to join us!

Join Harborfest parade!

The annual Harborfest Parade will take place on Sunday, June 16. The parade signifies the link between Cohasset Harbor and the Town Common as residents "Bless the Fleet" and parade to the Common for the annual Chowder Festival, which will culminate the Harborfest celebration.

The theme for this year's parade is "Cohasset's Maritime Heritage," and cash prizes for this year's floats are $250 for first place; $150, second place; and $75 for third place, with two special prizes of $50 each.

Jim Lagrotteria and Bob Martin of the Harborfest Committee have developed a float kit for anyone interested in using a pickup truck as a float vehicle. Through the generosity of Hingham Lumber Co., most framework materials will be provided.

Simple floats are the order of the day for the Norman Rockwell-style parade, and may be fabricated in one day with little or no expense and unlimited imagination. Harborfest celebrates the community, and the event is enhanced by the participation of the town's many organizations and neighborhood associations.

Anyone wishing to participate is asked to call Jim at 383-9385 or Bob at 383-0648.

Poster contest announced

The South Shore Community Center has announced a call for entries for its first annual school poster contest. The contest, entitled "Color It Community," is open to all South Shore schoolchildren in grades 1-6.

The purpose of the contest is to highlight the importance of the family and community, and posters may depict any aspect of "community."

Complete contest rules have been mailed to private and public schools on the South Shore. Winners will receive $150 certificates toward the purchase of a bicycle of their choice. The deadline submissions is May 17.

Winners will be notified by phone, and awards will be presented during a special ceremony at Harborfest on Cohasset Common on June 15. For additional contest or Harborfest information, call the SSCC at 383-0088.

A national treasure

If there's a more beautiful town common than Cohasset's, we haven't seen it yet.

It's no wonder that producers of feature films such as "Housesitter" and "Witches of Eastwick" and those of several TV commercials have taken one look and fallen in love.

The Cohasset Common Historic District of which the 300-year-old town green is a part, was just recently added to the prestigious National Register of Historic Places. The common district, which extends along North Main Street from Depot Court to Sohier Street and includes all of Highland Avenue, joins Government Island off Border Street and the Caleb Lothrup House on Summer Street in holding that distinction in town.

It should be noted however, that no one from the Massachusetts Historical Commission, which reviews all requests from the state for listing, or the Dept. of the Interior of which the National Register is a part — drives around randomly to spot these places to add to the list.

It takes innumerable hours of work over many months to fill out the application and provide all the documentation on the required criteria. So Cohasset owes a big thank you to its historical commission and especially David Wadsworth, for this effort.

In a related matter, selectmen have recently discussed a "common" subject over several meetings. They are pondering what should be done to improve with the sidewalk along the Common between Jason and Long roads on the North Main Street side.

About 25 cars on a busy day are parked there. Drivers pull their cars up onto the "green" strip between the asphalt sidewalk and the street due to the narrowness of North Main.

What's happened as a result is the grass has been worn away leaving an unattractive dirt strip.

Solutions on the table include eliminating parking on that side of the road; installing a cement grating system which would allow grass to grow and not be damaged by tires; or replacing the sidewalk and strip with cobblestones.

We're partial to eliminating parking along the Common side of the road although we realize that could pose a hardship to church-goers and senior citizens and those who use the community center.

With the discussion, we've taken a "new" look at the Common and suggest you do as well. If you have any ideas about how to restore the green strip between the granite curb and asphalt sidewalk, be sure to let the selectmen know.

Otherwise, just take a walk and enjoy the Common. It is particularly beautiful this time of year and is a village centerpiece about which Cohasset can be very proud.

School program was one-sided

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago, I watched Deer Hill fifth-graders, including my daughter, participate in a dance depicting the suffering resulting from the nuclear bombing of Hiroshima. The school paid consultants $1,000 to train the fifth-graders.

Later, I asked my daughter whether she thought the United States was right or wrong to bomb Hiroshima.

Unequivocally, she stated, "Wrong."

I asked the chairman of the School Committee, Ralph Kidder, whether a balanced historical background was provided to the youngsters. He said he didn't know, and referred my to the Deer Hill principal because "the School Committee wouldn't be concerned with that aspect of the curriculum." I have since contacted the principal, who "doubts" the students were provided with any historical background.

Youngsters are very impressionable during their elementary grade years. President Truman made a tough decision, but the right one. I expect the Cohasset school system to correct the one-sided impression it has left with our youth.

Thanks for benefit show

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Cohasset Teen Center I would like to thank the Cohasset Dramatic Club for our benefit performance, "Charlie And The Chocolate Factory" was terrific. The 68 talented children gave an enthusiastic and heartwarming performance under the direction of Sally Wright. We appreciate the generous donation awarded us by the producer Dawn Rota. We would like to thank the town for allowing our benefit production to be held at Town Hall. In addition we would like to thank everyone who donated refreshments and attended this wonderful evening. How lucky we are to live in a community that supports youth programs.

Curtis Collins helped draft national report

Received principal of the year honors

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

When Curtis Collins arrived here in July — Cohasset Junior-Senior High wasn't just getting any new principal.

It was getting someone who has been a driving force in education reform at the public high school level for several years.

Collins, who was named state principal of the year in October for his reform work, is a member of a national panel which recently released a host of recommendations to better education at the high school level.

"It is an exciting time to be in public education," said Collins. "The excitement is balanced off with a little bit of frustration. I believe high schools can do a far better job than they've been doing."

Collins was interested in restructuring education before the Massachusetts Education Reform Act was instated in 1993.

In fact, when he was the principal at Dennis-Yarmouth Regional High School, from 1984 to 1995, groups from all over the area made trips to the school to see its innovative programs.

For example, the ninth-grade at the school, which had about 300 students, was split into four teams. Each team had its own set of teachers.

We tried to "personalize a large high school. We broke down the school into smaller units," Collins recalled. "There were four little communities instead of one big one".

He said the more personalized a school is, the less likely a student is to "fall through the cracks," especially at a large school.

Another at-the-time revolutionary idea, that Collins and his peers at the school experimented with, was block scheduling.

The seven-period day was done away with and a combination of 90- and 43-minute classes were implemented.

"Block scheduling liberates a good teacher," said Collins.

These ideas, along with numerous others, are echoed in the 114-page report released in February by the national panel .

The panel was formed about two years ago by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Even though Collins had done a tremendous amount of work in education reform he was still surprised when he was chosen to be a member of the panel, and later as state principal of the year.

"I was shocked," he said "It is nice to be recognized by your peers."

Collins joined 19 other panelists several times a year, for four or five days at a time, to draft 80 recommendations.

Although many reports have been written on the changing face of education, this is the first that was "written by inside people, by practitioners," said Collins.

The report does repeat some of the premises drawn up in education reform, but it goes far beyond that.

The report deals with students having their own action plan, similar to what special needs students have now. And perhaps more importantly their own advocate.

"We all like people to take an interest in our work," Collins said. "It is rather human."

Other new ideas include student input on collective bargaining issues and the opportunity for employers to send students back to high school if their training is inadequate for the job market.

Collins made it clear he was not advocating change for the sake of change.

The intention is "to keep the good things we have and improve other areas."

The issue of time in learning was also explored by the panel.

"It is time to look at a 12-month school year, at least for teachers," Collins said.

He added that far-reaching ideas such as these were impossible to implement without courageous leaders.

"Change is very difficult," he said.

Although these are recent national guidelines there is impact at the local level.

Collins has set up a study group at Cohasset to explore a middle-school model for Cohasset seventh- and eighth-graders. This model focuses on teams, among other things.

The Cohasset school system is not new to Collins. He taught English in the high school for 13 years before he left in 1978 to pursue a career in administration in Sandwich, Mass.

"I wanted to end my career where it started," he said. "I have very pleasant memories of my 13 years in Cohasset "

Collins lives in Marshfield with his wife, Phyllis. They have three grown children, Christine, Michael, and Erin.

Schools opt to stick with in-house bus service

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

Cohasset will remain one of the few districts in the area that provides students with an in-house bus service.

The distinction was in jeopardy a few weeks ago due to financial questions.

But after meeting with the bus drivers and receiving bids back from two contractors, it was more economical to stay with the present system, schools Supt. Stephen Hart said Thursday.

The decision requires the school committee to ask town meeting for two $90,000 buses in the fall. The town now has six buses and a minibus.

Although fueled by economics, the decision has more than financial implications.

Parents have often commended the bus drivers on their personalized service and close relationships with the students.

"In a small community having a local service is an advantage," said Hart.

Janet Figueiredo, who has driven a bus in town for 28 years, recently said that the bus drivers will often do an extra route for the town at no extra cost.

The town couldn't get that same service from an outside contractor, she said.

The numbers initially showed that hiring an outside contractor would save about $40,000 a year.

At that time, the school committee was looking at rotating the buses every six years, now the buses would be replaced every eight years.

The oldest bus is 10-years-old.

With the new numbers, the cost of the lowest bidder (North River Transportation in Norwell) is $180,000, while the cost of the in-house service is $175,000.

Hart said that the buses used by an outside contractor would vary in age from six to ten years.

An outside contractor would have hired the six full-time bus drivers, but with certain stipulations.

"The bus drivers had some concerns," Hart said. "They felt if we moved to an independent contractor they would lose some benefits, particularly health insurance. At the same time we had to look at economics, and they were quite helpful."

One parent asked if the location of the new school would necessitate the purchase of another bus, because some of those who walked to Osgood wouldn't be able to walk to the new location.

Hart said that the numbers would more than likely balance out. He added that increased enrollments have been taken into consideration.

Approximately 100 students have already signed up for kindergarten.

In other business, the school committee:

• approved next year's school calender. Students will return to school on Sept. 4, and their last day will be June 19 — June 26 with five snow days. Winter vacation will end on Wednesday, Jan. 2. There had been some discussion about the school year starting before Labor Day, but the teacher's association voted against that change.

School Committee Member Maureen Jerz said that people need to be aware that the calender may change from year to year. The school committee will revisit the idea of going back to school before Labor Day in the fall.

• approved the 1996-1997 school goals. The goals fall under the headings of curriculum, school facilities, community awareness and technology. They include developing a plan to implement a middle school program in the fall of 1997; develop a plan to house all kindergarten through sixth grade students at the Osgood and Deer Hill Schools during the two-year elementary school construction project; develop a system-wide program to encourage student participation in local government activities; and develop model technology-related curriculum units at the primary elementary and secondary levels.

• announced that the educational program for the new school has been accepted by the state.

• approved a policy that would require administrators to immediately notify Hart of student offenses in the system. The school committee would then be notified, so members could address the concerns of parents.

Forman, Teague to speak at May 16 forum

Julie Guild, chairman of the Cohasset GOP Town Committee, announced the group's annual dinner will be held Thursday, May 16, for all South Shore towns. Featured speakers will be Plymouth County Sheriff Peter Forman, former Minority Leader, of Plymouth and present Minority Leader and congressional candidate Ed Teague of Yarmouth.

Patriot Ledger State House correspondent Carolyn Ryan will moderate the forum, which will be held at Walton Rodgers' Hall of St. Stephen's Church on historic Cohasset Common. GOP leaders will discuss GOP prospects and issues in 1996. A social hour will be held at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. A $15 donation is requested.

All South Shore residents are invited to attend. Also invited are District Attorney Michael Sullivan of Abington, County Commissioner candidates Peter Paulding of Plymouth, and Chuck Toupence of Pembroke, and candidate for Treasurer Matt Striggles of Bridgewater. Sen. Robert Hedlund of Weymouth, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset, County Commissioner Bob Stone of Whitman and Norfolk County Treasurer Ob Hall of Needham have also been invited.

Reservations may be made by calling Avis Sweeney (383-1184), Polly Logan (383-0031) or Carl Harris (749-7167).

Dredging project hits some rough seas

Additional testing could delay work and increase costs

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

With the imminent passage of federal legislation that will allow for badly needed dredging of Cohasset Harbor — planners said the project hit new hurdles this week with the agency responsible for the lion's share of the work.

The Army Corps of Engineers responsible for the dredging of about 90,000 cubic yards of silt material in the harbor's channel, which is under federal jurisdiction, have raised questions about silt testing procedures and have suggested the more extensive and expensive testing may be required before the project can get underway, said Selectman Peter Pratt.

"There seems to be some significant differences in the interpretation of the rules for testing. The state and the town see it one way and the Army Corps sees it another," Pratt said.

Since last summer engineers have worked with the state Department of Environmental Management to test the quality of silt material to be dredged. Polluted material within the harbor, which is not suitable for ocean dumping, must be disposed at inland landfills at a much higher cost to the town, Pratt said. While ocean dumping costs $15 per cubic yard of material, landfill disposal can run about $100 per cubic yard, he said.

Several "hot spots" (about 1,500 of the town's 6,500 cubic yards to be dredged) have been discovered so far. The contamination source is mercury, a substance that is associated to industrial activity near waterways, said Pratt, who noted that how the mercury got into the harbor remains a substantial mystery.

According to Pratt, the Army Corps could require some earlier tests be redone and further, more expensive testing of the contaminated silt be undertaken.

But despite this recent glitch, Pratt is optimistic that the Cohasset Harbor Navigation Act, which will redefine the area of federal jurisdiction and allow the project to go forward should pass both houses of Congress this month.

"In all honesty, we've accomplished a tremendous amount here," said Pratt, who noted that Cohasset harbor has not been the subject of as much testing, regulatory permitting and legislation since 1939 and has not been fully dredged since 1959.

This federal legislation is also vital to the reconfiguration and expansion planned by the Cohasset Yacht Club, Pratt noted.

The yacht club has plans to maintain a 42-slip dock, boat railway and launching ramp, relocate a 20-slip spider float, and install 84 new slips which will help to greatly reduce the number of local mariners — more than 300 — who line the pages of the town's boat mooring waiting list. None of this work could be done without encroaching on the area of federal jurisdiction which makes the pending legislation essential to both the town and the club, Pratt said.

"This is going to satisfy a pent up demand," Pratt said. "It's a win-win situation for the town, the boating public and the yacht club."

Pratt is still holding onto a fall 1997 start for the projected $1.8 million dredging project. Of that total project cost, Pratt estimates the cost to Cohasset at about $150,000, most of which has and will continue to be drawn from the town's waterway's account With a 25 percent local match required for financing dredging projects, Cohasset is in some ways fortunate that so much of its harbor falls within federal jurisdiction, he added. In neighboring Hingham, the town will pay much more for dredging its harbor, and due to the high costs to the state which will cover 75 percent of the work, the project will likely be carried out over several years.

"We're hoping the federal project will happen no later than October 1997," said Pratt, who noted that town will have to rely on good cooperation between state and federal agencies in order to do the job as quickly and economically as possible. Equipment mobilization and set up costs alone can be upwards of $90,000, which makes doing all work simultaneously, in both federal and town waters the most sensible plan, Pratt said.

Permit sought for harbor work

The Cohasset Yacht Club is seeking permission for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to reconfigure and expand its boating facility in Cohasset Harbor. The plan calls for maintaining a 42-slip dock, boat railway and launching ramp, relocating a 20-slip spider float and installing 84 new slips.

The application for the federal permit was filed with the Engineers in compliance with Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899, which provides for federal regulation of any work in, under or over navigable waters of the United States.

To assist in evaluating the work, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than May 23. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Timothy Timmermann at the New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 424 Trapelo Road, Waltham, Mass. 02254-9149.

Managed care is forum May 22

The Cohasset Elder Affairs' SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders) program is sponsoring a forum on HMOs and managed care on Wednesday, May 22, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Lightkeeper's House on Government Island.

The meeting will provide an opportunity to learn about HMOs and the concept of managed care and how it affects Medicare benefits. Speakers will include Diane Paulson, lead attorney of Greater Boston Elderly Legal Services, Medicare Advocacy Project; John May, representative of Mass. Association of Health Maintenance Organizations; and Monica Henderson, health insurance specialist of the Health Care Financing Administration, Office of Managed Care.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling 383-9116. Coffee and refreshments will be served.

Hedlund office hours listed

Sen. Robert L. Hedlund (R-Weymouth) will hold regular local office hours on Friday, May 10, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the meeting room at Cohasset Town Hall.

Office hours provide an opportunity for constituents to voice their opinions and comments in person without traveling to the State House. To make an appointment, call Jeff Granatino at 722-1646. Walk-ins are also encouraged.

Local legislators keep the Hingham commuter boat afloat

No reductions or interruptions of service planned

South Shore legislators assured local consituents this week that commuter boat services from Hingham to Boston will continue without interruption or any reductions.

State Rep. Frank Hynes, D-Scituate/Marshfield and other members of the South Shore Legislators Caucus worked to ensure that disagreements between State Secretary of Transportation James Kerasiotes and the MBTA Advisory Board did not interfere with commuter boat service, one of the few public transportation options available to South Shore commuters.

Disagreements arose between Kerasiotes and the MBTA advisory board over budget cuts recommended in April by the board which included a $1 million cut in the commuter boat subsidy.

These cuts, said Kerasiotes would lead to a 50 percent reduction in boat service from Hingham to Boston starting July 1. Hynes and State Senator Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth negotiated with state transportation officials and the advisory board and were given assurances that the dispute would be settled with no cuts in transit service.

"The primary focus of the state's transportation agencies must be the commuting needs of the public and the public shall not be allowed to be held hostage to disagreements between state agencies no matter how valid or hardened," said Hynes, who was instramental in establishing the MBTA subsidized boat service more than 10 years ago..

Hedlund, who called the disgreement and threats of cuts in boat service "political posturing" guarenteed South Shore commuters that the boat service would be in no way reduced and in fact could be expanded with additional runs later into the evenings during busier summer months. Hedlund said he has been working with state transportation officials to secure the additional boat trips.

"The Hingham commuter boat is an essential, vial part of the South Shore's transit infrastructure. Our role as public officials must be to support it and expand it where possible. I am confident tha its value and need are fully understood by our state agencies and will not be used again as a pawn to control their internal disputes," Hynes added.

Chamber ensemble concert to benefit Carr Ampitheater

The Monet Chamber Ensemble, a quartet of Boston Symphony musicians, will appear at Broad Cove House on Sunday, May 19 at 5:30 p.m., in a concert to benefit South Shore Conservatory's Jane C. Carr Ampitheater.

The new outdoor performance facility provides a permanent home for the conservatory's Summer Wind Ensemble, and provides a much-needed performance space for conservatory and community drama, small concerts, or performances by professional artists.

The ensemble performed their first concert earlier this year, at the home of Franz and Margo Euler, to benefit the ampitheater. The performance was so moving they were asked back to present a new chamber music program.

Following the concert is a catered light supper and open bar. The cost is $50, with proceeds going to the ampitheater project.

Reservations and advance donations are required. Call (617) 749-7565, ext. 16, before May 13 to reserve tickets.

Pesky mosquitos will make a big comeback this year

The record snowfall this past winter assures an abundant supply of moisture for the present spring season. Unless the summer of 1996 is unusually dry, we can expect a huge mosquito population in our region.

It is of utmost importance that residents take measures to minimize the numbers of these insects. Although fortunately Eastern Equine Encephalitis, a serious disease carried by certain types of mosquitoes, is a rare visitor to our specific South Shore area, it nevertheless is always treated by the Commonwealth as a possibility, and its presence from time to time is a reality recognized by authorities of the Plymouth Mosquito Control Project (of which Cohasset is a member).

The Cohasset Mosquito Control Committee strongly urges citizens to initiate surveys of the area surrounding each house. Particular attention should be paid to objects such as old tires, bird baths, toy pails, gutters, etc., and surface areas where stagnant water may collect. It takes only a few days of such stagnation to permit hatching of adult mosquitoes from previously deposited eggs. Water in bird baths and wading pools should be changed at least once a week. If your area has a sizable expanse of stagnant water (e.g., a small pond) or even a depression in the ground which repeatedly retains small quantities of water for three days to a week, it is essential either to drain such areas or to apply a biological inhibitor, such as a preparation containing the bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis (Bti), which is harmless to humans and pets but which prevents development of adult mosquitoes. These inhibitors are available as powders, "dunks," or sprays in most garden supply or hardware stores.

Current information about mosquito control provided by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, the Audubon Society, and general medical media is available to Cohasset residents in a hang-pocket located in the entry area of Town Hall. For further information, you may call the Cohasset Board of Health at 383-9900, Ext. 121, leaving your name and telephone number so that a member of the Cohasset Mosquito Control Committee can call you personally.

Finally, there is the matter of pesticide usage. It is important to be aware that the majority of safety standards for pesticide use set by the U.S. Government are primarily based on tolerance levels for adults. Young children and aged seniors are often harmed at such dosage levels. We respectfully request that citizens intending to spray their yards with a pesticide or requesting such spraying by the Plymouth District, please notify neighbors sufficiently in advance so that proper precautions can be taken to protect families from the impact of spray drift. Plymouth District staff usually spray in the very early morning at 4 to 8 a.m. If neighbors know that spraying is to occur, windows maybe closed and pets kept indoors.

Folklore, fables to be shared in Cohasset on May 19

Storyteller Aili Paal Singer will present a program of folklore and fables for the children and families of Cohasset Sunday, May 19. Her performance will blend oral narratives with puppetry, pantomime, creative dramatics and audience participation. Among her favorite tales are multicultural stories that expose the audience to other people and their cultures. In addition, she tells stories of her own creation.

An Estonian by birth, she and her family became displaced persons after WWII and in 1949 emigrated to the United States. Growing up in New York City, she studied drama at the High School of Performing Arts in downtown Manhattan. At Boston University, she continued her drama work with an avant-garde theater company, Caravan Theater, in Cambridge. She then worked as a writer of folk and fairy tales for the award-winning children's show, "Catch a Rainbow," on Channel 5. Singer has received a number of awards. Currently, the Massachusetts Cultural Council has selected her as an artist eligible to receive partial state funding towards programs taking place in Massachusetts public schools.

While performing, Singer's voice bounces from a mousy eek of one character to a raspy bark that is rough as sandpaper for another character. When she tells a story she jumps, she bends and is the voice of every creature. Like a one-woman band, Aili carries her mystery bag of materials and props, enough to pique the curiosity of many children. She looks to the young people for help, and by such involvement, brings the world of imagination within touching distance of all the children.

The Cohasset Diversity Committee is sponsoring this family event for all to enjoy. This particular program has been created especially for children from the ages of 3 to 9.

The program will be held Sunday, May 19, from 1 to 2 p.m., in the South Shore Community Center gym. Refreshments will be available. Additionally, there will be a basket at the entrance for those who wish to make a donation. Any money collected will be used to ensure that programs, such as this one, may continue to be funded by The Diversity Committee.

Stress management support offered

Cohasset Community Church, a new evangelical church, is hosting a Stress Management Support Group on Fridays from 7 to 8 p.m. in Cohasset Town Hall's small meeting room. The study will be led by the church's pastor, the Rev. Robert Hurlbut. All are welcome.

The group is involved in a six-week practical study of "Stress Management: Finding the Balance." The study will allow participants to learn about stress and its effects and how to deal with stressful situations.

For further information, call the church at 383-9761.

Planners look at Rte. 3A condo project

BY STACEY POWERS
Special to the Mariner

Concerns over possible side effects of a proposed condominium development at the corner of Beechwood Street and Chief Justice Cushing Highway drew neighboring residents to attend a Planning Board meeting last Wednesday night.

Developer Mark Winchester presented plans to the board detailing a 6.9 acre site which will include eight lots connected by a common driveway approximately 400 feet in length. The proposed site is designated for six, two bedroom units and two, one bedroom units.

Drainage calculations have been performed at the site and consulting engineer for the developer, Paul Maributo of Ross Engineering, pointed out that no water will drain out onto either Schofield Road or Beechwood Street. Drainage has been diverted to the wetlands.

Despite this assurance, several residents of Schofield Road whose homes back up to the development are concerned about excess water drainage that could possibly result after the construction of the site. Since there are already wetlands surrounding the area, residents are all too familiar with having to deal with constant swampy conditions on their property and feel that further disturbance to the land will only add to the situation.

Maributo maintains that drainage will be directed into the wetlands along the highway edge of the development which will then run off into a culvert at the corner of Chief Justice Cushing Highway and Beechwood Street.

To further offset any possible problem with excess drainage, the lots will be angled so that any excess water will run down the curbing and into the common driveway. Each site will also be equipped with a catch basin built into the land designed to hold excess drainage. The Board, however, is concerned that once residents move in they may attempt to do away with the drainage swail. They will look into insuring that this scenario will never be played out. Each house will also have its own septic tank and in addition, there will be another common septic tank to process any surplus overflow.

The entrance to the common driveway will be located west of the proposed Beechwood Street entrance to Shaws Plaza. It has been relocated 130 feet west of the original proposed site in order to save a large tree that grows there. Many trees will be taken down to accommodate the site but Winchester plans to replace the lost shrubbery with extensive landscaping. The area separating the development from the highway will be concealed by an existing 200 feet of wooded area.

The planning board took the matter under advisement.

Eligiblity sought on local veterans

In the ongoing effort to complete the World War II Cohasset Historical Military Memorial, an oversight committee was established. The purpose of the committee is to determine to the best of its ability whether names in question meet eligibility requirements for inclusion on the wall.

After diligent research, the committee is left with several names it can find nothing about, and it is appealing to the public for help. Anyone with information that would help the committee determine the eligibility of the following people is asked to call Town Hall (383-9900): Margaret Drucilla Coleman, Ernest Elden Decker, Helen Marion Heartz, Joseph Lay Rohr Jr., William Roger Scannell and Shirley Eleanor Wright.

Those who call with information are asked to leave their name and telephone number at the selectmen's office and a member of the committee will contact them.

Weight loss seminar begins May 14

Cohasset Community Church is starting a Christian weight loss seminar called Weigh Down Workshop. The orientation class will be held May 14 at 7 p.m. at South Shore Community Center (downstairs in the pink room), 3 N. Main St. The 12-week class will begin Tuesday, May 28. There is a cost for materials.

For more information, call the church at 383-9761. The seminar is coordinated by Kim Hurlbut.

Choral concert in Hingham Friday, May 11

The Broad Cove Chorale will present a spring concert Saturday evening, May 11, with organist Lenae Badger. The concert will be held at 8 p.m. at St. John's Church on Main Street in Hingham, and will be followed by a reception in Weld Hall. The program of sacred music from four centuries will feature some of the best-loved compositions written for women's voices, both with and without accompaniment. Music includes Brahms' Psalm 13, selections from Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," Renaissance motets, the "Magnificat," by Nicola Porpora (a contemporary of J.S. Bach), and a haunting composition by cellist Pablo Casals. Badger will perform two movements of the Mendelssohn Organ Concerto and a demanding solo work from this century.

Tickets are $8 and may be purchased at Nobles Camera in Hingham Square, from members of the chorale, or by mail to the Broad Cove Chorale, 66 Lincoln St., Hingham. The Broad Cove Chorale is made up of 21 singers from Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, Duxbury, Pembroke, Plymouth and Milton. For more information call (617) 749-6561.

Paul Pratt Library Corner

Book sale to start

A used book sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday, May 10 & 11 and from 2 to 5 p.m., Sunday, May 12 at the Paul Pratt Library.

The books that are left after the sale will be given away.

The sale is sponsored by the Friends of the Paul Pratt Library with proceeds to benefit the library. Thousands of donated books and library discards will be sold for 50 cents each.

Library trustees reorganize

May 1, the Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library held their first meeting since the town elections.

Patience G. Towle, a trustee since 1993, was elected chairman of the board of trustees. Sarah R. Pease, elected as a trustee in 1995, was elected secretary. The trustees decided to meet at 8 p.m. on the first Wednesday of each month at the library on South Main Street. The meetings are open to the public and accessible to the handicapped.

Library news is noted

Don't miss Eleanor LeBlanc's art exhibit which runs through July 7. The new Apple computer has arrived for the children's room. The volunteer recognition evening is June 20 at the home of Barbara and Jeff Power. Watch this column for details.

Librarian Susan Terry welcomes the new computer for the children in the children's room.

Derby Fair is Saturday

Derby Academy will hold its annual Spring Fair on Saturday, May 11, from noon to 4 p.m., rain or shine, at the school, located on Burditt Avenue.

Pony rides, a moonwalk, the high striker, face painting, cookie painting and games and prizes will be featured.

Lunch will be available at the Fast Food Grille or at Derby's Gourmet Galley, offering many selections. Music will be provided throughout the afternoon by a DJ.

Items for sale include plants for Mother's Day, gently used books, White Elephant treasures and home-baked goods. Admission and parking are free.

Call for former crew members

Photo contest to benefit All Paws Rescue

All Paws Rescue of Hingham is hosting a photo contest, "Best Friends," for pet-loving shutterbugs. Dogs, cats, birds, fish and all animals qualify as potential poster pets. Winners will be named during All Paws Rescue's Paw Prints for Progress Dog Walk and Festival on Sunday, May 19, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Wompatuck State Park Visitor's Center, Hingham. Call 749-0968 for information. The contest is sponsored by Noble's Camera Shop. Proceeds will benefit All Paws Rescue Humane Society.

The three categories include: Canine Best Friends, Feline Best Friends and My Other Best Friend.

First-, second- and third-place ribbons will be awarded in the categories of Junior Pet Lover Shutterbugs (15 years and younger) and Seasoned Pet Lover Shutterbugs (16 years and older). Judging will be May 19 at 12:30 p.m. by award-winning photographers Bill Brett of the Boston Globe and Alan Chapman of Mariner Newspapers.

All photos should be submitted as prints, either color or black and white, and be no larger than 8x10-inches. No slides or negatives will be accepted.

Each photo must be accompanied by a separate copy of the official entry form, and a fee of $5 is required, payable by check or money order. Entries must be returned by mail by May 17, but may be picked up at the May 19 event. Multiple entries will be accepted as long as an official entry form or copy is submitted with each photo.

The photographer's name, age and phone number must be clearly marked on the back of the photo, along with the subject's name.

Entries should be mailed to: All Paws Rescue, P.O. Box 569, Accord 02108. Call 749-0968 for further details.

OUI arrests are made

Police charged Scott M. Aikens, 31, of 414B N. Main St., with operating under the influence of liquor (third or subsequent offense), operating after suspension (fifth or subsequent offense), operating to endanger, leaving the scene with property damage, and failure to stay in marked lanes following an accident in the early hours of Sunday morning, police Sgt. Robert Jackson said.

At about 2:10 a.m. Sunday, an officer received a report of a motor vehicle accident on Cedar Street, Jackson said. There was evidence that Aikens was involved in earlier accidents that morning at the intersection of 3A & King Street and King and N. Main streets where traffic signs were hit, he said. Aikens struck a tree on Cedar Street, Jackson said. He was bailed at South Shore Hospital where he was treated and released. Aikens will report to court July 24 for a pre-trial conference, Jackson said.

On Friday night, police Officer William Quigley arrested Frank Falvey, 65, of Trysting Place in Scituate and charged him with operating under the influence and failure to stay within marked lanes. Falvey was arraigned on the charges in Quincy District Court with return date of May 16.

Parking clerk is a bargain

Selectmen readily approved a transfer of $300 this week to pay the remaining expenses for a parking clerk. There is only $91.60 left in the budget out of $1,400, Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said.

"This is a case of the tail wagging the dog," Doyon explained. "The parking clerk costs are equal to the number of (parking) tickets issued."

Tickets are up because of the use of a summer police officer, said Doyon who serves as Cohasset's parking clerk.

About $20,000 has been deposited in the general fund in ticket fines, he said.

Doyon said parking clerk expenses are due to data processing and postage costs in processing the tickets.

Girls hit lacrosse field

New coach brings added enthusiasm to 38-player squad

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

For several years girls at Cohasset High were lobbying for a female lacrosse team. The main obstacle in their way, though, was getting someone who not only knew the game, but was available to coach.

The Skippers finally got the full package this spring when Hull's Cory Mundhenk dived into the job.

Mundhenk, who played lacrosse at Hingham High and Boston College, is ecstatic that she is coaching the game she loved to play.

"I really want to keep coaching," said Mundhenk, who is filling in teaching at Cohasset High for another teacher on maternity leave. "There aren't a lot of people around who know the sport. I'd love to stay and coach them.

"I want them to learn the sport and develop a love for the sport. I'm not looking to set any huge records. I just want to see them improve and enjoy the game."

The girls lacrosse team is currently playing at the club level against other non-varsity programs including Dennis-Yarmouth, Duxbury and Dover-Sherborn. By the end of the season the Lady Skippers will have played at least 11 games, Mundhenk is still working on adding a few more to the schedule.

Cohasset got off to a solid start, particularly for a first-year team, with a 3-3-1 record. The turnout for registration proved girls lacrosse is in demand in town with 38 girls from the seventh to 12th grade on the squad.

"I'm excited because we're doing well for a first-year team," she said. "I think it's great. I'm trying to get the younger girls involved in a pick-up league on Saturdays in Hingham."

Mudhenk says the team is chalk full of promising players, including seventh-grader Sarah Motley, who plays first home, the

Skippers hang tough to future tourney bid

By JIM O'SULLIVAN
Cohasset Mariner

Heading into last Thursday's East Bridgewater game, the Skippers held a 5-4 record. Emerging with a victory, Cohasset, with two winnable baseball games ahead, looked as if it could solidify its position as a tournament challenger. Instead, the Skippers dropped two games, one to Abington and the second to Scituate, bringing their record to 6-6.

Although a .500 record would get the Skippers into the tournament, head coach Ron Ford would like to see his squad better its record, which would allow it to draw a higher seed.

Against the Vikings, eighth-grade pitcher Joe Pergola, a right-hander with a steaming fastball and a nasty curve, threw 5-1/3 innings, allowing two runs. Pergola, who began the year on JV, has worked his way up through the ranks and has earned his position as of Ford's premier pitchers.

Senior pitcher and co-captain Greg Stevens mopped up, chalking up his third save of the year. Stevens calmly threw 1-2/3 frames of scoreless ball. The superb pitching of the righty duo was helped along by big hits from catcher Rob Buckley, outfielder Mike Dunphy and first baseman Kevin McKenna, each of whom knocked in runs against EB's tough pitching.

In the Abington game, Ford sent flame-throwing righty Greg Taylor to the mound. The freshman, now in his second year on varsity, gutted out seven innings, throwing hard, but not enough to win as Cohasset wound up on the losing end of the 6-3 decision.

Taylor also made a diving barehanded grab of a pop-up bunt, a play Ford called "phenomenal." Center fielder Grant Emde came up with a few RBI for Cohasset, but it wasn't enough to top the tough Abington squad.

After being rained out against Norton on Monday, the Skippers faced Scituate at home on Tuesday. The Sailors jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first frame. Cohasset fought back to get five in the bottom of the first, but the Skippers' neighboring rivals held on to win, 15-7. Senior co-captain Eric Henry and Emde hit back-to-back home runs on consecutive pitches, but it was too little too late as the Skippers' record dropped to 6-6. A bright spot came

Marshfield lax battle never comes to fruition

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

Sometimes things don't turn out the way you planned. In Cohasset High's lacrosse team's case that was a good thing when it came to its game against a tough Marshfield squad.

Head coach Ken Ekberg was prepared for a knock-down, drag-out match against the Rams, but the down-and-dirty battle never materialized.

The Skippers came out in the first half and played the best first half of lacrosse Ekberg has seen by any team all season to take an 11-2 lead. Ekberg made some personnel changes in the second half, but they hardly mattered as Cohasset walked away with a 13-7 victory.

The win put the Skippers over the .500 mark at 5-4 and surprised Ekberg as much as anyone.

"Marshfield is a tough team," he said. "I thought this was going to be a heck of a game."

Cohasset dominated every aspect of play throughout and goalie Ely Kahn wound up with 18 goals, most of which came in the second period, to earn the win.

As has been the case in the majority of the Skippers' games, Ken Leahy led a slew of Cohasset scorers. Leahy netted a hat trick and assisted on five others and sophomore Jamie Buick fired in four goals and added two assists. Chris McKenna had an assist to go along with his pair of tallies, while John Lax had a goal and assist. Kevin Smith, Eric Moore and Matt O'Connor all struck for goals.

Cohasset's next game is Friday against Norwell, followed by an away contest at Westwood on Saturday. The Skippers pretty much had their way with Norwell in the first meeting of the two teams this season. Cohasset took an early lead then built up a 14-3 win. Ekberg said he doesn't know much about the Westwood squad and has every intention of taking the squad very seriously.

As happy as Ekberg was with the Skippers' first half of play in the Marshfield game, he was a bit disappointed with the second.

"Consistency is an issue," he said. "We played a great first, but we didn't go at them as hard in the second half."

position closest to the opposing goal, and third home.

Ninth-grader Megan Connolly has one of the strongest shots on the team and can play several different positions. "She'll do anything I ask of her," Mudhenk said. "She's very much the team player."

Eighth-grader Jackie Kahn's strong suit is "cradling the ball" and moving it down field, while ninth-grader Katie Devine has been playing a solid game at center.

Co-captain Catie Campbell is the most versatile player on the team and has seen action on the wings, attack and defense. Campbell is especially good at knowing what her role is at the various positions.

"She's able to score and is very good at keeping others from scoring," Mudhenk said.

Goalie Ali Kinchla, a 10th-grader, should be a key to the Lady Skippers' defense in the coming years.

Despite the talent she does see from the girls, Mudhenk did say it's only natural that work be done on polishing the squad's skills. With so many girls on the team she holds two separate practices in the afternoon so she can get a better look at every player.

"I didn't think they were getting enough attention from me," she said. "I really want them to learn. The older girls picked it up quicker than the younger girls, but everybody has been working really hard.

"They've got the energy and enthusiasm. They're all really willing to work. It has been a great time commitment, but it's a lot of fun for me to do."

Legion tryouts scheduled

The George H. Mealy Post 118 will hold American Legion Baseball Tryouts Saturday, May 11, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Scituate High School field.

Any player between the ages of 15 and 19 after Aug. 1 is invited to try out. A certified copy of a player's birth certificate is required. For further information, call John Carr at 383-0331.

Skippers hang tough

when righty Ben Ketchum, who recently threw a no-hitter, came on to throw a scoreless inning and got his first varsity hit in his first plate appearance. Ketchum roped a single up the middle. He had been batting .438 on the JV team with one home run.

Cohasset now finds itself at a crucial point in the season. With rested arms and live bats, the Skippers should be able to come up with four more wins and still have time to vie for a solid tourney seed. The two remaining games this week against Norwell and Abington should be tell-tale signs of how the Skippers will handle the pressure of making the tournament.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

FIX-UP DOLLAR SENSE

QUESTION: What is the best way to make home improvements with the thought of selling?

ANSWER: It's what a buyer SEES that makes the difference. Which would add more to the visual value of a home – new insulation or a new kitchen? Unless the insulation is really on its last legs, a new kitchen is a better investment. A buyer can SEE a new kitchen or remodeled bathroom, or an exterior paint job, but will he SEE the insulation behind the walls?

It's always nice to do both, but if you have a choice, spend your money where it will be seen the most. It will make your house more attractive and more salable.

SSH hosts golf tournament

The seventh annual South Shore Hospital golf tournament will be held Monday, June 3, at Hatherly Country Club, North Scituate. Proceeds will support hospital programs and services that are available free of charge to the community. In 1995, SSH provided $7.3 million in care to those unable to pay for services.

Last year's tournament raised $46,000 to help support the hospital's new cardiac catheterization laboratory. Corporate sponsorship opportunities are available. Call Jill McDonough at South Shore Health and Educational Foundation at 340-8848 for more information or to register. Hingham resident Dick Dempsey is chairman of the tournament.

Girls basketball clinic at Notre Dame Academy

Notre Dame Academy is sponsoring a Basketball Clinic for girls in grades 6-8 on July 29, 30, 31 and Aug. 1 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the school's gymnasium, 1073 Main St. The fee is $75.

The clinic will address the areas of shooting, guard play and post play. There will be instruction designed for individual development in ballhandling, passing, shooting and team play.

For an application or more details, call (508) 238-0372.

Gymnastics openings available

There are still openings in Tumble Bugs, pre-school boys and girls, beginner boys and girls, sports for kids, intermediates and junior and high school classes. The session began April 29 and runs for eight weeks. For more information call the South Shore Community Center at 383-0088.

Upcoming events at the center include "Boys Night Out" on Friday, June 7 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. for boys ages 5-10 years old. Come join Ruthann, George and others for a fun-filled evening of sports, bowling, obstacle courses, and make your own pizza. Everyone receives something for participation. You must be pre-registered. Call the center for more information.

Tai Chi offered

The South Shore Community Center is offering Tai Chi for beginners and advanced students. It is a form class which promotes health, balance, relaxation, and flexibility through slow, fluid movements. Please call 383-0088.

Dog obedience classes set for May 14

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for beginner and intermediate dog training classes to be taught by Laurie Cleveland. Classes will be held on Tuesday evenings on Cohasset Common beginning May 14.

Beginner classes will be from 6:30-7:30 p.m., and intermediate-advanced classes will be from 7:30-8:30 p.m. The fee for the eight-week program will be $48. Checks should be made payable to the Town of Cohasset and may be brought to the first class.

Participating dogs should be a minimum of three months of age. To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791. Classes are limited in size, non-residents will be accepted on a space available basis. Classes do not meet in inclement weather.

Cohasset Arts Boosters Club

Cohasset High School will come alive with the sound of music this spring with the annual Pops Concert May 16. The Arts Boosters will host the 11th annual CHS Arts Recognition Night May 23. More details will follow later, but please mark your calendars now for these festive events.

In 1995/96, the Arts Boosters have continued their tradition of providing essential funding, publicity and organizational support for all of the high school arts. Arts Boosters volunteers work closely with six teachers of the arts all year, and funding comes from student performances, grants and an annual fundraising letter sent to parents and businesses.

This year the Arts Boosters donated a major gift of stage risers for the CHS auditorium to enhance the performance setting for Deer Hill and high school musicians. In addition, they funded an HP Deskwriter 660c Printer and the student literary magazine, Whispers & Shadows, which will be mailed to all parents 7 to 12.

As part of a Boston-wide commemoration of tenor Roland Hayes, the first black male singer to perform with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, they donated materials on Hayes's life and work. The Arts Boosters also provided curriculum materials for the new photography class, including the film for Cohasset's participation in the National Photo Documentary, "One Day in the Life of America: A Photographic Celebration of Student Life."

The Arts Boosters Club would like to thank the many "Patrons of the Arts" who have contributed to our efforts in support of the arts at Cohasset High School.

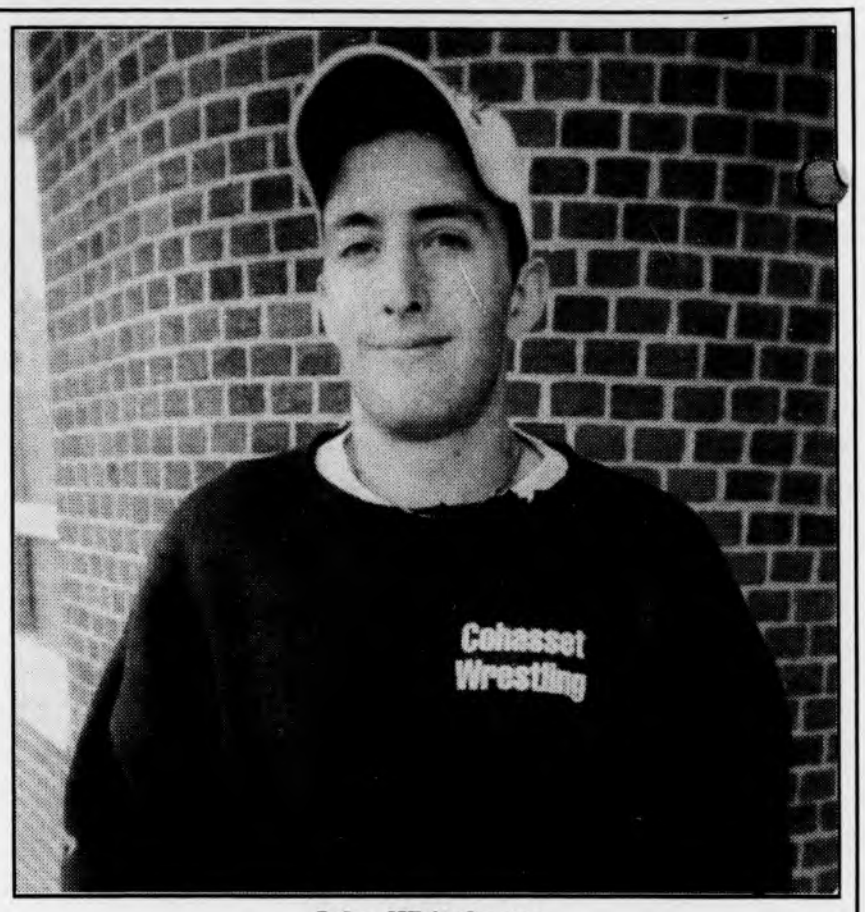
Gala art opening is May 14

Deer Hill School will host a Gala Art Opening Tuesday, May 14, at 7 p.m. The art show, entitled "Favorites 1996," represents the artwork of all Deer Hill students, who have chosen their favorite artwork of the year. There will be refreshments and music. All are invited to attend.

Deer Hill School will also celebrate the grand unveiling of a permanent clay installation created by DHS sixth-grade students, along with displays from Deer Hill's recent artist-in-residency program with dancer Nikki Hu and composer Guy Van Duser.

For additional information, art teacher Ann Berman at DHS, 383-6115.

STUDENT OF THE MONTH/ John Whitehouse



John Whitehouse

It's rather unusual for a wrestling coach and an English teacher to collaborate on a recommendation for Student of the Month, but we're recommending a rather unusual student, John Whitehouse.

I can truly say it has been a pleasure to teach and to know John Whitehouse. In the classroom, he is one of the top students I have taught in my career, but perhaps the thing I am most impressed with about John is something I would call intellectual humility. In a discussion, he is not the person who "knows all the answers" and can't wait to get his next words in — even it it means not listening to what someone else is saying.

I have watched John make a comment, sit back and listen to the class respond, and when appropriate, say, "I can see that as another way of looking at things," or even "That makes much more sense than what I said originally."

John is not an academic wimp; he is an open-minded thinker willing to accept the ideas of others if they are convincing. He has the patience to let others express these ideas even when he disagrees with them.

His wrestling coach has been impressed by his work ethic, also. John worked during the off-season at lifting and wrestling to better prepare himself for the season, which was his third of varsity competition.

John served as one of the captains of this year's team and, according to his coach, will make a strong bid to place in the state competition.

We recommend John Whitehouse very strongly for Student of the Month.

— Ron Emmons and Torin Sweeney

Arts performed at Deer Hill

Dancer/choreographer Nikki Hu and composer Guy Van Duser is spending April 22-26 at Deer Hill School working with students and staff. They will create a performing arts interpretation of the story "Sadako and the 1,000 Cranes," a highly acclaimed children's book about the life of a Japanese child after the bombing of Hiroshima. The story shows how one child can make a difference in the lifes of others.

The tale of hope and inspiration will be presented as a dance performance incorporating history, music, art and literature. Performances took place on Friday, April 26, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. at Deer Hill School.

The project was funded in part by the Mass. Cultural Council, local lottery council and support from the Cohasset Education Foundation, Cohasset PSO and the Diversity Committee.

'A Thousand Cranes'

Special program at Deer Hill School

Staff photos/Alan Chapman

Clockwise from top left: Nikki Hu welcomes visitors to the Deer Hill School where she led fifth-grade pupils in a dance portraying the story of Hiroshima's tragedy. Soldier (Robert Hickey) stands by as Sara Genovese (a survivor) pulls one of the dying (portrayed by Meghan Chastain) to the river. Pupils perform the dance of 'A Thousand Cranes,' based on a true story about a Hiroshima survivor who later succumbed to leukemia (Front row L-R are Yasmine Afshar, Katherine Coyne, and Kim Ulmer). Alexis Bugley, at front, shows the sign of respect. The program tries to convey the understanding that making a peaceful world is much like the process of learning a dance or making music — working with courage and hope for a beautiful outcome. The program was made possible through state and local grants.

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that HENRY C. LARSEN, Jr. of NORWELL in the County of PLYMOUTH be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on May 29, 1996.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16A.

Witness, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-six.

Herb Day party is slated

Herb Day, honoring Herb Jason and Herb Towle for a lifetime of commitment and service to Cohasset and its maritime history, is planned for Sunday, May 19, from 2 p.m. to sunset on Government Island, Cohasset Harbor.

There will be singing by Lilly Sestitio, Dan Anderson's famous seafood chowder, exhibits, along with other fun-filled activities and surprises.

For more information, call Ira Stoughton at 383-0747 or Kit Bryant at 383-9094.

Buy stock in service project

ASP volunteers have invited all Cohasset residents to become a part of this year's Appalachia Service Project. A recent town-wide mailing outlined "stock options," at $20 a share, with guaranteed returns of postcards, letters, newsletters, photos, and above all, the satisfaction of joining this community effort. Proceeds from the sale of "stock" are used for construction materials, transportation, and room and board.

"Stock" sales is the project's major fund-raiser. If you are interested in helping out and becoming an integral part of the 1996 Appalachia Service Project, please send your tax-deductible contribution, payable to "SCC Youth Group," to Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., 02025. For more information, call Gary Ritts (383-0345), Ami Argus (383-9325), or Pam DeLorenzo (383-6904).

Yard sale is Saturday

Your spring cleanup can help others this year when you donate your unwanted furniture, toys, sports equipment, kitchen goods, art work, boats, books, knick-knacks, and other "treasures" to ASP's annual yard sale, scheduled from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, May 11 at the Second Congregational Church.

Donated items may be dropped off at the church, next to town hall, from 7 to 9 p.m. today (Thursday). Pickups can be arranged by calling Ami Argus at 383-9325.

ASP also welcomes donations of construction tools. Black & Decker will rebuild or replace any old or broken B&D tools, so please include those.

All proceeds will benefit the 1996 Appalachia Service Project this summer when 84 Cohasset High School students and adult supervisors will travel to Appalachia to repair homes for needy families.

Pops concert at CHS

The annual Pops Concert will take in Cohasset High School cafeteria on Thursday, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited. Refreshments are included in the $5 admission fee.

The event is sponsored by the Arts Boosters Club, and all proceeds will support the arts at CHS.

Mother's Day brunch

A Mother's Day Brunch on Saturday will be served to mothers and their guests by the Young Women of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Reservations need be made by calling Polly Doggett at 383-1847. Any profits will go to the young women for this summer's girls' camp program.

Teen center update noted

There will be an open house at the Cohasset Teen Center, 24 So. Main St., Friday, May 10, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. All sixth graders and their parents are invited to drop by, tour the center, and meet the directors, staff, and some of the board members of the Cohasset Youth Resources. Juice and baked goods will be served.

Later that evening, all seventh, eighth and ninth graders are invited to the second poker night at the center. Games will be played from 7 to 10 p.m., with pizza and soda provided and prizes awarded.

The teen center also will be open Saturday, May 11, 7 to 10 p.m.

Girl Scout registration

Girl Scout registration for the fall will be held Wednesday, May 22, from 7 to 8 p.m. at Second Congregational Church in Bates Hall. Adults are needed to be leaders.

Geranium sale this Sunday

A perfect Mother's Day gift! Beautiful geraniums in 6" pots in pink, white or red will be sold after church at 11:35 a.m. on Sunday, May 12, at the First Parish front yard, 23 North Main St., opposite the common. Plants are $5 each, three for $12.

Septic system relief offered

State loans may put repairs within homeowners' reach

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

Cohasset residents, troubled by failed or failing septic systems, and without a sewer connection in their future will soon be eligible for some significant financial aide.

A new state revolving loan fund, managed by the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), will make $30 million in long-term, low-interest loans available to towns, offering relief to those hardest hit by Title V.

The money has become available through the passage of the state's Open Space Bond Bill and Cohasset will be one of the first communities eligible for the loan program, said DEP Deputy Assistant Commissioner Glenn Haas.

"Cohasset is coming in under a comprehensive approach management plan for handling its whole unsewered area and is under a court agreement with the state," Haas said. Under the agreement, Cohasset must sewer 1/3 of its homes before 1999. A major sewer project

Landfill legal fees out of control, counsel warns

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

What Selectmen Chairman Merle Brown thought would be a 15-minute powwow lasted nearly two hours Monday as members of three town boards grappled with soaring costs related to legal issues surrounding Cohasset Heights Landfill.

The heated discussion may have seemed like déjà vu to those who recall when the same topic reached a head — about 12 months and $300,000 ago.

Ironically, it is a lawyer who sounded

Two Herbs to be honored

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Herb Jason and Herb Towle have a lot more in common than their first name.

Jason, 82, and Towle, 78, may be well past the age when most people slow down – but these two Cohasset natives haven't even thought of stepping back from their hectic pace of involvement.

Jason, a lobsterman, and Towle, a sailing enthusiast, are as comfortable on the water as on land.

So Government Island, which juts out into Cohasset harbor, is the perfect spot to honor the men who put in hours of their time volunteering on parallel projects at the town park: the refurbishing of the Lightkeepers' House and the construction of the Minot's Light Replica.

Both men will be honored at "Herb Day" a special community celebration getting underway Sunday with a boat proces-

Cohasset's Week

Housing complex meeting is tonight at town hall

Selectman Ronnie McMorris said there is a meeting at 7:30 p.m. (tonight) May 16 in the selectmen's office to learn about the proposed senior citizen development off Beechwood Street. Developer Wayne Sawchuck has proposed at 28-unit condominium-style housing proposal for the so-called "Wolf Pit" area off the end of Beechwood Street. Twenty-five percent of the project would be dedicated as affordable housing for elderly/handicapped.

Village forum is slated

Selectmen plan to host a public forum on Cohasset Village issues at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, May 22 at Bancroft Hall at the Lightkeepers House on Government Island. The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce recently launched a village revitalization effort which selectmen have enthusiastically supported.

Silvia on re-use board

Rich Silvia, who has served on the school facilities committee since the 1970s, selectmen said, resigned from that board in order to be appointed to the Osgood School Re-Use Committee.

Selectmen accepted Silvia's resignation with thanks and were happy to appoint him to the Osgood committee which will come up with a recommendation on what should be done with the aging elementary school after the new school is built on the Deer Hill site.

Also appointed to the re-use committee are two neighborhood representatives, Kathleen L. O'Malley, 56 Sohier St. and John W. Childs, 87 Sohier St.

Ambulance billing update

As of April 30, the town has collected $85,813.34 out of a possible $97,135.01 in ambulance bills for a collection rate of 88 percent, the fire department reported to selectmen this week.

Receipts are not solely from fiscal year 1996 ambulance transports but include previous fiscal years.

Support for bricks noted

Mark and Diana Remlinger, 55 Norfolk Rd., wrote to selectmen this week to support the idea of installing inscribed bricks along the common. Selectmen have been looking for a solution to the "brown" strip where the grass has worn away due to cars parking on it along the North Main Street side between Jason and Long Roads.

"We will also volunteer to buy and sell bricks," they wrote.

Lights, camera, action!

Cohasset is the site of an upcoming Marshall's commercial, Town Administrator Gregory Doyon reported.

September Productions, which filmed a Maxwell House commercial on the common several years ago, asked permission to use the Sandy Beach and Parker Street parking lots as a staging area this week.

The commercial was slated to be filmed this week at a private home on Atlantic Avenue and not on public property so in lieu of a location fee, Doyon asked the production company for a $300 donation for the town common maintenance fund.

Cohasset's Week

Shaw's head of real estate development Brian Leahy, state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, and Shaw's president and CEO Philip Francis pose for the official ground-breaking at Cushing Plaza on Monday morning. Shaw's is razing the existing buildings to construct a new shopping center at the site. Plans are to have the plaza finished within about a year. A retention pond near Bergson's is currently under construction which will solve the existing problem with rain water run-off from the plaza, officials said. Francis said the plaza is one of his favorite places to shop and is exactly 6.2 miles from his home in Norwell.

Two Herbs to be honored

sion at 2 p.m. at Government Island off Border Street. The event is being sponsored by the non-profit Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation, which preserved and now manages the lightkeepers' house. The day also features Blessing of the Fleet at 2:30 p.m. and from 3 to 3:45 p.m., "proclamations, presentations and responses," CLC president Joe McElroy said. Antique autos will be on display throughout the afternoon along with other exhibits and Dan Anderson's famous New England Clam Chowder with coffee or soda pop will be available.

Towle, who founded the Cohasset sailing club in 1960, said he's looking forward to the event.

"It gives me a chance to thank the people for the help they gave me to make things happen," he said.

Towle worked hand-in-hand with McElroy and other volunteers with the refurbishing of the 140-year-old lightkeepers' house, which now includes two apartments and Bancroft Hall which is available as a meeting place for community groups. CLC leases the residence from the town for $1 a year. Money for the about $1/4 million project, which started four years ago, was raised privately and McElroy said a mortgage burning is also planned Sunday to celebrate the paying off of the remaining $11,000 owed.

Jason helped construct the Minot light replica, which stands down the hill in front of the lightkeepers' house, and is made with the cement blocks from Minot's Ledge Light which was rebuilt several years ago.

Both men have a vision for the future of Government Island which they'd like to see become a focal point for townspeople and tourists alike.

Refurbishing the red building next to the lightkeepers (which is now used for storage) and turning it into a small museum is one project. The structure was used as the engineer's headquarters during the construction of the second Minot's light in the 1860's and Towle and Jason would like to see it recreated complete with old photographs and plans. Another project is to incorporate the small brick building by the sailing club into the historical features of the island. That building was used to store the sperm whale oil once used to light the lamps at Minot light. And lastly, they'd like to see Beacon Rock made more accessible and perhaps install the braces and mast up there like the one that once existed to send messages from atop the rock to the lightkeepers by the semaphore system.

One thing Jason would like to see changed is the island's name.

"The name Government Island, I do not like!" he says. The land used to be owned by the government and when Minot light was being reconstructed in the 1800s, townspeople referred to the area as "government land" and the name evolved that way, Jason says.

Bury common wires

Selectman Nan Roth said several residents in the town common area are interested in learning how much it would cost to bury the utility wires all the way around the common up to St. Stephen's.

They'd like to accomplish the project by the year 2000 and are willing to obtain some private resources and solicit grant funds, Roth said.

"They'd like to know what the exact numbers will be," Roth said.

Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said determining the cost would require a significant engineering study.

Selectman Peter Pratt noted that "utilities don't like doing this, not out of the goodness of their heart."

Pratt suggested town counsel be consulted to see how the town should proceed with this matter and felt that burying the wires might go along with open space planning which the town has just embarked on. Selectmen recently appointed an open space planning committee.

Pay hikes recommended

Selectmen recommended pay raises for civilian dispatcher Thomas Wigmore from $9.39 to $9.94 per hour effective June 4 and for Mary M. Farrell, accounting clerk, from $10.19 to $10.72 effective June 14.

Loans may put repairs within homeowners' reach involving upgrading Cohasset's wastewater treatment plant and a plan to sewer homes along Straits Pond by connecting them to Hull's sewer treatment plant are already in the works.

Cohasset can borrow up to $500,000 annually for the next six years and can in turn lend the money to homeowners in need of septic system repairs or an upgrade, said Sewer Commission Chairman Edward "Ted" Guild. Once the loan is made, the town puts a lean on the homeowner's property until the loan is paid off, he said.

Individual homeowners will be allowed to borrow up to $20,000 for on-site repairs to their septic systems, Guild said. The loans are offered at half market rate interest, currently less than 3 percent, and can be paid off over 20 years. Without the subsidy program, Guild said homeowners will be faced with paying the entire cost of the repair work up front.

Average repair costs in Cohasset have run between $10,000 and $25,000, said Guild, who noted that with $500,000 to work with annually — 25, $20,000 repairs or upgrades could be done each year, making it possible to handle the bulk of problems in town over the next six years.

Town meeting must vote to approve borrowing the money, Guild said, noting that the health and sewer boards will likely work together to sponsor an article for the special town meeting this fall. If the article passes muster at town meeting, Guild said the money could be available to homeowners by the end of the year.

Other communities could apply to borrow lesser amounts $100,000 to $200,000 in the next fiscal year, Haas noted.

"I can't imagine it wouldn't pass," Guild said of the proposed article, noting that the program's adoption would have no impact on the tax rate and will help many people. For those who have already upgraded their systems there is no retroactive assistance available, but for those still facing costly repairs, it will be a boon, Guild said.

Town Administrator Greg Doyon agreed, but has concerns that $500,000 per year won't be sufficient to solve all of Cohasset's septic problems.

"This will only solve a small proportion of the potential need out there," he said, adding "1,300 households in Cohasset will not be sewered and we're concerned there will be more in need than money available."

Cohasset Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik also has concerns about the program which he noted is in the beginning stages.

Godzik noted there is a risk to Cohasset which is responsible to pay the state back for the loan, if a homeowner defaults on his loan payment to the town. Godzik also stressed a need to provide training to those who will administer the program for the town.

"It's early on in the process," said Godzik, who expects the health and sewer boards to meet in June or July to work out the administrative details.

"We need to get the treasurer/collector involved, so they know what's going on," he said, pointing out that this is a loan program and not a gift from the state or town.

Residents who have gotten wind of the program are already starting to voice their support of it. River Road resident Lisa Westcott said she knew when she purchased her home she'd have to upgrade its septic system — an old cesspool — and has been concerned about the cost.

"I'm very interested in finding out about the loan program," she said.

An additional homeowner loan, managed through the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, became available this month, giving residents another loan option, Godzik noted.

Landfill legal fees out of control, counsel warns

the alarm this time with what he described as "very troubling" bills.

The town's new Town Counsel Paul DeRensis incredulously fanned last month's $40,000 in legal bills from the Boston law firm Warner & Stackpole in front of selectmen, the board of health and members of the conservation commission at Monday's meeting.

"This has the feel of $1 million being spent," DeRensis said.

And he may be closer than the thinks. Unofficial estimates put the amount the town has spent over the past decade at upwards of $750,000. The town appropriated about $290,000 for legal fees for CHL issues through special and annual town meetings for FY' 96, which ends June 30.

At the DeRensis' urging that they take charge of the situation — selectmen said all requests for special town counsel must be funnelled through their board. They will now insist on a firm, detailed estimate for services which must not be exceeded.

Last year, selectmen were divided on how to corral the rising cost of special legal counsel dealing with Cohasset Heights, a privately-owned landfill off Rte. 3A, whose proposed expansion the town opposes.

At that time, under pressure from the board of health and conservation commission which felt long-time special environmental counsel Warner & Stackpole should continue to represent the town on Cohasset Heights issues — in a majority vote selectmen (with Selectmen Peter Pratt and Martha Gjesteby dissenting) backed off a promise made at town meeting to issue a Request for Proposal (RFP) to shop the market and see if the town is getting the best value for the dollar.

They decided then to have then town counsel Richard Henderson be a liaison between town boards and Warner & Stackpole to save money and discourage board members from calling W&S directly and running up the costs that way.

But Henderson stepped down as town counsel last year to devote more time to his private practice and with the spate of site assignment hearings — 19 in all — relating to Cohasset Heights expansion, the legal cost meter kept ticking away.

This week selectmen said DeRensis' firm will take over CHL issues that are not directly related to the site assignment hearings and possible appeal of the board of health's recent decision to deny CHL's expansion application.

CHL matters before the conservation commission will be handled by town counsel immediately, selectmen said. The Board of Health wants to keep W&S on board and it is not clear if selectmen will agree. Legal appellate work differs from evidential hearings and often law firms send in a different team of specialist lawyers for appeals. DeRensis said the appeal "it should be a fairly routine thing" because the evidence is already in the record, therefore negating the need for W&S to handle the appeal.

DeRensis noted that law firms that predominantly work for private entities play by different rules. He explained that judging from the bills, W&S had two and sometimes three lawyers working simultaneously on town matters at the rate of $150 to $200 per hour apiece when some of the work could be done by a paralegal at $50 an hour.

"We find in the public sector having two lawyers on a case doesn't work for economic reasons," DeRensis said. DeRensis's firm, Deutsch Williams Brooks DeRensis Holland & Drachman serves as town counsel for Randolph, Nantucket and a host of other municipalities, counties and special governmental agencies in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Vermont. Some 70 percent of its clients are public entities with private practice taking up the rest.

DeRensis said the fault for the escalating bills lies with selectmen for not laying down guidelines and providing control "on a very close basis."

Apparently in agreement, selectman Ronnie McMorris noted that when she was on the conservation commission, W&S lawyer Michael Leon attended a number of meetings.

"I had no idea when he came it was $1,000 a shot," she said.

Dropping a potential bombshell, DeRensis said he found the town's decision on denying CHL's site assignment application to have a couple of "fatal defects which could be overturned."

Selectmen were dumbfounded by this statement which DeRensis did not elaborate on except to say the matter might be remanded for additional fact finding so legal expenditures relating to the proposed expansion could go on for a "considerable amount of time."

Fishing boat incident is under investigation, police chief says

Police, the U.S. Coast Guard, and the state Environmental Police are investigating an incident that occurred at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday when the operator of a fishing boat was found in the water.

Sheldon F. Sladen, 61, of 42 Elm Court, was air lifted by helicopter to Boston City Hospital. BCH said Sladen was in surgery and was listed in critical condition at 3 p.m. Tuesday as the Mariner went to press.

A press release issued by Police Chief Brian W. Noonan said shortly after 10:30 a.m., the Cohasset harbormaster John Winters received a "May Day" from the fishing boat "Prime Rib" saying "have found fishing boat 'Beachcomber' at east Shag Rock with motor running, no one on vessel."

The harbormaster responded shortly thereafter after receiving a transmission from "Prime Rib" that the owner of the boat had been located in the water and had been taken on board where CPR was administered.

"Prime Rib" was escorted by the harbormaster to the Government Island pier where police and fire units were waiting. Sladen was transported by ambulance to Miliken Field on Bancroft Road and subsequently transported by Boston MedFlight to Boston City Hospital.

Help clean up Cohasset Village!

The Village Task Force is sponsoring two Village clean-up days to coincide with flower planters being installed by the Village Renaissance Committee. The clean-up area will consist of the Central Village, Elm Street, town parking area, Depot Court and Ripley Road. The effort will be continued down to the Harbor area if there are enough volunteers and time permits.

Clean-up days will be: Saturday, May 18, from 9 a.m. to noon; and Monday, May 20, from 8 a.m. to noon. Volunteers will meet at Aquarius Sunrooms, 22 Depot Court.

Along with volunteers, the following items are needed: tools, rakes brooms, compost, plants rail road ties, trash bags, mulch, top soil, flowers and pressure-treated timbers. Volunteers are asked to bring their own equipment if possible.

The goal of the Village Task Force is to create a polished village image which reflects the community spirit that exists in Cohasset. For further information or to volunteer or offer suggestions, call Dean Rizzo at 383-1994.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

Martha Logan attends auction of Jackie's estate

Martha Logan of Cohasset and her Smith College classmate, Carol Plum of New York, were among those attending Sotheby's auction of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis' estate. They were present at the book, china, furniture and jewelry collections of the auction, and they were among the 75,000 who received catalogues. (Profits from catalogue sales were earmarked for the JFK Library, Boston.)

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Guild, Mrs. John Chase, Mrs. John Keane, Mrs. Edward Logan and Miss Martha Logan recently toured the "Splendors of Imperial China: Treasures from National Palace Museum, Taipei" at the New York Metropolitan Museum, which is considered the finest collection of Chinese art in existence.

From all reports, the collection is spectacular and held in the highest esteem; those who attended were thrilled to be able to do so!

Had a pleasant chat with Brendan Mulcahy the other day. He was so happy to let everyone know he won two medals in the Special Olympics, held a few weeks ago in Brockton. The medals were for softball throw and the 50-yard dash, in the 18-30 age group. He goes onward next week; hopefully he will let us know how he does in his events. We will be sending cheers to you, Brendan.

At a recent Plymouth County Education Association banquet, the following teachers were honored: meritorious citations went to Marian Atkinson and Susan Bausch, Osgood School, $500 awards; R. Lawrence Shultz, Deer Hill School, $500 award; honor awards went to Faith Bowker Maloney, Osgood School, and Katherine Whitley, Deer Hill School.

Alexander Gaston, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gaston III, is a freshman at Holderness School, Plymouth, N.H. and has been named to the honor roll for the winter semester.

PCEA awards for retirement went to Virginia Burbank, Pauline Gallagher, Faith Maloney, Donald Reade and Katherine Whitley. The professional service award went to Jim Franey for 35 years of service; and honorary life membership was awarded to Mary Babaian for 30 years. Marian Atkinson also received a citation.

A standing ovation goes to Ben Redfield, a freshman at Roger Williams University, who plays on the men's lacrosse team. Ben had three goals and two assists when the team beat Nichols College recently.

Kim Hurlbut is coordinating the "Weigh Down Workshop," a 12-week course starting May 28. It will be sponsored by Cohasset Community Church, and will be held at South Shore Community Center at 7 p.m. Please call 383-9761 with any questions you may have about the program.

Abigail Kornet is one of 47 students who participated in the 1996 student-directed One-Act Play Festival at Northfield Mount Hermon School during the last two weekends of April. Abigail, a sophomore, is assistant director of the play, "Hidden In This Picture." She also has participated in girls crew. Abigail is the daughter of Diana and John L. Kornet of Cohasset.

Gregory and Joan Meallo are proud to announce the birth of their daughter, Lindsey Paula Meallo, born April 20 at 4:10 p.m. at South Shore Hospital. Lindsey weighed eight pounds, 12 ounces. Her maternal grandmother is Marjorie Emanuello of Cohasset; her paternal grandparents are Albert and Paula Meallo, also of Cohasset. Congratulations to all of you!

Kudos go to Robert C. Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Morgan, Jerusalem Road, and Benjamin T. Smoot, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smoot, Hull Street — both are members of the Class of 1999 at Boston College High School, and both made high honors for the third term!

Alexander Gaston, a freshman at Holderness School, Plymouth, N.H., has been named to the honor roll for the winter semester. He is a member of the Holderness chorus, and performed a leading role in a production of the musical "Oliver."

Alex also took part in Artward Bound, a program providing two weeks of intensive workshop instruction in the arts from practicing professional artists. Alexander is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gaston III.

We hope this so-called spring weather will improve, but here is an idea for you to ponder if it doesn't: Think of an idea for a float for Harborfest! The theme for this year is "Cohasset's Maritime Heritage." The idea is to keep ideas simple — ones that don't need huge flatbed trailers. Five cash prizes will be awarded, ranging from $50 to $250.

Call Jim Lagrotteria at 383-9385 or Bob Martin, 383-0787, to let them know you want a space reserved for you and your "seaworthy" float!

That's all the news for this week. We surely hope something exciting goes on at your house this week, and that you will call telling us all about it!

Obituaries

Pasquale J. Calorio

Pasquale J. "Murph" Calorio, 76, of Cohasset, died suddenly May 11 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth.

Born in Cambridge, he attended Rindge Technical High School in Cambridge. He was a resident of Hingham before moving to Cohasset, where he lived for 43 years.

He was a ground man for 25 years for Mass. Electric in Weymouth before retiring in 1985.

Mr. Colorio was a World War II Army veteran. After the service, he went to work for the ammunition depot in Hingham, where he met his wife, Helen M. (Bravo) Calorio. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in September, renewing their vows in St. Paul's Church.

Mr. Colorio's first priority was his family. He had become the "chauffeur" for his grandchildren, driving them to daily activities. He spent a lot of time playing with and nurturing his grandchildren.

Besides his wife, Mr. Calorio leaves a daughter, Patricia E. Hagerty of Hingham; a son, Thomas F. Calorio of Cohasset; a son-in-law, David A. Hagerty of Hingham; a daughter-in-law, Marie E. Calorio of Cohasset; six grandchildren, Allyson and Anthony Hagerty of Hingham and Michael, Catherine, Tess and Vincent Pasquale Calorio, all of Cohasset; three brothers, Jimmy Calorio of Watertown and Frank and Joseph Calorio, both of Cambridge; and a sister, Agnes Hebert of New Hampshire. He was the father of the late Mary Ann Calorio and the brother of the late Domenic and John Calorio and the late Betty Giove. He also leaves numerous nieces and nephews and grandnieces and grandnephews.

A funeral Mass was held May 15 at St. Paul's Church, Hingham.

Burial was in St. Paul's Cemetery.

Arrangements were made by Pyne Keohane Funeral Home, Hingham.

Donations in his memory may be made to the Mary A. Calorio Scholarship Fund, Wrentham Developmental Center, P.O. Box 144, Emerald Street, Wrentham 02093.

Ethel B. Knowles

Ethel B. Knowles, 91, of Cohasset, died April 20 after a long illness.

A 66-year member of the Order of Eastern Star, Mrs. Knowles joined the order in 1922 and was Worthy Matron of the Braintree chapter in 1951.

One of the first residents of the elderly housing apartments at 60 Elm St., she was active in the senior community until 1983.

Mrs. Knowles leaves her son and daughter-in-law, Keith and Paula Knowles of Cohasset; her grandchildren, Susan Curtin of Norwell, Christopher Knowles of Basking Ridge, N.J., and Gregory and Jennifer Knowles of Cohasset; and her great-grandchildren, Jordan and Darius Knowles of Basking Ridge.

A private graveside memorial service willbe held for family members.

Herb Day

Sunday, the community will honor two special people, Herb Jason and Herb Towle.

The Cohasset natives share a lot more than their first name.

They both grew up in town and gravitated to the water where Mr. Towle discovered sailing and Mr. Jason took up "lobstering."

Over the years, they've never left town for long — except when Mr. Towle served in the Pacific in the Navy during World War II.

Cohasset is where their hearts are.

And luckily for all of us, Herb and Herb both found a place on Government Island to occupy their boundless energy and enthusiasm.

Herb Jason has played an integral role in the development of the Minot Light Replica, which is by any measure spectacular.

And Herb Towle worked endless hours on the refurbishing of the lightkeepers house, which is now a shining star.

Neither man sat back and gave directions — they got involved and used their hands to help mold both places into something which the town will have forever.

Herb Jason and Herb Towle are no longer young in years — but don't let that fool you. Their attitude, determination, and energy are that of men less than half their age.

And each have a barrel or two full of stories to tell. The harbor and Minot Light hold a lot of tales – which are full of life and legend. So much so that we finally had to surrender our pen and just sit back to listen and enjoy their anecdotal accounts during our recent interview.

Whether it's sailing through rough seas, helping a lightkeeper into Minot Light after a winter storm when the ladder was caked with ice, or swimming in a wet suit through ice to rescue a fellow boater — there's lots of Cohasset mariner history to learn from these men.

Yet while they fondly remember where they've been — they look forward to new projects and challenges including further enhancements to Government Island.

So make it a point to stop by Sunday to meet these two venerable Cohasset institutions. The schedule of events get underway at 2 p.m. with a boat parade following by the blessing of the fleet and presentations and proclamations. There will be clam chowder to eat and lots of antique autos to see.

Left-leaning schoolhouse?

To the Editor:

In a letter last week, Joe McElroy noted that our school system used a consultant who concocted a dance routine purporting to depict the suffering resulting from the bombing of Hiroshima.

The suffering by Hiroshima can't be denied, but neither can the suffering of the American captives during the Death March at Bataan, and many other cruelties that are spawned by war. The Axis powers displayed no mercy in their ruthless grab for power, and the monstrous evil would not have been destroyed without powerfully destructive response. Diplomacy wasn't a useful option with Tojo, Hitler and Mussolini; they regarded it as a means of conning weak-kneed politicians into inaction. (A tactic used with great success half a century later by Milosevich to gain tacit acquiescence to Serbian genocide of the Bosnians).

Anyone exposed to "higher" education, including our teachers, hears the "America Stinks" philosophy of left-leaning professors. What keeps the cancer in check is the common sense and family/school training of most people. But we should be forever watchful for soft-headed bias that distorts history, especially when impressionable children are exposed to it.

When the battle is over, it is often possible to realize that the last few shells need not have been lobbed, and some of the enemy spared. But battles and wars are not won by economy of force. WW2 was a righteous war against tyranny, and President Truman was absolutely correct to bring it to a swift conclusion that was less terrible than the delayed conclusion both sides might have suffered.

Despite its flaws, America is an example of democracy, personal freedom and justice that billions of others don't enjoy, with a government that can't stray far afield for long from the basic decency and kindliness of its citizens. Teachers and parents should focus on the fruits and promise of active democracy, and eschew revisionist self-denigration.

'Cranes' is inspirational story

To the Editor:

In response to Joseph R. McElroy's letter to the editor last week, I wish to respond that I too, watched Deer Hill fifth-graders, including my son, Christopher, participate in Nikki Hu and Guy Van Duser's marvelous theatre production of "A Thousand Cranes." The impression left with me, my son and my sixth-grade daughter (who watched the performance with her classmates) was quite different than that of Mr. McElroy.

I did not ask my 10-year-old son whether the United States was right or wrong to bomb Hiroshima. That question was clearly not the point of the artistic production. Instead, I asked him to express his impressions and feelings about Sadako's story — "A Thousand Cranes" — a story about a child of Hiroshima, who survived, later developed leukemia, struggled with her illness, then died — a child who, despite tragedy, had faith in her cranes, courage daily and hope for the future — always inspired by her belief that "A Thousand Cranes" would help.

My son responded to the week-long production with incredible sensitivity to both the suffering and the courage of a young girl. As he has said, and as he has read daily, "Tragedies happen everywhere. How we deal with them is the most important thing. Sadako was brave, she tried hard, and she put her hope in the cranes — that kept her focused."

We have bought the musical cassette of the production, and my son has taught me the 10 positions of the first dance, from "palms down" to "arms wide open into the air like a crane," depicting emotions from fear and sadness to hope. I am fortunate to share a half-hour of artistic dance with my son often, one-liner questions don't pass much muster in our house.

This brilliant production was not about politics — unforeseen tragedies or planned tragedies are part of the life cycle. This is a lesson I try to teach my children every day — bad things happen — how you deal with them is what matters.

I have taught my children that you must be like a Japanese daruma, a figurine weighted at its rounded bottom that rebounds upright whenever it is knocked down. Notwithstanding life's problems, the daruma says to keep your weight firmly on your feet, your personality stable and strong, and then you can withstand life's buffeting.

Nikki and Guy are to be heralded with a gift of their own "A Thousand Cranes" for their artistic professionalism and their beautiful and inspirational story of courage and hope and faith. Kudos to them and to all parents who encourage in their children optimism and hope in life, instead of one-line political questions.

Replace 'senior' voting machines

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

I read with great interest the article in the May 9 issue of the Cohasset Mariner and I would like to share my experience and my husband's experience with the punch cards used for voting.

On a previous election, we both voted at the Town Hall using the punch cards. After I voted I ran my hand over the back of the card before inserting it into the envelope and realized about 1/3 of the "punch outs" had not fully punched out. Some were still partially attached to the card so I had to pull them off. I called my husband's attention to this and he found some on his card had not fully punched out.

Now I admit we are senior citizens. We do not consider ourselves frail but still we had a problem. So I hope you all are not under the impression that frail senior citizens are skewing the vote tally.

Several suggestions:

Mr. Fitzsimmons could suggest that all frail elderly people coming to vote take a strength test before voting.

Clerk Douglas could check with each person to see that they have taken "some responsibility" in their voting.

Mr. Baccari could advise everyone coming in to check the back side of the ballot card after voting in addition to his offer of assistance in use of the machine.

I would suggest you look into the quality of either the cards that are used or perhaps the machine and/or the stylus are worn after years of use.

Or perhaps it is time for the town to purchase new machines that employ improved technology to replace the "senior" machines that may be truly frail.

Refusal by a voter from punching a card may also be that individual's right.

'Thousand Cranes' was about peace

To the Editor:

For several weeks the students of Deer Hill School (fourth, fifth and sixth grades) had been folding origami paper cranes, reading the story "Sadako" by Eleanor Carr and studying the history of Hiroshima's tragedy. They were preparing for an artist residency with Nikki Hu and Guy Van Duser.

From the moment that Ms. Hu stood before the classes of youngsters, they were hooked. She began quietly, her hands together, her head bowed, in the traditional demonstration of respect for individuals. They learned the same respect for her, for the art, for the subject. Dance will never be the same to them. Deer Hill will never be the same.

The students have had an opportunity to use their imaginations and their bodies to express a story. The "difficult students" (those with behavioral problems) have been brought to the altar of this process and been amazed. The students with special needs participated and were uplifted. We have all been embraced by the wonderful feeling of working together as a team, sharing with each other. The students learned what it means to rehearse, practice an art form, have it all come together and perform it well.

This artistic activity made possible the kinds of knowledge that are only learned through the arts: a heightened awareness of our own inner being, and how that being is interconnected with the world and others. Dance develops poise, teaches discipline, strengthens muscles and builds self-confidence. The latest child-development data recognizes intelligence in these forms: spatial, musical, linguistic, mathematical-logical, kinesthetic, interpersonal and intrapersonal. Dance strengthens most of these areas.

But it wasn't just a dance. Science and history were presented in combination with various art forms: zoology (crane)/poetry; atomic fission death and destruction/illustrated children's book; fatal illness/folk art (paperfolding). There has been a "critical thinking synthesis" through discussion groups. Students have been provoked to see how artists often use "forced-fit" creativity to address difficult, complex issues of the human heart.

The Hiroshima devastation of the 1940s elicits ambivalent responses in many people. There are strong feelings on both sides of the Pacific concerning this tragedy. However, no one with any sense of humanity has any doubts about the need to prevent such a thing from occurring again.

The "Thousand Cranes" performance was about peace. It was about children working together for peace. In the school gym, where the performance took place, the music soared in the background. Nikki Hu stood in the front of what looked like a professional dance troupe. Every eye was on her gentle guidance: "Watch each other...see who knows what to do and follow...gently, gently...with the rhythm here, do you see?...wonderful...you're terrific..."

Many parents and teachers stood with tears in their eyes, touched by the enormity of the heartfelt response the children were showing. What was demonstrated last week showed the true value of the arts in education...to pull out the humanity, imaginations and cognitive processes so important to our lives as individuals.

This event and residency was completely funded by outside sources to the Deer Hill School: the Cohasset PSO, the Mass. Cultural Council, the Cohasset Arts Council, and the Cohasset Education Foundation. Nikki Hu, who works regularly with students and last year directed a performance in Japan, was voted Artistic Educator of the year in 1995 by the Mass. Alliance for Arts Education. No wonder.

Participatory democracy offers greatest potential for all Americans

To the Editor:

Seventy-five years ago, women could not vote in a Federal election, nor hold public office, nor serve on juries. Before the adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment, women had no political voice. Two years ago in the 1994 elections 54 million women failed to vote. The energy, optimism and trust of the Suffragists mark a stark contrast to the voters' mood 75 years later. A poisonous cynicism and anger have infected the electorate and dimmed the people's faith in their elected officials. Whatever happened to the optimism and faith of the Suffragists? Was that a unique phenomenon? We don't think so. Poll taxes are gone; literacy tests are gone. Now most Americans can register to vote when they get their driver's license. We are trying to make the system work better.

Ironically, in the face of these improvements, many Americans think their votes don't matter. They are disillusioned by negative campaigns, by the influence of the money in politics, by the difficulty of getting balanced information that is needed to make good choices at the polls. The mission of the League of Women Voters remains the same: to create an active, informed citizenry of men and women. We are a group devoted to the peaceful and serious practice of democracy. The League's most glorious triumphs do not occur in Washington. They are spread across the nation and manifested in thousands of communities in thousands of ways. We help make democracy work better at all levels of government. Self-government is hard work. We know. We have been at it for three-quarters of a century.

As we look ahead to the presidential elections in 1996, we are challenged to break through the apathy and the anger to let the voters know that their vote DOES matter. Let us pay tribute to the achievements of our foremothers by believing, as they believed, that participatory democracy offers the greatest potential for all Americans. The system works when YOU vote. We look to see you at YOUR polls on election day.

Thanks for health fair support

To the Editor:

The Social Service League of Cohasset and the Board of Health would like to express our thanks to all who contributed to the success of our recent health fair at Cohasset High School. To all the professionals who provided the free screenings, we are most grateful and appreciate their efficient and pleasant delivery of their services. To all our volunteers who worked so hard before, during and after the fair, we say "Thank you," and "Well done."

A special note of thanks to Stop and Shop, Dunkin' Donuts, Shaw's Market and Jeanne Pierce of the Cohasset High School cafeteria staff for all the wonderful snacks they provided for the food table at the fair. Thanks also to Ron Goodwinn of Goodwinn Graphics for the publicity and flyers.

This year the cholesterol screening was funded by donations from the Rotary Club and the Hingham Institution for Savings. The Hearing Van was funded by Pilgrim Cooperative Bank.

Almost 500 people attended the fair and the day was a great success! Thanks again to you all!

Community spirit 'died' May 4

To the Editor:

At what point does a sense of Cohasset "community" spirit die and become replaced by the agenda of parochial, selfish interest groups? Answer – the recent sewer vote on May 4.

Clearly, as an owner of property which is scheduled to receive the sewer, I would have benefited from a yes vote. However, the no vote will not materially affect my family in the manner in which it will affect other families, particularly those on retirement or, in these days of corporate downsizing, diminished incomes.

Those of us scheduled for sewers knew that, based on sheer numbers, we would likely not receive a yes vote. What we hoped for was that town residents would ask, "What is best for Cohasset?" Apparently the question was, "What's best for me?"

Like it or not, a precedent has been set by the voters. For those that voted no don't be surprised if future voters reject decent and proper issues such as new or improved schools, school buses and additional sewer installations. You started the trend.

Opposition to Greenbush urged

To the Editor:

It is time for an uprising! It's time our voices are heard because pretty soon it will be too late! The monsters will be here and once they're here they won't go away. Our voices will be drowned out by the roar of double-decker, diesel powered, polluting, dangerous and loud monsters called Greenbush trains! It will never happen you say? The state can't afford it you say? We voted it down you say? All true. The proof that they are coming is in the fact that the engineering firm hired by the MBTA has already started surveying. They have been seen in Scituate, Cohasset and Hingham. We know they're coming because Gov. Weld made an executive decision okaying Greenbush and has given the MBTA seemingly unlimited capital to build and operate these monsters. We know they're coming because Trudy Cox, the Weld administration's excuse for an environmental director need only sign off on the last Environmental Impact Report due this summer. We also know they're coming because our own selectmen have already agreed to talk mitigation with the MBTA — no fight there!

This is why we need an uprising. No more excuses for not getting involved. Now is the only time we have left. Those of you who voted against these monsters, let your voices be heard. Write letters, call the governor's office, rally with the rest of us in the upcoming Weld/Kerry debate June 3 at Channel 7 in Boston. Gov. Weld ignored the democratic process of majority rule and single-handedly erased your vote. Those of you sitting on the fence about this issue and those of you in favor of allowing these metal monsters to ruin our beautiful, tranquil and safe towns, keep your rose-colored glasses on, you're going to need them.

New school is closer to homes than expected

Public meeting is May 22

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

A lot has changed in 27 years. The suitability of the acreage for the new school is among those changes.

When the 70-acre parcel of land near the Deer Hill School was purchased by the town for the purpose of school expansion in 1969, much of the land could be used for building.

Since then, environmental legislation and man-made construction, has made most of the land unbuildable.

The edge of the lot, close to James Brook is wet, as is the property running near 3A.

Architects had intended to place the school on a ridge between the Deer Hill School and Old Pasture Road, but closer to Deer Hill.

Recent wetland delineations discovered that the school would have to pushed closer to Old Pasture Road.

On Wednesday, May 8, concerned citizens met with architects and the school facilities committee, to see what could be done to move the boundaries of the school farther away from Old Pasture Road.

Elaine Breslow of 90 Old Pasture Road was among them. She said she finds it ironic that the $9.9 million school she fought for may end up 40 feet from her property line.

What she finds surprising is that she wouldn't have known the school was going to be built in a different area, if she didn't look out her window and see the boundary markers.

Bob Beggan, chairman of the school facilities committee, said that he walked the property line on May 4.

The markers were supposed to be 200 feet from the property lines on Old Pasture Road, he said. They weren't.

With the state's June 1 deadline for school proposals swiftly approaching, Breslow is afraid that the plans submitted to the state will have to be strictly adhered to.

"There is no dispute over whether or not it is close," she said. "It is whether we can push it back a bit."

Schools Supt. Stephen Hart said that the school can be shifted back without penalization by the state.

Beggan added that the architects assured him that location can be changed, just not the plans themselves.

He added that the school facilities committee is working to move the building as far from residents' property lines as possible.

Hart said that it may be possible to get a variance to fill some wetlands.

Breslow said her property line is the closest to the school, but at least five of her neighbors' homes will be impacted. The other property lines are approximately 130 feet from the proposed school.

Most of the wooded area behind her home would be lost, Breslow said. She also expressed reservations about the "harsh" lighting from the school at night.

She added that she certainly isn't worried about young elementary school children hanging around.

Breslow said she hears the sounds of children playing at the Deer Hill, and she thinks that is wonderful.

The school facilities committee will present the plans to the selectmen at their meeting on May 20, and to the public on May 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Saturday's food pantry donations total two tons

By CHARLENE VANDINI
Cohasset Mariner

The cans, bottles, and jars have all been counted, and the results are in: letter carriers collected just over two tons of non-perishable food for donation to the local food pantry.

This amount exceeds the amount donated last year, when the letter carriers collected 1-1/2 tons from residences along their routes.

While the letter carriers and postal workers made the collections, food pantry volunteers brought lunch to the postal workers.

"The food pantry volunteers are overwhelmed," Postmaster James Hooley said Monday, adding, "We're still picking up donations from people who missed their carriers on Saturday."

Food pantry volunteers were also kept busy throughout the day, making numerous trips between the post office loading dock and the Food Pantry at the Second Congregational Church.

"People were extremely generous," food pantry volunteer Bob Thompson said.

The amount of food collected "will certainly hold us through several months."

Thompson thanked the postal workers for their enthusiastic support of the food collection. He also thanked the Cohasset Mariner, which published a list of suggested donations, which are often requested by families who use the pantry.

The donations represented a good variety of groceries, toiletries, and cleaning supplies, and many people used the suggestions because those items are now well-stocked on the pantry shelves, Thompson noted.

Letter carriers Dan O'Brien, Dennis Reardon and Rick Lincoln work on a truck load of food for the Cohasset Food Pantry. Post offices across the country held a food drive Saturday. Cohasseters donated more than two tons of items for the pantry.

Staff photo/J. Paul MacDonald

This is the second year that Cohasset letter carriers joined their colleagues around the country to replenish the shelves of the food pantries. All items collected are donated to pantries and homeless shelters in the towns where they are collected.

In Hingham and Hull, postal workers collected more than seven tons of food which was donated to the Hingham Interfaith Food Pantry and to Wellspring in Hull.

Beechwood cemetery plans finalized

By BRIAN SURETTE
Special to the Mariner

The Cemetery Study Committee on Tuesday finalized its request for proposal to be submitted to selectmen for the upgrade of the Beechwood Cemetery.

The 12-step process (many improvements would fall under the classification of landscaping) includes repairs to headstones, reclaiming of pathways, trimming/clearing of trees and brush, construction of a paved drive in the north corner allowing Beechwood Street and Doane Avenue to loop the rear of the cemetery and the installation of water faucets.

This last item was included at the direction of DPW representative Peter Laugelle., who said that easy access to water would be beneficial in helping residents maintain plots in the cemetery.

The study committee, after several visits to the Beechwood site and with the help of a cemetery consultant from Worcester, decided upon areas of greatest concern and appropriate action to be undertaken.

Funds for the upgrade come from the sale of cemetery plots as well as appropriations voted at the 1989 town meeting.

Chairman Joseph Jerz said the committee's goal would be to receive fixed price bids from private contractors for all 12 items in the scope of work proposal to determine a total figure for committee consideration.

At this point the committee would then select specific items which would be contracted out to private firms and which could be handled by town workers.

According to Laugelle, his department presently has a full load and it would be several months before he would be able to begin any upgrade work.

Jerz stated this schedule was not a problem and his committee was submitting its request at this time in the hope that initial work could commence in August or September.

"We're looking at the end of the summer realistically before we could get to any of these things," he said.

Laugelle further told the committee that once the upgrade was complete it would require additional town funds on a yearly basis to continue the process of beautification or the cemetery would eventually revert to its current state.

The next meeting of the study committee is scheduled for June 4, at 7:30 p.m.

Composting bins available

Thanks to the town's good recycling efforts, the state has awarded Cohasset a $1,310 grant toward the purchase of 45 composting bins for home use.

The Department of Environmental Protection said Cohasset was selected because its program demonstrates a commitment and an ability to enhance recycling in both Cohasset and the Commonwealth.

The town will sell the composting bins at the RTF and use the money to purchase more bins, Selectmen Chairman Merle S. Brown explained.

Mangone exhibits art at the Chart House

The Chart House Restaurant, Cohasset Harbor, will be the setting for the opening reception of a presentation of the diverse artistic offerings of Mary F. Mangone. The reception is planned for Friday, May 17, at 7 p.m.

Mangone is a local self-taught artist whose drawings and paintings span an artistic spectrum that is described as eclectic. She combines brilliant colors with emotive feeling in her art.

Also on display will be the artwork of local artists Martha Gangemi, Mary Ann Gaul, Jeanne Holway, Rita Kirk, MaryEllen Maich, Janet Pierson and Maureen Stebbins. The exhibit will be on display through the end of June.

Anyone interested in exhibiting artwork in a future show is asked to contact Maureen Stebbins at 383-0279.

Health fair held at CHS

On April 25, the Social League and Cohasset Board of Health held their annual Health Fair at Cohasset High School. This was the first year the fair was held at the school, and more than 400 students and teachers were able to participate in the free health screenings offered.

Science teacher Ken Cisneros' seventh-grade class had been studying the circulatory and respiratory systems in class and took part in the health fair as a class project. Each student now has an ID card with picture, fingerprint, blood type, blood pressure, weight, cholesterol level and other important information, to be kept at home. More than 60 seventh-graders were able to complete the project.

Many senior citizens took advantage of the free services, which included eye and hearing testing; free oral, podiatry, cholesterol and blood sugar screenings; and many exhibits promoting health and nutrition. The fair was open to the community.

A snack table offered a variety of foods contributed by Stop & Shop, Dunkin' Donuts, Atlantic Bagel Co. and CHS cafeteria. The cost of the fair was underwritten by the Rotary Club, Hingham Institution for Savings and Pilgrim Cooperative Bank.

Little League dance planned

The annual Little League Dance will be held Saturday, June 1, from 7 p.m. to midnight at Kimball's By The Sea. Music will be provided by the Grateful Dads, and there will be silent auction items and hourly drawings for sports tickets and donated items. Tickets will also be sold for a weekend on Nantucket.

This year marks Cohasset Little League's 44th anniversary.

Tickets are $50 per couple and may be obtained by calling Linda Bolster at 383-6148. Anyone interested in making a donation to the silent auction is asked to call Ginger Byrne at 383-2705.

Join Harborfest parade!

The annual Harborfest Parade will take place on Sunday, June 16. The parade signifies the link between Cohasset Harbor and the Town Common as residents "Bless the Fleet" and parade to the Common for the annual Chowder Festival, which will culminate the Harborfest celebration.

The theme for this year's parade is "Cohasset's Maritime Heritage," and cash prizes for this year's floats are $250 for first place; $150, second place; and $75 for third place, with two special prizes of $50 each.

Jim Lagrotteria and Bob Martin of the Harborfest Committee have developed a float kit for anyone interested in using a pickup truck as a float vehicle. Through the generosity of Hingham Lumber Co., most framework materials will be provided.

Simple floats are the order of the day for the Norman Rockwell-style parade, and may be fabricated in one day with little or no expense and unlimited imagination. Harborfest celebrates the community, and the event is enhanced by the participation of the town's many organizations and neighborhood associations.

Anyone wishing to participate is asked to call Jim at 383-9385 or Bob at 383-0648.

Chamber concert to benefit Jane C. Carr Ampitheater

The Monet Chamber Ensemble, a quartet of Boston Symphony musicians, will appear at Broad Cove House on Sunday, May 19 at 5:30 p.m., in a concert to benefit South Shore Conservatory's Jane C. Carr Ampitheater.

The new outdoor performance facility provides a permanent home for the conservatory's Summer Wind Ensemble, and provides a much-needed performance space for conservatory and community drama, small concerts, or performances by professional artists.

The ensemble performed their first concert earlier this year, at the home of Franz and Margo Euler, to benefit the ampitheater. The performance was so moving they were asked back to present a new chamber music program.

Following the concert is a catered light supper and open bar. The cost is $50, with proceeds going to the ampitheater project.

Reservations and advance donations are required. Call (617) 749-7565, ext. 16, before May 13 to reserve tickets.

Storyteller at center Sunday

Aili Paal Singer, a storyteller who blends oral narrative with puppetry, pantomime, creative dramatics and audience participation, will present a program of her favorite tales and multicultural stories, Sunday, May 19, from 1 to 2 p.m. at South Shore Community Center.

The free performance, created especially for children ages three to nine and their families, is a gift from the Cohasset PSO-sponsored Diversity Committee. Refreshments will be available, and donations will be accepted from those who wish to make them. All monies collected will be used to fund programs sponsored by the Diversity Committee.

Girl Scout registration

Girl Scout registration for the fall will be held Wednesday, May 22, from 7 to 8 p.m. at Second Congregational Church in Bates Hall. Adults are needed to be leaders.

Author/illustrator signing

Author/illustrator Maryann Cocca-Leffler will sign copies of her new children's book, "Clams All Year," on Saturday, May 18, from 3 to 5 p.m. at Buttonwood Books & Toys, Cohasset. Cocca-Leffler, a resident of Saugus, draws on her personal experiences and relatives for her illustrations and writing.

"Clams All Year" harkens back to a magical summer day in Hull when her grandfather led an expedition to gather clams so plentiful that the family feasts all year featured dishes made with clams.

Call 383-2665 for more information or to reserve a signed copy of her book.

Pops concert is tonight

The annual Pops Concert will take in Cohasset High School cafeteria on Thursday, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited. Refreshments are included in the $5 admission fee.

The event is sponsored by the Arts Boosters Club, and all proceeds will support the arts at CHS.

Rec program offers expanded hours

Cohasset Enrichment Program, through the Cohasset public schools, will offer a Before- and After-Recreation Program this summer, beginning the week of July 1 and continuing through Aug. 16. The program will not run July 4 and 5.

Held at Deer Hill School, it is open to children who will be in grades K-6 in the fall. The Before-Recreation Program opens at 7 a.m. and runs until the program begins at 9 a.m. Children may bring their own breakfast, and quiet activities will be offered. Children attending Recreation at Osgood School will be escorted there by a teacher.

The After-Recreation Program begins at 3 p.m. and runs until 6 p.m. The format is similar to the after-school enrichment program, with organized sports, cooking projects, games, arts and crafts and, for the summer, swimming at the town pool. Children at Osgood will be escorted to Deer Hill by a teacher.

Registrations are accepted for limited times or for the entire program. Sign-ups begin the week of June 16, but children must be registered for the program prior to signing up for the Recreation Program. The registration deadline is Friday, June 7. For further information, call Missy Walker at 383-6860 or stop in at Room 2 at DHS to pick up a registration form.

Poster contest deadline May 17

The South Shore Community Center has announced a call for entries for its first annual school poster contest. The contest, entitled "Color It Community," is open to all South Shore schoolchildren in grades 1-6.

The purpose of the contest is to highlight the importance of the family and community, and posters may depict any aspect of "community."

Complete contest rules have been mailed to private and public schools on the South Shore. Winners will receive $150 certificates toward the purchase of a bicycle of their choice. The deadline submissions is May 17.

Winners will be notified by phone, and awards will be presented during a special ceremony at Harborfest on Cohasset Common on June 15. For additional contest or Harborfest information, call the SSCC at 383-0088.

Kids learn firefighters are friendly

Annual program teaches fire safety lessons

Staff photos/ Alan Chapman

At right, Michael Froio tries his hand at handling a fire hose with a little help from Cohasset firefighter Matt Marr. The visit by the fire department capped the annual Fire Safety Program at the South Shore Community Center Nursery School.

Above left, pre-schoolers have a ball climbing all over the fire truck. Firefighters visited all nine classes at the school throughout the week to talk about fire safety.

Above, Capt. Bob Silvia lets Patrick Herlin take the wheel of a fire truck. Earlier in the week, firefighters donned their masks, suits and gear to show the children there is a friendly, helpful person inside.

At left, firefighters Ed Struzik, Matt Marr, and Tom Hernan enjoy the program as much as the kids. The program helps the kids be better prepared should they encounter a firefighter during the day or night if an emergency arises.

Youngsters make strides in lacrosse

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

Cory Mudhenk came back from chaperoning a trip to Europe not knowing just how rusty the Cohasset High girls lacrosse team would be.

The first-year coach knew her time to prepare the young Lady Skippers for Tuesday's game against Dover-Sherborn would be limited and she was worried one day of practice may not be enough to overtake D-S.

As it turned out, Mudhenk could have stayed in Europe and the girls could have faxed her the results of their smothering 8-2 win.

Led by an overwhelming offensive performance by Megan Connolly, the Lady Skippers controlled the play from beginning to end and moved their game up a level, en-route to improving to 5-3-1 on the season.

"I was a little bit worried about this game because we hadn't practiced in four days," Mudhenk said.

Connolly burned D-S with four goals and an assist and Cohasset added goals from Katie Campbell (two), Alia Asshar and Andi Shaughnessy to give the Lady Skippers the easy win.

Cohasset probably had its best passing game of the season and moved continually, thwarting the D-S defense and working its way to the net for a good shot. The

The Cohasset High baseball team has shown the poise of a veteran team over the past week. Heading into last week's Abington game with a 6-7 record, the Skippers needed to emerge with a win to keep their tournament hopes alive. Cohasset's goal all season has been set on earning a berth in the Promised Land of the Division 3 South Sectional tourney.

The Abington game was a must-win if the Skippers hoped to salvage a tourney spot. With seven games remaining, Cohasset was still four four wins short. Situations like these call for great performances from great players.

If the obstacles weren't too daunting already, the Skippers had to play a tough Green Wave squad on a field which required the right fielder to stand shoulder-to-shoulder with the ongoing JV game.

However, the Skippers pulled together and nailed the game down with a 9-8 win. Eighth-grader Joe Pegola, who has pitched magnificently for the varsity squad this year, gave a solid outing against the Green Wave, but yielded to senior Greg Stevens in the late innings. Stevens came on and earned the win, shutting down Abington's team after playing the whole game in right field.

Stevens retired the first batter he faced on a pop-up in the bottom of the sixth. The table was set for Stevens by Joe Magner, Kevin McKenna and Rob Buckley. Stevens

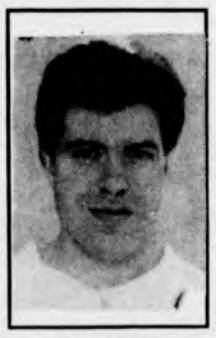
Laxmen in search of tourney success

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

The box score will read the Cohasset High varsity lacrosse team qualified for the state lacrosse tourney for the fifth consecutive season with its 9-8 overtime win over Sandwich on Tuesday. The Skippers improved to 8-4 with the win, leaving just four games to play on the season before the tournament.

It goes without saying that every team's first goal of the season is to get into position to qualify for the tourney, no matter what the sport. Depending on good that team is, qualifying for the tourney in itself is a great thrill. But for the senior-heavy Cohasset squad, the big rush of postseason play is gone until it actually gets on the field.



Reardon

The Skippers are hoping for a good seeding position and a good draw in the first round. The two go hand in hand and Cohasset has been on the short end in past seasons. Last year the Skippers played a tough Weymouth squad on the Wildcats home field in the opening round. Cohasset played hard, but in the end it was a first-round elimination for the Skippers.

Cohasset defeated Marblehead in its opening tourney game two years ago, but then ran smack dab into eventual state champion Newton North in the second round. On a sweltering day on NN's home field, the Skippers, like the rest of the teams which tried to get in North's way, were steamrolled by the lacrosse juggernaut. Seeing that the team continued its onslaught straight through the tourney, losing big to NN was hardly a disgrace.

Cohasset, though, is looking to have its best tourney showing in the past five years. The Skippers have learned how to come from behind to win games and they'd like nothing more than to have at least one game on their home field where

Special to the Olympics

Several Cohasset athletes left their mark on the South Suburban Area Special Olympics track and field games held at Brockton High School May 4. The 400 athletes who entered the competition were divided into heats according to age and ability. The results for local young men and women were as follows:

Brook Miele — silver, softball throw; gold, 100 meter dash; gold, 4x100 meter relay.

Brandan Mulcahy — gold, softball throw; gold, 50 meter dash.

Danny Patrolia — silver, softball throw; silver, 50 meter dash.

Rosemarie Kierce — silver, softball throw; bronze, 100 meter dash; bronze, 4x100 meter relay.

Matthew Kardox — silver, softball throw; ribbon, 100 meter dash; bronze, 4x100 meter relay.

Frank Rosano — bronze, softball throw; gold, 100 meter dash; bronze, 4x100 meter relay.

Joann Valle — silver, softball throw; gold, 100 meter dash.

Caroline Wells — silver, softball throw; bronze, 100 meter dash; bronze, 4x100 meter relay.

Miele, Mulcahy and Patrolia were part of the 30 member Scituate Public Schools and Alumni Team, while Kierce, Kardox, Rosano, Valle and Wells competed representing Cohasset Jr./Sr. H.S.

This is the 26th year of Massachusetts Special Olympics. In 1995, more than 10,000 athletes competed in 22 different sports in year-round training and area games.

Basketball clinic at Notre Dame Academy

Notre Dame Academy is sponsoring a Basketball Clinic for girls in grades 6-8 on July 29, 30, 31 and Aug. 1 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the school's gymnasium, 1073 Main St. The fee is $75.

The clinic will address the areas of shooting, guard play and post play. There will be instruction designed for individual development in ballhandling, passing, shooting and team play.

For an application or more details, call (508) 238-0372.

SSH hosts golf tournament

The seventh annual South Shore Hospital golf tournament will be held Monday, June 3, at Hatherly Country Club, North Scituate. Proceeds will support hospital programs and services that are available free of charge to the community. In 1995, SSH provided $7.3 million in care to those unable to pay for services.

Last year's tournament raised $46,000 to help support the hospital's new cardiac catheterization laboratory. Corporate sponsorship opportunities are available. Call Jill McDonough at South Shore Health and Educational Foundation at 340-8848 for more information or to register. Hingham resident Dick Dempsey is chairman of the tournament.

Youngsters make strides

Lady Skippers hadn't been communicating on the field in past games as well as Mudhenk would have liked, but there was a marked overall improvement against D-S.

"They don't tend to talk on the field," she said, "but they're getting at that."

The Lady Skippers were more aware of where their competition was on the field and got the ball off, forcing D-S's defense to stay on their collective toes and backpedal to the net. There were fewer unassisted goals because of the passing, a stat Mudhenk was very pleased with.

"In other games there were more straight drives to the net," she said.

Goalie Ali Kinchla had a relatively quiet game in goal, but did come up with eight saves, half of which were definite scoring threats.

The win was Cohasset's second in a row after its 4-3 victory over the Hingham freshman team, last Wednesday. Shaughnessy fired in a pair of goals to lead the Lady Skippers in the scoring department. Katie Devine and Nicole Peterson, the lone senior on the team, had a goal.

Hingham's tallies came from Susan Powers, Hillary Bowers and Libby Miarabile. Beyond the three goals, Kinchla was superb between the posts for Cohasset.

The Lady Skippers face the Duxbury High squad on Friday beginning at 3:45 p.m. at the Deer Hill School. They wind up their schedule with a pair of games at the Deer Hill against Martha's Vineyard on May 21 at 4 p.m.

Mudhenk doesn't plan to let the girls just run out the season over the course of the final three games. Although she is pleased with Cohasset's increased on-field communication, Mudhenk believes the team can still make big improvements in that area of the game. So to is she convinced the team still needs to work the opposing goal area when it has the ball. Constant movement provides more scoring opportunities and is harder to score against.

Mudhenk is having her fun coaching the game she played in high school and college, and admits she is going to miss the season once it ends. She wishes there were more games scheduled for this spring, but three is it.

"I can't believe it's almost over," Mudhenk said.

Baseball squad looking to end drought came through with a bases-loaded single, which knocked in two, giving the Skippers the lead in the top of the seventh. The hard-throwing righty then shut down the Green Wave, providing his clutch value for Cohasset.

With a 7-7 record, the Skippers matched up with a strong Hanover squad on Monday. Playing without catcher and .400 hitter Rob Buckley, who broke his arm on Sunday, Cohasset faced Hanover righty Brian Mahler, who worked the no-hitter for four innings until Kevin McKenna broke it up with a Texas League single over short. However, the Skippers just couldn't get the bats going and did not field well, committing nine errors.

A bright spot came when Eric Henry drove a double to right-center, knocking in McKenna. Freshman Greg Taylor also made a nice play when he ranged all the way behind second base to field a bouncer and fired to first to retire the fifth.

However, as head coach Ron Ford pointed out, the Skippers had five freshman on the field at one point, experience which will undoubtedly solidify Cohasset's baseball future. But Cohasset dropped the game, bowing to 7-8 with only five games left.

The Hull game on Tuesday was another must-win contest. With Stevens, who has made 10 appearances in 16 games this year, once again taking the hill, Ford needed a win from his ace. And a win he got, as the Skippers romped, thrashing their neighboring rivals, 9-1.

Stevens and freshman catcher Mike Rossi connected for a heads-up play in the second, when Hull tried the suicide squeeze. With a runner breaking for the plate, Stevens cleanly fielded the bunt and Rossi, having the smarts to stay at the plate, took the throw and made the out. Rossi also came through with a homer, his first as a varsity player.

Ben Ketchum, another freshman, jumped all over the Pirates' pitching, going 3 for 4 with an RBI. Stevens and Henry collected two base hits apiece and fleet-footed center fielder Grant Emde made seven put-outs.

It has been 22 years since the squad qualified for the Division 3 South Sectionals. With four games left and two wins needed, the Skippers could use some fan support to squeeze out their final two wins and launch themselves into the tourney for the first time since 1974.

Laxmen in search of tourney success

they'd draw more fans than at another school.

"I'd like to get past the second round," head coach Ken Ekberg said. "I want to finish up the season strong. We're a perennial tourney team and the smallest school to qualify every year. The kids should be proud of that accomplishment."

Tourney experience shouldn't be a problem for Cohasset's laxmen. Some of the seniors on the squad have played lacrosse for five years and are itching to raise some eyebrows in their last high school hurrah.

"The maturity of the team is that a one game and out is not what we have in mind," Ekberg said. "I think this team is as talented and accomplished as any we've had."

Cohasset should get good workouts in its games against Marshfield and Barnstable. And you can bet the proverbial farm that both teams will be looking to rectify their earlier losses to the Skippers.

The Skippers looked to be dead in the water against Marshfield, trailing 5-0 in the early going. Cohasset finally got its game in synch and tied the game. The squad went on to defeat the startled Rams.

Cohasset did much of the same with Barnstable. Down by five goals and playing as though they've never been on a field together, the Skippers suddenly began to click and surge on to victory.

However, Cohasset has gotten out to quick starts only to run out of steam later in the game. Ekberg is banking on the Skippers improving their consistency from period to period before the tourney begins.

"We're not all the way there consistently yet," he said. "We have had some weak third periods."

But the Skippers have had more solid efforts than weak ones this season. Here's to Cohasset winning its first two games and taking a third while its on a roll.

This, after all, is the year for the Skippers to keep on rolling along.

Safe boating course

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 1208, and the Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor a spring, six-session, safe boating course, offering certification by both the Coast Guard and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The course will be offered to both youth and adults, however, certification in this course is mandatory for those 16 years old and under who wish to operate a craft powered by 25 horsepower or more. U.S.C.G.A., Flotilla 1208 instructors will teach the six-session course, scheduled to begin Tuesday, May 21, at the Cohasset High School. Classes will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., May 21 through June 11.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible as class will be limited in size and participants will be enrolled on a first call basis. There will be a $25 per person fee for this program which covers the cost of the textbook and class materials. Checks for payment must be made out to U.S.C.G.A. Flotilla 12008. While the class is designed for children/youth and adults, it is suggested that children age 12 and under be accompanied by a participating adult. A segment of the class will be devoted to the new laws regulating personal water craft.

Certification cards will be issued and both the Coast Guard and the State recognize the Safe Boating Certificate. Further, for those who may be interested, certification for this course will allow you a discount on your boat insurance premium of 5 percent to 10 percent, depending upon your insurance carrier.

Police Chief Noonan issues status report for April

Police Chief Brian Noonan reported there were 11 arrests last month including four for outstanding warrants, three for assault & battery, one for drug possession, one for a minor in possession of alcohol, and one for motor vehicle violations, and one person was taken in for protective custody.

There was one breaking and entering reported in April, Noonan said. The civilian dispatch center received 88, 9-1-1 calls last month.

PALS Officer Lisa Matos attended the health fair at Cohasset High School and spoke with many residents, Noonan said.

New part-time civilian dispatcher is appointed

M. Susan McQuay has been appointed the town's newest part-time civilian dispatcher pending a sign off by the personnel committee.

McQuay, who moved to Scituate in April, will start at $11.53 per hour, the rate offered to dispatchers with considerable experience, and will work 16 hours per week. McQuay has dispatch experience in Florida and Connecticut, Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said.

The state will also allow McQuay to become certified in Massachusetts by taking a two-hour refresher course and exam and waive the 16-hour training requirement in light of her certification in e-9-1-1 telecommunications in Connecticut, Doyon said.

James Brook study may find reason for flooding

By CHARLENE VANDINI
Cohasset Mariner

Two weeks ago, Summer Street resident Sandra Noble told the selectmen she has been watching the marsh behind her house flood at high tide during the three years she has lived there. During storm tides, the flooding is worse.

She has also watched James Brook erode its banks, and detects another stream forming along side it.

Noble is convinced the tidal gates are not functioning properly. She believes the gates leak at the bottom, allowing sea water to flow upstream.

The regular flooding of the marsh is now damaging trees which have fungus growing on them due to the saltwater and the constant wet ground, Noble said.

Highway Supt. Harold Litchfield said the gates are working properly. One gate was stuck open during the winter, and that has been repaired. Work crews have cleared James Brook, removing branches, but also tires, pipes, and even chairs.

Workers were called out Sunday to remove debris that hindered the flow of water, he noted.

But, Litchfield said this week, "The place has been flooding since I've been on the highway department for 36 years."

Noble agrees the situation has improved slightly since her complaints, but wants the problem solved before it gets worse.

"I don't feel anyone has done anything," she said.

Selectman Peter Pratt said the first step toward solving the problem of the James Brook flooding is a thorough study of the entire drainage basin.

The tidal gates have deteriorated due to budget cuts that have not provided funds for regular maintenance and repair. The gates are another example of infrastructure problems "that have gotten away from us," he said this week.

"It's too easy to say 'it's always been this way,'" Pratt commented.

"Harold [Litchfield] has done a marvelous job of keeping after the gates," but the long-range solution will come when James Brook is studied. Maintenance and repair of the gates is a short-term remedy.

Town administrator Greg Doyon said the town has set aside more than $20,000 for the study, which will provide the information and a recommendation for the necessary work. One possible solution is to design a rip-rap wall at Elm Street, to prevent further erosion.

The combination of development upstream—which removed land that had absorbed storm water—and snowy winters with wet springs have worsened drainage problems downstream, said conservation commissioner Vee Roebuck.

Selectman Pratt believes the James Brook drainage problems will worsen when commuter rail is restored through Cohasset.

Most of the railroad right-of-way runs through the James Brook drainage basin, and many sections of the rail will be upgraded in preparation for the train. This will exacerbate the existing drainage problems, he said, adding that only recently has there been recognition that the James Brook drainage is a problem.

Pratt wants the MBTA should pay for the study of the James Brook drainage system, as mitigation for the restoration of rail service, since the train "will place a severe strain on James Brook."

"That alone will be a significant impact on residential and commercial properties."

Pratt said he asked MBTA environmental affairs ... Andrew Brennan abou ... James Brook drainage ... Given the impact of the train, this is a candidate for mitigation. While Brennan replied that this is not something that the T customarily does, he did say that it could be considered.

Cohasset should actively pursue the study as part of the T's mitigation from Greenbush, Pratt said.

"Mitigation goes to those communities that yell the loudest."

Treasurer-collector post hearing

Town Administrator Gregory Doyon reported this week that a public hearing on a special act to change the treasurer-collector's position from elected to appointed is at 11 a.m. today (May 16) in Room A-1 at the state house. Town meeting approved making the position an appointed one at the end of the current term. The change must pass muster with the legislature. Linden Drive resident Joseph D. Buckley, who won a three-way race for a three-year term as treasurer-collector in April, supports the change.

CHARITABLE FUNDS AVAILABLE

The George E. Curtis Charitable Trust is accepting applications from charitable organizations which provide nursing care, day care, respite care or home care for low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm. To be eligible for the grant award, the charitable organization must be exempt from taxation and must be able to use the funds in Plymouth County and contiguous towns. Priority will be given to those programs which offer direct aid to eligible individuals in their homes by maintaining such individuals in his or her home so as to improve the quality of home life.

Funds are also available to assist in the design, construction and equipment of facilities for use by low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm so as to improve the quality of their living arrangements. Individuals are not eligible for funding. The deadline for submitting a completed application is June 24, 1996.

Applications are available by sending a written request to:

Farewell Sheldon Sladen

Friends and family recall the life of lobsterman

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

On Tuesday, it would have been Sheldon Sladen's 62nd birthday.

And although he couldn't be there — by honoring the lobsterman's life, hundreds of his friends and members of his family and community celebrated it for him.

Sladen died of drowning May 22 following a boating mishap.

But the focus at a special memorial service organized by his daughters Shelanne Durkin and Sandra Zappolo — was not on the tragic incident but on a life that touched all who knew their father.

"You find yourself laughing and crying at the same time — that's the price we pay for loving him," the Rev. Gary Ritts said.

"Sheldon put himself second and he put each one of you first," Ritts told the crowd gathered at Government Island for the service.

John Durkin told how much his father-in-law loved life.

"Happiness is not getting what you want — it's wanting what you got," Durkin said about Sladen's philosophy.

He related how Sladen would be at the Log 'n Line at the same time every morning for breakfast, followed by a stop at Tedeschi's before, like clockwork, he'd be at the harbor.

Durkin, who as a youth served as Sladen's sternman, recalled how once enough lobsters were caught — Sladen would say "now it's time to play" and

Principal on leave pending outcome of investigation

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Deer Hill School principal Donna Hartlage is on leave until school Supt. Stephen Hart completes his investigation about an incident at the school during which Hartlage allegedly slapped a student.

'This matter will not drag on for a long time.'

— Supt. Stephen Hart.

Hart said he will make a decision this week about what if any action the school department will take.

"This matter will not drag on for a long time," Hart said.

Police Det. Richard Grassie said a ten-year-old Deer Hill pupil came to the station Thursday after school to report that his friend was slapped by the principal.

"The fourth-grader was concerned," Grassie said.

Grassie said he went to Deer Hill and talked with Hartlage who said she had not hit anyone but had verbally reprimanded a student and would take the matter up with the the students' parents.

Hartlage could not be reached for comment.

Grassie said police investigate all reported cases of where a child may have been struck even when the incident occurs at home.

Grassie said there is no criminal investigation at this time.

"The school department is handling it," he said.

Police have not heard from the alleged victim's parents and there has been no complaint filed, Grassie said Monday.

Cemetery problems dying for a solution

By CHARLENE VANDINI
Cohasset Mariner

While the cemetery committee is making progress towards finding addition burial space in town and improving Cohasset's existing cemeteries, the town must continue to sell graves on an as-needed basis until a new cemetery is created.

Tree Supt. Peter Laugelle said improvements to the 2-1/2 acre Beechwood Cemetery are expected to begin this fall. Brush clearing at the cemetery will make approximately 280 new gravesites available.

But the 1-1/2-acre Woodside Cemetery on North Main Street has virtually reached its capacity, with only 30 to 40 gravesites remaining, he said.

The sale of graves "as-needed" began in 1988, according to cemetery study committee member Glenn Pratt.

"Every time word got out that we were running out of space," people would contact the town to buy a plot, Pratt said. Originally, a family plot would provide space for 16 caskets. The number was reduced to 12, then to 8, until

Compost bins available

Due to efforts of the Cohasset Recycling Committee, a shipment of 65 composting containers have arrived at the Cohasset Transfer Station and are available for purchase by townspeople at a very good price due to a grant from the state Department of Environmental Protection, said Jack Hubbard of the recycling committee.

There are two styles of containers, the Earth Machine and the Brave New World Composter. The large unit is $30 and the other is priced at $20.

These are similar to the composting containers which were made available to the town some years ago which have worked very well.

The new containers will be on sale at the transfer station. Payment must be by check made out to the town of Cohasset.

Members of the recycling committee will be on hand Saturday to answer questions, Hubbard said.

Hagerty board wants oversight of boat house

Hagerty committee chairman Al Moore wrote to selectmen last week asking that they monitor the renovations being made to the boat house by the Cohasset Maritime Institute.

"The board has entered into this lease agreement with CMI and we feel the board should be responsible for the future of the building and the historical presence it will add to the whole of the Hagerty property and Government Island," Moore said.

The non-profit CMI, which leases the boat house for $1 a year from the town, is renovating the structure which the group will use as part of its rowing educational center. CMI is headed by Cohasset High teacher Jack Buckley.

Step raises are approved

Selectmen this week approved step raises for two patrolmen.

They approved a raise for officer Gregory J. Lennon retroactively to his service date of March 6. Lennon's salary went from $32,607 to $33,333.

Effective June 28, Officer Jeffrey Treanor's salary will be $35,148 up from $34,064.

Brad's ice cream is back

Selectmen approved issuing a transient vendor's license to Brad's Ice Cream this week.

According to Brad Martinson, the business will sell ice cream, soda, and novelties in the Sandy Beach parking lot.

Under the town by-laws, no more than two vendors may be present in the parking lot at any one time; no glass containers may be used; each vendor must provide a container for trash disposal and must remove all trash from the area.

Common district responds

Although flattered by being asked, the Cohasset Common Historic District Commission has no jurisdiction over the common sidewalks, according to commission chairman Donald J. Evans.

Evans explained the commission is charged with receiving and reviewing applications in connection with the altering or constructing of any building or structure in the historic district.

"The commission has no authority to render advisory opinions or prescribe prospectively what may or may not be done regarding the common," he said.

Selectmen sought the commission's opinion regarding the "brown strip" along North Main Street side of the common between Jason and Long roads that has been created by cars being parked there.

They would like to refurbish the strip with grass or cobblestones.

Evans said that individual members of the commission may have personal views on the matter.

"These personal views, however, are just that," he said.

King St. accidents add up

Barbara Maynard, 326 King St., told selectmen this week that something should be done about the section of King Street near her house.

"I just want to avoid a major catastrophe," she said.

Selectmen agreed that section of the street has poor visibility and is too narrow and said they would look into finding a solution.

Selectman Michael Sullivan suggested yellow arrows be posted at the curve as an interim solution.

Maynard made her remarks during the ten minutes selectmen set aside starting at 8 p.m. during their meetings to hear comments and concerns from members of the public.

Cemetery problems dying for a solution

the as-needed policy was instituted.

Families who did buy their plots prior to the as-needed policy can only sell them back to the town if they do not intend to use them. The town then re-sells the graves as families need to bury a deceased person, he said.

But the town cannot buy back unused graves in the old portion of the Beechwood Cemetery. The cemetery records are incomplete, and the actual number and location of unused graves is uncertain, Pratt explained. Without the accurate records, cemetery workers could open a new grave and find that they are disturbing the eternal rest of a long-departed person.

Pratt said when the improvements are completed at Beechwood, the selectmen, as town's cemetery commissioners, should consider increasing the cost of gravesites.

At $500 for residents and $700 for non-residents, the cost of burial sites in Cohasset is much lower than other cemeteries, Pratt said. Many other cemeteries charge $750.

Of the present fees, Laugelle said, $125 is set aside for "perpetual care" of the gravesite. These monies are invested, with the accrued interest transferred to the park department which does the work.

Pratt said the trust fund presently is worth $200,000, but actually needs $1 million in principal to generate sufficient income to adequately care for the cemeteries. As recently as 1950, graves were sold for $4, of which $2 was set aside for perpetual care.

Higher prices for the gravesites will mean a greater infusion of money into the trust fund, and more regular maintenance and repair of the cemeteries.

Laugelle told cemetery study committee last week that once the Beechwood Cemetery project is completed, regular annual maintenance will be necessary or the site will deteriorate again.

Creating a new cemetery will become more crucial as the "baby boom" generation ages. This has been difficult due to the limited amount of undeveloped, usable land in Cohasset.

Several years ago, the cemetery study committee looked at an 8-acre parcel of town-owned land off Route 3A. That site hit a snag when a developer who owned the abutting property objected to the use of Red Fox Lane as access to the cemetery. Since then, other means of access have been investigated and using this site is once again being considered.

But Pratt explained there can be no request for funds from the town to pursue this project until engineering studies are done, and the site is approved by the board of health.

"Nothing can move until the board of health says 'yes,'" he said.

If wetlands are involved, the conservation commission and state Department of Environmental Protection must also approve the plan.

In the case of the property off Route 3A, various engineering studies have been done in the past for other town projects that did not come to pass. Those studies could be used now, in planning for a new cemetery, Pratt said.

How many gravesites would be created at a new cemetery depends on how much of the land is not wetlands nor ledge. Another factor is whether caskets or cremation urns are buried. More cremation urns can be interred in a gravesite than if caskets are buried. Laugelle said cremation has become more widespread: he estimated 30 to 40 percent of the burials in Cohasset are cremated remains.

Pratt also said some in sections of the cemetery, caskets could be buried "stacked," with one casket buried above another.

The cemetery study committee has said a cemetery at this location could provide as many as 5,000 new burial sites, which would be adequate for a century.

Principal on leave

Hart said he was "made aware of this incident Thursday."

"Since that time, I've been conducting an investigation of the incident interviewing people who were there to get a true idea of what happened," Hart said.

The incident occurred during a "picture-taking" session in the morning in front of the school.

Although he would not say she was serving as acting principal, Hart said curriculum coordinator Ruth Fennessy is at Deer Hill to handle any school matters that arise while Hartlage is on leave.

Hartlage, a Plymouth resident, was hired at a salary in the $50,000 to $60,000 range last June to replace long-time principal Kenneth Ekberg, who took an early retirement.

She holds a bachelor's degree from North Adams State and a master's from Bridgewater state and was an administrator with the Chelsea Public Schools where she headed the Title I program from pre-school through grade 12 before coming to Cohasset.

She was picked from a pool of about 40 applicants. Hart narrowed the field down to about 18-to-20 individuals whom he interviewed himself. He sent the names of six semi-finalists to a screening committee consisting of school administrators, teachers, parents, school council members, school board member, and a resident at large. The screening committee came up with a list of two or three finalists from which Hart made his choice. Under the three-year-old Education Reform Law, superintendents rather than school committees hire principals.

Cohasset says no to school choice

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

Cohasset public schools will not open their doors to non-resident students this fall.

School committee members unanimously voted Tuesday to notify the state that Cohasset has withdrawn the town's obligation to enroll non-resident students for the 1996-1997 academic year.

Members cited lack of space and the unfairness of the program to communities who will lose funding, as the major reasons Cohasset won't be participating in school choice.

If a student attends school in a different town, the student's town has to pay the school system for educating the child.

"By opening the doors of an attractive school system we could hurt the budget (of another school system)," said School Committee Member James Kirk.

The Education Reform Act of 1993 requires school committees to hold a public hearing on the school choice policy.

Additionally, the committee must vote not to participate in school choice before June 1, or the state automatically enrolls the town.

Cohasset has not participated in the program since it began three years ago.

In other business, the school committee:

• Discussed the new school project. School Committee Member Maureen Jerz said that in-depth discussions about wetlands issues are taking place. The major concern is the proximity of the back of the property to abutters on Old Pasture Road. The school facilities committee is working with the conservation commission to move the building in a westerly direction. The location of the building does not have to be decided by the state deadline of June 3. That deadline concerns the footprint of the building.

• Updated the communications plan, which is under the umbrella of the strategic plan. The five committee members were assigned groups to outreach. The pairings are:

* JoAnne Chittick — Senior citizens, school staff and administrators.

* Jerz — Town boards and school councils.

* Chairman Ralph Kidder — students and media (newspapers and cable).

* Kirk — teachers and non-parents

* Rick Shea — Parent Student Organizations (PSO), parents and local organizations and businesses

• Listened to a presentation by Curtis Collins, principal of the junior/ senior high school, on "Breaking Ranks : Changing An American Institution." Collins was a member of an expert panel that studied how high schools can be improved. The panel, which was comprised of educators, produced a book that outlined the direction public education at the high school level should move in.

The six major themes that were discussed in the manual are: personalization, coherency, time, technology, professional development and leadership.

Ten minutes for walk-ins

Selectmen will set aside 10 minutes at 8 p.m. on their meeting nights to address any concerns from members of the public who have issues that are not on the agenda.

If the matter cannot be handled briefly, it will be placed on a future agenda, selectmen said.

At Music Circus, stage acts revolve around community

By SUSAN HAGSTROM
Special to the Mariner

Whether you're part of Generation X or the older generation, a toddler or a teenager — you should be able to find something appealing in this season's schedule at Cohasset's South Shore Music Circus.

'We're popular because quite frankly, we're 48 years old. How many entertainment establishments have been in business that long?'

— Vince Longo, general manager.

Tickets for popular artists like Tom Jones, Steve Lawrence & Eydie Gorme and blockbuster Vince Gill go on sale this weekend. The Music Circus, located on Sohier Street, off of 3A, is a 2,300-seat theater in the round that has been providing big-name entertainment for nearly 50 years.

The South Shore Music Circus and the Cape Cod Melody Tent are owned and operated by the South Shore Playhouse Associates, Inc.; a not-for-profit corporation whose proceeds are donated to other non-profit organizations that support education throughout the South Shore and Cape Cod.

General Manager Vince Longo said he is especially excited about the wide variety of acts that will appear on the revolving stage this season.

"I think that this year we have a much more diversified schedule of events," Longo said. "We have Tom Jones, Paul Anka and Gladys Knight on one end and then Little Feet and Dr. John's 70's rock on the other. It's a better mix than we've had in the past."

Longo said he was proud to include Vince Gill in the schedule. The Music Circus will be the smallest venue this year for Gill, who often performs for crowds of 15,000 and up.

"He (Gill) is really an arena act that has chosen to perform in this smaller venue. He's the superstar of the season."

In addition to presenting pop, rock, country, jazz and comedy acts, the Music Circus offers weekly performances by the award winning Kaleidoscope Theatre for the youngest of patrons.

"It's a good way to introduce children to live theater," said Debra Fernandes, the Music Circus' director of Public Relations. "You don't have the hassle of going into the city. All of the children's shows are Thursday matinees."

According to Longo, last year's revenues were the highest in the last five years and he expects to better that this year. Longo attributes some of the success to better advertising and spreading the word to local residents. Longo said the Music Circus has remained popular because of the intimate, outdoor setting, the competitive prices, the convenience and the relaxed, community-oriented atmosphere.

Barbara Marcus talks about seating availability with Music Circus box office Mgr. Chester Trunfio. Tickets go on sale this week.

Another revenue-booster was the 1994 addition of beer and wine to the concession's menu. The sale of beer and wine improved the concession revenues by 40 percent.

Longo said there have been no problems related to the sale of beer and wine. By Cohasset regulation, beer and wine are sold one hour prior to show time and for 30 minutes during intermission.

"The patrons have been asking for this for years and now we can accommodate that need," Longo explained. "It basically enhances the evening."

Because the Music Circus is a non-profit group, increased revenues greatly benefit the surrounding communities. Past recipients of large donations include the South Shore Art Center, the Cohasset Community Center and the South Shore Conservatory of Music.

"We exist to put money back into the communities," Longo said. "That's one of the reasons that we can attract the big names. The artists know that it's not going to be some promoter who's getting rich. The fact is, the community profits if we do well."

Longo has been general manager since November 1994 and said he is very conscious of how hard his predecessors worked to develop the good reputation now enjoyed by the Music Circus. Longo is also the talent buyer and takes great care to hand pick acts which he feels will uphold that good name.

"We're popular because quite frankly, we're 48 years old. How many entertainment establishments have been in business that long? I've had to turn away lots of big draws. I don't just book acts by the draw. It would just take a few bad seasons to tarnish our good reputation and I want to continue that."

Tickets are now available, seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., by calling (617) 383-1400. The Box Office is open daily from 10 a.m. to to 6 p.m.

Boards have openings

There is a vacancy on the mosquito control committee, the personnel committee and the zoning board of appeals needs an associate member. Interested citizens should call the selectmen's office at 383-9900.

State house must resolve school override snafu

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

A election law technicality could derail the recent school override if not resolved quickly.

The town's bond counsel notified selectmen Monday, that legislation would have to be passed validating the recent school vote before the $9.9 million in school bonds could be issued.

Although the ballot question was reported in local newspapers and posted on a dummy ballot at town hall, the warrant for the April 6 annual town election did not contain mention of the Prop. 2-1/2 exemption ballot question as required by law, said Roger P. Vacco of Palmer & Dodge LLP, in a letter to selectmen. Vacco said his firm cannot approve the bonds without further action.

That action is to introduce a bill to the state legislature which must pass both houses by a 2/3 vote following a recommendation by the governor.

Vacco said Cohasset is not alone in facing this kind of problem.

"Failure to include mention of a Prop. 2-1/2 exemption vote in the warrant for a town election has been a frequent problem for towns facing the technical compliance procedures under an admittedly confusing Prop. 2-1/2 statute. In recent years we have had to obtain special legislation to deal with this problem in the towns of Dennis, Dudley, Georgetown and Lenox, among others," he said.

Because of the June 3 state deadline to submit school plans (part of which require having the finances in order) to qualify for 60 percent reimbursement of the project — Cohasset's bill must be "babysat on a daily basis," Selectman Peter Pratt warned members of the school committee and school facilities committee this week.

There isn't time to call a special town meeting to validate the vote, selectmen said Monday.

Election warrants must be posted in five places around town, Town Administrator Gregory Doyon said. Doyon said it was an oversight that the warrants did not include the ballot question as required.

Doyon said a letter was transmitted to state Sen. Robert Hedlund and state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray on Tuesday. They will write a letter to the governor asking him to file this legislation on behalf of Cohasset.

The school override passed with a vote of 1574 to 1494 at the April 6 election.

Buckley named to disabilities commission

Selectmen appointed Joseph D. Buckley to the Cohasset Commission on Disabilities this week.

Harpsichordist to perform at St. Stephen's

As part of the Centennial Celebration Weekend, St. Stephen's Church will present harpsichord Mark Kroll in recital, Sunday, June 9, at 3 p.m. The final concert in the 1995-'96 Music at St. Stephen's series will include work by Bach, Frescobaldi, Scarlatti and Couperin.

Kroll has been acclaimed as one of the finest harpsichordists of this generation, and has performed throughout North and South American and Europe. He has served as harpsichordist for the Boston Symphony since 1979 and has appeared on several of their recordings.

Kroll recently returned from a tour in Germany, which included recitals in the "Bach cities" of Leipzig and Ohrdruf.

St. Stephen's is located at 16 Highland Ave., Cohasset, and is handicapped accessible. Ample parking is available in the village lot. Call 383-1083 for further information.

Open auditions for 'Earnest'

Hull Performing Arts, Inc. will hold auditions for Oscar Wilde's 1890s comedy "The Importance of Being Earnest" on May 22 and 23 at 7 p.m. at Charisma Realty offices, 115 Nantasket Ave., Hull. The cast will be comprised of five men and four women. Show dates are scheduled for July 20, 21, 26 and 27.

Those wishing to audition should come prepared to do a cold reading from the script. For further information, call 925-9086.

New coffee hour at senior center is a hit

Jarred Hardwick certainly has (another) reason to be proud of himself and his efforts—he was recently presented a citation from the House of Representatives, expressing congratulations to him for being named South Shore League Basketball Player of the Year for the 1995-'96 season.

The citation was signed by Speaker of the House Charles Flaherty and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, complete with the state seal. To put the finishing touch on Jarred's happiness, he also made the honor roll at CHS. We add our kudos to your list, and surely wish you every success in the future!

Have you noticed the extra cars around the Common on Friday mornings? Well, word has gotten out that the new coffee hour hosted by the Council on Elder Affairs is wonderful. There are special treats to go with the coffee, and the coffee hour, held from 9:30 to 11 a.m., is open to people of all ages. The Council would like it if you stopped in and tried their café!

Seventy Smith College students have been elected associate members of Sigma Xi, a national honorary organization recognizing excellence in science. On that list is Cohasset student Cecilia Beatrix Candia, who majors in biological sciences. Congratulations from us to you, Cecilia!

Northfield Mount Hermon School sophomore Abigail Kornet, daughter of Diana and John L. Kornet, will appear in the school's spring theater production of the "Cinderella Waltz." An assistant director in the 1996 theater program's One-Act Play Festival, she also participated in girls crew.

The show will be presented May 24, 31 and June 1 at 7:30 p.m. in Silverthorne Theatre on the Northfield campus. If you are in the mood for a "comic treatment of the familiar Cinderella story," be sure to attend.

A standing ovation goes to Leslie-Ann McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. McGee. Leslie-Ann earned her master of environmental management degree from Duke University a few weeks ago, and to say that everyone is extremely proud of her is a vast understatement! Best of luck in the business world, Leslie!

Exploring their family tree at the John Alden House Museum in Duxbury recently are Catherine Johnson Bell of Troy, N.Y. and her daughter, Chartis Langmaid, of Cohasset.

Happy Birthday wishes go to Ann Pompeo, whose birthday is May 28. Be sure to give her birthday greetings and hugs and smiles when you see her!

Congratulations to Angela Rose Parisi, daughter of Bruce and Georgine Butman. Angela is the first girl in Cohasset to receive her Gold Award from the Girl Scouts. The award is the highest a young woman can earn from Girl Scouts USA.

Angela's project focused on the melting pot of the USA. She went into classrooms at Osgood School and performed "Folktales of Diversity." The project will serve the entire Patriots' Trail Council in Massachusetts.

Hope everyone received their letter from the Sandy Beach Association asking for voluntary gifts to help maintain the beach after the very long winter. Your donation enables the association to provide full-duty lifeguards, bathhouse facilities, walkway access, preservation (with the use of a snow fence) and daily maintenance. Any amount you can donate will be appreciated, and you will enjoy Sandy Beach even more knowing you contributed to its beauty!

We congratulate Ann M. Grew, Flintlocke Ridge, who received her BA in accounting from Michigan State University. Ann was one of 4,658 candidates for bachelor's degrees!

We are sure lots of you remember Liz Hills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hills, and recall how well we told you she was doing at Mercersburg Academy in Pennsylvania. Well, she is really proving to be an outstanding student! After two years of junior high school French, she will be taking French IV this summer and AP French in the fall! She is a sophomore! Liz is copy editor of the school newspaper, has received an award for academic excellence and is happy and very busy! We can say Cohasset's loss is truly Mercersburg Academy's gain!

That's it for this week, but this is the "newsy" time of year, so don't forget to fill us in on yours!

Memorial Day 1996

Last month, this nation paused to reflect on the tragic loss of life caused by a senseless, brutal act of terrorism in America's heartland. That single act of cowardice in Oklahoma City shattered for many Americans a feeling of innocence, of solitude, that is our birthright as citizens of this great country.

As we paused on April 19, we reflected on our personal memories of that sad day and how it touched us as individuals and as a nation. For many, that horrendous event is an image seared into our minds: a limp, lifeless child cradled in the arms of an exhausted firefighter; a smoking pile of rubble viewed from a television reporter's helicopter.

For many, the Oklahoma City bombing was reminiscent of a devastated World War II bomb site or blown-up embassy building in Beirut, Lebanon. It was a painful reminder of the brutality of war; of the ultimate price paid for the freedoms we enjoy today. Our freedoms are legion. Our memories are personal, delicate.

On Memorial Day, we pause to reflect on our personal memories of America's veterans.

For some, the memory of an American veteran will be one of a soldier in the next foxhole, valiantly serving his country while enduring the horror of war. For others, the memory will be of a nurse valiantly serving her country while dressing the wounds of battle-weary infantrymen. She, too, endured the horrors of war.

For some, our memories of American veterans are merely names etched in a black granite wall in the nation's capital.

For others still, American veterans are memorialized in the many benefits offered in gratitude of their service: the homes we grew up in that were backed by VA-guaranteed loans. The educational benefits that paid for college tuitions.

For many Americans, the memory of an American veteran is very simple: the memory of grandpa. Or dad.

Many of our fathers and grandfathers, our sisters and brothers, returned from battlefields to be nursed back to health in the nation's VA medical centers. There are veterans there now, at each of the 172 hospitals nationwide. On Memorial Day they will remember their fallen comrades. They will hold solemn, special remembrances of friends, colleagues, partners — countrymen. Our memories, in whatever fashion, are small personal tributes to the memory of someone who has served this country. They deserve our honor, for they — in some divine fashion, for some divine reason — have been sacrificed.

Let us honor the more than one million American men and women who fought and died on battlefields — so that we might enjoy the freedoms we have today.

This day, this Memorial Day, is an opportunity for us to pay that tribute. For it is through their sacrifices that we are able to enjoy the freedom to bind as a nation. To help grieve the tragedy in our nation's heartland. To endure. To grow.

(Michael D. Olson, Director of the Dept. of Veterans Affairs)

'Thousand Cranes' raised troubling questions

To the Editor:

We have followed the letters of the past two weeks concerning the Deer Hill's performance of "A Thousand Cranes." We wonder why Joe McElroy's reasonable request for a balanced treatment of the Hiroshima tragedy elicited an implication that his letter was about one-line political questions. Can it be that there's an underlying worry that the other side of the story somehow would detract from the play's effectiveness in inspiring us to seek peace? Is there some politically correct attitude that was offended by such a request?

We also have a fifth- and sixth-grader at the Deer Hill. Conversations with them and one of their teachers have convinced us that the other side of the story was lightly skimmed over in one session of one child's social studies class, and not touched upon in the other child's classes. There is legitimate concern about giving time to a balanced presentation. The arts, and drama especially, are powerful tools for shaping people's understanding, feelings, and views. They are not, however, a comprehensive and thorough means of conveying an education. Without a more balanced background given, it's easy for the drama to be mistaken for the whole story. A political message may not have been intended in this production, but clearly, it was received by some, including one of our own two children.

No people of good will, including several victims of Japanese aggression that we knew, would deny the need to mourn the innocents that died anywhere in that war. It really doesn't matter if it was one of the 10 million Chinese civilians killed during the Japanese occupation of China, or one of the 115,000 (U.S. estimate) to 240,000 (Japanese estimate) Japanese civilians killed in Hiroshima and Nagasaki, or one of the 6 million Jewish civilians killed in the concentration camps of Nazi Germany. Mankind is all the poorer for the loss. "A Thousand Cranes" was about peace in the emotional sense. It inspired and created the desire for peace. Was it important and effective? Absolutely. Joe McElroy's letter was about peace in terms of common sense. If peace is to be preserved in the future, all of history must be taught in the present. Is this necessary and relevant? Absolutely. Discussing important topics with your child should not be dismissed as indulging in one-line political questions. Evenhanded discussions at home and at school are essential for preparing our children to make wise and compassionate choices in the future, based on information instead of passion. Peace is a goal that is not always achieved without terrible sacrifice and difficult decisions. Our children need to be reminded of that as we approach Memorial Day, and honor the many Americans who died so that this debate can even take place.

Food pantry appreciates support

To the Editor:

The Cohasset Food Pantry would like to thank everyone who helped to make the recent Postal Service townwide food drive a success.

Through the hard work of Richard Leach and his associates at Cohasset Post Office, Food Pantry volunteers who spent the day stocking shelves, and the generosity of the Cohasset community, we were able to add 4,000 pounds of food to the Food Pantry shelves on May 11. Not only was the quantity of food tremendous, but the quality was excellent as well!

The Food Pantry relies on the generosity of our community and the support of local organizations like the town Post Office to help our families in need. The support we received from this food drive is a reminder of why we are so fortunate to live in such a special community.

Fresh legal approach needed

To the Editor:

The time has come for the Town of Cohasset to consolidate all of its legal services into one firm, the law firm of new Town Counsel Paul DeRensis. Consolidation of legal services will provide more cost-effective legal representation to the town for all municipal, labor and environmental matters, and will reduce costs while providing quality legal service.

The continued employment of Warner & Stackpole for Cohasset Heights landfill-related litigation can no longer be justified. We have seen, time and time again, that with this firm, the costs have been very high and the results have not always been satisfactory. My experience is that they frequently have pulled their punches, have recommended too many times that town boards negotiate away their legal authority, and are so afraid of losing that they do not always try as hard as they could to win for the town. Besides, after 10 years with the same firm handling CHL-related matters, we need a fresh approach. It's time for a change.

Local gym teachers oppose plan to repeal PE mandates

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

Local physical education teachers voiced opposition this week to a recent proposal to repeal the state education regulation requiring all students to take physical education in school.

The proposal was made by Education Commissioner Robert V. Antonucci at a state board of education meeting last week. Antonucci's plan would let individual school districts decide their physical education requirements.

Under the three-year-old state education reform law — time and learning mandates, requiring students to spend more time in school on academics — may force some schools to cut-back or eliminate some elective and non-academic programs. In tight budget years, eliminating non-essential programs could prove even more tempting to some towns. Without the law requiring physical education, some gym teachers fear their programs could be the first to go.

Torin Sweeney, a physical education teacher at the Deer Hill School in Cohasset said the proponents of the repeal have not considered the ramifications.

"When cuts are made in programs and faculty, it is very difficult to restore them," said Sweeney.

Sweeney said the proposal stems from "30 and 40 something" adults who think physical education still amounts to dodge ball and square dancing. And while he acknowledges the fact that some programs are poor — new training and new curriculums show that gym class has come a long way in the last 20 years.

State regulations currently require 30 hours of physical education for kindergartners and 60 hours for students in grades one through 10 during the school year. There is no requirement for juniors and seniors but in Cohasset physical education is part of the curriculum at all grade levels.

According to schools physical education director Michael Gill, pupils in kindergarten and first grade have physical education class twice a week for about a half hour. In grades two-through-six, gym class is 45 minutes long twice a week.

State regulations currently require 30 hours of physical education for kindergartners and 60 hours for students in grades one through 10 during the school year.

At the elementary level, pupils learn balance, coordination and specific skills for sporting activities. In junior high school and high school, the physical education focus shifts to organized sports and individual fitness units, said Gill, who would like to build a-state-of-the-art fitness center that would offer programs like weight training, step aerobics and a whole host of cardiovascular equipment such as stair climbers and treadmills. Fitness testing during physical education is used to help students achieve their own physical best rather than as a way to compare students with each other, Gill said.

"We need to do a better job of emphasizing fitness and help students form good fitness habits for the rest of their lives," Gill said.

At the secondary level students take gym every day for half the year (90 days) and have health class every day during the second half of the year. Gill said the half-year program, which began two years ago, gives both physical and health education continuity.

With nearly 85 percent of the student body participating in extra curricular sports programs, Gill said during the half year students are in health class, they're still getting enough exercise.

Gill, who opposes the repeal or any cutbacks in physical education, said that rather than reducing or eliminating programs, schools should be focusing on improving them and making them more meaningful and relevant to students.

"It has to be more than a glorified recess," said Gill, who noted that physical education exposes students to a wide range of abilities, many different activities and should be a skill-based, sequential program with a well-defined curriculum.

"Physical education is not just to give kids some physical activity, but to teach a curriculum. If that's not happening, it's the responsibility of the school," Gill said.

But by increasing and improving fitness levels, Gill said students perform better in the classrooms and all around academically.

Sweeney agreed and added that physical education also helps mold a well-rounded child, and provides another place for socialization.

Like many physical education instructors, Gill and Sweeney have concerns about fitness levels, especially in young children, who may be spending more time in front of television and computer screen on the playgrounds and playing fields.

"You drive by the little league fields and they're empty," Gill said.

"Everything seems to indicate that fitness levels in children are not what they should be," said Gill, noting "our culture is promoting a more sedentary lifestyle in our children."

If anything, Gill said rather than cutting physical education programs, schools need to consider promoting more fitness both in and outside of school.

While no formal discussion on the physical education issue has taken place within the school department, school Supt.Stephen Hart said no substantial changes in the current programs are planned at this point.

"We'll want to look at our program and make sure it's meeting the goals we've established," Hart said.

Fair Oaks Lane driveway decision put off again

By BRIAN SURETTE
Special to the Mariner

The Planning Board last week postponed once again a final decision on an application by developer Mark Patrolia to extend for building purposes a common driveway off Fair Oaks Lane.

Questions over potential zoning difficulties, landscaping grades and the final design of one structure necessitated board members to seek outside help before they could make a fair and final decision.

Philip and Cherie Miles, whose property is on the opposite side of the existing driveway, have asked the board to deny Patrolia's application. Through their lawyer, they have requested the board to stipulate that any future homes be serviced by new driveways running off Fair Oaks Lane.

At a previous meeting the board had requested Patrolia to provide a topographical map, showing detailed elevation grades, for the homes he intends to construct; as well as approval from Cohasset Fire Chief Roger Lincoln relevant to neighbors concerns that the proposed driveway would not meet safety standards.

In what is becoming an acrimonious affair, the Mileses have also filed a civil lawsuit against Patrolia. Board members learned that disputes over this particular development site have been ongoing for several years.

Patrolia's father was granted original development permits for this area in 1978 and over the years the final rendering of the plans has constantly changed, much to the chagrin of abutters.

The board deferred a final determination on the topic until it received an opinion from town counsel on whether 1978 or current zoning statutes should be applied in this case.

Chairman Al Moore, who had hoped for a quick resolution, appeared frustrated over matters.

"If a complete driveway had been engineered and put on a plan, whether it was built or not," Moore told Patrolia, "it would have served purposes and residents would not be before the board today seeking redress."

Fellow board member Robert Sturdy was even more emphatic. He stated that in addition to driveway concerns, water run-off from any new construction would affect neighboring properties.

"I have some real difficulty with this," Sturdy said. "These people (Philip and Cherie Miles) got really duped into buying something under false pretenses."

Moore noted the board had received the topographical map, though Sturdy was not pleased with its details, as well as a letter from Chief Lincoln stating that Patrolia had met minimum town safety standards for proposed expansion; and, as long as no new trees or utility poles were placed in the location of the driveway fire department apparatus could, if necessary, back out the area.

Moore told all parties a decision would be forthcoming at the next board meeting on June 5.

In another common driveway hearing, approval was granted on a conditional basis to the developers of Kendall Village (Beechwood Street and Route 3A).

The board will ask for an opinion from town counsel as to whether the proposed eight-unit lots can be accessed over property that may be wetland.

Moore stated if this was to be the case, the board would then consider an alternative plan by developers, as it was not the board's intention to kill off the Kendall Village project.

ASSISTED LIVING HOME

In other business, representatives of Sunshine Development, a proposed three-story, 62-unit assisted living facility to be built on a five-acre site across from Jonathan Livingston Square (Route 3A), met with board members for an informal discussion of their plans.

Attorney Charles Humphreys stated an official proposal would be put before the town in approximately six to eight weeks and from that time site completion could be expected to take one year.

The definition of an assisted living facility was described as being for individuals such as Alzheimer's patients, who are one-step shy of requiring the constant 24-hour care of a nursing home.

Lastly, the board declined a request by the Water Resources Protection Committee (WRPC) to appoint a Planning Board representative to their committee.

Moore stated that while the Planning Board appreciated what the WRPC is doing, at this time because of already full work loads, it was not possible to add another duty to any individual board member.

they'd start fishing.

"Then he'd do what he loved to do — spend his leisure time, where he worked. He was happiest on the ocean," Durkin said.

Chrissy Sladen, Sladen's great niece, said her uncle was like a father.

Coming back from a fishing trip, Chrissy said she'd have a great tan and most of all "another wonderful memory of my great uncle Sheldon."

Family friend Barry Getto also spoke at the service and Lilly Sestito sang a hymn about life on the sea. Harbormasters from Hingham, Hull, Scituate, Cohasset and Weymouth were in attendance along with members of the Coast Guard.

Born in Cohasset and a 1952 Cohasset High graduate, Sladen, who had worked on the ocean since he was 11, was part of the close-knit fishing and harbor community which pulled out all the stops last week to find and rescue Sladen when a fellow fisherman reported that Sladen's boat, the Beachcomber, had been discovered empty.

Sladen was discovered minutes later in the 44 degree water. CPR was administered and he was air lifted to Boston City Hospital where he died later that day.

A reception followed Tuesday's memorial service at the Lightkeepers Residence.

Obituaries

Sheldon F. Sladen

A memorial service was held May 21 for Sheldon F. Sladen, 61, of Cohasset, a lobsterman who drowned in the ocean outside Cohasset Harbor on May 15. The service was held at Government Island, Cohasset Town Pier.

Born in Cohasset, he graduated from Cohasset High School in 1952.

Mr. Sladen was a veteran of the Navy Seabees and had worked on the ocean since he was 11. He did his lobstering from his boat, named the "Beachcomber."

He was the husband of the late Nancy E. (Tower) Sladen and leaves two daughters, Shelanne S. Durkin and Sandra Zappolo, both of Cohasset; a brother, Donald E. Sladen of Scituate; and seven grandchildren.

Arrangements were made by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home.

Donations in Mr. Sladen's memory may be made to the Sheldon F. Sladen Memorial Fund for the Continued Beautification of Government Island area, c/o Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, 48 S. Main St., Cohasset 02025.

Book sale success

The Friends of the Paul Pratt Library report the used book sale, which was held the weekend of May 10, was a great success. They are thankful to the many Cohasset residents who supported the sale and to the many volunteers who helped set up and sell the books. All proceeds will benefit the library. There is a small book rack currently in the lobby of the library holding used paperbacks for sale for 25 cents each — for any interested bargain hunters.

Upcoming 'Friends' events

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Friends of the Paul Pratt Library will take place at the library Wednesday morning, June 19, at 9 a.m. All current and prospective officers and members are invited to attend.

An evening reception, from 6 to 8 p.m., Thursday, June 20, will take place at the home of Barbara and Jeff Power, in recognition of all of the library volunteers.

Le Blanc art exhibit continues

Don't miss award-winning artist Eleanor Le Blanc's exhibit of prints and paintings, which will continue through July 7. Le Blanc, a resident of Hull, holds a BFA from Massachusetts College of Art, Boston, and has attended the School of the Museum of Fine Arts and the University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth. She has been a part of exhibitions in such galleries as: the South Shore Art Center; the Hingham Public Library; the Newton Public Library; the Fuller Museum, Brockton; the Bank of Boston, Boston and the South Shore Hospital. There will be a reception honoring Eleanor Le Blanc at the Paul Pratt Library, hosted by the Friends of the library, Sunday, June 9, at 5 p.m. Please come meet the artist!

Visiting Moms program

The Visiting Moms program of Jewish Family and Children's Service is holding a drop-in group for mothers and babies on Thursdays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. New mothers are invited to come together with their babies in a nurturing environment at St. Paul's Parish House, 20 Fearing Road, Hingham.

Lead by volunteers, drop-in groups provide an atmosphere where mothers can "share the excitement and concerns about being a new parent, share information and begin to build a network of mothers in the community," said Debbie Whitehill, coordinator of the South Area Visiting Moms. The free, non-sectarian program serves new and expectant mothers who are looking for emotional support, companionship and an understanding listener. The program is designed to promote self-esteem, communication, problem-solving skills, awareness of the community's resources and provide an education in infant development.

Registration is not necessary. For more information, call Debbie Whitehill at (617) 821-4990.

Cohasset to send two young ambassadors abroad

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

It is certainly not a secret society, but few know how students are recommended to the People to People Student Ambassador Program.

Carolyn Contis, a program organizer, said that students are invited to participate.

She said that she knows the organization receives letters with the names of certain students. She just doesn't know who recommends them.

What she does know, is that the chosen students not only excel academically, but in extra-curricular activities as well.

"These kids do a lot of things. They are pretty impressive," Contis said.

Cohasset seventh-graders Ben Bixby and Lane Forrer fit this description.

Last fall, the two were sent information on a student ambassador program to Western Europe and ended up applying.

After personal interviews, school recommendations and a screening process, the two were chosen, along with 19 other junior high students from Norfolk and Suffolk counties, to represent the United States.

"This is a chance of a lifetime," said Forrer. "You don't get to go to far away countries, and represent your country as a student ambassador every day."

Bixby added that the group, which also includes students from other counties across the U.S., will learn a lot about the culture of the countries, among other things.

"I'm looking forward to seeing what they think about us," he said with a grin.

The student delegation will leave July 5 and spend 20 days visiting England, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany. They will learn about the countries' governments, cultures and economies.

People to People was founded by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1956 to foster understanding between countries.

This year approximately 8,000 students from the United States will be participating in the program.

"It is just such a memorable experience and it is also a confidence builder," said Contis, a Cohasset resident. The students "become much more interested in world cultures and world affairs."

She stressed that this is not just a site-seeing tour. Students will have the opportunity to attend briefings at ministries and embassies, have discussions with industry and trade officials, and visit the headquarters of international organizations.

While in Brussels, students will have the opportunity to visit the headquarters of NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and learn about the changes now taking place in its membership.

Many student ambassadors, said Contis, have gone on to pursue international careers in business, law, government service and teaching.

Bixby and Forrer are unsure of what career path they will choose, although Forrer said he may want to be a college professor. However, they agree that the experience will be invaluable.

"This will be one of the better summers," said Forrer. "I won't just be sitting at home and sleeping."

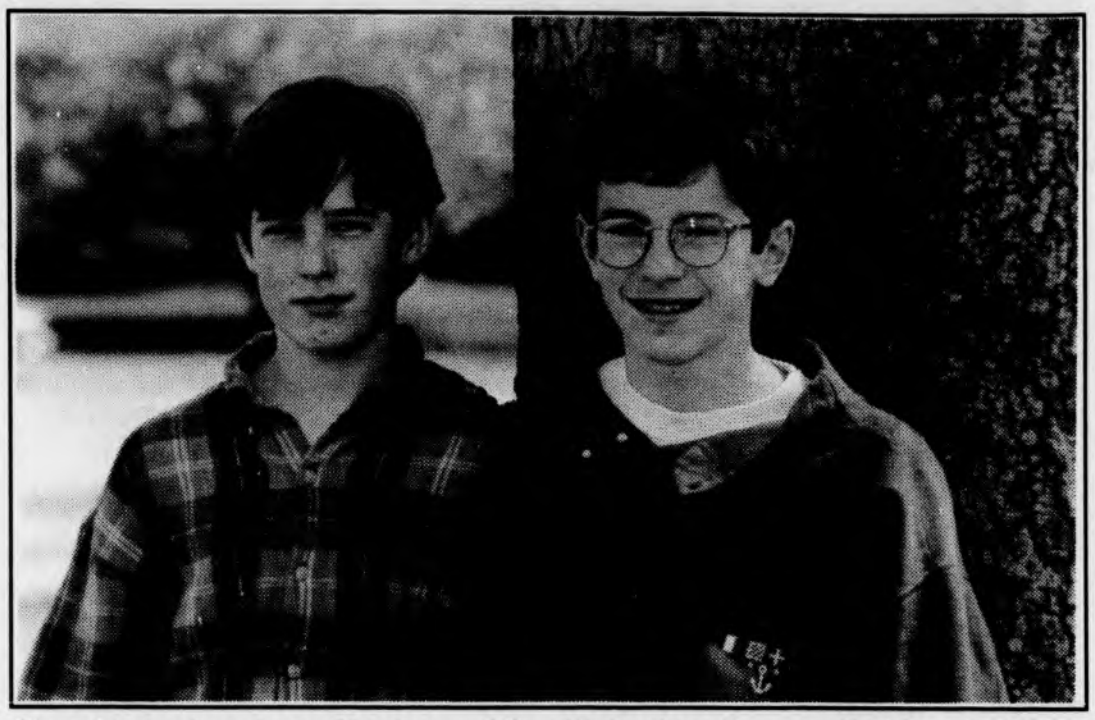
The two 13-year-olds, who know each other from soccer, school and the track team, are both veteran travelers.

Bixby has been to Spain twice with his parents. He said his mother was jealous that he'll be able to see so much of the world at a young age.

"She never got to travel anywhere," Bixby explained. "She wasn't on a plane until she was 21."

Forrer has already been to every country on the itinerary, except for England.

His father grew up in the Netherlands, so the family went there for a three-week vacation, and toured neighboring countries, when he was in the fourth grade.



Seventh-graders Lane Fourier and Ben Bixby have been invited to participate in the People to People Student Ambassador Program this summer.

This time around, said Forrer, it will be better because he'll be older and better able to appreciate the cultures.

"My Dad keeps telling me what to go and see. I think he has said it about five times," said Forrer.

He added that he wants to visit the Eiffel Tower. When he was there high winds prevented him from traveling to the top.

Big Ben and the Louvre museum are also on his list of things to see.

Bixby is less discriminating.

"There is nothing in particular I want to see," he said. "I just want to see Europe."

He added that he was interested in seeing France because the government spent more on education than it did on national defense.

Both students said they were looking forward to cleaner cities, and no graffiti on the Metro.

Each student will get the chance to stay in a home in Germany for a couple days. Bixby and Forrer may even attend school with their "foster" brother or sister.

"It will be for a day, one day only," emphasized Forrer.

The students are required to keep a daily log of the trip, and write a paper when they return home.

Bixby joked that since he couldn't receive high school credit, he was going to save his credits for college.

The two said they are a willing to try new things as they travel from country to country.

"I hear they have good chocolate in Belgium," said Bixby.

He was less sure of trying raw herring in Holland.

"It tastes like onions," explained Forrer.

American Legion Auxiliary to hold Girls State

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold its 49th annual Massachusetts Girls State at Mount Holyoke in June. Angela Rose Parisi, daughter of Bruce and Georgine Butman, has been selected to attend, with Cohasset Rotary Club as her sponsor.

A junior at South Shore Vocational Technical High School, Angela will participate in establishing, operating and forming two political parties, nominating candidates for office, conducting campaigns and holding elections on the local and state government levels.

Speakers will be high state officials, government leaders and other professions. The girls will learn about the responsibilities of the various branches of government and the qualifications and benefits of many of the leading professions.

Girls State will be held in every state in the Union. At sessions in each state, two girls will be selected to represent their respective state at Girls Nation, to be held in Washington, D.C. in July.

Caitlin Connolly is top senior volunteer

Wednesday evening (May 9) at the Honors and Merit Awards ceremony at Cohasset Senior High School, senior Caitlin Connolly was presented with The Prudential Spirit of Community Award by Scituate resident and Prudential representative Charles Kropp.

The award is designed to recognize students in middle and high school grades who have demonstrated exemplary, self-initiated community service. The award program is sponsored by The Prudential Insurance Company of America and administered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

As Massachusetts' top senior high community volunteer, Caitlin went to Washington to accept a $1,000 award and meet with students from each state for a weekend of sharing ideas and enjoying events in the nation's capital.

Caitlin is being recognized for establishing the Social Awareness Organization (SAO) during her sophomore year at Cohasset High. SAO exemplifies the self-initiated community service Prudential is seeking to promote.

The organization has involved students in a wide variety of community service activities, including yearly clothing drives for Pine Street Inn and walks to prevent cruelty to children, help battered women and combat AIDS. It has also started programs recycling papers in the high school, collecting soda cans to raise money for local and regional charities, and bringing issues of racism, sexism and homophobia into open discussion at the school.

When Kropp visited Caitlin's parents, Ed and Betsy Connolly, recently at their home in Cohasset, Betsy Connolly pointed out Caitlin's computer which had the calendar for next year on its screen. Caitlin is marking key follow-up dates for SAO, to assure a smooth passing of the baton as she leaves Cohasset for college, and the spirit of community initiative changes hands.

Charles Kropp, Prudential representative from Scituate, presents Caitlin Connolly, senior at Cohasset High School, with The Prudential Spirit of Community Award.

Megan Fahey wins AFL/CIO scholarship

At the 38th Annual Scholarship Awards Program of the Massachusetts AFL/CIO, Megan Fahey of Cohasset was the recipient of the Jimmy Dunn Scholarship Award. The annual reception was held at the IBEW Local 103 Union Hall, Dorchester, on May 1.

Megan is the daughter of Brian and Elaine Fahey of Cohasset. Brian is a member of Laborer's International Union of North America, Local #223. Megan is a senior at Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School and will attend Arizona State University in the fall.

Each year the Massachusetts AFL/CIO coordinates the scholarship program with local unions statewide. Scholarships are open to all high school seniors, awarded on the basis of the student's scores on a labor history exam and written essay. More than 2,000 high school seniors participated in the program during the past year by taking the exam, with the Massachusetts AFL./CIO contributing more than $300,000 in scholarships.

Active parenting series continues

Parents can learn how to raise cooperative, responsible children by watching "Active Parenting Today" on cable TV.

"Active Parenting in a Democratic Society" will show model family meetings, using five steps for active problem-solving, on May 27 at 9 p.m. and May 29 at 7:30 p.m.

The program will be broadcast on Channel 53, and is sponsored by the Health Education Department of Cohasset Public Schools.

Phone -A-Thon donors thanked

Thanks go to all those who pledged donations during last week's Phone-A-Thon. Pledges totaled more than $7,000, which will benefit Cohasset PSO activities.

Return envelopes are being mailed out this week, and checks should be made payable to the Cohasset PSO. Individuals who were not contacted by telephone but would like to made a donation are asked to mail their contribution to the Cohasset PSO, P.O. Box 30, Cohasset 02025.

Special thanks goes to all those who worked so hard on this year's Phone-A-Thon.

Two Herbs add spice to harbor park

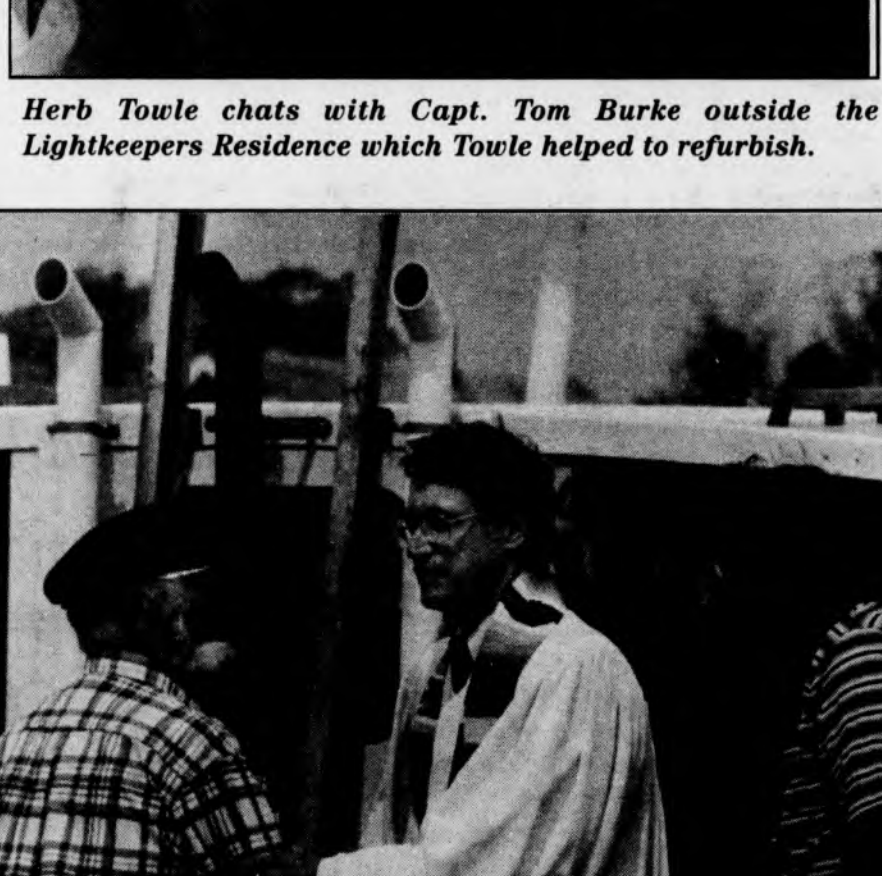
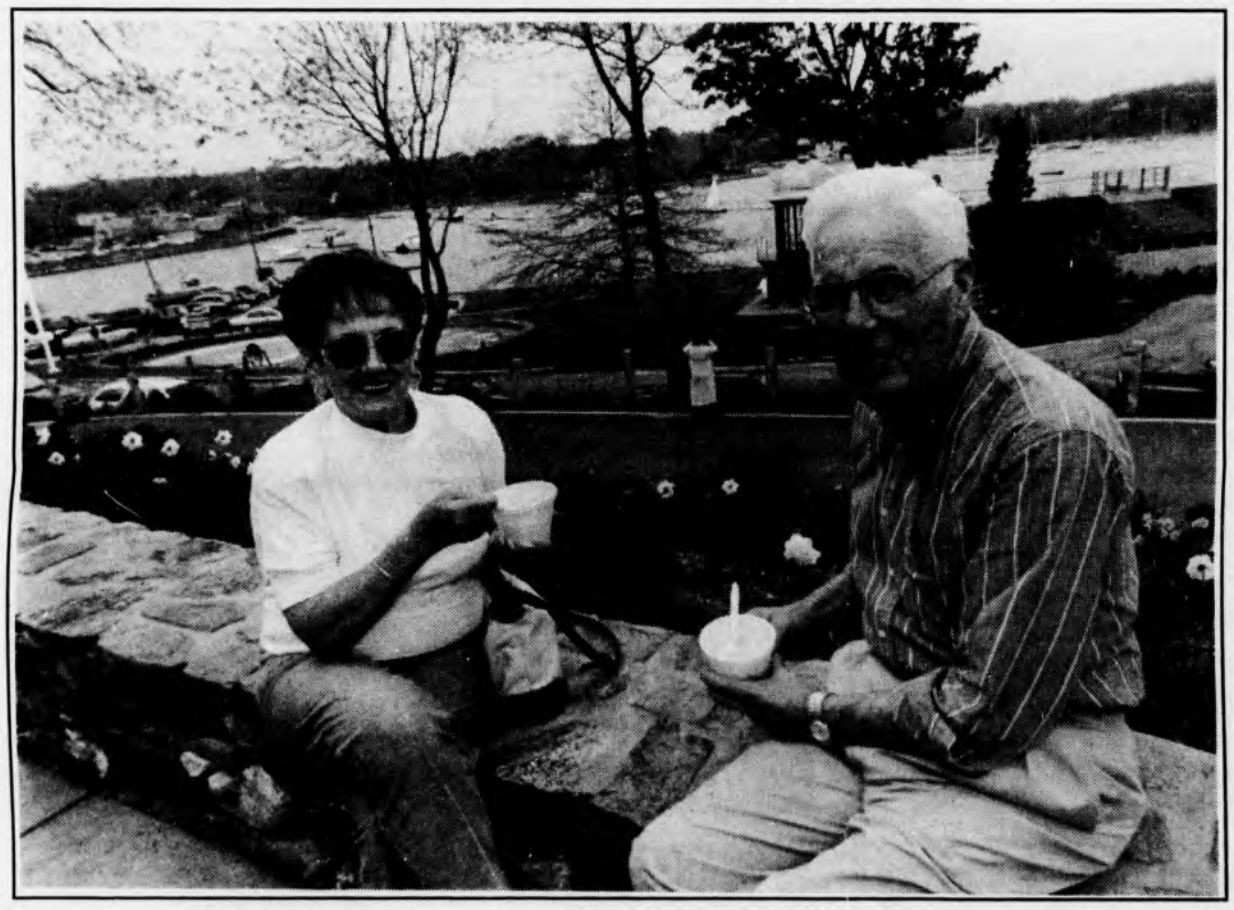
Cohasset's two Herbs, Herb Jason and Herb Towle, were honored Sunday for their tireless efforts in making Government Island the lovely town park it has become (see related story, page 28).



Herb Towle chats with Capt. Tom Burke outside the Lightkeepers Residence which Towle helped to refurbish.



Lorraine and Jack Curley enjoy the view from the Lightkeeper's House patio and the clam chowder at Herb Day.

Cohasset's Herb Jason gets a greeting from the Rev. Gary Ritts after Ritts blessed the fleet as Herb Day festivities got underway Sunday.

Baseball team fights for tourney bid

By JIM O'SULLIVAN
Cohasset Mariner

It has been 22 years, five presidents, countless losses and slightly more countable wins since the Cohasset High baseball team last qualified for the state tourney. When the Skippers last reached the Promised Land in 1974, current Cohasset High principal Curtis Collins was the head coach and current coach Ron Ford was finishing the first grade. None of this year's players had yet been born. Grand Funk Railroad's "Loco Motion" was at the top of the charts and bell bottoms were in. It has been a long drought.

But the Skippers' wait could be over as of this Wednesday when Cohasset takes on the Chatham Blue Devils at Milliken Field. Cohasset needs one more win to reach the tournament. It hasn't been an easy road. Cohasset lost an 8-1 decision to Carver last Wednesday and dropped another game to Norton, giving the Skippers an 8-10 record. A .500 record is needed to get a ticket to the postseason and Cohasset has just two games left.

Senior co-captains and pitcher Greg Stevens took the hill for the Skippers on Monday and handcuffed the Carver Crusaders in Carver. Stevens coasted by the home team, pulling down a 5-1 complete game victory. He fanned six and won his second consecutive start, giving up just one run in each of them. Stevens' stats since the 1994 season include 116 innings, a 9-6 record with four saves, 77 strikeouts and just 16 walks. Stevens' ERA is a sparkling 2.27 over the stretch. He was helped along against the Crusaders by freshman catcher Mike Rossi's two-run double in the fourth and Kevin McKenna's double.

Ford called Stevens' performance on the mound, "a typical Greg Stevens game. He's just the type of pitcher who gets the big outs when he needs to in the big games."

Cohasset needs another superb performance when Ford sends eighth-grader Joe Pergola to the mound on Wednesday. After whipping the Blue Devils last time, Cohasset expects a much better, fundamentally sound Chatham squad. With the pressure on, the Skippers need another notch in the win column.

Lacrosse season a huge success for girls

Chances are nobody had more fun this spring than Cory Mundhenk in coaching Cohasset High's girls lacrosse team for the first season.

And with a final record of 6-3-1, Mundhenk is pleased with the improvements her squad of mainly underclassmen made with every game.

"They really started to get used to playing with each other," she said. "The girls set up the plays well and were more patient. They communicated well. At the beginning of the year we mainly had drives to the goal.

"This season was as fun for me as it was for them."

Nowhere was the first-year team's maturity more evident than in its 8-5 victory over Duxbury last Friday at the Deer Hill School. Cohasset had five different players score goals and got a tremendous performance from seventh-grade goalie Kelly Lordan in her debut between the posts.

Lordan posted nine saves, four of which came in rapid succession when Duxbury threatened to jam home a goal late in the game.

"She was being peppered by shots at one point," Mundhenk said. "She was very impressive for the first time in net."

Laxmen want total offense in tourney

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

It has become pretty obvious over the course of the spring that the Cohasset High lacrosse team has the players who can put the ball in the net on a consistent basis. When the 10-4 Skippers have possession and their offense is in full throttle, more often than not, the squad is going to wind up with a goal count in double digits.

But Cohasset is still having its problems getting the ball out of its own end. And when that happens, you have a team playing defense and it's not defense that scores the goals.

"If we end up with a proportional amount of time on offense we should do pretty well," said head coach Ken Ekberg, summing up the key to Cohasset's success. "We're working on getting the ball down the other end of the field. Collectively, we've got to get better at that. We are still not strong getting the ball out of our own end. We haven't been fundamentally sound at it. As a result, we wind up playing more defense."

Cohasset managed to squeeze its share of mental mistakes into Tuesday's storm-shortened 4-4 tie against Barnstable. The Skippers jumped out to a 4-1 lead, but Barnstable stole the ball back and cut the lead to 4-3 before tying the contest as the rains hit.

Kondrat leads Skipper golfers

Cohasset's top-four golfers all finished within five strokes of each other to defeat Carver last Thursday, 5-1/2 — 3-1/2. Jamie Kondrat had the top score for the 9 holes with a 42. Kondrat was followed closely by Justin Buckley (45), Jordan Fiore (46) and Justin Golden (47).

The accessible AD

For athletic director Chatterton, people make his job worth doing

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

Even beyond the sports aspect, Cohasset High Athletic Director Clark Chatterton enjoys dealing with all types of people his job brings him in contact with. Now in his 20th year in the AD position, Chatterton spoke with a custodian, bus driver, gymnastics coach and an official all within a span of 20 minutes last Friday morning, ironing out questions and returning phone calls.

It's that part of the job which Chatterton believes is absolutely essential in making his work run smoother and getting the best possible results for the school, sports programs and student/athletes.

"Just being able to get along with everyone is the most important thing," Chatterton said. "The kids come first and I think a lot of people can lose sight of that. If you can't get along with people, you can't do this job."

This is the time of year when Chatterton irons out the fall schedules with the rest of the AD's around the South Shore League and coordinating the use of the fields so there is no conflict between the field hockey and boys and girls soccer teams.

The spring was not an easy one for any AD's in the area this year. Snowstorms then torrential rains wreaked havoc on the scheduled games. Cancellations forced the contests to be moved back, leaving no choice but for several teams to play between 4-5 per week in a number of sports.

The weather was so bad, Cohasset got in just one girls tennis match from April 1 - May 6.

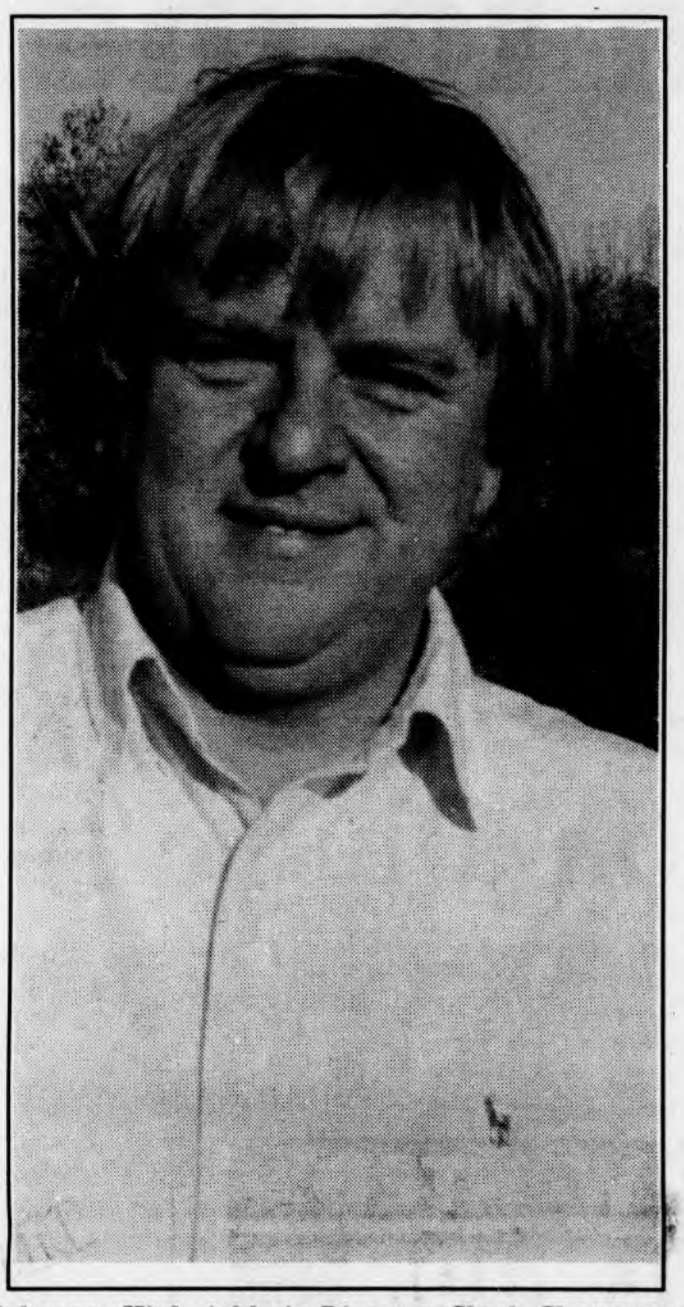
You wouldn't know it by the current staff of coaches, but Chatterton finds the absolute toughest part of his job is finding quality coaches who are available five days per week for 12 weeks. He realizes that Cohasset's proximity to major highways presents a problem to the potential coach who is considering a job offer.

"We are out of the mainstream in terms of geographic location," Chatterton said.

And despite its small enrollment in relation to the rest of the SSL, Cohasset High has as many, if not more, sports offered to its students. Since Chatterton became AD, gymnastics, three girls soccer teams, JV boys soccer, wrestling, skiing, swimming and boys and girls lacrosse teams have been added to the school's athletic program.

There are only 108 girls and 103 boys in grades 10-12, which is 2-1/2 times smaller than SSL opponent Scituate and nearly 3-1/2 times smaller than Marshfield, a familiar non-league opponent to several Skipper squads.

Obviously, with the school's small enrollment of 464 from grades 7-12, the numbers on some of the teams are somewhat low. Golf and sailing have the minimum amount of players and softball is down. Cohasset High, however, is a school of athletes. More than 70 percent of its students are involved in at least one sport.



Cohasset High Athletic Director Clark Chatterton keeps athletics in perspectives while he runs the school's sports program with a door that's always open.

"We are extended," Chatterton said, "but we do have something for everyone."

Chatterton takes special pride in the coaching staff and said he'd stack it up against any other school in a second.

"Our athletic staff here is second to none when you factor in the coaches' knowledge and character as role models," he said. "We're very fortunate. These coaches don't always get enough credit."

The performance of the teams speak for themselves as far as Cohasset's success. The lacrosse team is a perennial tournament qualifier despite having the smallest enrollment of any squad in the postseason in the state. The varsity basketball team has won two of the past three Division 3 South Sectional championships and the gymnastics squad has taken the last three SSL titles.

"People really marvel at what we do with our size," Chatterton said.

One of the biggest changes Chatterton has witnessed over the past 10-15 years is the amount of outside activities the student/athletes are involved in addition to being on a team. Consequently, coaches can't always schedule practices when they want to have them.

"The days are gone when a coach says here's my practice schedule," Chatterton said.

Chatterton, though, is a firm believer that academics are the No. 1 priority and athletics are just another part of the high school experience.

"Athletics is great but it's a piece of the whole pie," he said.

Chatterton has been particularly busy with his duties over the past two years. He estimated attending games, meetings and varied events have filled 155 nights in two years. This winter alone he was out 60 nights.

Much of Chatterton's time has revolved around the enormous athletic fields "excavation." The massive project includes the construction of a new baseball field, the addition of four tennis courts and renovations to two others, a new football field closer to the high school, complete with stands, an electronic scoreboard, floodlights, a press box and additional parking.

The football field also paves the way for soccer and field hockey night games in the fall. The evening games enable more parents to attend who otherwise would be working during the time of a scheduled afternoon contest.

The project also includes an all-weather track, which should go a long way in attracting more athletes to the track program. Cohasset currently holds its "home" meets at Scituate High, but has been able to practice on the track.

Chatterton is known for the fund-raising he has done for the school and community. He believes in giving back to Cohasset, a town where he is well-known, having attended the high school as a youngster.

Chatterton's community work goes back to 1954 when, as a 13-year-old, he helped build the Barnes Field, the current home of Cohasset Little League.

The people and events he has been a part of over the years are displayed in more than 100 photographs he has pinned on a massive bulletin board in his office.

"It's fun seeing three generations," Chatterton said. "The guys I played with are grandfathers now and their kids are playing now."

From 1951-1996, there are few athletes who have worn the colors of Cohasset High Chatterton doesn't know. That goes hand-in-hand with being a people person.

Cohasset had no such problems versus Marshfield in its surprisingly easy 16-6 win last Friday. The Skippers put together a tight, offensive rush and controlled the play for the first half. Ekberg was pleased with Cohasset's overall ball control and passing in the Rams' zone. The Skippers' offense also did backed up its plays well, giving Marshfield very little opportunity to mount any serious attacks as Cohasset whipped off 35 shots.

Ken Leahy pumped in five goals and added three assists and Chris McKenna found the back of the net four times. Jamie Buick had a pair of goals and four assists while Dave Noble netted two.

The Skippers' 15-7 victory over Brookline last Wednesday didn't serve as much of a barometer as to how prepared Cohasset is for the upcoming tournament.

Cohasset controlled the offense the entire game and Ekberg was able to get 20 different players into the contest. Goaltender Ely Kahn played three periods and finished with nine, mainly routine saves.

Kahn should play a big part in the tournament for Cohasset. He rarely lets in a soft goal while his anticipation, quickness and ability to read where a shot is going to go is gives the Skippers a solid entity between the posts.

"Ely's one of the best in-goal goalies around," Ekberg said.

Leahy had another one of his strong games with four goals and two assists against Brookline. Buick was the Skippers' top point-getter, firing four goals and assisting on three others. Andy Collins finished with a pair of goals and an assist, while John Lax struck for one tally to go along with two assists.

Ekberg praised the play of Matt Belson, the Skippers' aggressive defenseman. Belson is currently playing his best lacrosse of the season and should be instrumental in Cohasset's success in the tourney.

The goal and assist he picked up in the Brookline game gave Belson a goal, assist or both in his four previous games heading into the Brookline victory.

"He's our most solid defenseman," Ekberg said.

Belson is unique because he is fast enough to run with the midfielders and strong enough to play with any opposing player on the field. Belson rarely gets beaten on faceoffs and is one of the Skippers' top players in moving the ball down the field and setting up the offensive players.

The Skippers play Brookline today to close out the regular season and begin the opening round of tournament play on Tuesday.

Season a huge success for girls to the natural skills Lordan already seems to have at such a young age, particularly the way she uses her body and stick to stop shots.

"Kelly has plenty of time to develop and she's already good now," Mundhenk said. "She's going to be a great goalie."

Cohasset was able to slow down the Green Dragons' offense and apply the offensive pressure for nearly the entire game. Meghan Connolly, Katie Devine and Kathleen Fitzsimmons all had two goals apiece in leading the Skippers' attack. Defenseman Maggie O'Connor and Jackie Kahn had a goal while Sarah Motley assisted on a tally.

Unfortunately, the Skippers had to cancel Tuesday's game against Martha's Vineyard because of the hard-hitting storm and Mundhenk's attempt to schedule a game against Falmouth Academy appeared doubtful as of Tuesday evening.

Although the season looks to be over, Mundhenk said many of the girls on the team expressed an interest in attending lacrosse camp and playing pick-up games during the summer.

At their age, the girls have nothing but time in front of them in improving their skills on the field.

Cohasset Maritime Museum to open for summer season

The Cohasset Historical Society's Maritime Museum, located on Elm Street in Cohasset Center, will open for the summer season, which runs from June 1 through September. The museum will be open every day except Monday, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. There is no charge for admission, and donations are welcome.

The Maritime Museum, a mid-18th-century ship chandlery built by Samuel Bates for his fishing fleet, today holds exhibits relating to the maritime history of this small New England seafaring town. From Cohasset's first settlement before 1700 to the close of the "Age of Sail" in the latter 1800s, the town's eyes were turned toward the sea, and its fortunes depended on its maritime endeavors. Fishing, shipbuilding and ownership of, or crewing aboard, large sailing merchant ships provided much of the town's wealth and gave employment to the majority of its young men.

Cohasset-based schooners, many of them built in town and owned by a number of the town's most prominent seafaring families, sustained a sizable cod and mackerel fishing fleet at Cohasset Harbor throughout the 19th century. The mackerel fleets reached their peak years just before the Civil War, with more than 50 large, two-masted schooners sailing from Cohasset each summer. Large vessels, including clipper ships, sailing out of Boston provided the opportunity for a number of Cohasset men to become shipmasters or captains of some of the nation's largest and fastest merchant vessels. The Maritime Museum recalls the days when the town's destiny was tied to the ocean, and to foreign ports in distant parts of the world.

Among the museum's exhibits are collections relating to the 19th-century fishing fleets: wood carving, foreign voyages, local volunteer lifesaving, shipwrecks and Minot's Ledge Lighthouse. Ship models show a number of types of 19th-century sailing vessels, from an early "pinkie" fishing schooner to a Donald McKay clipper in East Boston. Artifacts from the local mackerel fleets, memorabilia from voyages to distant ports, lifesaving awards and pieces from some of the many local shipwrecks may be seen. The story of the ill-fated first, and successful second Minot's Ledge Lighthouse is illustrated in the Maritime Museum.

The museum's second floor holds a group of collections of a general historical nature. Stone tools of early Native American tribes area on view, as well as early carpenters' and shoemakers' tools. The wares of a fisherman's general store, once located at Cohasset Harbor, may also be seen. Many unique artifacts and illustrations of local history are to be found at the Historical Society's Maritime Museum.

Pesky mosquitos will make a big comeback this year

The record snowfall this past winter assures an abundant supply of moisture for the present spring season. Unless the summer of 1996 is unusually dry, we can expect a huge mosquito population in our region.

It is of utmost importance that residents take measures to minimize the numbers of these insects. Although fortunately Eastern Equine Encephalitis, a serious disease carried by certain types of mosquitoes, is a rare visitor to our specific South Shore area, it nevertheless is always treated by the Commonwealth as a possibility, and its presence from time to time is a reality recognized by authorities of the Plymouth Mosquito Control Project (of which Cohasset is a member).

The Cohasset Mosquito Control Committee strongly urges citizens to initiate surveys of the area surrounding each house. Particular attention should be paid to objects such as old tires, bird baths, toy pails, gutters, etc., and surface areas where stagnant water may collect. It takes only a few days of such stagnation to permit hatching of adult mosquitoes from previously deposited eggs. Water in bird baths and wading pools should be changed at least once a week. If your area has a sizable expanse of stagnant water (e.g., a small pond) or even a depression in the ground which repeatedly retains small quantities of water for three days to a week, it is essential either to drain such areas or to apply a biological inhibitor, such as a preparation containing the bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis (Bti), which is harmless to humans and pets but which prevents development of adult mosquitoes. These inhibitors are available as powders, "dunks," or sprays in most garden supply or hardware stores.

Current information about mosquito control provided by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, the Audubon Society, and general medical media is available to Cohasset residents in a hang-pocket located in the entry area of Town Hall. For further information, you may call the Cohasset Board of Health at 383-9900, Ext. 121, leaving your name and telephone number so that a member of the Cohasset Mosquito Control Committee can call you personally.

Finally, there is the matter of pesticide usage. It is important to be aware that the majority of safety standards for pesticide use set by the U.S. Government are primarily based on tolerance levels for adults. Young children and aged seniors are often harmed at such dosage levels. We respectfully request that citizens intending to spray their yards with a pesticide or requesting such spraying by the Plymouth District, please notify neighbors sufficiently in advance so that proper precautions can be taken to protect families from the impact of spray drift. Plymouth District staff usually spray in the very early morning at 4 to 8 a.m. If neighbors know that spraying is to occur, windows maybe closed and pets kept indoors.

Coffee with the authors

Buttonwood Books & Toys will hold its spring Coffee with the Authors, Tuesday, June 4, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Chart House, Cohasset. Authors William Martin and Robert Perkins and Houghton Mifflin's gardening editor, Frances Tenenbaum, will speak and sign copies of their books.

Martin's book is a multigenerational family saga, "Annapolis"; Perkins, a PBS Arctic filmmaker, writes of journeys involving both body and spirit in "Talking to Angels."

Tanenbaum has edited several of the popular Taylor's guides for gardeners, including the new "Taylor's Guide to Seashore Gardening," and will talk of the challenges of both seaside gardening and collecting advice from gardening experts.

The cost of the event is $8 per person. To reserve a space, call 383-2665.

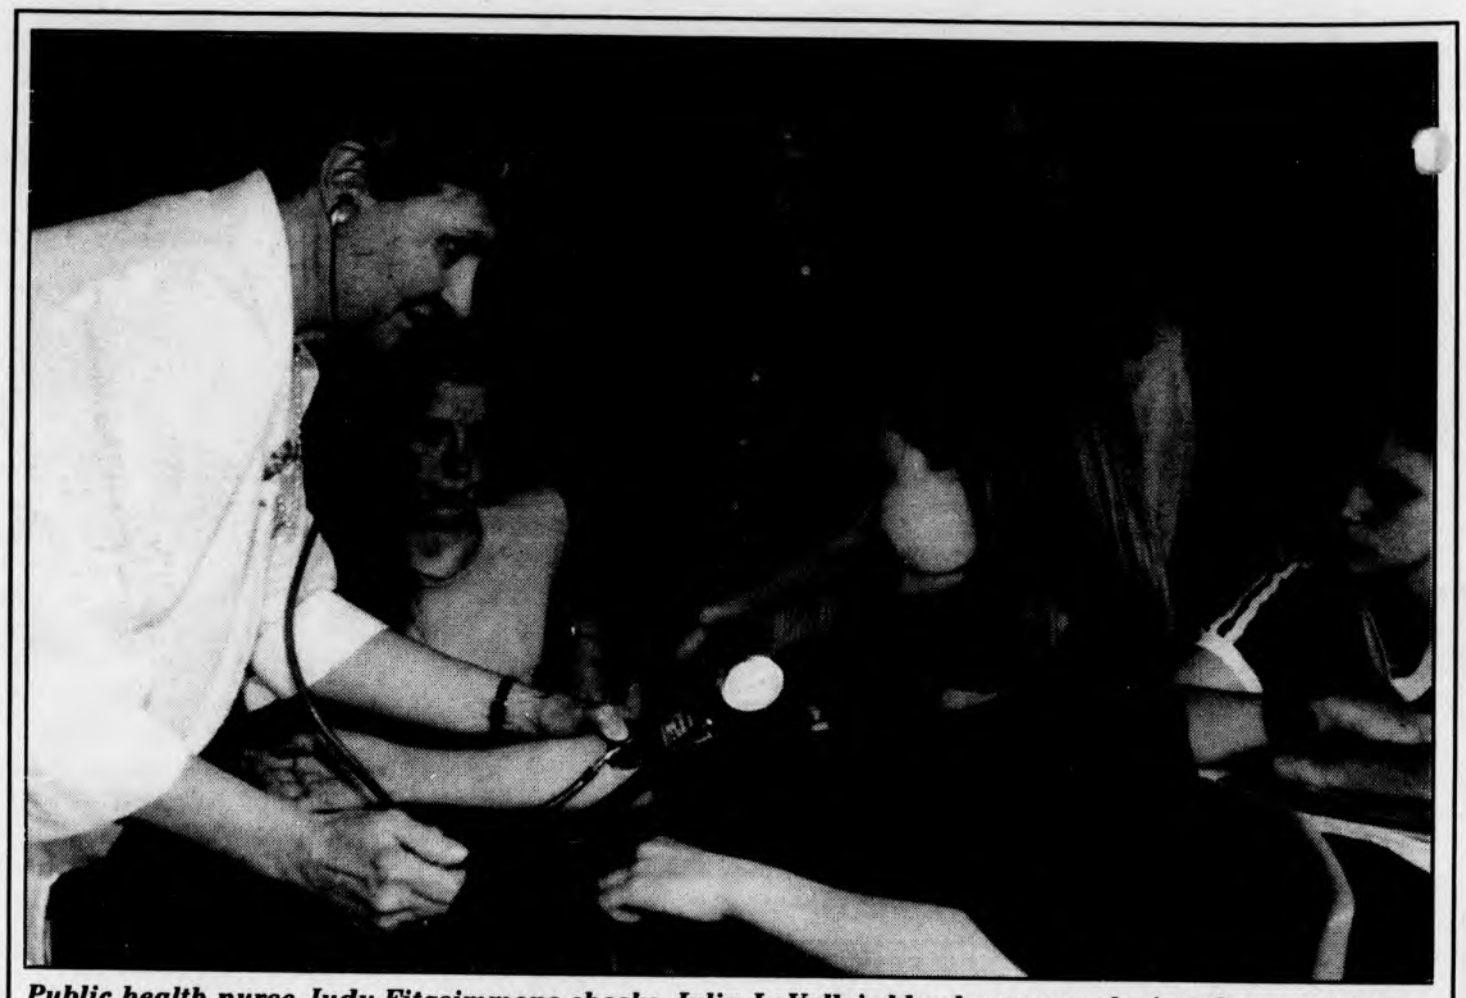
Mammography screening set

The Cohasset Social Service League is sponsoring the Mobile Diagnostic Services, Inc. mammography service on Saturday, June 1. Mammograms are performed by fully licensed female mammography technologists in a comfortable, private mobile coach. The films are read by board-certified radiologists, and results are provided to each woman and the physician of her choice.

To make an appointment, call the Cohasset Social Service League at 383-0771.



Public health nurse Judy Fitzsimmons checks Julia LoVallo's blood pressure during the recent townwide health fair sponsored by the Social Service League at Cohasset High School. The Social Service League is sponsoring the Mobile Diagnostic Services Inc. mammography service on June 1. Call the league at 383-0771 to make an appointment.

Social Service League names new officers

The Social Service League of Cohasset held it annual meeting and luncheon May 7 at Walton Rodgers' Hall, St. Stephen's Church. Outgoing president Annette Sawchuk announced the new officers and board of directors: president, Jane Russell; vice president, Regina Schultz; treasurer, Eleanor Smith; assistant treasurer, Denise Desmond; secretary, Carol Riley; personnel, Mary Hartwell.

Name to the board of directors were: Helen Hooper, Jeff Steele, Merle Graham (nursing chairman), Lynne Layman and Margie Steele (family service co-chairmen), Connie Noon, Peg Murphy, Beth Jordan, Motoko Deane, Barbara Donohue, Annette Sawchuk.

New members of the League are: Chris Camacho, Donna O'Donnell, Gail Stevens, Peg Schroeder, Leslie Lemaire and Annette Casey.

Mary Robinson presented a slide program on the "Winslow Homer Retrospective" currently on exhibit at Boston's Museum of Fine Art. She has been associated with the museum for 25 years. The presentation was followed by a buffet luncheon for about 90 SSL volunteers and members of the community.

Buy ASP 'stock'!

Cohasset residents are invited to take part in this year's Appalachia Service Project. A townwide mailing outlined "stock options" at $20 a share, with guaranteed returns of postcards, letters, newsletters, photos and the satisfaction of joining the effort. Proceeds from the sale of 'stock' will be used for construction materials, transportation and room and board.

Tax-deductible contributions may be sent, payable to SSC Youth Group, to Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., Cohasset 02025. For further information, call Gary Ritts (383-0345), Ami Argus (383-9325) or Pam DeLorenzo (383-6904).

ASP will wash your car

Appalachia Service Project volunteers are planning two car washes on Saturdays, May 25 and June 1, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Leo Fiori's Exxon Station at the corner of Beechwood Street and Route 3A. A donation of $5 per car is requested.

All proceeds will benefit the group's service project planned for this summer, when 84 Cohasset High School students and adult advisers will travel to Appalachia to repair homes for needy families.

Teen Center to host gym night at Cohasset High

On Friday, May 24, the Teen Center will hold an open gym night at Cohasset High School from 6 to 9 p.m. Any sixth- to ninth-graders interested in shooting hoops or playing volleyball and other indoor games are welcome to join in the fun.

The Teen Center will be open Saturday, May 25, from 7 to 10 p.m.

Get your Harborfest buttons at 3 N. Main St.

Harborfest buttons are on sale at Harborfest headquarters, 3 S. Main Street. The purchase of a button entitles the owner to $1 off the pancake breakfast, $2 off a Gospel program ticket and $1 discount at the Chowder Festival.

Those who buy buttons will also be entered in the Harborfest raffle. Prizes include a $500 savings bond, Red Sox and Bruins tickets, dinner for two at the Chart House, a Minot's Ledge sweatshirt and T-shirt and three mystery prizes. The drawing will take place June 3.

Join Harborfest parade!

The annual Harborfest Parade will take place on Sunday, June 16. The parade signifies the link between Cohasset Harbor and the Town Common as residents "Bless the Fleet" and parade to the Common for the annual Chowder Festival, which will culminate the Harborfest celebration.

The theme for this year's parade is "Cohasset's Maritime Heritage," and cash prizes for this year's floats are $250 for first place; $150, second place; and $75 for third place, with two special prizes of $50 each.

Jim Lagrotteria and Bob Martin of the Harborfest Committee have developed a float kit for anyone interested in using a pickup truck as a float vehicle. Through the generosity of Hingham Lumber Co., most framework materials will be provided.

Simple floats are the order of the day for the Norman Rockwell-style parade, and may be fabricated in one day with little or no expense and unlimited imagination. Harborfest celebrates the community, and the event is enhanced by the participation of the town's many organizations and neighborhood associations.

Anyone wishing to participate is asked to call Jim at 383-9385 or Bob at 383-0648.

Black Rock beach cleanup is this Saturday

There will be a clean-up day at Black Rock Beach on Saturday, May 25, from 9 a.m. to noon. Garbage bags and refreshments will be provided. Volunteers are asked to bring gloves.

All are welcome to participate in cleaning up the beach in preparation for the summer. For further information, call 383-0232.

Little League dance planned for June 1

The annual Little League Dance will be held Saturday, June 1, from 7 p.m. to midnight at Kimball's By The Sea. Music will be provided by the Grateful Dads, and there will be silent auction items and hourly drawings for sports tickets and donated items. Tickets will also be sold for a weekend on Nantucket.

This year marks Cohasset Little League's 44th anniversary.

Tickets are $50 per couple and may be obtained by calling Linda Bolster at 383-6148. Anyone interested in making a donation to the silent auction is asked to call Ginger Byrne at 383-2705.

Call for crew members

Former crew members of the USS Longbeach (CGN-9, AK-9, PF-34, all pre comm. crew members and all Marine detachments personnel are being sought for a 1996 reunion to be held Sept. 11-15 in the Boston area.

For information, contact Don Shade, P.O. Box 69, Clymer, N.Y. 14724-0069; telephone: (716) 355-6661.

Stress management support

Cohasset Community Church, a new evangelical church, is hosting a Stress Management Support Group on Fridays from 7 to 8 p.m. in Cohasset Town Hall's small meeting room. The study will be led by the church's pastor, the Rev. Robert Hurlbut. All are welcome.

The group is involved in a six-week practical study of "Stress Management: Finding the Balance." The study will allow participants to learn about stress and its effects and how to deal with stressful situations.

For further information, call the church at 383-9761.

Hingham Farmers Market is open on Saturdays

Hingham Farmers Market is open for its 19th season. The hours of the market, located on Station Street between North and Water streets, are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays through June 15. From that time, the market will also be open Wednesdays until the last Saturday in October,

The market features locally grown produce from gardeners and growers from the area and will accept Farmers Market coupons as they become available. The opening will feature plants, including bedding, herbs, perennials, tomato and other vegetables. There will also be a limited amount of rhubarb, asparagus and lettuce, as well as homemade jams, baked goods and honey.

Growers may call Dave Sturgis at 749-4643 for selling information.

Artistry aids homeless animals

Renowned South Shore portrait painter Laurie M. Borden and Dominick Micarelli, owner of Artist's Son Gallery of Cohasset, are a husband and wife team that shares a love of art and a willingness to share their talents to help others.

Borden, who specializes in portraying the joys of childhood and the wonder of animals, has donated to All Paws Rescue one of her original oil on canvas paintings, "Young Friends," and Micarelli has created framing for the work of art.

The painting, which captures the sweetness of a child and her kitten, and is valued at $1,200, will be the prize in a benefit drawing on Sunday, June 2, at 6:30 p.m. at Artist's Son Gallery, Jonathan Livingston Square, Cohasset.

Coupons for the drawing cost $2 each or three for $5 and may be purchased during business hours at Artist's Son Gallery, where the painting is on display; at the All Paws Rescue booth at the Hingham Rotary Arts & Craft show at Hingham Harbor, Saturday, June 1 (raindate is June 2); or by calling All Paws Rescue at 749-0968.

The Grand Tour

with Ginger Ferenz 383-2863

We were invited by Richard Pierce of One Jerusalem Rd. to photograph his magnificent beds of flowering tulips. As you walk down the driveway to reach the rear yard where the beds are located, you are welcomed by the sounds of cardinals sitting in the pink dogwood and flowering crab apple trees. Pink and purple lilacs as well as red maple dot the perimeter as the ground slopes downward where Mr. Pierce has landscaped the property with four, rectangular rose beds in the center bordered on each corner with an L-shaped bed filled with pink, red, yellow, and white tulips. A lean-to, glass garden house lets the visitor know a busy gardener lives and works here while the gentle sound of melodious wind chimes fills the springtime air. Be sure to take a stroll by to enjoy this beautiful garden sanctuary.

Cohasset residents celebrate Herb Day

By THOMAS De SANTES
Special to the Mariner

On May 19, Cohasset celebrated "Herb Day" at Government Island (for photos see page 18).

Under warm, sunny skies, several hundred people gathered along Cohasset Harbor at Bancroft Hall in the Lightkeepers Residence to honor two of the town's prominent men responsible for the preservation of Cohasset Harbor and its rich heritage — Herb Jason and Herb Towle.

History echoes through every corner of Cohasset so preserving traditions has become the crusade of men like the two "Herbs" being honored.

Herb Jason has been an active voice in keeping Cohasset's maritime heritage alive. He has represented the commercial fisherman on the Harbor Study Committee and been the strong and skilled right arm of the Cohasset Historical Commission in the restoration of the Minot Light replica.

Herb Towle has also been instrumental in maintaining the sailing traditions of the town by founding the Sailing Club. He is also a founder of the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Corporation, which has preserved the Minot Ledge Lighthouse Keepers' Residence and has made Bancroft Hall available free of charge as a meeting place for community service organizations.

An antique auto exhibit, including classic Fords, Oldsmobiles and Chevrolets from all eras, was part of the festivities, along with Dan Anderson's famous New England Clam Chowder.

Highlighting the day, State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray presented Herb Jason and Herb Towle each with three honorary proclamations: one from the Massachusetts State Senate, one from the Governor on behalf of the state, and another from the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Each man was recognized for his selfless dedication to Cohasset Harbor and the town.

Murray, a personal friend of Herb Towle, recalled stories of pumping gas at Towle's gas station when she was younger.

She also cited Jason's work with Toys for Tots and other charitable fundraisers in which he has been involved.

Family and friends of Jason, including his daughter, son-in-law and brother, addressed the crowd, attesting to his remarkable accomplishments over his 82 years. In addition, he was presented with the Lifetime Achievement Award by the Lobsterman's Fishermen Association for his work in the industry.

Memorial Day exercises are Monday

Former POW Raymond Buckley will be the keynote speaker for Cohasset Memorial Day exercises Monday (May 27).

The annual Memorial Day parade steps of from the South Shore Music Circus parking lot at 10:30 a m. and will proceed down Sohier Street to North Main Street to Central Cemetery, then to Cohasset Common and then to Veterans Memorial Park in the harbor.

The parade and exercises are sponsored by the George H. Mealy American Legion Post #118 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #9163.

All veterans are invited to participate and should report to the Legion Hall, 98 Summer St., at 8 a.m. The contingent will march to the library to board buses for veterans grave-side services.

Oversight may not stop override

Vote clears the first hurdle

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

The House Committee on Local Affairs recommended favorable action on a bill validating the school override vote taken at the April 6 town election.

At the election, residents voted 1574 to 1494 in favor of a Prop. 2-1/2 debt exclusion override that will allow Cohasset to build a new $9.8 million elementary school.

The committee decided at a State House hearing Wednesday that despite Cohasset's oversight in posting the ballot question on the town warrant, voters were adequately informed about the school ballot question prior to the election through advertisements, mailings and fliers from both supporters and opponents of the project, as well as extensive coverage of the issue in local newspapers.

The posting oversight came to light less than two weeks ago, when the town's bond counsel notified selectmen that legislation validating the recent school vote before $9.8 million in bonds for the project could be issued.

According to Roger P. Vacco of Palmer & Dodge LLP, while the ballot question was reported in local newspapers and included on a specimen ballot posted in the town clerk's office and at the polling place, there was no mention of the Prop. 2-1/2 exemption ballot question in the election warrant as required by law. Vacco said his firm could not approve the bonds

Soldiers won't be forgotten

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

The flags of the 50 states fluttered in the cool spring breeze, as Raymond Buckley, a former prisoner of war, made his remarks at Cohasset's Memorial Day observances Monday.

He reminded the hundreds of local citizens who joined the veterans, scouting groups, and Deer Hill School band at Veterans Memorial Park in the harbor that those being honored said 'yes' when their country called.

'To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.'

— John McCrae,
'In Flanders Fields,' 1915.

"They ended up paying a terrible price for their patriotism," Buckley said. "Because they fought, we are free. They purchased for us the freedom that we all enjoy today."

Buckley, a veteran of World War II, recalled seeing veterans of the Civil War at Memorial Day observances when he was a boy.

"But do not forget that with freedom comes responsibility and accountability to those who paid the

Hart suspends Deer Hill school principal

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

In what School Committee Chairman Ralph Kidder described as an "extremely harsh" penalty, the Deer Hill School principal has been suspended for 10 days without pay for allegedly striking a student at the school two weeks ago.

Following an investigation during which School Supt. Stephen Hart talked with school staff and children who witnessed the incident — Hart decided to suspend school principal Donna Hartlage until June 10 when she will resume her duties, Hart said.

When questioned by Det. Rick Grassie, who investigated the incident following a report from a friend of the alleged victim, a fourth-grader, who came to the station after school — Hartlage denied hitting anyone.

The incident occurred during a picture-taking session May 16 in front of the school.

Grassie said this week police do not intend to pursue the matter at this time.

See page 12

Cohasset's Week

Ten minutes for walk-ins

Selectmen will set aside 10 minutes at 8 p.m. on their meeting nights to address any concerns from members of the public who have issues that are not on the agenda.

If the matter cannot be handled briefly, it will be placed on a future agenda, selectmen said.

Boards have openings

There is a vacancy on the mosquito control committee, the personnel committee and the zoning board of appeals needs an associate member. Interested citizens should call the selectmen's office at 383-9900.

Compost bins available

Due to efforts of the Cohasset Recycling Committee, a shipment of 65 composting containers have arrived at the Cohasset Transfer Station and are available for purchase by townspeople at a very good price due to a grant from the state Department of Environmental Protection, said Jack Hubbard of the recycling committee.

There are two styles of containers, the Earth Machine and the Brave New World Composter. The large unit is $30 and the other is priced at $20.

These are similar to the composting containers which were made available to the town some years ago which have worked very well.

The new containers will be on sale at the transfer station. Payment must be by check made out to the town of Cohasset.

Brush chipping is slated

The D.P.W. will sponsor a 'Household Brush Chipping Weekend" at the Recycling Transfer Facility from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., June 8 & 9, Supt. Harold W. Litchfield said.

No commercial brush or hedge trimmings will be accepted. Brush can be any length but pieces only up to 12 inches in diameter will be accepted.

A familiar sight

A sure sign that spring is here was the annual tent raising at the South Shore Music Circus last week. It takes two days and work crew o 18 to complete the undertaking of raising the tent over the 2,300 seat theater. Ushering in its 48th season, the Music Circus is one of only a few remaining summer tent theaters in the country.

Students will do odd jobs

The Social Service League of Cohasset has compiled a list of Cohasset High School students who will do odd jobs around residents' homes including yard clean up, pet sitting, plant watering, weeding, babysitting, car care, and window washing. Many of the students can drive. The rates are reasonable. For names and phone numbers of students, call The Job Bank at 383-0771.

...e right idea at the right time ...for 50 years

My father used to say: "It wasn't so much that I invested with Fidelity back then. It was that I stayed with Fidelity."

A generation ago, my father had the right idea–to invest with a young Boston company that gave him the opportunities he needed to make the most of his money. Today, I have the chance to build on what he started.

In 50 years, Fidelity Investments® has grown from a single mutual fund to a world leader in financial services. But there's a lot my father would still recognize about Fidelity. Like their investment expertise. And the way they've continually offered new ways to manage money. Discount brokerage services. Workplace retirement plans. Even investment services provided through other financial institutions.

Over the years, Fidelity worked for my father. Now it's time to put Fidelity to work for me and my kids.

Revitalization of Cohasset Village is topic at forum

Decorative lights suggested

By DONNA J. FITZGERALD
Special to the Mariner

"We need to come up with a master plan," explained Dean Rizzo, vice chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, at the May 22 village forum at the Lightkeeper's House to further explore the revitalization of Cohasset Village.

About 17 interested merchants, residents and town officials brainstormed during the meeting to discuss short-term, mid-range and long-range goals.

"The merchants have to get to know one another," said Rizzo. "There is a lack of spirit, but not as bad as three months ago.

"We have to be a place where stores want to remain; and when a business leaves, be able to fill it right away," he explained. "We have to advertise the uniqueness of the village and make it a place where people will want to come and spend the day."

"We want to be ready for them when these things start happening," said Selectmen Chairman Merle Brown. "There are things we can do on a smaller scale to create a different atmosphere.

"The focus should be on sidewalks, parking, and lighting. This can be done with the cooperation between landlords and businesses."

"With the new train coming to town, we should concentrate on attracting people to the shopping area. More traffic signs on Route 3A are needed. Decorative lights that can be subsidized by private citizens and donations from garden supply places on Route 3A should be obtained," Brown said.

Selectman Mike Sullivan said, "We need to look at this as a major project and whether we should introduce it at town meeting in October. It will be difficult to do piecemeal."

The need for granite or asphalt curbing was also discussed. Adding some brick work to the store fronts would improve the outward appearance and attract more shoppers. Creating additional parking that would not interfere with the traffic flow is essential in enticing visitors to the village. It was suggested to seek the help of Jim Sandell, local architect, with this project.

"We need to provide handicap accessibility and a path for bicyclists," Sullivan said. "We should have a plan to bring these things before town meeting."

Joe McElroy, president of the Cohasset Lightkeeper's Corporation, said, "We have to know what type of a village do we want; what type of town do we want to live in? I think it will be negative in terms of funding in the fall," McElroy explained. "We have to give them a good idea of what we want this community to look like and provide them with a detailed master plan."

"We are trying to re-energize it, not necessarily change it," Sullivan said. "We can't just have speciality shops, and if people can't park in front of the stores, then they won't bother to shop."

"We should take a square at a time and just do sidewalks and lighting."

For instance, Hingham has installed decorative lighting which has enhanced the esthetic value of the town and made it a busy place at night, he said.

"Maybe we can get a common theme so stores will stay open at night," Rizzo said. "We have to be creative in fund-raising for investing in Cohasset Village and generate interest and excitement."

"It has been my observation since living here more than 12 years, that we need to pick some theme to work around to develop some ambiance," said Connie Afshar, an interested resident. "We need the support of the taxpayer and should be asking them what they want their town to look like," she said. "The more the people are interested and involved, the more they will offer their opinions."

Jackie Dormitzer, chairman of the Village Renaissance Committee, expressed the importance of creating an attractive appearance that would invite people to the village. She stressed the fact that decorative lighting and adequate parking were crucial. For instance, the Town of Hingham dramatically improved the esthetic value when they installed decorative lighting giving them a unique and quaint look. Jackie explained further how the beautification process can be done gradually and economically feasible with the help and cooperation of all the townspeople and businesses.

"What retailer would choose Cohasset Village over going to Route 3A? The village is evolving, but not toward retail," Sullivan said. "We should have an upscale type of gift shop and offer a bed and breakfast stop for a Boston or Cape run on the new train."

Domenic Micarelli, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said, "The fact that the town government is collaborating with the Chamber of Commerce can make a huge difference. We need a game plan to keep the momentum going and keep the townspeople interested."

"It still comes down to the fact that we need to start off with a master plan," confirmed Dean Rizzo. "We need to find available funds; how the E.O.C.D. can help with the planning; talk to the Design Review Committee, and discuss the plans with other involved committees such as the Greenbush Committee and the Planning Board," he stated.

The June issue of the Mariner will feature a questionnaire where all residents, merchants and landlords will have their input on suggestions they feel will achieve the beautification of Cohasset Village. Questions asking what people think is the most important areas of focus; how to initiate better marketing tools; how to involve Route 3A businesses in cooperating with advertising, downtown traffic flow, sidewalks, parking, street lighting, etc., will hope to be answered for the next meeting on Wednesday, June 26, at the Lightkeeper's House on Governor's Island.

Hingham Farmers Market is open on Saturdays

Hingham Farmers Market is open for its 19th season. The hours of the market, located on Station Street between North and Water streets, are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays through June 15. From that time, the market will also be open Wednesdays until the last Saturday in October,

The market features locally grown produce from gardeners and growers from the area and will accept Farmers Market coupons as they become available. The opening will feature plants, including bedding, herbs, perennials, tomato and other vegetables. There will also be a limited amount of rhubarb, asparagus and lettuce, as well as homemade jams, baked goods and honey.

Growers may call Dave Sturgis at 749-4643 for selling

Cohasset Community Blood Drive is June 5

Don't forget the Cohasset Community Blood Drive, Wednesday, June 5, from 2 to 7 p.m. at First Unitarian Parish House, 23 North Main St. For more information or to schedule an appointment, call Kevin O'Connor at 383-1290.

What a week the Nussdorfers and the Froios had recently! On May 15, Ginni and John celebrated their third wedding anniversary. On May 17, John became a commissioned officer in the Navy, a ceremony that took place on the Constitution. John graduated from Boston University Medical School May 19, and Ginni graduated May 26 from Suffolk University, where she earned her master's degree in marketing.

On June 1, Ginni and John will be moving to Bethesda, Md., where John will start his medical residency at National Naval Hospital. We certainly do applaud you two, and wish you God speed on your latest ventures. You both are wished continued luck and success. Keep in touch and let us know your news!

Congratulations go to Jen McAuliffe, who is now a home health aide, certified through the Red Cross. Jen graduated last week — we cannot imagine anyone better to take care of an ailing person. When Jen smiles, it makes you feel better! Best of luck in your new occupation, Jen!

If you had your car washed at Leo Fiori's Exxon station last Saturday, you know what a good job Appalachia Service Project volunteers did. If you didn't, then this Saturday is your lucky day. On June 1, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Leo Fiori's, located at the corner of Beechwood Street and Route 3A, another car wash will be held. A donation of $5 per car is requested. All proceeds will benefit the 1996 ASP this summer, when 84 CHS students and adult advisers will travel to Appalachia to repair homes for needy families.

ASP is offering a "stocks" program, at $20 a share, with guaranteed returns of postcards, letters, newsletters, photos and, above all, the satisfaction of joining its community effort. Proceeds from the sale of "stock" will be used for construction materials, transportation and room and board.

If you are interested in becoming an "investor," call Gary Ritts (383-0345), Ami Argus (383-9325) or Pam DeLorenzo (383-6904) for further information.

We hope Millard MacNeill is feeling better and that he will be home from South Shore Hospital by the time he reads this!

Do you have your Harborfest button yet? For only $2, your ticket will entitle you to participate in a raffle ($500 savings bond, two Red Sox tickets, two Bruins tickets, dinner for two at Chart House, Minot's Ledge sweatshirt and T-shirt, and three mystery surprises, and receive a $1 discount off the pancake breakfast, $2 off the Gospel program and a $1 discount off the Chowder Festival. The drawing will take place June 3. Buttons are on sale at Harborfest Headquarters, 3 South Main St.

Dawn D'Alelio has her blood pressure read by Red Cross technician Nazara Armas before she gave blood during the Cohasset blood drive last winter. The next blood drive is June 5.

Congrats to the CHS baseball team, who are in the Division III South Sectionals for the first time in 22 years. They are a young team with are a really good future, and we applaud them for all their baseball prowess. Keep an eye on them and go to their games if you can. They would appreciate your support!

Don't forget this Saturday is the Little League dance, to be held at Kimballs By-the-Sea from 7 p.m. to midnight. There will be a silent auction and hourly drawings for sports tickets and donated items. Tickets will also be sold for a weekend on Nantucket. The cost of the event is $50 per couple. Call Linda Bolster at 383-6148 to obtain yours! Have fun!

McCormack-Donahue

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas P. McCormack of Mattapoisett announce the engagement of their daughter, Maureen Crowley McCormack, to Timothy Donahue Chamberlain of Boston, the son of Thomas and Lesley Chamberlain of Cohasset.

A July wedding is planned.

Coffee with the authors, June 4

Buttonwood Books & Toys will hold its spring Coffee with the Authors, Tuesday, June 4, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Chart House, Cohasset. Authors William Martin and Robert Perkins and Houghton Mifflin's gardening editor, Frances Tenenbaum, will speak and sign copies of their books.

Martin's book is a multigenerational family saga, "Annapolis"; Perkins, a PBS Arctic filmmaker, writes of journeys involving both body and spirit in "Talking to Angels."

Tanenbaum has edited several of the popular Taylor's guides for gardeners, including the new "Taylor's Guide to Seashore Gardening," and will talk of the challenges of both seaside gardening and collecting advice from gardening experts.

The cost of the event is $8 per person. To reserve a space, call 383-2665.

Don't cut PE

Local physical education teachers are rightly concerned that a plan to eliminate state requirements that all children take PE could eventually spell the end of the valuable subject.

Yes, it is a subject — like math, history or English.

It may not be as academically oriented as those are — although it certainly could and does have in some cases an academic component — but it is every bit as important.

When physical education is well taught with a structured curriculum, it can provide the invaluable lesson that the mind and body are not separate.

Anyone who's ever had a health problem of any kind knows that.

We all like to think that the body is just along for the ride. We like to take our bodies for granted — and so we use and abuse them.

But a good bout with the flu — as was the case with Gov. Weld recently — can serve as a reminder that our bodies and how we feel are critical. And luckily for most, feeling bad is just a passing thing.

However, without sound physical education and the life skills that can be learned there — too many of our children will be doomed to poor health that will affect every aspect of their lives.

Unfortunately, with too many stressed-out parents and fast-food dinners, our kids may not be learning good health practices at home.

On the surface, state Board of Education Commissioner Robert V. Antonucci's plan sounds innocuous enough: remove the state requirement and let the individual school districts decide how much, if any, physical education should be taught. The reason behind the plan is the state's three-year-old Education Reform Law which requires schools to spend more time on academics.

We agree with local educators, that what can be cut often is. Making PE an option could spell its demise the next time budget cuts come to town.

Unfortunately there is no S.A.T. for student physical fitness that school districts can hold up to show that their student body is above the state or national averages, but there ought to be.

"We need to do a better job of emphasizing fitness and help students form good fitness habits for the rest of their lives," says Michael Gill, Cohasset school health education director.

Eliminating state mandates for physical education is a strike against our children's future.

Please join us in telling state Sen. Robert Hedlund and state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray to send a message to Mr. Antonucci that cutting PE is a bad idea.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Heartfelt thanks to all who helped

To the Editor:

It was an impressive network of people in this Cohasset community who looked out for our son, when he was injured last Wednesday near the Barnes Field. We want to thank Hugh and Marcia Morgan for taking care to secure medical attention for Ben when he cut his head and for calling us to let us know.

A sincere thank you also to veteran Cohasset fireman and EMT, Matt Marr, who responded to the call even though off duty and EMT and call fireman Jeff Pratt. And finally our thanks to the Cohasset firemen, ambulance and police crew, who also responded so quickly.

It is comforting to know that such a caring and responsive network exists and works to protect our children. After four stitches, Ben's doing fine and promises never to play in the sand pits again. Thank you.

Hedlund goes online with Internet

Sen. Robert L. Hedlund (R-Weymouth) has entered the age of the Internet, establishing his own web site, which will allow his constituents to take a look at what is going on in the state Senate and throughout the South Shore via their personal computers.

People who log onto HTTP://www.gls.net/-hedlund will learn what bills are before the committees that Hedlund serves. There will also be a link which updates legislation sponsored by the senator. Information on frequently asked questions will be available for interested constituents as well as a link outlining upcoming events both at the State House and in the district.

"This web site will broaden access to my office and open up an entirely new medium for me to communicate with South Shore constituents," Hedlund stated.

Besides the information on the web site, constituents will be able to E-Mail Hedlund with their questions and concerns.

For those wishing to contact Sen. Hedlund via computer, the E-Mail address is Hedlund@gis.net.

"I am still available by telephone (722-1646), which I still believe is an easier means of access!" Hedlund said.

The Music Circus is optional - regular playground activities will continue for those who do not attend. Please see Kristin regarding pick-up and drop-off routine for rain days. Programs are subject to change by S.S.M.C.

Band Concerts:

During the past five seasons, concert funding has been provided through the generosity of the South Shore Playhouse Associates Inc. Each June, the Board of Directors of the South Shore Music Circus takes under consideration the request of the recreation commission for concert funding, hence, certainty of concerts are not absolute until mid-June, each season. The SSMC donation is matched by a grant from the American Federation of Musicians, N.Y.C.

Saturday, June 15, 2 p.m. – Frank's Big Band.
*Tuesday, July 23, 7:30 p.m.
*Tuesday, Aug. 6, 7:30 p.m.
*Performing will be the 30-piece South Shore Concert Band under the direction of Mr. Richard P. Whitmarsh.

Concerts are held on the Cohasset Common, are free of charge and the public is cordially invited. It is a good idea to bring either lawn chairs or blankets to sit on, and from time to time, insect repellent is a good item to have available.

Outdoor Golf Lessons

The Cohasset and Scituate Recreation Departments will co-sponsor outdoor golf lessons for beginner and intermediate levels, throughout the spring and summer months. The lessons will be taught by Cohasset Golf Club's assistant pro, Mr. Rich Altham.

Sessions will begin at various times throughout May, June and July and are five weeks in duration, meeting one hour weekly from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. and again from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. Also, morning classes are available Wednesdays at 10 and 11 a.m. during May through August. The fee for this program is $65 per person for the five-week session.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791, or the Scituate Recreation Department at 545-8738. Should you need to borrow clubs to participate in lessons, please indicate this at the time of registration. All classes will be held at the Jenkins School Field, Scituate.

Dog Obedience Classes:

The Cohasset Recreation Department will offer continuously, throughout the summer, dog obedience classes taught by Mrs. Laurie Cleveland. Classes will be held Tuesday evenings, on the Town Common, Cohasset.

For both the beginner class and the intermediate/advanced class, dog owners are required to have their dogs equipped with a humane choke chain. The proper size is determined by measuring the dog's neck and adding 4". Absolutely no spike collars.

The beginner class will teach basic obedience and responsible ownership to novice pet owners. Helpful hints on ownership, voice directions, basic commands and exercises beneficial to those thinking about eventually showing their dog will be included. The intermediate/advanced class is designed for dogs that have completed the recreation department beginner class. For all classes the fee is $48 for the eight-week, one-hour per week program.

To register for the next available session, please call the recreation office at 383-6791. A new session will begin approximately every eight weeks. Classes are limited in size, and participants will be accepted on a first call, first enrolled basis. Classes meet on a year-round basis, indoors during the fall and winter months.

Youth Tennis:

Youth tennis will begin Monday, July 1, and continue for seven weeks, through Aug. 16. Youth tennis registrations will be held, starting Monday, June 17, and continue throughout that week, as follows: Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to noon and again 1 to 3 p.m.; and Thursday evening, from 5 to 7 p.m. The program is offered for children age 7 through 18 years of age. The program is designed on a Monday/Wednesday or Tuesday/Thursday schedule. The fee for the one seven-week session of instruction, two days per week, is $44. $10-discounts are available for additional children in a family.

Lessons for beginners, intermediates and advanced players are offered. Fridays are special clinic or tournament days.

Rain days: If it rains before 9 a.m., all tennis classes will be cancelled for that day.

Nelta Tournament

The Nelta Tournament will be held Friday, Aug. 2. More information will be forthcoming through the tennis classes. Registration for this event will be done through the youth tennis classes.

If interested, please register through the recreation department office the week of June 17 at the designated times and dates listed above. Classes will begin Monday, July 1.

Adult Tennis

The recreation department will offer tennis classes for beginner and intermediate tennis players, continuously throughout the summer on various evenings. The classes are one hour long and a session is five weeks in duration. New sessions will begin approximately every five weeks.

Beginner classes meet various evenings from 6 to 7 p.m., and the intermediate classes will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. Advanced (tournament level instruction) classes meet Thursday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m., and advanced beginner will meet from 7 to 8 p.m., Thursdays. Classes will be limited in size. Additional classes will be formed should demand dictate. All classes will meet at the recreation commission tennis courts at the top of Norfolk Road, next to Miliken Field.

To register, please call the recreation department office at 383-6791. The fee for the five-week program is $45 per person. Payable by check to the "Town of Cohasset." Each participant will need a racquet. Classes do not meet if weather is inclement, and should you be in doubt, due to weather conditions, please call the recreation office prior to class time.

Oversight may not stop school override without further legislative action.

With a June 3 deadline to apply for a 60 percent state reimbursement of the school project, town officials acted quickly asking both state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, and state Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, to request that the governor file legislation on behalf of Cohasset.

About 50 Cohasset residents and town officials turned out for the three-hour hearing and more than a dozen testified.

Several proponents brought along signs that were posted and fliers sent out to residents prior to the election. Town counsel Paul DeRensis supplied the committee with a packet of several local newspaper articles on the school issue and override vote.

Selectman Michael Sullivan explained a possible reason for the omission of the question on the warrant was an effort made by the board to include the school vote on the general election ballot in order to avoid the expense of a separate override election. But Sullivan also noted that at 62 percent, the election had the highest voter turn out of any town election in 10 years.

The school committee too, stressed the belief that the election was well publicized and voters well informed.

"People came out and voted in good faith in favor of the new school. I'd hate to see the democratic process overturned at this point," said School Committee member Maureen Jerz.

Opponents of the school building project took advantage of the posting snafu seizing an opportunity to air some of their concerns about the project and push for another referendum on the issue.

"We urge you to return this question to the taxpayers," said Alexander Koines, a member of Cohasset's Concerned Taxpayers group. Koines brought with him a petition signed by 512 residents over Memorial Day weekend seeking another chance to vote on the school issue. Koines said with only five days between the town meeting vote on the school article and the election for the override, there was not sufficient time for voters to be informed on the issue.

Fellow member Leonora Jenkins agreed and said the override voted should not be validated because it was illegal, unfair and improper. Jenkins said voters were confused on the issue and maintained that while the school override vote was reported in local papers, that Cohasset residents do not have time to read those papers and subscribe instead to newspapers like the Boston Globe and the New York Times.

When questioned by committee member Rep. Paul Demakis, D-Boston, Jenkins said she did not know about the posting oversight until selectmen heard it from the bond counsel.

When the Committee Chairman Marie Parente polled the assembled group, only two said they knew about the posting problem prior to the election.

Demakis acknowledged that the margin of votes was narrow in the election but with a 62 percent turn-out and only two people in the room aware that there was no posting concluded that the outcome of the election was not affected in any significant way.

Committee Vice Chairman Janet O'Brien agreed.

"While this is a very heated issue, regardless of the defect of notice people had information prior to the election. When they entered the ballot booth, if they didn't vote on the question, they didn't want to," she said, adding "the defect of notice did not materially affect the knowledge of the voters of the town."

And while the vote was unanimous, other committee members cautioned Cohasset officials to make sure this does not occur again.

Murray also criticized town officials for the oversight.

With a favorable vote from the committee on local affairs a good part of that legislative action is underway. Committee Chairman Marie Parente noted however that there are still several steps in this legislative process before the bill is passed.

"Picture this bill on a conveyer belt, moving toward enactment," said Parente noting that the legislation must go through three readings in both the house and senate and pass by a 2/3 vote before it is enacted. Whether that can be done in time for the town to meet the state reimbursement application deadline remains to be seen.

"We're doing everything we can here to get this through," Murray said.

Hart suspends principal

Police have not heard from the alleged victim's parents and there has been no complaint filed, he said.

Hartlage, who has been on leave since the incident, could not be reached for comment.

Hart sent a brief letter home to school parents Friday saying Hartlage would be suspended but did not elaborate on the incident.

"Obviously there was an incident," Hart said this week.

Because of possible litigation, Hart said he'd been advised by counsel not to comment any further on the matter.

"To protect the privacy of everyone involved, I can't get into a description (of what occurred)," he said.

But when asked if Hartlage did strike the child, Kidder said,

"Yes, she did."

Kidder explained that the decision on how to handle this matter was completely up to Hart.

Under the state Education Reform Law, superintendents, not school committees have authority over principals.

"This matter falls squarely on the shoulders of the superintendent," Kidder said.

However, Kidder said he supports Hart's handling of the situation.

"Steve (Hart) did an exhaustive investigation and arrived at the conclusion that this was serious enough to merit a 10-day suspension without pay.

"That's an extremely harsh penalty," Kidder said.

Hartlage, a Plymouth resident, was hired last June to replace long-time principal Kenneth Ekberg, who took an early retirement.

She holds a bachelor's degree from North Adams State and a master's from Bridgewater state and was an administrator with the Chelsea Public Schools where she headed the Title I program from preschool through grade 12 before coming to Cohasset.

She was picked from a pool of about 40 applicants. Hart narrowed the field down to about 18-to-20 individuals whom he interviewed himself. He sent the names of six semi-finalists to a screening committee consisting of school administrators, teachers, parents, school council members, school board member, and a resident at large. The screening committee came up with a list of two or three finalists from which Hart made his choice.

supreme sacrifice; and to the disabled veterans, their widows and orphans."

For local veterans, Monday's exercises began early as the group visited veterans' graves and memorials at the town cemeteries.

The parade stepped off from the Music Circus parking lot, proceeding down Sohier Street to North Main Street to Central Cemetery, then to Cohasset Common with its final destination at the harbor.

A deeply moving part of the ceremonies at the harbor occurred when Buckley read the 52 names of those missing in action and World War II Army veteran Robert J. Hall saluted and said "missing in action, sir" after each name was announced.

Gerard Keating, who lost his son Allen F. Keating in Vietnam, placed a wreath at the memorial at the harbor.

And in keeping with tradition, Commander Bill Malone read the poem "In Flanders Field," written during World War I in France in 1915 by John McCrae who served as a medical officer.

The day's events were organized by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #9163 and George F. Mealy American Legion Post #118.

Counsels, officials meet over CHL legal matters

By BRIAN SURETTE
Special to the Mariner

The Board of Selectmen, in a special Thursday session last week, met with Town Counsel Paul DeRensis and special counsel Michael Leon of Warner & Stackpole.

The meeting, held entirely in executive session, was for the purpose of trying to resolve the interpretation of counsel relevant to the Cohasset Heights Landfill issue.

Over the objection of Selectman Peter Pratt, who felt any discussion on the management structure of attorneys representing the town should be held in open session, the board voted 4-1 to conduct talks in private.

Newly elected Selectman Nan Roth, while agreeing with Pratt that general management structure procedures should be open to the public, felt specific concerns over pending Cohasset Heights litigation necessitated executive session.

Michael Sullivan, echoing Roth, made a motion that the board hold open discussion on the management structure question at its next meeting on June 3, stating he expected more residents than the one attending this meeting would want to be present. The motion passed unanimously.

Prior to adjuring, DeRensis took another step in clarifying remarks attributed to him over the Cohasset Heights issue.

At the urging of Pratt, DeRensis explained that his comment that the Cohasset Heights decision had several "fatal defects" concerned only his predictions on what he projected would be likely financial costs to the town, not whether the superior court would or would not affirm the Board of Health's refusal to allow expansion.

• In other business, the board unanimously approved a bond issue for upcoming water and sewer projects. The $2,935,000 will be underwritten by State Street Bank and Trust Company at a rate of 3.54 percent.

•A transient vendor license was granted to Brian Capen for the purpose of selling ice cream, spring water and soda from his truck at beach and neighborhood locations.

• Finally, the board appointed Melissa Browne and Patrick Plante to the Osgood School Reuse Committee.

Charter school reimbursements sought

Cohasset could recoup part of tuition costs

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

For a second year in a row, a senate budget bill calls for the state to pick up the tab for public schools that lose students to the new regional charter schools.

The original funding formula for the experimental public charter schools which began via the 1993 Education Reform Act, called for the tuition dollars to follow the student; meaning that in addition to losing pupils, public schools stood to lose money through a reduction in state education aid.

According to state Senator Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, while the house version of the bill calls for a 50 percent reimbursement, the senate version seeks a full reimbursement for less affluent communities like Hull, whose per pupil cost runs below Education Reform Act requirements. With 175 Hull students slated to attend the South Shore Charter School in the fall, without reimbursement that town stands to lose as much as $900,000 this year in state aid.

"That's a significant jolt to a system for what is an experimental program," said Hedlund, who noted that the communities to be fully reimbursed have been struggling to bring their per pupil expenditures up to the Education Reform Act foundation level.

"We need to give communities a transition period and allow them time to plan for the costs in their budgets," Hedlund added.

Communities like Hingham and Cohasset, whose per pupil expenditure's exceed the state requirement are also eligible for reimbursement through legislation enacted last year.

Town's above that foundation were reimbursed 50 percent in the first year the charter school was opened, they will receive 40 percent this year and 30 percent next year, according to Hedlund's press secretary Jeff Granatino. After the third year, no state reimbursement is planned. Once a community's per pupil expenditures meet or exceed the foundation level, Granatino said they too will be weaned from the reimbursements over three years.

In Cohasset, where a total of 16 students are currently enrolled at the South Shore Charter School and the per pupil cost is about $5,000 — the town could lose upwards of $80,000. Last year, the town picked up what the state did not cover.

Supt. Stephen Hart said the state should fully subsidize charter schools.

"It's not fair. If the state wants to provide charter schools, it ought to pay for it and not take money from students attending (the regular) public schools."

Hedlund said he expects additional efforts to be made through the budget to include more extensive reimbursement for communities who exceed per pupil expenditure requirements and maintained that he will support those efforts.

Hedlund said he is relatively sure the senate version of the bill will prevail again this year, but cautions all communities to start planning for charter school costs.

"I don't think it's realistic to believe that the state will fund this ad infinitum, but we want to give towns a chance to plan for this," he said.

Little League dance planned for June 1

The annual Little League Dance will be held Saturday, June 1, from 7 p.m. to midnight at Kimball's By The Sea. Music will be provided by the Grateful Dads, and there will be silent auction items and hourly drawings for sports tickets and donated items. Tickets will also be sold for a weekend on Nantucket.

Prom preview is tonight at the Lightkeepers' residence

Cohasset High School senior class parents have organized festive year-end activities for the Class of 1996. Each year the PSO, with the help of a large group of parent volunteers, traditionally hosts a reception before the senior prom and a breakfast afterwards.

Family and friends are welcome to great prom-goers at a reception tonight (Thursday, May 30), from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Residence. Students will travel by boat to the prom at the Boston Harbor Hotel. A breakfast will follow at midnight at Second Congregational Church.

A new parent initiative this year is the creation of an A-V show, "The Way We Were," to be shown at Class Night June 6. Judy Ritts and Heidi Maitland have asked all senior class parents to collect memorable photos or videos from kindergarten to senior year, identify them and deliver them to Second Congregational Church (mail slot delivery available at any hour) by Monday, April 22. Individuals who would like to help with the video or accompanying audio are asked to call either Maitland or Ritts. All items will be returned at Class Night.

Another new idea this year is a "Class Gift" from the senior parents to CHS. Parents plan to donate a bench near the new athletic fields in memory of Rosemarie Mercurio, the mother of class president Andrea Mercurio. To join in the gesture, send a check payable to Kyle Lubitz and mail to: Kyle Lubitz, 54 Red Gate Lane, Cohasset.

Senior parents who would like to help with the senior class reception are asked to call Carol Riley or Annette Sawchuk. To assist with the breakfast, call Gail Stevens or Regina Shultz.

PSO names new executive board

At the PSO annual spring meeting, the membership elected a new executive board. The following people will serve for the 1996-97 school year:

Church to hold potluck suppers

The Beechwood Congregational Church will host potluck suppers during the next several months. Following each supper, a segment of the "Life on the Edge" video series by Dr. James Dobson of Focus on the Family will be presented.

The series offers a powerful presentation that equips teens and those who associate with them with the necessary skills for successfully dealing with the challenges of adulthood.

The suppers will begin at 6 p.m. in Merritt Hall at the church, followed by a video showing at 7 p.m.

The following programs will be offered:

July 18—"When God Doesn't Make Sense"; Aug. 15—"Pornography: Addictive, Progressive and Deadly."

For further information, call Steve at 545-6162.

Stress management support

Cohasset Community Church, a new evangelical church, is hosting a Stress Management Support Group on Fridays from 7 to 8 p.m. in Cohasset Town Hall's small meeting room. The study will be led by the church's pastor, the Rev. Robert Hurlbut. All are welcome.

The group is involved in a six-week practical study of "Stress Management: Finding the Balance." The study will allow participants to learn about stress and its effects and how to deal with stressful situations.

For further information, call the church at 383-9761.

Summer playground program open house

The Cohasset Recreation Commissioners will conduct an open house at town hall on Tuesday evening, June 11, at 8 p.m. Parents of playground program participants are cordially invited to attend this informative, pre-registration meeting.

The commissioners, recreation director and playground director will be on hand to answer questions, discuss comments and outline the 1996 program. Registration for summer playground for children ages 3 1/2 to 12 years and youth tennis lessons for youngsters age 7 to 18, will be held during the week of Monday, June 17 through Thursday, June 20, at town hall.

Sports camp registrations are on-going throughout May and June, at the Cohasset Recreation Office, first floor, town hall. Summer fliers will be going home via school during late May or early June.

Author signings at Buttonwood

Quincy High School senior Leanne Vaughn and Hingham illustrator Valerie Mine will sign copies of their new book, "The Doll House," Saturday, June 1, from 3 to 5 p.m. at Buttonwood for Kids, Hingham.

The story is of a doll who comes to life when humans aren't watching and is Vaughn's first published book.

Call 749-2665 for further information or to order a signed copies.

Scituate artist Joan Paley and Boston author Philemon Sturges will sign copies of "What's That Sound, Woolly Bear?," their new book, on Friday, June 7, from 3 to 5 p.m. at Buttonwood Books & Toys, Cohasset.

Included in the book are stories Sturges delighted in sharing with his daughters when they were young. Paley's bright collage-like illustrations highlight the simple text of a lovable bear looking for a place to spin her bed so she can turn into a tiger moth. Call 383-2665 for details or to order a signed copy.

Musical theater workshop

When South Shore Conservatory Drama Director Ellen Kelly runs her summer Musical Theatre Workshop, she calls on her favorite theater professional, Earl Wentz of New York.

Now in his fifth year with the Conservatory's intensive summer performing arts day camp, Wentz runs his own New York performing arts studio during the rest of the year, where he is voice teacher, coach-accompanist, director and arranger. He is a veteran character actor and accomplished director who worked many years in stock and regional theater.

The MTW is open to pre-teens and young adult students, ages 8-16. The workshop runs from Aug. 5-16, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. This year's MTW students will be among the first to perform in the Conservatory's new 300-seat outdoor performance facility, the Jane C. Carr Amphitheater.

Registrations are now being accepted. For further information, call 749-7565, Ext. 10.

The Conservatory's summer Flute Symphony program begins Wednesday, June 26, and runs for eight consecutive Wednesday nights. The program provides the unique opportunity for flutists to sharpen their musical skills and meet others with the same enthusiasm for music.

Flute Symphony is under the direction of SSC flute instructor Donald Zook, who expects about 100 participants in this year's program. This year's Flute Symphony will perform music ranging from the whimsical "Alexander's Ragtime Band" to more serious pieces like "Clair de Lune." The solo piece for the final concert on Wednesday, Aug. 14, is "Andante in C" by Mozart.

For registration information, call 749-7565.

Wildlife summer day camp for kids

The New England Wildlife Center (NEWC) in Hingham is continuing to accept registrations for its summer day camp for children. Wildlife Camp will feature outdoor nature exploration, close-up encounters with live owls, hawks, and other wild animals, arts and crafts projects and a wide variety of other activities. The day camp will be held at the center's facilities in the former naval depot on Fort Hill Street in Hingham.

Wildlife camp is structured to help children from grades 1-6 develop an awareness and respect for wildlife and nature and will be under the direction of Dr. Gregory Mertz, our executive director and Ms. Mandy Cannistraro, our environmental educator.

Session 1: Grades 1, 2 and 3, Monday July 8 to Friday, July 12, 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Session 2: Grades 4, 5 and 6, Monday, July 15 to Friday, July 19, 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Session 3: Grades 1, 2, and 3, Monday, July 22 to Friday, July 26, 9 a.m to 1:30 p.m.

Session 4: Grades 4, 5 and 6, Monday, July 29 to Friday, Aug. 2, 9 a.m to 1:30 p.m.

For a camp brochure, call the New England Wildlife Center office at 749-5387. The New England Wildlife Center, located in Bare Cove Park, is a non-profit, educational organization founded in 1983. It is dedicated to the treatment and rehabilitation of sick, injured and orphaned wild animals, natural science education and environmental research.

Appleseed's Day declared

Gov. William Weld declared May 15 "Appleseed's Day" in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Appleseed's, a Cohasset women's classic apparel retailer, is celebrating its golden anniversary. At an afternoon reception, company employees were joined by elected officials, business associates and valued customers for festivities which included a fashion show and an employee recognition program.

President Clinton recognized the anniversary with greetings from the White House: "America's economic strength always has depended on the commitment and determination of those who work hard for a living. In an increasingly competitive marketplace, you can take great pride in your longevity."

Appleseed's began as an eclectic New England Country Store by mail in 1946 at the end of World War II. Eventually, the company's focus became classic women's clothing.

To celebrate its 50th anniversary, Appleseed's is donation a tree to each town in which they have a retail location. A dwarf flowering crab tree will be planted in the grassy area surrounding Cohasset Plaza this month.

Red Lion Inn names dining facilities manager

Rosemary Golden of Marshfield has accepted the position of dining facilities manager at the Red Lion Inn. Golden will be responsible for overseeing general dining room operations at the inn. In addition to her daily management responsibilities, Golden will oversee the restoration of the quaint dining room at the historic Cohasset restaurant-tavern. The Red Lion Inn, built in 1704, recently has been taken over by local entrepreneurs who have begun some very significant restoration projects in which Golden will play an important role.

Golden holds a bachelor's degree from Stonehill College, and a master's degree from Bridgewater State College.

The Red Lion Inn has been in continuous operation since 1720, and is open for lunch and dinner daily.

Business partnership to hold meeting, June 14

The South Shore Business Partnership for Health will host a breakfast forum, Friday, June 14, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. at Lombardo's, Randolph.

Carol Cormier, vice president of Group Benefit Strategies of Worcester, will address the pros and cons of self-funding a business' employee health insurance.

The cost is $15 per person or $150 for a table of 10. Call 340-8564 to reserve a seat.

O'Donnell wins grant

Eric Swain, headmaster at Thayer Academy in Braintree, has announced that Sonya O'Donnell has won a Grace LeBaron Osgood Fellowship for innovative and creative work.

O'Donnell, a foreign language teacher, will create multi-media templates and curriculum guides for multi-media projects. She will also develop a Digital Language Lab for use in Thayer's new Macintosh lab. The projects will enable students to customize their learning environments in conjunction with the resources of the Internet.

Tourney Bound!

CHS baseball team heads into postseason after 22-year drought

By JIM O'SULLIVAN
Special to the Mariner

They did it!

After 22 years of following the tournament in the papers, Cohasset High baseball fans can now watch with excitement as the Skippers make history, participating in the Division 3 South Sectional tourney for the first time since 1974.

The Skippers finished their regular-season schedule at 10-10 to reach the magical .500 tourney-qualification mark in one of the toughest leagues in the state.

Cohasset was one of six South Shore League squads which qualified for the postseason. That the Skippers, with a miniscule talent pool to choose from, could even come close to making the tournament is incredible. Competing against schools sometimes three times as large, the varsity squad battled its way to the Promised Land.

Heading into last Wednesday's game against the Chatham Blue Devils, Cohasset was facing a do-or-die situation. With only one game remaining, the Skippers needed to pick up a win. With eighth-grade hurler Joe Pergola on the mound, Cohasset was confident it could beat the Blue Devils, whom they had thrashed 21-10 earlier in the year.

Pergola painted a masterpiece, allowing just four hits and one run. Catcher Mike Rossi did a bang-up job behind the plate and helped the rookie hurler set down 10 Chatham batters on strikes. However, Cohasset's defense was not the only thing working in full motion.

First baseman Kevin McKenna and shortstop Greg Taylor drilled home runs. Senior Mike Dunphy tripled to left center and Grant Emde doubled. Designated hitter Rob Buckley took an 0-2 pitch the opposite way to pick up an RBI and Pat Hurley roped a fastball over the shortstop for an RBI. Mark Kupsc singled to right and Joe Magner and Eric Henry each picked up two hits. The expression "everybody hits" certainly applied here as the Skippers romped 13-1.

As of Tuesday evening, it was undecided who, where, and when the Skippers would be playing. The game will most likely be held on Friday night or Saturday.

The Skipper bench erupted when McKenna made the final out and, led by head coach Ron Ford, mobbed Pegola on the mound. The curse has been lifted and now it's time for Cohasset baseball to set

Menis chases final high school record

Records are nothing new to All-Star trackster Faye Menis. Since the seventh grade, standards have been falling and Menis' name has replaced previous record-holders'.

The all-time point-scorer in Cohasset High track history (775 points), though, has one more shot to add a new mark to her spring resume. Menis will be gunning for Allison James' six-year-old mark of 15.1 seconds in the 100-meter hurdles in Saturday's All-State meet at Bridgewater State College. Menis missed the mark by a scant two-tenths of a second with her 15.3, fourth-place finish in last Saturday's State Class D meet at Wayland High.

She will also be gunning for a top-six finish, a goal head coach Ron Emmons believes is well within her reach.

"It's doable that she could place in the top six," Emmons said.

Menis' time in the Class D meet was a breakthrough for the senior. She had never broken 16 seconds in the hurdles, but had worked on her start by changing her footing in the blocks. The change gave Menis a quicker start, getting her to the first hurdle quicker than she had in past performances.

The Class D meet was just one of a series of outstanding recent competitions for Menis. She captured the long jump in the Principals Meet with a leap of 15' 6", took the hurdles and was named the meet's Outstanding Athlete.

Ninth-grader Allison McNamara had an outstanding performance in the javelin with a toss of 91' which qualified her for the Class D meet.

Menis bypassed the 100 hurdles at the league meet and took second in the long jump (15' 6") and nipped Hanover's first-year trackster Amanda Ganong in the 200-meter dash. Both sprinters had identical times of 26.8.

Seventh-grader Kathleen McCarthy showed she'll be an athlete to watch on the track in the coming years after taking sixth in the 100 hurdles at 18.6. The 400 relay team of Menis, Tamara DeVaughn, Kerri McCarthy and Megan O'Sullivan also placed by sprinting to sixth.

In the meet's three freshman events, DeVaughn took fourth in the 100 (14.5), seventh-grader Cathryn Flaherty kicked to a 77.5 finish in the 400 and eighth-grader Maura Duffy paced her way to a 6:37, sixth-place showing in the mile.

Kahn's heroics (22 saves) can't save laxmen

By JOE REARDON

As well as Cohasset High lacrosse goaltender Ely Kahn played, the series of sensational point-blank saves he was making proved to be an ominous sign for the Skippers in their East Division 1 tourney matchup against 19th-seeded Weymouth (10-8).

"Ely was spectacular," said head coach Ken Ekberg. "He wasn't making the run of the mill stops, this was point-blank stuff. But to have many shots point-blank isn't good."

Cohasset (No. 14, 11-5) once again had its defensive problems and the Wildcats were there to capitalize, eliminating the Skippers from postseason play with a 12-6 decision, Tuesday at Weymouth.

"It was a big, big factor," Ekberg said of the blanketing defense Weymouth used against the Skippers. "We did not respond well to the pressure defense."

The two teams battled evenly in the opening period, scoring two goals apiece, but Weymouth overwhelmed Cohasset with five straight tallies in the second for a 7-2 lead at the half. The Skippers responded in the opening minutes of the third period by climbing back into striking distance with two more goals.

Trailing 7-4, Cohasset could do nothing but watch as Weymouth put the game out of reach to take a six-goal lead (10-4). The Skippers fired home two more tallies, but the Wildcats offset them with two of their own to end Cohasset's season.

The loss was especially frustrating for

SSH hosts golf tournament

The seventh annual South Shore Hospital golf tournament will be held Monday, June 3, at Hatherly Country Club, North Scituate. Proceeds will support hospital programs and services that are available free of charge to the community. In 1995, SSH provided $7.3 million in care to those unable to pay for services.

Last year's tournament raised $46,000 to help support the hospital's new cardiac catheterization laboratory. Corporate sponsorship opportunities are available. Call Jill McDonough at South Shore Health and Educational Foundation at 340-8848 for more information or to register. Hingham resident Dick Dempsey is chairman of the tournament.

Baseball camp

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting registrations for a weeklong baseball camp for youngsters ages 5 through 12 years at the recreation office, first floor, Cohasset Town Hall.

The South Shore Baseball Club has been contracted again this year to provide baseball camp, which will be held the week of June 24 at Miliken Field.

Two camps are available to youngsters as follows: Full day, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. camp for ages 7 and over; and a half-day 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. camp is available for 5- and 6-year-old.s

The week long camp cost is $140 per child for the full-day program, and $75 per child for the half-day program. Camp ends Friday, June 28.

The South Shore Baseball Club, located at the South Shore Sports Center, Hingham, operates year-round baseball instruction.

Non-Cohasset residents will be accepted for baseball camp on a space available basis and registration forms are available at the Cohasset Recreation Department Office, first floor of Cohasset Town Hall.

Tickets available for Little League dance

The annual Little League dance wil be held Sat. June 1, at Kimbals By The Sea from 7 p.m. to midnight. Entertainment will be provided by the Grateful Dads. There will be over 40 silent auction items, including a weekend in Nantucket. This is Cohasset Youth Baseball's largest fundraiser and we are hoping for a large turnout. Tickets are $50 per couple and can be obtained by calling Linda Bolster at 383-6148. Should you wish to donate items to the auction, call Ginger Bryne at 382-2705.

Ron Ford Basketball Camps set

Cohasset High basketball coach Ron Ford will conduct two basketball camps this summer for boys and girls, ages 8-15. The 8-11 camp costs $120 and runs from Tuesday, July 9-12. The five-day camp for boys and girls from 12-15, will run from Monday, July 15-19. The cost is $150. There is a $25 family discount. Bosth camp progrmas meet at Cohasset High School from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Participants in both camps will receive a camp T-shirt and a discount coupon for Converse basketball shoes at The Good Sport. Camp brochures and application forms are available at the Cohasset Recreation Office in the town hall.

Ekberg because the Skippers had waged closer contests against Weymouth in past games.

However, Cohasset had its problems cornering the ball and that allowed Weymouth to reel off quick shots on Kahn near the crease.

The Wildcats' Chris McDonald gave the Skippers all afternoon and finished with four goals.

"He's the kind of kid who, when he gets his hand on the ball, things are going to happen," Ekberg said.

Chris McKenna and Ken Leahy each had a pair of goals. Leahy fed Jon Lax with his lone tally and Kevin Smith assisted on McKenna's second goal. Leahy then scored, unassisted, and Jamie Buick fed Andy Collins with a scoring-pass.

Ekberg praised his players after the game, particularly his co-captains, McKenna and Leahy.

"The season was great," Ekberg said. "We had as good or better leadership as we've ever had with Ken and Chris. They were both great captains."

Kahn, Lax and Matt Belson were voted captains for the '97 squad. With so many sports at the high school, Ekberg said the athletic talent is spread out, but did say he is confident the Skippers will field another strong team.

"We've got a good group of juniors," he said. "We'll need a lot of kids, but we'll be there."

'Boys Night' set for June 7

Upcoming events at the center include "Boys Night Out" on Friday, June 7 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. for boys ages 5-10 years old. REAL ESTATE UPDATE

LOCATION COUNTS

QUESTION: Just how important is location to the purchase price of a home?

ANSWER: Any Realtor will tell you that the three most important factors concerning the value of a house are: "Location, Location, and Location." Unfortunately, most home buyers ignore this important advice.

Location is especially vital when buying a house for maximum resale value. Statistics say that you will be reselling your home long before the final mortgage payment is in the mail. Therefore, take a long, hard look, at the the community and immediate neighborhood. You can always change a house, but you can never change a location.

Public Notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
NORFOLK, ss.

SUPERIOR COURT
NO. 96-1083

To RICHARD W. FARWELL AND GERALDINE F. FARWELL and to all persons entitled to the benefit of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended

Greeting:

Pilgrim Cooperative Bank claiming to be the holder of a mortgage covering real property situated in 393 BEECHWOOD STREET, COHASSET, COUNTY OF NORFOLK, MASSACHUSETTS given by Richard W. Farwell and Geraldine F. Farwell to Pilgrim Cooperative Bank dated November 12, 1992 and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in book 9612, page 159 has filed with said court a bill in equity for authority to foreclose said mortgage in the manner following: by entry to foreclose and by exercise of power of sale set forth in said mortgage.

If you are entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, and you object to such foreclosure, you or your attorney should file a written appearance and answer in said court at Dedham on or before July 8, 1996 or you may be forever barred from claiming that such foreclosure is invalid under said act.

Witness, ROBERT A. MULLIGAN, Esquire, Chief Justice of our Superior Court, the 21st day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety six.

Nicholas Barbadoro, Clerk

Nantasket Beach walkfest for Wellspring

Set for Saturday, June 8

Cohasset has almost everything, but it doesn't have a long smooth shoreline conducive for long beach walks. To take a long walk on the beach, you need to drive or bike to Hull. There you can walk, almost forever. Whatever is on your mind, here is a beach long enough for a walk that will sort it all out.

On Saturday, June 8, you can take a nice long 10K stroll on the low tide Nantasket Beach and help out Wellspring, as well. Wellspring is a multiservice center that works in collaboration with many social service agencies on the South Shore, to provide goods and services to individuals and families in need.

Wellspring began in 1985 as the Hull Interfaith Thrift Shop and Fellowship Center. Its name comes from the Book of Proverbs: "Above all else, guard your heart, for it is the wellspring of life." Since 1985, Wellspring has grown from a drop-in center for people experiencing the stress of poverty, transition or isolation, to a Multi-Service Center with diverse and helpful programs. These include:

- The Food Pantry, which in 1995 served an average of 40 families per week;
- The Adult Learning Program, offering adults a second chance to finish their high school education;
- The Career Exploration Workshops, supported by a grant from the Town of Hull Office of Community Development, which offer an opportunity to practice the skills needed for job hunting;
- The Wellspring Thrift Shop, visited by about 50 people each day, and supplying great bargains in clean seasonal clothes;
- The Intervention Project for Battered Women, offering cost-free supportive counseling to women seeking safety and violence-free living in their homes.

'Wellspring is well loved, but cannot run on love alone. It has to come up with money to support the management of the thrift shop, the administrative costs of the Adult Learning Center, the rent and phones and all the things in life that take a bit more than love.'

The newest program of this project is a Support Group for Abused Women, run in collaboration with the Social Service League of Cohasset.

Wellspring is well loved, but cannot run on love alone. It has to come up with money to support the management of the thrift shop, the administrative costs of the Adult Learning Center, the rent and phones and all the things in life that take a bit more than love. The Walkfest is one way to raise such money, and you, while out for a long thoughtfu[illegible] on the beach, can help raise this money. He[illegible] it's done:

Plan to walk. Get friends and neighbors to pledge money to Wellspring for every kilometer you walk. Pledge sheets are available at Cohasset Town Hall, the Paul Pratt Library (on the bulletin board), or through Wellspring at 925-3211. Load up those pledge sheets with the names of your concerned and generous friends who can't make it to the walk, and who pledge $1, $5, $10 or however many dollars they can for every kilometer you walk. You'll probably walk ten, so gather their checks, and come on out to Hull.

The Walkfest begins at the MDC Pavilion on Nantasket Beach at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 8. Just look for the crowd. You'll see old people, young people, the fit and the rest of us, all turning out for the event. Dogs make the walk. One year, a cat joined us. And for three years, we had the company of Pablo the Liama, who, having passed on, won't be there this year. Walkers will head up the beach to "S" Street. There, staffing a table with cold drinks, smiling, encouraging people will tell you you are half way, and turn you around so you can walk back to the pavilion.

"DIABETES.
I'LL GET HELP
IF I DEVELOP COMPLICATIONS."

COMMON MYTHS. There are many myths about diabetes. Some people believe they don't need regular, specialized treatment unless problems occur. The reality is that if diabetes is properly managed from the beginning, the risk of kidney failure, stroke, and blindness is dramatically reduced. At the Joslin Diabetes Centers, our experts will teach you everything you need to know to lead a normal, healthier life. The right foods and medications. How to get the most from exercise. The team approach pioneered at Joslin treats the entire person, not just the condition, and empowers people with diabetes to take an active role in their own treatment. If you have diabetes, find out how your local Joslin Center can help. Call us today.

Museum to open soon

The Cohasset Historical Society's Maritime Museum, located on Elm Street in Cohasset Center, will open for the summer season, which runs from June 1 through September. The museum will be open every day except Monday, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. There is no charge for admission, and donations are welcome.

The Maritime Museum, a mid-18th-century ship chandlery built by Samuel Bates for his fishing fleet, today holds exhibits relating to the maritime history of this small New England seafaring town. From Cohasset's first settlement before 1700 to the close of the "Age of Sail" in the latter 1800s, the town's eyes were turned toward the sea, and its fortunes depended on its maritime endeavors. Fishing, shipbuilding and ownership of, or crewing aboard, large sailing merchant ships provided much of the town's wealth and gave employment to the majority of its young men.

Cohasset-based schooners, many of them built in town and owned by a number of the town's most prominent seafaring families, sustained a sizable cod and mackerel fishing fleet at Cohasset Harbor throughout the 19th century. The mackerel fleets reached their peak years just before the Civil War, with more than 50 large, two-masted schooners sailing from Cohasset each summer. Large vessels, including clipper ships, sailing out of Boston provided the opportunity for a number of Cohasset men to become shipmasters or captains of some of the nation's largest and fastest merchant vessels. The Maritime Museum recalls the days when the town's destiny was tied to the ocean, and to foreign ports in distant parts of the world.

Among the museum's exhibits are collections relating to the 19th-century fishing fleets: wood carving, foreign voyages, local volunteer lifesaving, shipwrecks and Minot's Ledge Lighthouse.

Water rate hike allowed

North Cohasset soaked by 155 percent increase

By ALICE C. COYLE
Cohasset Mariner

The decision is in on the Massachusetts American Water Company rate case.

Town attorneys are still wading through the 200-page decision, but according to officials with the state Department of Public Utilities — all but about 10 percent of the water company's proposed 164 percent rate hike request has been approved.

"The increase will amount to a 155 percent water rate increase for customers," said DPU chairman John Howe, who noted that while some parts of the proposal were denied, "the majority of the request was granted."

Mass-American officials proposed the higher rates to cover the expense of building and operating a $39.5 million water treatment facility in Hingham. Water company officials say the facility, which has a capacity of 7.7 million gallons per day, will provide better water quality and flow and will bring the company into compliance with federal Safe Drinking Water Act regulations which require surface water to be filtered. About 600 residents in North Cohasset are tied into the Hingham water system.

Mass-American filed its rate case with the DPU in November and with the 155 percent increase, the average water company customer will see his annual bill go from $257 to about $640.

Checklist proposed to prevent ballot problems

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Friday, the governor validated Cohasset's April 6 school override vote by signing a special bill approved by both houses in the state legislature at the 11th hour.

And while the lack of proper posting of the ballot question may now seem like a bad dream — it's a nightmare that selectmen don't want repeated.

This week selectmen had their first go at a draft checklist of election posting procedural steps to be followed before town meetings and elections to ensure there are no more lack-of-posting problems in the future.

The checklist will lay out every single step for the town meeting warrant and election, and include places for different town boards, departments, and officials to sign off indicating they are aware of all deadlines and target dates for submission of warrant articles.

Although the town election has traditionally been held just a week after the annual town meeting, selectmen will also look at increasing the time between town meetings and elections. The Saturday town election this year followed on the heels of the previous Monday session of the annual town meeting. The school warrant article was reconsidered at the Monday session and was contingent on a successful over-

Cohasset High to graduate 78

By CHARLENE VANDINI
Cohasset Mariner

Under the familiar canopy of the South Shore Music Circus, the 78 members of Cohasset High School's class of 1996 will receive their diplomas, rain or shine, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Principal Curtis Collins describes this year's crop of graduates as "a group of good people" who are very "laid back." This characteristic has served them well, he said, since the class has had to adjust to numerous changes that occurred during their school lives.

The implementation of state education reform kept them in school one week longer than past senior classes, he said. And Collins himself is a change, arriving at the Cohasset High School principal's post from Dennis-Yarmouth High School at the beginning of the academic year.

But the "laid back" demeanor of the class is not to suggest a lack of involvement, and certainly there is no lack of talent, Collins said.

Two class members, Ryan Sawchuk and Caitlin Connolly, started the school's social awareness programs through which the school has been involved with recycling, homeless shelters, and food pantries.

Cohasset's Week

Railroad meeting slated

The Citizen's Advisory Committee for the Old Colony/Greenbush Railroad Line has scheduled the first of two public meetings on Thursday, June 20, at 7:30 p.m. at Cohasset Town Hall. The meeting will focus on the issues facing Cohasset with the restoration of the railroad.

The committee wishes to solicit comments from the public relative to mitigation measures. All interested Cohasset residents are urged to attend.

For more information or to contact the committee, call or write the Citizen's Advisory Committee for the Old Colony/Greenbush Railroad Line, Cohasset Town Hall, 41 Highland Ave., Cohasset 02025.

Lightkeepers Corporation elects board of directors

The non-profit Cohasset Lightkeepers' Corporation, which leases the lightkeepers residence on Government Island from the town, held its annual meeting May 14.

The nominating committee's proposed slate of of officers was unanimously elected: R.M. Campbell, president; Joe McElroy, clerk; Billy Higgins, treasurer; Pat Plante, chair, buildings/grounds; and Glenn Pratt, chair, operating committee.

Members of the executive committee are: R.M. Campbell, Barbara Christensen, Billy Higgins, Joe McElroy, Paul Pattison, Pat Plante, Glenn Pratt and Ira Stoughton.

Richard Avery, Barbara Christensen, Jane Goedecke, Ruth Nedrow and Sam Wakeman were elected to the board.

Kit Bryant's resignation was accepted with regret.

Compost bins available

Due to efforts of the Cohasset Recycling Committee, a shipment of 65 composting containers have arrived at the Cohasset Transfer Station and are available for purchase by townspeople at a very good price due to a grant from the state Department of Environmental Protection, said Jack Hubbard of the recycling committee.

There are two styles of containers, the Earth Machine and the Brave New World Composter. The large unit is $30 and the other is priced at $20.

These are similar to the composting containers which were made available to the town some years ago which have worked very well.

The new containers will be on sale at the transfer station. Payment must be by check made out to the town of Cohasset.

Brush chipping is slated

The D.P.W. will sponsor a 'Household Brush Chipping Weekend" at the Recycling Transfer Facility from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., June 8 & 9, Supt. Harold W. Litchfield said.

No commercial brush or hedge trimmings will be accepted. Brush can be any length but pieces only up to 12 inches in diameter will be accepted.

Students will do odd jobs

The Social Service League of Cohasset has compiled a list of Cohasset High School students who will do odd jobs around residents' homes including yard clean up, pet sitting, plant watering, weeding, babysitting, car care, and window washing. Many of the students can drive. The rates are reasonable. For names and phone numbers of students, call The Job Bank at 383-0771.

Ten minutes for walk-ins

Selectmen will set aside 10 minutes at 8 p.m. on their meeting nights to address any concerns from members of the public who have issues that are not on the agenda.

If the matter cannot be handled briefly, it will be placed on a future agenda, selectmen said.

Deli to be open Sundays

Selectmen this week approved a request from the Village Butcher and Deli on Brook Street to be open from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays pending approval from the sewer department.

My father used to say: "It wasn't so much that I invested with Fidelity back then. It was that I stayed with Fidelity."

A generation ago, my father had the right idea–to invest with a young Boston company that gave him the opportunities he needed to make the most of his money. Today, I have the chance to build on what he started.

In 50 years, Fidelity Investments® has grown from a single mutual fund to a world leader in financial services. But there's a lot my father would still recognize about Fidelity. Like their investment expertise. And the way they've continually offered new ways to manage money. Discount brokerage services. Workplace retirement plans. Even investment services provided through other financial institutions.

Over the years, Fidelity worked for my father. Now it's time to put Fidelity to work for me and my kids.

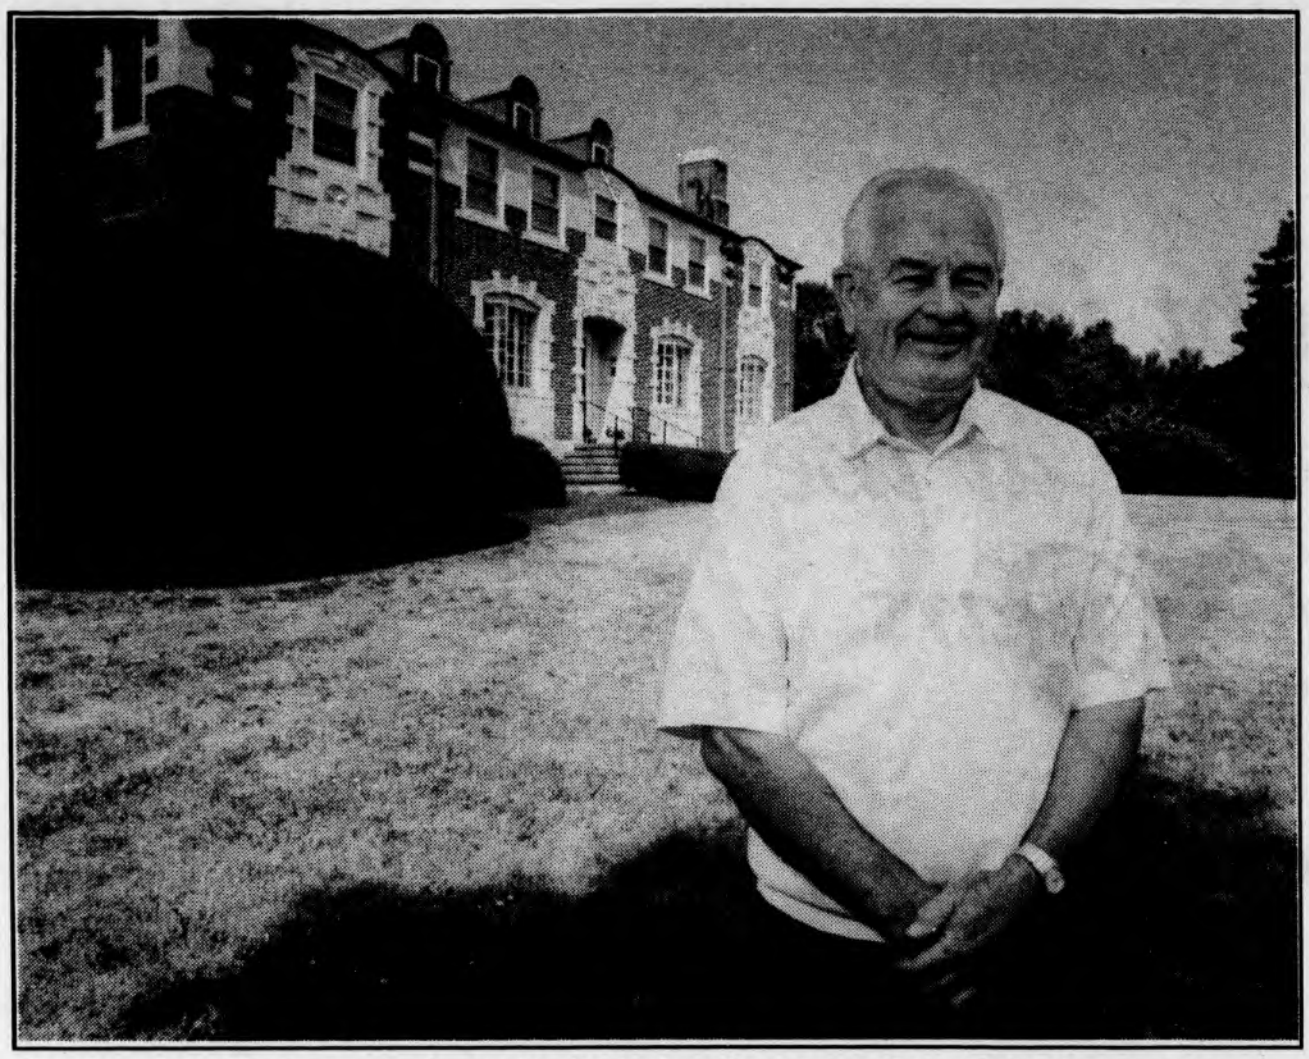
Cohasset and St. Anthony's lose an old friend

Just a year after celebrating his 75th birthday and 50th anniversary as a priest, the Rev. John Keohane, who served as St. Anthony's pastor before retiring last summer, has died.

Keohane was stricken with a heart attack while practicing his golf shots at Seabury Golf Course in Mashpee on May 31.

'Nothing could dampen his enthusiasm, he had a word of encouragement for everybody.'

— Tony Finegan, parishioner.



The Rev. John Keohane stands outside St. Anthony's rectory after retiring last summer.

Staff photo/Alan Chapman

Cardinal Bernard Law celebrated a funeral mass yesterday (Wednesday, June 5 after the Mariner went to press) at St. Anthony's Church where Keohane served 18 years as pastor. Three bishops, 25 priests and hundreds of friends and parishioners were expected to attend.

The priest was remembered this week with love.

"He was a kind and gentle friend," said Linden Drive resident Joseph Buckley, a eucharistic minister at St. Anthony's.

Although Keohane retired to Cape Cod, he returned to Cohasset every Wednesday and stayed over until Thursday to conduct masses for the Rev. John Mulvehill, who replaced Keohane as pastor of St. Anthony's last July.

Mulvehill recalled that Keohane used to visit him at St. Francis Xavier Church in Weymouth where he was pastor before coming to Cohasset.

Keohane was in Weymouth to visit parishioners at South Shore Hospital, he said.

"He had great loyalty and caring for the sickly and elderly," Mulvehill said of Keohane.

Tony Finegan of Doane Street described Keohane as "one of the greatest people in the history of our church.

"He was our friend, he was always there," Finegan said. "He had a quiet sense of humor that could melt any (difficult) situation.

"Nothing could dampen his enthusiasm, he had a word of encouragement for everybody," said Finegan, who is a eucharistic minister at St. Anthony's and served with Keohane on the Council on Aging for six years.

In an interview last July, Keohane told the Mariner that serving nearly two decades as pastor of St. Anthony's was like the biblical wedding feast at Cana.

"They saved the best wine until the end of the celebration, just as my best years have been in Cohasset," he said.

Keohane also said he was looking forward to perfecting his golf game which he had enjoyed for 60 years.

Rev. John J. Keohane

The Rev. John J. Keohane, 76, died May 31 of an apparent heart attack.

The Rev. Keohane retired to Cape Cod from St. Anthony's last July after serving 18 years as a pastor and 50 years as a priest.

Born in South Boston, he graduated from Boston English High School in 1937 and Boston College in 1941.

Following studies at St. John Seminary in Brighton, he was ordained by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Boston on June 29, 1945.

After serving for three years at St. Agnes Church in Arlington, the Rev. Keohane volunteered for home missions and spent three years in Tallahassee, Fla. He was later assigned to St. Joseph Church in Malden and Immaculate Conception Church in Stoughton.

He volunteered for military duty in 1956, serving as an Air Force chaplain for 20 years. He retired with the rank of colonel. The Rev. Keohane served in Alaska, Germany and Vietnam during the height of hostilities.

He was appointed parochial vicar at St. Gerard Majella Church, Canton, in 1976 and was named pastor of St. Anthony's in Cohasset shortly thereafter, where he remained until his retirement.

The Rev. Keohane leaves a sister, Margaret L. Norton of Dorchester, and many nieces and nephews.

Cardinal Bernard Law celebrated a funeral Mass June 5 in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Donations in his memory may be made to the Parish Center, St. Anthony's Church, 129 S. Main St. 02025.

Arrangements were made by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to Joyce Hoffman

Hope you had a chance to wish "Mimi" Chatterton a very happy birthday this week. We are happy and proud to report that she is 83 years young! Here's to the new year, Mimi. May it bring you health, happiness and lots of joy.

As many of you may have heard by now, Joyce Hoffman suffered a stroke. The good news is that Joyce is in Braintree Rehab and, from all reports, is making remarkable progress. We always wonder what we can do to help in a situation like this. Here is the best answer — send a cheerful card to let Joyce know you are thinking of her. Not only will it make your day, it will brighten hers as well!

We saw the best thing last week in Stop and Shop parking lot — there was a car illegally parked in a handicapped parking spot, and there was a policeman standing there writing a ticket to the violator! Sure made our day — what about yours? Let it also be a warning to all to reserve the handicapped spots for those they are intended for!

Happy birthday greetings to Coley Cook, who will be six-years-old tomorrow, June 7. Have a great day and a super celebration!

Hats off to Mike Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Riley, Jerusalem Road. Mike made dean's list with distinction at Duke University for the 1995-'96 academic year. Great job!

Belmont Hill student and Cohasset resident, Ian L. Simons, son of Robert L. and Judith F. Simons, recites "I Wandered Lonely" by Wordsworth at the recent PoetryFest at Belmont Hill School.

From Holderness School, Plymouth, N.H., comes word that Cornelia "Neely" Wakeman was selected to participate in the girls Prep-Private Lacrosse "All-Star" Tournament at Tilton School. Neely, a ninth-grader at Holderness, has played three varsity sports this year — field hockey, ice hockey and lacrosse. Neely, the daughter of Sam and Linda Wakeman, graduated last year from Derby Academy. Congratulations to you, Neely!

Notre Dame Academy tells us that new members were inducted into the Julienda Chapter of the National Honor Society, French Honor Society, Latin Honor Society and Spanish Honor Society April 19. Cohasset residents Julie Catalano and Jennifer Cellucci were among the new members, and we want them to know we are proud of them and their efforts!

South Shore Community Center has asked us to remind tennis players of the tennis tournament to be held Saturday and Sunday, June 22 and 23, rain or shine. Mixed doubles and mixed seniors are invited to play. Call SSCC at 383-0088 for an application and information.

Dominic and Pauline Emanuello are certainly happy these days — they are great-grandparents! Kaitlyn Elizabeth Galbreath, the daughter of Kerri (Emanuello) and Kevin Galbreath of Plymouth, was born April 27. Her grandparents are Michael and Margaret Emanuello and Judith Robertson, all of Carver, and David Galbreath of Holbrook. Congrats to all of you. Enjoy your precious bundle of joy!

Here's some more news from Notre Dame Academy. Sr. Anne Monica Ruane, principal of the school, announced the honor roll for the third quarter. From Cohasset are: principal's list— Julie Catalano; second honors—Lauren Campbell, Stephanie Canton, Jennifer Cellucci, Kelleen Dwyer and Sally Hamill. Nice to see that studying hard pays off — right, girls?!

First, mark your calendars. Now plan a diet for the next week! Why? the now-famous Strawberry Festival is coming. June 14, 15 and 16 are the dates to circle and look forward to! The festival is held at Second Congregational Church, and people line up to get their yummy shortcake. Homemade shortcake, tons of strawberries and oodles of whipped cream to top it off — it is truly outstanding! We know people who went all three days last year — need we say more?!

Hats off to the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, along with the merchants of Cohasset, who are working to make our downtown an even better one. Be sure to answer their questions concerning businesses and other ideas to make the town your way!

Pamela J. Maynard, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Maynard Jr. of Locust Road, received wonderful news from Suffolk University recently. She was offered a dean's merit scholarship in recognition of her consistently strong academic performance and her essay.

Pam will be majoring in criminal justice, and we have a strong feeling this is the first of many articles that will be written about her throughout her years at Suffolk! We wish you every success, Pam.

Ryan Staszko, son of Mr. Donald Staszko and Dr. Barbara O'Pray of Cohasset, has been named to the honors list at Tabor Academy for the first semester of the 1995-'96 school year. Honors status is conferred on students with an average of 80, allowing one grade between 75 and 79. Tabor Academy is located in Marion.

Hats off to sophomore Elizabeth M. Hills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Hills, who made high honors (90 to 100 GPA) at Mercersburg Academy for the winter 1996 term.

Finally, we congratulate all of the Cohasset High graduates! Why not go to graduation this year. It is such a nice event. This year it will be held Saturday, June 8, at South Shore Music Circus. See you there!

Support bike patrols

We urge local businesses and individuals to support the police bike patrol unit by donating money to get the valuable, new program off the ground.

The Cohasset Police Department plans to follow in the bike tracks of its counterparts in Hingham, Scituate and Hull by establishing a bicycle patrol.

Police on bikes will be able to provide better service to areas of town such as the village, Government Island, Sandy Beach and business areas.

"This program has the advantages of a walking beat with the added mobility of being on a bicycle to allow the officer to cover more area and respond more rapidly to problems," Police Chief Brian Noonan said.

Chief Noonan explained that due to budget constraints, the police department not been able to establish a budget specifically for the bike patrol unit.

Cohasset is not alone. Hingham asked for help to obtain the bicycles needed for its program which was enacted last year. Merchants, businesses and a local competitive bicyclist paid for the needed bikes and the patrol unit took off.

Police officers in the patrol are certified through a course called COB WEB (Cops On Bikes With Education About Bicycling). They learn about safety, maintenance and patrol principles adapted for use on a bike patrol. They ride across different types of terrain and pass a rigid test involving all types of situations, Chief Noonan explained.

We can't think of a town more suited to a bike patrol than Cohasset. Not only will the town get better service in the warmer months but police officers will have more visibility and be more accessible to the public. We consider providing efficient, friendly police service to be a priority for any town.

So call Chief Noonan at 383-1055 today if you can help get this program rolling before summer gets underway.

McElroy's effort appreciated

To the Editor:

As the incoming president of the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation, and a board member since its inception in 1991, I know how much my predecessor and founding President Joe McElroy, deserves our admiration. It was his vision to rescue the decrepit Lightkeepers Residence and convert it to the magnificent facility that we can enjoy today. He collected a dedicated group of directors, inspired them with determination to make it work, conceived numerous ways to obtain funds, co-ordinated the manifold activities of money management, publicity, design, deconstruction, construction, furnishing, operation etc. Not to mention chairing innumerable long meetings to deal with the never ending details, and enduring the welter of opinion that kept things lively.

About half of the bookings for Bancroft Hall in the Lightkeepers Residence are for worthy non-profit groups, so that our capital and operating expenses must be made up from fees charged to others, and from apartment rents and donations. Near term capital expenditure is almost completed, and except that we have yet to put money in reserve accounts for long term capital replacement costs, we are close to operating in the black. Joe deserves much credit for the financial achievement which accompanies the aesthetic achievement. The community has been generous with financial and other support, but in the future the Lightkeepers Corporation will have to rely more on its fee income to enable provision of no-cost or nominal cost function room space.

Of course Joe was helped by many people, such as Pat Plante who contributed the fine craftsmanship on cabinets, compass rose and other detail that makes the ambiance. But it was Joe who sparked it all and kept us tied together. Thanks from all of us!

Train meeting attendance urged

To the Editor:

A Citizen's Advisory Committee for the Old Colony/Greenbush Line has been established by the Cohasset Board of Selectmen. The committee's charge is to solicit comments from the public relative to mitigation measures for the restoration of the railroad.

Two public meetings will be held. The first of which is scheduled for Thursday, June 20, at Cohasset Town Hall at 7:30 p.m. All interested Cohasset residents are urged to attend. You may contact the committee by calling or writing the Cohasset Town Hall.

The Committee wishes to thank the Board of Selectmen for its foresight. The MBTA at the direction of Governor Weld is proceeding with the restoration of the railroad. Construction is scheduled to begin in the fall of 1997. As residents we need to focus our attention on the impact to our town and the mitigation measures we can take so that the project reflects as much as feasible the perspectives and needs of Cohasset.

We on the committee urge all residents to become involved and look forward to hearing from you on these issues.

More information on school incident needed

To the Editor:

The Cohasset school system, and the Deer Hill School specifically, are currently involved in an unfortunate situation that threatens to divide the parents of that school unnecessarily.

It is divisive because people are forming opinions without facts. Since the superintendent and school committee have not notified parents of their exact findings, people have been left with assumptions and innuendoes that have only fueled many rumors.

Several weeks ago the principal of the Deer Hill School was accused of allegedly hitting a fourth-grade student. The superintendent was notified and conducted an investigation. His decision was to suspend the principal without pay for two weeks. However, questions remain for the simple reason that parents do not know why the principal was suspended.

What was the conclusion of the investigation?

Many parents would like the answers to these questions for one reason only. They can not voice an opinion on whether or not they agree with the suspension if they do not know what it is for. As advocates for their children and as the taxpayers who pay the administration's salaries, they have a right to know.

Parents need this information to bring this issue to a truthful closure for both themselves and their children. Any other discussion regarding this matter is useless until we know the facts.

Helmets needed with rolling wheels

To the Editor:

We live in a time when image is everything! Adults and children alike are pressured to be "in" by the conspicuous consumption and display of the latest in transportation, fashion, and behavior. Unfortunately, safety is rarely elevated by the forces which establish our stylistic pecking order.

This past month, I have observed a disturbing trend in the sacrifice of safety for image. On an average spring weekend, good weather accommodates many cyclists and in-line skaters throughout Cohasset. On more and more occasions, those who enjoy their rolling wheels are not only doing so without benefit of helmets and other protective gear, but find it necessary to gain maximum momentum. Utilizing hills, bicycles, and yes even an automobile (from Highland Ave. onto North Main Street) — to increase speed over the ground.

A community which places a premium on safety precautions within its buildings, should also be concerned with reducing the possibility of serious and unnecessary injury on its streets and lanes. Parents, friends, and neighbors — please take the time to educate and enforce good safety practices. Image has little to offer in the emergency room or the cemetery.

Thoughts shared on school incident

To the Editor:

The controversy surrounding Deer Hill Principal Donna Hartlage has now been widely reported in the press. However, the information made available by the school and by Principal Hartlage to the community is next to nil. The notice sent home with the students to address the issue was impenetrable. The community has been left with little to go on.

Based only on what I have read in the papers and the very general description of the situation my child gave me, here is what I think.

I think that a significant number of the Deer Hill children were out of control during the incident in question. I think that Principal Hartlage, in attempting to control the children, suffered from a brief episode of poor judgment — the same kind of episode we all have suffered from on occasion while driving, socializing, working and parenting. Thankfully, our episodes of poor judgment do not have significant consequences, but that was not the case with Principal Hartlage on this occasion.

It appears that Principal Hartlage struck a child. I consider that impermissible under any circumstances, except perhaps in a genuine life-threatening situation. No such situation existed at the time of the incident.

Superintendent Hart acted with commendable speed in investigating the allegation against Principal Hartlage, making a decision, and imposing a penalty. I would have preferred that the circumstances involved a principal who had the opportunity and longevity in the community to have established a good reputation so that the Superintendent and parents might have felt that the incident was an aberration and therefore not worthy of the extraordinary- attention it has received. I agree that the incident was serious and warranted a response. In my opinion, the suspension was harsh but reasonable.

Unfortunately, there has been a virtual information blackout. This has led to widespread speculation, second-guessing and anxiety, all to the detriment of the school and the community. Why has there been such an information blackout? Experience tells me that the school administration and Ms. Hartlage are heeding the advice of risk-averse lawyers who are telling their clients to play it safe and not make any statements because a statement might constitute an admission of liability. This could be significant later, if the school decides not to renew Ms. Hartlage's contract, or Ms. Hartlage sues the school for breach of contract, or the parents of the child who was struck sue the school or the principal or both.

As a lawyer, I know that the "no comment" advice frequently is justified. However, it also is my experience and belief that many incidents are put into perspective and potential law suits are avoided when the responsible person eschews the advice of the lawyer, candidly admits to an error in judgment, and sincerely apologizes. This approach would be particularly appropriate in this cage. Ms. Hartlage's action did not cause any significant physical harm to the child, nor was the child at any point in serious jeopardy. She made a mistake and she suffered a penalty.

In my opinion, Ms. Hartlage's error in judgment does not warrant any further penalty, and certainly would not justify hiring another principal. The school should take this position publicly so that Ms. Hartlage can rely on it. At the same time, Ms. Hartlage should acknowledge that the penalty was within the bounds of reasonable and should publicly accept the penalty and waive any appeal rights she may have. Finally, the parents of the child in question should acknowledge to the school and to Ms. Hartlage that the child did not suffer any serious harm, and that there is no justification for a law suit on behalf of the child.

With that groundwork in place, Ms. Hartlage should apologize to the child and to the family. Ms. Hartlage also should have a candid conversation with the Deer Hill students so that they, and the community, can see an example of how a decent person can acknowledge and make amends for an error. The school administration should fully participate in this to bring this incident to closure and to restore to Ms. Hartlage, and the office of principal? authority over the students and faculty at Deer Hill. Then, everyone can and should bury the hatchet.

This proposed solution may be too optimistic, but I feel that someone should try to suggest common ground to get the parties back together.

Having addressed the incident as it relates to Ms. Hartlage and the child in question? I would like to address another aspect of this incident that seems to have been overlooked. That is what provoked Ms. Hartlage in the first place.

The students were being asked to pose for a school photograph. As is too often the case in the schools and elsewhere, a significant number of students were rude, unruly and unresponsive to the adults in charge. (I have no idea if the child in question was one of them or not.) Principal Hartlage attempted to exercise some authority and discipline. Although the principal has paid the price, the children are off the hook. Again.

Leaving aside a single episode of poor judgment, I think everyone would agree that it is essential that school personnel are delegated the authority, with the express support of the parents, to discipline students and enforce reasonable rules to allow the business of the school to proceed. In my opinion, there are far too many students who far too often impede learning and social interaction with unacceptable behavior. We should not foster or even tolerate a climate in which school personnel are so circumspect if not fearful that they feel that they need to call in the police for any discipline problem.

Principal Hartlage is keenly aware of the discipline problem at Deer Hill, and showed imagination and dedication recently by calling a meeting of parents concerned about the lack of discipline to explore those concerns, solicit ideas, and announce her intent to change the school for the better. I could not be more pleased to see that happen, and I hope it becomes a priority in all schools and with all parents.

The school has imposed a punishment for one incident of excessive action. I hope that Ms. Hartlage has the courage to ignore her advisers and offer a sincere apology, and that the child and the parents have the heart to accept a late apology. I also hope that the community can get past this incident, and that the school and the community accord school personnel, including Principal Hartlage, the authority to take such actions as are reasonably required to restore and thereafter maintain a healthy, disciplined environment dedicated to effective education.

Thanks to all for prom help

To the Editor:

By all accounts, the 1996 Cohasset High School senior prom was a brilliant success, a delightful evening for students and parents alike. Parents worked hard to create safe and festive activities both before and after the prom. Before the prom, the reception at the Lightkeepers' Residence gave everyone a chance to gather for sentimental greetings and multiple photo-ops. The students looked fabulous, and the parents of boys were especially grateful for the chance to see all the beautiful girls!

Thanks to Carol Riley, Annette Sawchuk, and their committee. Carol Riley also organized the sale of graduation invitations, which supports the cost of the reception and breakfast.

After the boat trip home from the prom at the Boston Harbor Hotel, students were treated to a bountiful breakfast at the Second Congregational Church. Thanks are due to Gail Stevens, Regina Schultz, and committee, also to Gary and Judy Ritts for hosting the event at the church hall.

Special thanks to Deer Hill teacher Betty Cisneros, Woody Chittick, Parent, and CHS student Tony Bramlett, who videotaped all the action. Students plan to edit all the tapes and create a single prom video which will be sold to benefit the class.

An A-V show, "The Way We Were," with photos and music from Grades K-12, will be shown at Class Night June 6, following the presentation of awards. Thanks for the memories go to Gary and Judy Ritts and Heidi and Tammy Maitland.

A new initiative this year is a "Class Gift" from the senior class parents to Cohasset High School. Parents and students have donated two granite benches near the front athletic field, in memory of Rosemarie Mercurio, the mother of Class President Andrea Mercurio. If you wish to join us in this gesture, please send a check payable to Kyle Lubitz, 54 Red Gate Lane, Cohasset.

The parents and students of the Cohasset High School Class of 1996 would like to invite the community to graduation, Saturday, June 8, at 1:30 p.m. at the Music Circus. A reception for students, parents, teachers, and friends immediately follows the ceremony, hosted by the parents of the junior class.

COUNCIL CORNER/Kathie O'Neil

The following is a summary of the past month's School Council meetings.

Jr./Sr. High School—Pat Baird, the newest member of the council, was introduced. Areas of discussion under communications were National Honor Society and procedures used in selection as well as discussion regarding the science curricula for grades 7, 8 and 9.

The final review of the Student Handbook took place. Topics included policies of local and state regulations; school dress; the fact that under "General Information," beepers are prohibited; MIAA rules as they apply to home schooling; and the Code of Conduct with regard to in-school suspension versus Saturday school. School attendance and tardiness policies must be reviewed, and a study group will be formed for this task next year. The final meeting of the school year will be held June 12, with Ron Ford and Tom O'Neil attending as the new faculty representatives.

Deer Hill—The topics of this month's council meeting were many. The 6th-grade dance was discussed, with positive reports. The only change if there was to be another dance was to possibly make the length of the dance about an hour shorter. The Harborfest Parade was talked about, with Deer Hill putting together an entry of some sort, possibly a kazoo marching band. The School Improvement Plan was reviewed once again. Newly elected members were Anne Musto and Marie Walsh. The next meeting will be held in early June.

Joseph Osgood—The school facilities group reported they met with Supt. Hart and Mr. Flansburgh to discuss many aspects of the new school plan. The Improvement Plan was talked about, along with new goals for next year. There was also discussion on the Professional Development Days held recently, and retaining the schedule for them. The newest member of the council is Betz Murray, who was elected for a two-year term.

Although the new rate went into effect June 1, Howe said, before issuing any new bills, Mass-American will have to do some recalculations and submit a compliance filing in accord with the DPU decision.

Howe said that in his tenure as chairman, the Mass-American rate case has been one of the more hotly contested ones with Hingham, Hull and Cohasset opposing it.

On the decision, Mass-American Director of Rates and Revenues Rod Nevirauskas said despite opposition to the rate hike and both the close scrutiny of and extensive publicity about the proposal, the DPU's findings show that the company's investment in the water treatment plant was warranted.

"The company put forth its best case and substantiated its data. While not receiving all that the company feels is needed, the final order shows that the company's investment in the plant was prudent, justified and necessary to provide quality water service to its customers," Nevirauskas said.

The decision was bad news for North Cohasset residents who strongly oppose the rate hike.

"I think this is outrageous," said Jerusalem Road resident Maria Plante, who helped lead the charge. "This is an exorbitant amount of money and I think the DPU has a moral obligation to look into why these costs are so high."

Selectman Peter Pratt, a former Cohasset water commissioner, was equally critical of the DPU. "This is clearly an outrage. No public utility should be able to get a 155 percent increase overnight. It's astronomical," said Pratt. "I think it's tragic that the DPU only shielded 10 percent from our rate payers."

Pratt said it will be the duty of the board of selectmen to look at the possibility of an appeal and its cost ramifications.

Cohasset Town Counsel Paul DeRensis said Tuesday that he is hard at work reviewing the hefty document.

"We're still analyzing it," said DeRensis, who noted that the decision calls for the water company to submit a new rate schedule complying with the DPU findings.

While the rate hike approved still amounts to a more than doubling of customer's water bills, DeRensis pointed to a number of controls put in place by the DPU that will benefit ratepayers including mandatory cleaning and flushing of the system to be completed by November 1997.

Another benefit, especially to those who conserve water, is a breakdown in the surcharge rate - the amount the water company hopes to recover for the cost of building the treatment plant. Only 2/3 of that part of the rate hike will be a fixed surcharge with the other 1/3 based on a customer's consumption — meaning ratepayers, who use less water, will pay less.

The DPU also denied Mass-American's proposal for an automatic 1.4 percent annual increase in the lease payments it makes to the "special purpose" corporation that actually owns the new treatment facility.

Another sizable exclusion from the original proposal was $820,000 in design and siting fees for the facility's original Free Street location, Howe said. The plant, which went on line last month is located off Main Street, behind the House of Prayer Lutheran Church in Hingham.

The decision also called for a 1 percent reduction in the return the water company was seeking on its capital investment — lowering the profit it will earn from 15 to 14 percent.

"All of these things made it worthwhile to oppose the rate hike. Clearly the ratepayers are better off today then when the rate was filed," Howe said.

DeRensis said it's too early to comment on whether or not the decision will be appealed but he plans to confer with town counsels in both Hingham and Hull, which are also served by Mass-American.

Plante and other residents in North Cohasset will seek the town's help in dealing with the increase. These same residents will bear the entire cost of a Cohasset sewer project that will connect that part of town to Hull's sewer treatment plant.

"I feel in my heart the town of Cohasset should help us out," said Plante. "It's not our doing that we're on the Hingham water company line."

Along with the rest of the town, Plante said her tax dollars and those of her neighbors helped support the Cohasset's water treatment plant and the reservoir even though they do not get their water from the Cohasset system.

"I think the town has an obligation to North Cohasset to give us some relief from this burden," she said.

Plante raised the possibility of laying water pipes along with sewer pipes and tying North Cohasset into the town's water company. The rate relief clearly would not come overnight, but the possibility of connecting to town water offers Plant and her neighbors hope for future cost savings.

Plante said she will urge selectmen to work with the water and sewer commissions and give them guidelines on how to help residents.

Pratt, who seemed open to the concept, said it is something the town "will have to dig into and look at closely."

Checklist proposed to prevent ballot problems

ri[illegible]ote.

Override elections must be held within 45 days of a contingency vote at town meeting.

"Did we collapse the time too close?" Selectman Peter Pratt asked this week.

"Two weeks makes a lot more sense," Selectman Michael Sullivan added about the gap between elections and town meetings.

Selectmen and school officials were on the edge of their seats last week as the clocked ticked toward the June 3 filing deadline to get on the list for state reimbursement. The town can recoup about 60 percent of the cost of constructing the $9.8 million elementary school from the state school building assistance program, but had to file in time to get on the list.

About 50 residents and officials attended a hearing May 29 before the Joint Committee on Local Affairs. In spite of opposing testimony at the hearing, the committee was persuaded that voters were adequately informed of the ballot question through the local media, flyers, and word of mouth. The school override passed with a margin of 80 votes at the April 6 town election.

Due to an oversight, there was no mention of the Prop. 2-1/2 ballot question in the election warrant which was posted in five places around town as required by law. Bond counsel discovered the ballot question was not posted and alerted town officials. Bonds to pay for the new school could not be approved until the matter was resolved and the school department could not file its plan with the state without financial assurances in place.

Selectmen hope a checklist will prevent this from happening again. They were positive about the draft copy they saw this week but want it simplified.

"It's a great idea but the format needs to be clearer," Selectman Nan Roth said.

Boards have openings

There are vacancies on the mosquito control committee, the personnel committee, drug & alcohol committee, and the zoning board of appeals which needs an associate member. Interested citizens should call the selectmen's office at 383-9900.

Canney on rail committee

Selectmen appointed Barbara Hedges Canney, 353 S. Main St., to the citizens railroad mitigation committee this week.

"She came to the first meeting and was very interested (in joining)," said Selectman Michael H. Sullivan. The citizens committee is charged with soliciting concerns and ideas from residents relating to mitigation issues regarding the proposed train restoration.

Eleanor Waal steps down

Selectmen learned this week that Eleanor M. Waal, 36 Old Pasture Rd., has resigned from the drug and alcohol committee.

"I wish the committee well and hope that they will find the direction and motivation to continue bringing substance abuse issues to the attention of the public," Waal wrote in her letter of resignation.

Summer police officers appointed by selectmen

On the recommendation of Police Chief Brian Noonan, selectmen appointed James P. McLean of Norwood and Christy J. Tarantino Jr. of Scituate as seasonal police officers. McLean has five years experience as a special police officer in Boston and Tarantino worked four years as a special police officer in Hull.

"I highly recommend both of these individuals and feel very confident of their ability to fulfill their assignments," Police Chief Brian Noonan said.

Cohasset connection is strong for METCO student

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

Jared Hardwick, a METCO student in Cohasset for 10 years, with his Cohasset family Gerald, Greg and Regina Schultz. Not shown is Courtney Schultz.

Greg Schultz and Jared Hardwick are all decked out for the CHS prom last week.

Gerald and Regina Schultz have already sent out the invitations for their sons' senior graduation party, and the cake says, "Congratulations Greg and Jared."

As guests mill through the house that day they'll be able to see pictures of the boys, usually dressed alike, growing up, and the athletic and academic awards they have won recently.

In many respects, Greg and Jared have been typical brothers over the years.

"Jared is as much of a younger brother as Greg," said Courtney Schultz, 20. "When they were little they were like 'Double Trouble.' They were annoying little brothers."

Now that they are older things are different, she said. They appreciate each other more.

Jared Hardwick is more than a brother and a son though.

Hardwick, and his host family the Schultzes, are part of the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunities, Incorporated (METCO), which is a state-funded program that places urban, minority children in suburban public schools.

"METCO is extremely valuable because it provides much needed racial diversity within the Cohasset school system," said Connie Afshar, the Parent Student Organization representative who, with Cliff Chase, heads up Cohasset's program.

She added that when students go out into the "real world" they are going to be working with people who come from a variety of backgrounds.

It was important they have the opportunity to spend time with people who have had different life experiences.

Getting to know people is the best way to dispel stereotypes, Afshar said.

Jared agreed.

"People got to learn a lot from me," he said. "They got to see what it was like to live in the city."

Jared, who lives in Roxbury, also comes out a winner in the situation.

He has attended Cohasset schools for ten years, and has received a better education than he would have if he remained in the Boston public schools.

He also has had the chance to do things that might not have been possible if he didn't know the Schultzes.

"I have been able to do more traveling," he said.

He added that it was also a plus to have two families.

His mom, Stephanie, has the same birthday as Regina. Jared also has two younger sisters, one younger brother, and his father, Michael.

One of his sisters, Jessica, is also one of 50 students involved in the METCO program in Cohasset.

Jared's uncle, Floyd, was also a Cohasset METCO student, and Jared wanted to follow in his footsteps.

Jared started the third grade in Cohasset before METCO had found him a host family.

The METCO representative at the time called the Schultzes, who had always supported the program, and asked them if they wanted to be a host family.

Greg was in the kitchen at the time and he told his mom to accept, and to request Jared.

Greg and Jared were in the same class and had become fast friends.

Not much has changed in ten years. They are still very close.

"They have the same temperament and the same tastes. It is very interesting," said Regina. "They both love rap. They both wore dark sunglasses in their prom pictures."

"It is almost like having twins," added Gerald.

Greg said that Jared was a combination of a brother and a friend — the best of both worlds.

Through Jared, Greg also gained insight.

"It opens your mind," he said, of the program.

In the early years, Jared did not spend that much time at the Schultz house, but as he entered high school he became a permanent fixture, mainly because of his involvement in basketball.

Because of his talent, he is involved in basketball programs in Cohasset all year long.

He said his mom has missed him a bit.

"It is tough during basketball season. I practically wasn't home for four months," Jared said. "It is kind of strange. It is almost like I've moved."

He added that he appreciated the differences between Cohasset and Roxbury, and didn't value one more than the other.

Jared just doesn't just eat and sleep at the Schultzes. He does his share of the chores.

Yard work in particular.

"We are delighted because we have a very big yard," said Regina with a smile.

When he graduates Jared will leave the METCO program, which serves children from the first to the twelfth grade, but he certainly won't leave the family.

"He is more than just a METCO kid who plays basketball," said Gerald. "We know it is not the last of him."

Afshar said METCO is always looking for host families. For more information, call 383-6006.

Teen Center events slated

The Teen Center is hosting a Poker Night Friday, June 7, from 7 to 10 p.m., featuring a variety of poker games and winning prizes. The Teen Center will also be open Saturday, June 8, from 7 to 10 p.m.

On Tuesday, June 11, Rahul Roy will visit the center from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Roy, a musician, teacher and leader of his own band, will conduct a workshop and demonstrate various types of music, including jazz, blues and rock 'n roll. Following the workshop, students will be able to jam with Rahul. All students in grades 6-9 are welcome to attend. There is no charge. Bring your instrument and crank out some tunes with a professional!

Volunteers needed for pool cleanup

Cohasset Swim Center is seeking volunteers for its annual pool cleanup, scheduled for Sunday, June 9, from noon to 3 p.m.

Bring a friend and garden tool. Refreshments will be provided. A free one-day pool pass will be issued to all those who help with the cleanup.

Playground program

The Cohasset Recreation Commissioners will conduct an open house at town hall on Tuesday evening, June 11, at 8 p.m. Parents of playground program participants are cordially invited to attend this informative, pre-registration meeting.

The commissioners, recreation director and playground director will be on hand to answer questions, discuss comments and outline the 1996 program. Registration for summer playground for children ages 3 1/2 to 12 years and youth tennis lessons for youngsters age 7 to 18, will be held during the week of Monday, June 17 through Thursday, June 20, at town hall.

Sports camp registrations are on-going throughout May and June, at the Cohasset Recreation Office, first floor, town hall. Summer fliers will be going home via school during late May or early June.

Invest in ASP 'stock'!

Cohasset residents are invited to take part in this year's Appalachia Service Project. A townwide mailing outlined "stock options" at $20 a share, with guaranteed returns of postcards, letters, newsletters, photos and the satisfaction of joining the effort. Proceeds from the sale of 'stock' will be used for construction materials, transportation and room and board.

Tax-deductible contributions may be sent, payable to SSC Youth Group, to Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., Cohasset 02025. For further information, call Gary Ritts (383-0345), Ami Argus (383-9325) or Pam DeLorenzo (383-6904).

Cohasset High to graduate 78 on Saturday

In addition, the Class of 1996 will be remembered for strength in the arts. Members of the class dedicated themselves last year to writing and producing a dramatic program entitled "Through Our Eyes," a series of vignettes that was presented last September after a summer of work.

Other members of the class have left their marks as musicians, vocalists, and visual artists.

"There is some real talent here," he said. "This class will be known for this."

Eighty percent of the graduates will be attending four-year colleges. This percentage is down slightly from previous years, he said, explaining that some graduates are delaying college by a year to travel or to work.

Valedictorian Ryan Sawchuk will be attending Princeton University; Salutatorian Tafana Fiore will attend Wake Forest University.

Other members of the Class of 1996 have been accepted at Bowdoin College, Syracuse University, Boston College, Colgate University. Thirteen members of the class have been admitted to the National Honor Society.

Edward Hamilton has enlisted in the United States Marine Corps; and Amber Hopeman will be going to Annapolis, Maryland to the United States Naval Academy. She is one of the top 15 students in the class.

"They'll have quite a summer," Collins said, noting that Hopeman and Hamilton will begin their military training within weeks.

The Tri Valley League team was an unknown entity. Save for its fourth seed, just in front of her Cohasset High squad's fifth position, Lady Skippers' head girls tennis coach Sarah Mann regarded Millis as a big question mark heading into Wednesday's quarterfinal round of the Division 2 South Sectional tourney.

"I don't know much about them," Mann said. "I tried to find out, but I didn't learn too much. It'll be a surprise."

The Lady Skippers have had plenty of time to prepare for the match after opening the tourney with a solid performance.

Cohasset got two quick victories from its No. 1 and 2 singles players and then held off a Sharon comeback to take a first-round win over the 12th-seeded (10-6) squad, 3-2, last Friday at home.

Laura Slotnick and eighth-grader Kate Stone took less than an hour combined to give the Lady Skippers a 2-0 lead at first and second singles. Slotnick took her match 6-0, 6-3 while Stone won 6-0, 6-2.

Cohasset's strong start gave Mann the confidence the Lady Skippers would take the match, but she didn't know Sharon would give Cohasset as stiff a time of it as it did. Sharon pushed the Lady Skippers to three sets in their remaining matches, including a third-set tie-breaker at first doubles.

"I thought we had it won right off the bat," said Mann, "but Sharon came back with a vengeance. It was a very competitive match. The hung in there when they had to."

The first-doubles squad of Karen Niessink and Kristin O'Connell took the big win, going 6-1, 3-6 and 7-6, and finally 7-4 in the tie-breaking match.

Mann, too, was pleased with the way her girls played in the pair of Sharon wins. Freshman Katie Brister won the second set of her match, 6-1, but ultimately was defeated in the two others, 6-7 and 2-6.

"She stepped into a sport she didn't think she was going to be in at the beginning of the season," Mann said.

Ashley Brister and eighth-grader Meagan Leahy won a tie-breaking set at No. 2 doubles, but wound up on the short end of a 4-6, 7-5 and 3-6 decision.

Skippers make most of baseball tourney

By JIM O'SULLIVAN
Special to the Mariner

After a dramatic season and an exciting tournament win, the Cohasset High baseball team called it a season after a hard-fought loss to West Bridgewater. Cohasset qualified for the tournament against Chatham, two weeks ago, then faced the Blue Devils in the first round, a miraculous draw which also gave the Skippers the home-field advantage.

Cohasset took advantage of it, pouncing all over Chatham's Mike Beaton. A 7-2 victory sent the Skippers into the next round. Eighth-grader Joe Pergola threw 4-1/3 innings and freshman Greg Taylor finished off without allowing a hit in 2-2/3 innings. The Pergola-Taylor combination left Chatham batters shaking their heads in frustration. However, the pitchers were not alone in their heroics. First baseman Kevin McKenna made a reflexive, diving stab of a line drive into right, which would have gone for extra bases. Left fielder Eric Henry made a fabulous diving grab of a sinking liner, also robbing a Blue Devil of extra bases. Third baseman Mike Dunphy started a double play at third by forcing a runner, then pivoted and fired to Pat Hurley at second. Hurley nearly made it a triple play with a quick turn, but the Chatham runner barely beat the throw to first. Catcher Mike Rossi called a magnificent game behind the plate and pounded a triple into right field. In the final three games of the year, Rossi did not allow a

Hurdle slip thwarts Menis' record bid

By JOE REARDON
Cohasset Mariner

It's hard to say for sure, but it is quite possible Cohasset High track sensation Faye Menis' goal at last Saturday's All-State meet was three hurdles and a clean finish away.

Menis, the school's all-time leading point scorer, hit the seventh hurdle in the semifinals of the 100-meter hurdlers and nearly fell. She recovered well and wound up running 16.1, exactly one second shy of Allison James' 15.1 she ran during the 1990 season. Menis had already run 15.3 this season and had her sights firmly set on the record.

Head coach Ron Emmons believes Menis would have been close to the record, and possibly could have broken it, but speculating the outcome of a hurdle race is tough.

"It's hard to say," Emmons said. "You never really want to predict that. I still think she has a sub-15 in her. Faye loves the challenge in the hurdles."

Much of the reason Menis gets a rush from the hurdles' challenge is the risk it involves. A slow start, a foot clipping a hurdle or a change of stride can make the difference between winning and being an also-ran.

When Menis hit the hurdle she was in third place and heading to a spot in the finals. Emmons may not have been sure passed ball or a wild pitch.

Designated hitter Rob Buckley came up with a key hit and infielder Joe Magner also provided firepower for the Skippers. Center fielder Grant Emde roped two hits, one of them a double.

However, the second game was not as successful. In front of a heckling West Bridgewater crowd, the Skippers stood tall against the No. 1 seed in the Division 3 South Sectionals.

The home team sent out Sean Stockman to the mound, while Cohasset threw Greg Stevens. Both pitched masterfully, Stevens only allowing six hits and two earned runs in seven innings. Stockman was in trouble all day long as Emde slammed two more hits. Cohasset held the lead into the fifth when West Bridgewater tied it up, then went ahead in the bottom of the sixth.

The Skippers started a gallant rally in the seventh. Taylor led off, reaching safely against a tiring Stockman. Dunphy laid down a perfect bunt, beating it out for an infield hit. However, the Skippers could not capitalize and the the game, along with the season, was over.

Head coach Ron Ford was glowing with pride about his team's effort.

"I am incredibly pleased with the way we played, that game and all season long," he said. "I don't know if I've ever been prouder of any team I've ever coached."

The game was the last for seniors Stevens, Henry and Mike Dunphy. All three played exceptionally well and their efforts and the tournament charge they led, the first in 24 years for Cohasset, will hopefully be duplicated, or even surpassed, in the coming seasons.

whether she could have nailed down the school record, but he was convinced Menis was a solid bet to qualify for the final race.

"She was well on her way," Emmons said.

Menis and Emmons had both discussed whether or not to run the 200-meters or the hurdles, prior to the meet. They decided on the hurdles. Menis was properly trained and prepared for the race, but it left little room for error.

"The hurdles are more of a high-risk event," Emmons said.

Youth lacrosse blazes into jamboree

BY TERRY KAHN
Special to the Mariner

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse, in its inaugural season, has posted an impressive 6-2 record heading into the season finale with Hingham June 9, and the statewide youth lacrosse jamboree June 16.

The fifth- and sixth-grade squad, coached by Chuck Jaffe, has earned victories over Milton, Hanover, Duxbury twice, and Norwell. Last Sunday, the Junior Skippers knocked off Falmouth, 11-9, behind outstanding goaltending from Kyle Weber, and a potent offense led by Jason Moore, Paul Previte, Curt Kahn, Evan Pestone, Greg Harrington and Peter Kovach.

"Cohasset's defense has been solid throughout the spring," said Jaffe. "Katie Hines, Paul Trendowicz, John Dwyer and Chris Caron have made big contributions there."

Other standouts for the Junior Skippers have been attackmen Dave DeVito and Tom Digan, midfielders Pete Whoriskey, Henry Roth, Mike Snowdale, Nick Spirito, D.J. Lanzillotti, Dan Kinchla, Greg Ernst, Joel Carpenter and Ben Nash, and defensemen Ross Lieb-Lappen, John Friedman, Kris Peters, Dave Kreuger and Matt Miekleham.

Cohasset closes its season at Marshfield High School Sunday, June 16, when youth lacrosse teams from all across Massachusetts and New Hampshire gather for the fourth annual Massachusetts Bay Youth Lacrosse jamboree.

"We can't wait to see how we match up against the best in the state," said Jaffe.

Soccer camp

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting registrations for VIP Soccer Camp for children ages 4 to 7 years.

VIP Soccer Camp offers two programs for boys and girls. ABC Soccer is especially designed for 4 and 5 year olds and meets from 8 to 9:30 a.m., Monday through Friday, July 22 through July 26. The cost is $50 for the week.

Also offered by VIP is a three-hour per day program, meeting from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, July 22 through July 26, for 6 and 7 year olds. The cost is $80 for the week.

Both VIP programs will be held this year at the front field of Cohasset High School.

'Boys Night' set for June 7

Upcoming events at the center include "Boys Night Out" on Friday, June 7 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. for boys ages 5-10 years old. Come join Ruthann, George and others for a fun-filled evening of sports, bowling, obstacle courses, and make your own pizza. Everyone receives something for participation. You must be pre-registered. Call the center for more information.

Intermediates: Mon., 7 to 8 p.m.

Advanced: Weds., 6 to 7 p.m.

Other classes will be scheduled as demand necessitates.

All sessions run for four weeks and cost $35 per person per session. John McGrory of the Cohasset Rec. Dept.'s tennis staff will teach. Participants who do not own or have access to a racquet should indicate this at registration.

Non-residents will be accepted on a space-available basis.

Baseball camp registrations

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting registrations for a weeklong baseball camp for youngsters ages 5 through 12 years at the recreation office, first floor, Cohasset Town Hall.

The South Shore Baseball Club has been contracted again this year to provide baseball camp, which will be held the week of June 24 at Miliken Field.

Two camps are available to youngsters as follows: Full day, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. camp for ages 7 and over; and a half-day 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. camp is available for 5- and 6-year-old.s

The week long camp cost is $140 per child for the full-day program, and $75 per child for the half-day program. Camp ends Friday, June 28.

The South Shore Baseball Club, located at the South Shore Sports Center, Hingham, operates year-round baseball instruction.

Non-Cohasset residents will be accepted for baseball camp on a space available basis and registration forms are available at the Cohasset Recreation Department Office, first floor of Cohasset Town Hall.

Swim team season opens

The Varsity Swim Shop will be at the pool Wednesday, June 26, from 9 to 10:30 a.m.

Please note this is a different date from the one mistakenly printed in the registration packet.

Swim suits must be ordered at this time so the team logo can be printed on them.

Swim team tryouts for new members only of all ages will be held Tuesday, June 18, from 3:30 to 5 p.m., and Wednesday, June 19, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the Cohasset Swim Center.

Diving team tryouts for new members only will be Thursday, June 20, from 5:30 to 6:30 pm. at the swim center. Please plan to spend the full hour and meet the new diving coaches, Dawn Meeehan and Amy Wojtasinski.

Please call Susan Etkind at 383-6602 or Miki Berg at 383-1193 with any questions.

Tour historic Hingham homes

The 72nd annual Tour Historic Hingham Homes sponsored by The Hingham Historical Society is Wednesday, June 19, 1 to 8:30 p.m.

Five homes in historic Hingham will be open for viewing. The oldest house, a 1737 Colonial with Georgian Style components, was one of the early Hersey homesteads. Two other 18th Century homes include a 1774 Gambrel Cottage, occupied for almost a century by the Thaxter family and a 1785 Colonial built for Col. Charles Cushing, state representative and farmer. Also featured are an 1811 Federal Style built by sea captain Isaac Hinckley and a traditional house built by W.T. Litchfield which originated from an older non-residential building and was moved to its present location in 1896.

The historic buildings include the Old Ordinary, Old Derby, Old Ship Meeting House and the Hingham Community Center. Light refreshments will be served in the afternoon. No cameras or spike heels will be allowed on the tour.

The 1996 exhibit is very special this year. "And So To Bed" will display with detailed accuracy the beds, bed clothes and customs of early New England. Items have been selected from the Old Ordinary's extensive collection and specially woven textiles reproducing the early coverings have been researched and purchased. Hand sewing has been ongoing for many months by volunteers. The exhibit will continue through Sept. 14, and may be seen Tuesdays through Saturdays from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Tickets are $10 in advance and $12 on tour day. They are available at Bowl and Board in Hingham Square and at the Hingham Public Library, 66 Leavitt Street. Tickets on tour day will be sold only at the Old Ordinary, 21 Lincoln Street after 10 a.m. At that time tickets may also be exchanged for tour books.

To order tickets by mail, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and your check to the Hingham Historical Society, P.O. Box 434, Hingham 02043. Mark the envelope "House Tour."

For further information, call 749-4219 or 749-1851.

Wellspring walk-fest June 8

Saturday, June 8, a 10K pledge walk for the Wellspring Community Service Agency will be held on Nantasket Beach. The tide will be out, and chances are the day will be glorious.

Start at 9:30 a.m. opposite the Carousel, walk to "S" Street and back, have a wonderful time getting tan and fit, and support Wellspring's programs, including adult learning, food pantry, Victims of Domestic Violence group, counseling and referral, and the thrift shop.

Pledge sheets are available at Cohasset Town Hall and the Paul Pratt Memorial Library; or call Wellspring at 925-3211.

Sailing club cookout set

The Cohasset Sailing Club is having its opening day cookout and dance June 22, 6 to 8 p.m. dinner; 8 p.m. to midnight, D.J.

Cold salads and desserts appreciated. Grill provided. All members welcomed.

Come to BAYDAY at the Abbey

South Shore ARC will hold BAYDAY at Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham Sunday, June 23, from noon to 5 p.m. BAYDAY is a family day and open to the public, featuring entertainment, food, performances by Boston Children's Theatre, Flying Pie circus clowns, a 19-piece alumni band, magic shows, wildlife from Trailside Museum and a DJ.

Admission is $5 for children. Adults over age 18 will be admitted free.

Tickets will be sold for pony cart rides, a "Hug-a-Bunny" petting zoo, face painting, balloon sculptures, bake tables and a children's novelty table. There will be a day-long silent auction for adults as well as a food court.

Proceeds from the event will benefit ARC's community recreation programs.

Mystery night at Buttonwood

Buttonwood Books & Toys, Cohasset, will hold its spring Mystery Night Wednesday, June 12, from 7 to 9 p.m. Boston and Cape Cod mystery authors Janice Weber, Paul Kemprecos and Rosemary Herbert will read from, and talk about, their books.

Weber is the author of three highly acclaimed mystery novels, including "Frost the Fiddler," a New York Times notable book.

Kemprecos is a Shamus Award winner who spent more than 20 years as a reporter and editor for Cape Cod newspapers before trying his hand at mystery novels.

Herbert, a feature writer for the Boston Herald, has co-edited "The Oxford Book of American Detective Stories" with author Tony Hillerman.

There is no admission charge, but reservations are requested. Call 383-2665 for further information.

Leavitt family reunion is June 22

The National Association of Leavitt Families will hold its annual reunion Saturday, June 22, in Lexington. Registration is at 8:30 a.m., followed by a full day of activities.

The meeting, which is open to all descendants of John and Thomas Leavitt, will be held at The Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett Road. Reservations must be made by June 15 with Tom Leavitt at (617) 861-6559. The cost is $16 for adults, $10 for children.

St. Stephen's to celebrate its centennial

The Rt. Rev. Barbara C. Harris, Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts, will celebrate a festival Eucharist on the occasion of the parish centennial at Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., Cohasset, on Saturday, June 8, at 4 p.m. A procession to the church will organize at the Osgood School at 3:30 p.m.

The first worshipers met at the old Central Schoolhouse on Bourne's Rock where the church itself now stands.

The centennial worship will include music composed especially for the occasion: an anthem entitled, "Holy This Temple;" and a communion anthem entitled, "Dreamers of the Dream."

In addition to the bishop, former clergy, The Revs F. Lee Richards and Roy F. Cederholm Jr. will be present at the celebration. Following the worship there will be a champagne reception in the church courtyard and a banquet in the church hall.

A centennial flower festival will be held inviting parishioners and friends to create arrangements for the church and hall. The flowers may be seen at worship and at a harpsichord recital open to the public the next day. Mark Kroll, harpsichordist from Boston University, will perform in recital at Saint Stephen's Sunday, June 9, at 3 p.m. Works by Couperin, Rameau, Bach and Scarlatti will be featured in a beautiful program. Donations toward the performance will be by free will offering.

Saint Stephen's was organized as a church on June 8, 1896 by 21 persons who adopted a constitution and by-laws and unanimously voted to name the church after Saint Stephen, the first follower of Jesus to die for his faith. Since that first meeting more than 1,600 people have been baptized into the Christian faith at Saint Stephen's.

In addition, the church started a social service organization (the Village Guild), and a hospital for children (Bonnie Bairns).

From September 1924, the church has been home to the seventh carillon to be built in the United States. In 1925, President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge visited to listen to the carillon.

Renovated in 1989, the carillon today is the largest in New England by number of bells, 57.

In the 1940s the church was active in the Sunlight Hospital and Camp for crippled children and the blind. After the riots in Roxbury in 1967, Saint Stephen's helped sponsor a summer day camp for Roxbury and Cohasset children, and played a leading role in introducing the METCO program to Cohasset. The church has a long history of caring for others.

At the same time, former Rector, Dr. Richard D. Muir, sums it all up saying: "Through all of this, babies were born, celebrated, and baptized. Loves were discovered, consecrated, cherished, lost and grieved. Wonderful friends, brothers and sisters in Christ were made and enjoyed.

"Great and grand churchmen and churchwomen supported St. Stephen's with their devotion, energy and substance. Best of all, by and large, we supported one another in all of this: sharing our joys, our hurts, and our sorrows. We had fun!"

The Centennial celebration on June 8 honors all of that and looks to a new century of worship, believing and compassion atop Bourne's Rock at the center of Cohasset.

Gospel concert is June 15

Tickets for the fourth annual Gospel Concert at 8 p.m., Saturday June 15 are $7 (only $5 with a Harborfest button, available through June 10). Tickets and buttons are available at the First Parish Church office, open Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.. Call 383-1100 for information. The New Temple Singers under the direction of David Coleman will present their repertoire of contemporary and original gospel music.

Court advocates needed

South Shore Women's Center, Plymouth, is looking for volunteers to train as court advocates and hotline volunteers to help victims of domestic violence. Court advocates work in Hingham, Wareham and Plymouth courts, helping victims with the restraining order process, and hotline volunteers answer calls to the hotline from their own home a couple of nights a month.

Call Roberta Brooks, volunteer coordinator, at (508) 746-2664 for more information.

SSWC is also seeking volunteers to help launch a program in Plymouth-area schools teaching children from elementary age to high school age about violence prevention. Individuals with teaching, social work or counseling backgrounds are particularly needed.

All Paws to meet June 18

The All Paws Rescue Fund-Raising Committee will meet Tuesday, June 18, at 7:30 p.m. at Days Inn, Rockland. Members and friends are invited to attend and be part of the "Fun of Fund-raising" event, which will benefit lost, strayed and abandoned animals, enabling them to have shelter, receive veterinary care and find loving homes.

Stress management support

Cohasset Community Church, a new evangelical church, is hosting a Stress Management Support Group on Fridays from 7 to 8 p.m. in Cohasset Town Hall's small meeting room. The study will be led by the church's pastor, the Rev. Robert Hurlbut. All are welcome.

The group is involved in a six-week practical study of "Stress Management: Finding the Balance." The study will allow participants to learn about stress and its effects and how to deal with stressful situations.

For further information, call the church at 383-9761.

Ugly tie contest sponsored by dry cleaners

The first annual South Shore Ugly Neck Tie Contest is being sponsored by Via Valet, Dwyer's Cleaning Spot and The Cleanist. No purchase is required, and categories include: Better in the Dark; Goofy; Clown King; and Unique but Unattractive.

Ugly ties may be dropped off at Dwyer's Clean Spot locations in Cohasset and Hingham or may be picked up in the Hingham area by Via Valet.

Winners will receive dinner for two at South Shore restaurants, and all entrants will receive a coupon good for a free tie cleaning. The ugly tie deadline is June 30. For details, call 1-800-79-VALET.

Citizens Energy Group on African tour

More than 20 American business representatives and Kennedy family members led by Citizens Energy Corporation Chairman Michael Kennedy of Cohasset left Wednesday, May 29, for an eight-day tour of Angola and South Africa. The trip will combine the start-up of new commercial and charitable initiatives for the non-profit energy company in Africa with the celebration of the 30th Anniversary of Robert F. Kennedy's powerful "Ripple of Hope" speech, made at the University of Cape Town in June, 1966.

The journey, sponsored by Citizens Energy in cooperation with the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial, will include stops at Luanda, Johannesburg and Soweto and will conclude in Cape Town with a forum at the university and a memorial mass.

Citizens Energy, a marketer of Angolan crude oil and products through a subsidiary since the 1980s, will provide $1.5 million for the establishment of a university in Luanda, capital of that war-torn nation, in conjunction with the Angolan Catholic Church. In addition, the group, which includes Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, is scheduled to meet with the Angolan President Eduardo dos Santos and will travel to the Citizens Energy-supported Children's Town orphanage in nearby Huambo.

While in Cape Town, the group will meet with South African President Nelson Mandela as well as with students at the university where a forum will be held. Michael Kennedy is scheduled to address the gathering.

Citizens Energy is a non-profit company based in Boston started by Joseph P. Kennedy II to provide low-cost oil for low-income and elderly families. Citizens Energy uses the profits from commercial enterprise to fund energy and technical assistance programs for needy families here and abroad and has since 1989 generated more than $47 million in program funding.

Business partnership to hold meeting

The South Shore Business Partnership for Health will host a breakfast forum, Friday, June 14, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. at Lombardo's, Randolph.

Carol Cormier, vice president of Group Benefit Strategies of Worcester, will address the pros and cons of self-funding a business' employee health insurance.

The cost is $15 per person or $150 for a table of 10. Call 340-8564 to reserve a seat.

The Grand Tour

with Ginger Ferenz 383-2863

The natural shingled home of Ann and Paul Musto at 17 Lantern Lane sits high on a knoll while the front and side yards slope gently down to the road. An English garden bench anchors the beds bordered by low stone walls and filled with Basket of Gold, grape hyacinth, and tall red and yellow tulips. Borders of bright yellow forsythia frame the yard, while a naturally weathered picket fence adds further dimension to the landscape.

Police status report for May

During May, Cohasset police made 12 arrests including two for operating under the influence of alcohol, three for protective custody, two for outstanding warrants, and one each for larceny, assault & battery with a dangerous weapon, possession of a Class D controlled substance, trespassing, and minor transporting alcohol.

There was also one breaking and entering reported to the department last month, Police Chief Brian Noonan said.

In May, the emergency dispatch center received 97 emergency 911 calls.

Noonan said the department sent three officers to an intensive two-day bicycling training course last month.

"As I had previously indicated to you," Noonan wrote to selectmen. "One of my goals was to institute bicycle patrols."

He explained that the department is in the process of soliciting local businesses for money to support these patrols. Funds would be used to purchase bicycles and the special uniforms that would be required.

Noonan said PALS officer Lisa Matos taught more than 12 classes at the junior high last month.

"We were also very fortunate to receive two grant awards for our PALS program," he said.

The first was a $5,000 grant from the Copeland Family Foundation, Inc. and the second was a $1,000 grant from the Norfolk County Sheriff's department, Noonan said.

Public Notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
NORFOLK DIVISION
DOCKET NO. 96P1251E1

Estate of ELIZABETH JEANNE FINK late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that CHARLES G. FINK of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on July 3, 1996.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16A.

Witness, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this twentieth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-six.

Local state senate race hits a speed bump

Hedlund accuses Delahunt of 'ducking' debate

By JENNIFER R. HORAN
Cohasset Mariner

State senate candidate Robert M. Delahunt Jr. has rejected an opportunity to debate his opponent, Sen. Robert Hedlund, on Ilana Marks' upcoming cable television show, "On the Mark."

While Delahunt, D-Weymouth, insisted he never agreed to the debate, Hedlund accused Delahunt of "ducking" the debate after accepting Marks' invitation to appear on the June 26 show. Hedlund, R-Weymouth, accepted a second invitation to a debate rescheduled for July 17, while Delahunt declined, citing a packed campaign schedule.

"I'm frustrated that he's not going to join us after we set the whole thing up," said Hedlund. "Everything was done to accommodate his schedule and then he said he was too busy."

But Delahunt said the debate was not set in stone, despite what Boston Sunday Globe columnist Robert Preer wrote last weekend. In his June 2 column, Preer wrote, "Delahunt initially accepted an invitation for a debate on the show, then said he could not make it because of a scheduling conflict."

"I never agreed to do it," said Delahunt. "What Robert Preer wrote in his column is just plain wrong. It's not true. The reason I didn't agree was because of a scheduling conflict."

Delahunt, a 32-year-old Democrat, announced a debate schedule that includes two appearances in each of the eight towns in the district, which stretches from East Braintree to Duxbury. He plans to schedule one debate in each town before the primary and a repeat appearance in each town following the September primary.

"I find it ironic that he's too busy through June and July to do one debate," Hedlund said. "How can he do 16?"

"It's an ambitious schedule," Delahunt said. "The serious and responsible approach would be to agree to do a series of debates that focuses on the issues. We need to keep this campaign on the high road and keep it on the issues period."

Delahunt said he hopes to set up a debate with Hedlund as soon as his schedule allows. He seeks sponsorship from district-area organizations such as the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the League of Women Voters and news entities such as WATD Radio and Mariner Community Newspapers.

"The sponsors I will be calling on will be fair to both candidates," he said. "I'm committed to discussing the issues and keeping the debate focused on the issues."

Host Ilana Marks defended her show, reiterating that her role in the debate would be an impartial one.

"I do not intend to take sides on any of the issues or with either of the candidates," she said. "I'm not endorsing anyone. I really, truly believe in an open debate where every issue is viewed f both sides. I would like to extend my tation to Delahunt to come and de. to Hedlund on my show."

Marks said she wants her show to follow a live call-in debate format that actively involves audience members who can telephone, e-mail or write in questions to the candidates.

"I envision a television show where people will be able to find out from week to week who's running, what the issues are, who the candidates are and what they're all about," Marks said. "I think people would like to see more interesting debates. I'd like it to be a lot more spontaneous, with the candidates answering on the air."

Marks said her experience running in the Scituate selectman-at-large race opened her eyes to the idea of providing an open forum for debate.

Class of '96 told to treasure past but look to future

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Cohasset High graduates were told to savor the moment and thank those who helped them along the way, during the Class of 1996 commencement exercises Saturday under the big top at the Music Circus.

Although the students' speeches varied in style and delivery, they shared common themes of gratitude for supportive families and fine teachers, and stressed that the future can be both challenging and satisfying for those who strive to reach their goals.

School Committee Chairman Ralph Kidder's remarks came from the vantage point of experience and contained a caution about the true tasks that lie ahead in a shrinking world.

Class president Andrea Mercurio talked about reaching for your dreams in her welcoming address.

Paraphrasing the late Robert Kennedy, she said, "Our parents opened up a door and passed on their ideals. Now it's our

Deer Hill School principal ousted from post

By MARY FORD
Cohasset Mariner

Friday, school officials announced that Donna Hartlage won't be returning to Deer Hill School as principal after all.

Supt. Stephen Hart had suspended Hartlage, who is accused of striking a fourth-grader during a May 16 student picture-taking session, without pay until June 10.

It is not clear why Hart has taken the further step of removing the $60,000 per year administrator from her post.

Saying the matter was in the hands of attorneys, Hart would not elaborate this week.

School Committee Chairman Ralph Kidder said parents can be assured that the school department will send a letter home after the matter is resolved and explain the reasons behind the decision.

"What is important for people to know is what transpired following the incident of the child being struck and the final resolution (of this matter)," he said.

"Everyone in the school system deserves to know as much as we can tell them," Kidder said.

He asked that parents be patient.

"I believe people have the right to know and ought to know about the process, " Kidder said.

"Part of what we release may be contingent on final resolution of this. That's why we can't say too much right now."

In a letter sent home to parents of Deer Hill students Friday, the school committee wrote:

"On May 16, 1996 an incident occurred at the Deer Hill School involving the principal, Donna Hartlage, and a student. On completion of an investigation into the incident, Supt. Hart determined that it was of a nature serious enough to warrant disciplinary action on his part.

"It was our hope at that time that the educational atmosphere at the school could have been restored to normalcy as the result of actions taken by the principal. Unfortunately, that has not occurred. We have concluded that Ms. Hartlage can no longer serve as an effective leader of the school community."

Farmers' market may come to town

Fresh produce and plants could be in the village's future.

As part of an on-going village revitalization effort spearheaded by the Chamber of Commerce, plans are to host a weekly farmers' market from 4 to 8 p.m. Thursdays in the town parking lot starting Aug. 1.

Although the project is in the early stages, organizers said this week they are optimistic that town officials will give the go-ahead.

"The state department of agriculture has given us their blessing so the next step is to get the approval of selectmen and the police and fire departments," said Dean Rizzo of Aquarius Sunrooms.

Rizzo, who is vice-president of the chamber, said farmers will pay a one-time registration fee of $25 to cover the cost of advertising through posters and flyers. The market would run through September.

The market will also be listed in a newsletter the Dept. of Agriculture sends to farmers to let them know about markets.

Mary Jordan, state director of agricultural development, said there are 102 farmers' markets in Massachusetts. She explained that the Dept. of Agriculture is very supportive of new markets.

"We've grown from 60 to more than 100 in five years," she said.

"There's a good educational component," Jordan said. "Farmers' markets provide a good opportunity to educate the consumer on the fresh fruits and vegetables that are available in the state."

Anna Abbruzzese, who is on the village revitalization committee, came up with the concept of bringing a market to town.

Cohasset's Week

Compost bins available

Due to efforts of the Cohasset Recycling Committee, composting containers are available for purchase by townspeople at a very good price due to a grant from the state Department of Environmental Protection, said Jack Hubbard of the recycling committee.

There are two styles of containers, the Earth Machine and the Brave New World Composter. Prices range from $20 to $30.

The new containers are on sale at from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday and Wednesday through Saturday at Aquarius Sunrooms on Depot Court. Payment must be by check made out to the town of Cohasset.

Get your beach and recycling permits!

Beach and Recycling Transfer Facility Permits for 1996-97 will be available at Town Hall until Friday, June 28. Hours are Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Beach stickers are $7 per vehicle, and $3 per vehicle for seniors over age 60. RTF stickers are $65; $25 for a second vehicle if application is made at a different time; and $33 for a sole resident.

Vehicle registrations are required, or proof of residency (tax bill or rental lease) for those with vehicles that are not registered in Massachusetts.

Residents are encouraged to purchase both stickers through the mail by providing a copy of their registration and a self-addressed return envelope.

RTF stickers may be purchased at the RTF on weekends from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., by check only.

Railroad meeting slated

The Citizen's Advisory Committee for the Old Colony/Greenbush Railroad Line has scheduled the first of two public meetings on Thursday, June 20, at 7:30 p.m. at Cohasset Town Hall. The meeting will focus on the issues facing Cohasset with the restoration of the railroad.

The committee wishes to solicit comments from the public relative to mitigation measures. All interested Cohasset residents are urged to attend.

For more information or to contact the committee, call or write the Citizen's Advisory Committee for the Old Colony/Greenbush Railroad Line, Cohasset Town Hall, 41 Highland Ave., Cohasset 02025.

Ten minutes for walk-ins

Selectmen will set aside 10 minutes at 8 p.m. on their meeting nights to address any concerns from members of the public who have issues that are not on the agenda.

If the matter cannot be handled briefly, it will be placed on a future agenda, selectmen said.

The best bank in Cohasset is No Mystery

As Cohasset's community bank, we're quite different from other banks in town.

- We have no stockholders...so our customers get all of our attention
- We have no offices outside of town... So Cohasset enjoys the bulk of our loans.
- We have no lengthy review procedure... So your questions are quickly answered.
- We have no big or fancy offices... So you pay less when you bank with us

More personal service. Less costly services.

My father used to say: "It wasn't so much that I invested with Fidelity back then. It was that I stayed with Fidelity."

A generation ago, my father had the right idea–to invest with a young Boston company that gave him the opportunities he needed to make the most of his money. Today, I have the chance to build on what he started.

In 50 years, Fidelity Investments® has grown from a single mutual fund to a world leader in financial services. But there's a lot my father would still recognize about Fidelity. Like their investment expertise. And the way they've continually offered new ways to manage money. Discount brokerage services. Workplace retirement plans. Even investment services provided through other financial institutions.

Over the years, Fidelity worked for my father. Now it's time to put Fidelity to work for me and my kids.

Retiring Osgood School teacher looks back

By DOREEN LEGGETT
Cohasset Mariner

Faith Bowker Maloney sits by the picture window in her first-grade classroom at Osgood, glancing around at 33 years of accumulated stuffed animals, games, and shelves upon shelves of children's books.

"What will I do with all my books?" she asks with a grin.

Maloney will retire in June after 24 years at the Osgood Elementary school. Before that she spent nine years teaching in Maryland.

She picks up a book , entitled "Miss Rumphius," off one of her numerous bookcases and flips it open.

Maloney and Miss Rumphius, a woman who loves books and visiting exotic places, have a lot in common.

"I want to travel a lot," Maloney explains. "And end up in a house by the sea."

Like her books, the setup of her room is also a mirror of Maloney's personality.

The room is comfortable, with areas for quiet time, and group learning, but, most telling, Maloney's room is the antithesis of boring.

"You have to be ham to be a teacher," she says. "The first day I realized I was alone and could be as silly as I wanted—and sing songs. I started singing the 'Warm and Gentle Fuzzy Song.' The kids think it is great. "

There are other reasons why Maloney doesn't have a structured classroom.

She says that children don't spend as much time at home as they did in the past. They are off pursuing a myriad of different activities.

It was important, she says, for children to have a classroom that the could feel comfortable in. A classroom they could call their own.

"They are like little barometers, you have to take the time and find out what is bothering them," she says. "That is why I don't like a formal classroom. If you overlook something important you have kind of lost them."

'I think computers are great, but nothing takes place of a snuggle and a book.'

— Faith Bowker Maloney.

Maloney adds that oftentimes students will come in from recess and someone's feelings will be hurt. She can tell right away.

Maloney says she'll let the two students talk over the problem in the corner. Before you know it everyone is all smiles again.

"I wish adults could do that," Maloney says.

Maloney, who went to Lesley College, says she always wanted to go into teaching, and from the start the job more than fulfilled her expectations.

Osgood teacher Faith Bowker Maloney is retiring this month after 24 years on the job.

"Like Peter Pan I don't want to grow up. Teaching is like being in a time capsule," she says.

Maloney says she picked the perfect time to retire. She is still young enough at 55 to jaunt around the globe.

Osgood is closing in two years and it was time to move on, she says.

"I want to see a young girl have the same wonderful experiences I have had," Maloney says.

Another sign that it might be time to retire, was that this year Maloney had the child of one of her previous first-grade students in her class.

She doesn't think of retirement as leaving though.

"I say thank you. I don't say goodbye because I am an emotional person," she says.

Maloney says that is still hasn't hit her that she won't be returning in September; however, it may hit home on the last day of school.

"When the buses pull out the 21st I may have to excuse myself from the lineup," she says.

When she goes traveling to different countries, Maloney says she'll be tempted to bring posters or other items home to put up in her classroom. But she'll refrain.

Maloney also plans to spend some time organizing three decades of pictures. Picture packets will be sent out, she says.

Along with the pictures, she has numerous memories.

When she first started teaching, all the first-graders, numbering about 100, were taught together in one huge classroom.

The setup lasted for about six years, says Maloney, and students, as well as teachers, learned a lot about cooperation.

She also remembers the time her students came out to present her with pink and white balloons on her wedding day.

She got married eight years ago at St. Anthony's in Cohasset.

Maloney will also remember the furry members of her classroom.

She started off with a white rabbit, Marshmallow, and her present class has, Shaggy, the gerbil.

"He looks like a toupee running around," she says with a giggle.

Maloney says one of the biggest changes she noticed over the years was the use of technology in the classroom.

"I think computers are great, but nothing takes place of a snuggle and a book," she says.

There will always be children in Maloney's life. She says she will be able to spend more time with her grandchildren, she has two adult daughters, and countless nieces and nephews.

She says she always envisioned herself like the mother in the book, "Cheaper By the Dozen," with 12 children.

Although only a mother of two, Maloney considers herself luckier than the book's character.

"I've been piling close to 1,000 students in cars and buses, or (they have been) walking like little ducks behind me."

Boards have openings

There are vacancies on the mosquito control committee, the personnel committee, drug & alcohol committee, and the zoning board of appeals which needs an associate member. Interested citizens should call the selectmen's office at 383-9900.

Fair Oaks homeowners have safety concerns

Members of the Fair Oaks Homeowners Association wrote to selectmen last week to ask for traffic signs and speed limits on their residential street.

"Over the past two years, residents noted a steady increase in speed and volume of automobile and truck traffic in our closed loop," wrote association president Steve Gaumer, vice president Mary Beth Carrier, and treasurer Paula Dickinson about the neighborhood.

The group wants "caution — children at play" signs installed at the beginning of the street and a 25 mile per hour speed limit established on the entirety of Fair Oaks Lane.

Selectmen will ask the safety officer to look into the matter.

ASP collecting books for Appalachian children

Appalachian Service Project volunteers are seeking donations of children's books to take to Appalachia this June. Used books in good condition should be dropped off at the main office of Cohasset High School before Thursday, June 20.

CHS students, college CITS and adult advisers will travel to West Virginia this summer, from June 22-30, to repair homes for needy families. Project participants would appreciate books donated by residents that they can read to children who have few books of their own during work breaks. The ASP will leave the books with needy families, a gift that will be well appreciated.

Invest in ASP 'stock'!

Cohasset residents are invited to take part in this year's Appalachia Service Project. Proceeds from the sale of 'stock' at $20 a share will be used for construction materials, transportation and room and board. Tax-deductible contributions may be sent, payable to SSC Youth Group, to Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., Cohasset 02025. For further information, call Gary Ritts (383-0345).

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

DON'T BUCK THE INEVITABLE

QUESTION: Why is real estate any better than the multitude of other investments I can choose?

ANSWER: The early settlers bought land for two cents an acre. Ever since then, real estate has provided the largest single means for individual wealth. Why real estate more than any other investment? Because of the principle of leverage.

In real estate, because of its excellent loan security, your profit can be magnified. For example, if you invest $25,000 as a down payment for a $100,000 building and this property later doubles in value, your profit would then actually be four times your cash investment of $25,000.

Depression: Treat It. Defeat It.

AROUND TOWN/Sallyann Chatterton

Lots of new graduates to announce this week!

Had a nice chat with Dave Lahive last week. He and his wife, Jan, had just returned from Rutgers. The reason for the journey was a thrilling one indeed — their son, Mark, graduated from law school! With honors! He is working in New York City, and we certainly wish him the most successful career imaginable! Mark is a 1985 CHS grad.

Penelope Prudden Redfield, mother of Sophie, Allie and Benjamin Redfield of Cohasset, received a master of arts degree in liberal studies from Simmons College May 20. She is currently employed at the college as assistant director of alumnae relations. She received an undergraduate degree from Simmons. Congrats go to you!

Judy Carey was among 75 college students who attended the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars' "Women as Leaders" seminar from May 13-24. Judy, the daughter of Lo Cheng Zhou of Cohasset, is a student at Suffolk University.

Everyone remembers Thomas Allen, right? Well, he is still making his name known in the athletic world! Thomas was awarded a letter in varsity boys track at Suffield Academy's spring athletic awards assembly May 23. He is the son of Zuline Gray Allen of Jamaica Plain.

Thomas graduated from Suffield May 25. He was also inducted into the Torch Society. Each spring current members of this honorary society elect as new members those students who in some way have made a special contribution to the spirit, life or sense of community of the school. The Torch Society is the primary means by which students recognize each other's contributions.

Speaking of athletics, here is the schedule for physicals the boys soccer team and football players are required to have if they plan to play fall sports. Football physicals will be held Thursday, Aug. 22, at 1:30 p.m. in the health room at CHS; boys soccer physicals are set for Friday, Aug. 23, at 9:15 a.m., also in the health room at CHS.

Dr. Robert T. Sceery, school physician, will be there only on those dates. Remember, no student will be allowed to begin practice until he or she has had a physical examination. Those who are unable to take advantage of these days must have their own doctor examine them and obtain a note stating they are in good physical condition and able to participate in athletics. Practices begin Monday, Aug. 26.

Elisha Yearwood happily accepts her diploma.

We are happy to report that John Drago is home "mending" after his accident during his commute to work. It was a scary time for John and his family, but all will be fine with rest and tons of love from his wife, Ingrid, and their son, who was a year old last week! Here's to a speedy recovery, John!

Phillips Academy has announced the school's honor roll for the winter term. To be named to the honor roll, students must maintain at least a 5-point grade average on a 6-point scale. We congratulate Patrick Gaughen, son of Robert and Margaret Gaughen, for making that grade. Patrick is a member of the Class of 1999.

"Topher" Henderson was one of 469 graduates from Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. He worked hard to earn a BA in psychology, and plans on a year in the job market; then it will be on to law school from there. He is the son of Richard and Linda Henderson.

Hats off to Mike Figueiredo, son of Janet Figueiredo. He has made the dean's list for the last three semesters at UMass, Dartmouth! He is now at Disney World in Orlando, Fl., at The Land, part of the Sun Season exhibit. He'll be working there for the summer and wants to extend an invitation to all of his friends to come and visit him there. It is a great place to work and is a greater place to visit. Give him a call (and be sure to congratulate him for all his hard work during the school year).

There is so much going on this weekend, as has been reported in past editions. Don't forget to include a great idea for your children — at the kid's tent at the Festival on the Common, they can make their own puppet (Friday, from 3 to 5 p.m.; Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.), then head to South Shore Community Center for a puppet show by Pat Boylan in the gym. "Peter Rabbit" and the "Three Billy Goats Gruff" will be presented at noon; "Gingerbread Boy" and "Three Billy Goats Gruff" at 12:45 p.m.; "Three Little Pigs" and "Billy Goats Gruff" at 1:30 p.m.; and "City Mouse, Country Mouse" and "Billy Goats Gruff" at 2:15 p.m. Admission is $2, payable at the door.

Have a wonderful weekend. We are sure to see you at some point during the various activities. And, please call with your news!

Engagements

Achille/Seddon

Sharon Achille of Gloucester Street, Boston and Joseph Achille of Cohasset announce the engagement of their daughter, Andrea Lynne Achille, to Charles Lawrence Seddon, the son of Barbara and Charles Seddon of Pittsfield.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of The University of Arizona at Tucson and Simmons College, Boston. She is a French and Spanish teacher at Bigelow Middle School in Newton.

Her fiancé is a graduate of The University of Lowell. He is a senior software engineer at Cadence Design Systems in Chelmsford.

An Aug. 31 wedding is planned.

Church to hold potluck suppers

The Beechwood Congregational Church will host potluck suppers during the next several months. Following each supper, a segment of the "Life on the Edge" video series by Dr. James Dobson of Focus on the Family will be presented.

The series offers a powerful presentation that equips teens and those who associate with them with the necessary skills for successfully dealing with the challenges of adulthood.

The suppers will begin at 6 p.m. in Merritt Hall at the church, followed by a video showing at 7 p.m.

You are the blizzard babies.

It's time to take the world by storm

EDITORIAL

Class of 1996, we salute you.

You are the blizzard babies. You blew into this world in the year of the great blizzard of '78.

We should have known you'd take the world by storm.

Mom and Dad took one look at you and loved you "Just the Way You Are," which happened to be the Grammy-winning song of the year by Billy Joel.

When you were coming home from the hospital, Jon Voight and Jane Fonda were winning Oscars for their own "Coming Home."

Congress voted against having firm quotas for affirmative action.

The House Committee on Assassinations concluded that there were conspiracies in the deaths of both JFK and Martin Luther King, Jr. but it had no hard evidence.

The Senate voted to give the Panama Canal back to Panama in the year 2000.

"The Deer Hunter" was the Oscar-winning Best Picture.

Everyone was suffering from "Saturday Night Fever," the best album ever released by the Bee Gees.

Boston's Jim Rice was the home run leader, the RBI king, and the MVP of the American League.

But the Red Sox did not win the World Series for the 60th year in a row. The Yankees did.

The Patriots were in the AFL playoffs, but slipped on the Oilers.

The Cowboys lassoed the Broncos in the Super Bowl.

Montreal beat out the Bruins for the Stanley Cup.

Leon Spinks defeated heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali, but Ali won the rematch, then retired in 1979.

Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Menachem Begin of Israel won the Nobel Peace Prize.

In 1983, when you were saying "Beat It" to pre-school and entering kindergarten, Michael Jackson was winning a Grammy for a song with the same title. He also had the year's best album, "Thriller."

A national commission said that U.S. elementary and secondary schools were mediocre, declaring the need to put more emphasis on English, math, social studies, and computer science.

The Supreme Court held that the IRS could deny tax exemption to private schools that practiced racial discrimination.

The House and Senate voted to free $625 million for MX missiles after Congress received assurances from President Reagan that he would be more flexible in arms talks with the Soviet Union.

The United States invaded a tiny nation called Grenada.

The E.P.A. warned that the earth would heat up by 1990, due to the greenhouse effect.

Hot on the silver screen was "Terms of Endearment," which won the Best Picture Oscar.

Robert Duvall was Oscar's Best Actor for his "Tender Mercies."

But the Red Sox were not merciful to their fans. They did not win the World Series for the 65th year in a row. Baltimore did.

The Redskins beat the Dolphins in the Super Bowl.

The Islanders bested Edmonton for the Stanley Cup.

Lech Walesa of Poland won the Nobel Peace Prize.

In 1989, the year you slipped from grammar school to middle school, the largest oil spill in U.S. history occurred in Alaska when the Exxon Valdez spilled over 240,000 barrels of oil.

Unemployment was the lowest in over two decades.

Oliver North was the first person convicted by a jury in the Iran-contra scandal

A massive earthquake struck San Francisco, causing 59 deaths and millions of dollars in property damage.

We invaded Panama, overthrowing the government of Manuel Noriega and ultimately capturing him.

Meanwhile, a kind and gentle Morgan Freeman was "Driving Miss Daisy" in the Oscar-winning Best Picture.

Daniel Day-Lewis needed only his "Left Foot" to win the Best Actor award.

Bette Midler rode the "Wind Beneath My Wings" to top honors in the music world.

The 49ers beat the Bengals in the Super Bowl.

Calgary owned the Stanley Cup that year, beating Montreal.

The Dalai Lama won the Nobel Peace Prize.

The Red Sox didn't win the World Series for the 71st year in a row.

In 1993, you were on the last leg of your journey. Bill Clinton was inaugurated as America's 42nd president.

A terrorist bomb killed six people when it was exploded in the garage of the World Trade Center in New York City.

Four federal agents were killed during an unsuccessful raid of the Branch Davidian Compound in Waco, Texas.

Janet Reno became the first woman to serve as attorney general.

Defense Secretary Les Aspin removed restrictions on aerial combat roles by women in the armed forces.

President Clinton approved a "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue" policy regarding homosexuals in the military.

Vincent Foster, the deputy White House counsel, committed suicide.

The Brady Bill, which requires a five-day waiting period for the purchase of guns, was passed.

The secretary of energy announced that 204 underground nuclear tests had been performed in Nevada without the knowledge of the public from 1963 to 1990. Some 800 people had been exposed to radiation between 1943 and 1990 during government experiments.

Investigations began into the Whitewater development company and the activities of Hillary and Bill Clinton.

A magnificent movie on the Holocaust, "Schindler's List," was the Oscar-winning Best Picture.

Tom Hanks copped Best Actor for "Philadelphia" and Holly Hunter was named best actress in "The Piano."

"I Will Always Love You," sang Whitney Houston, who won the Grammy.

She also had the year's best album in "The Bodyguard."

The Cowboys beat the Bills in the Super Bowl.

Montreal topped Los Angeles for the Stanley Cup.

Frederik W. deKlerk and Nelson Mandela won the Nobel Peace Prize.

The Red Sox didn't win the World Series for the 75th year in a row.

In your sophomore year, you couldn't blame the Red Sox for not winning the World Series because no one did, due to the unprecedented baseball strike.

During your four years in high school, you have seen the first Democrat elected to the presidency in 18 years and the first Republican Congress in 40.

You have seen a Shield turn into a Storm on a desert in Kuwait as U.S. forces defeated Iraq.

You have seen the Berlin Wall fall and a boxing champion named Mike Tyson jailed for rape.

You have seen the Soviet Union disintegrate and Chinese students massacred in Beijing.

You have seen apartheid crumble and free elections in South Africa.

You have witnessed a video of five cops beating a black man named Rodney King and a jury's verdict inflame the worst riots in the history of the country.

You have seen 90 members of a religious cult burned to death in Waco, Texas.

You have seen floods in the mid-west and the snowiest winter in history.

You have seen the final curtain of Camelot with the death of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and you watched her belongings auctioned off at preposterous prices.

You have relived D-Day in the memories of survivors 50 years later.

You have seen the Boston Garden close and the Fleet Center open. You have seen Reggie Lewis' fatal heart attack tainted with suspicions of drug abuse.

You've seen our beloved Larry Bird wave good-bye to the parquet floor and Michael Jordan's number retired, then re-hired.

You've watched in horror as a thug smashed skater Nancy Kerrigan's knee and a tale of treachery unfolded involving her teammate Tonya Harding. You watched in wonder as Miss Kerrigan gracefully skated in the Olympics, bested only by a tiny Ukranian orphan named Oksana Baiul. Now Nancy is expecting a tiny skater of her own.

You've seen a former football hero O.J. Simpson acquitted of a horrifying double murder in the trial of the century.

You've seem a federal building in Oklahoma bombed and 167 people killed in the worst act of terrorism the country has ever witnessed.

You have seen an all-out war against smoking and 100-year-old George Burns buried with his two favorite cigars.

You have seen our world tied together with dot.dot.com on the Internet. You have seen mail become E. You have seen reality become virtual.

Blizzard babies, each of you is as different as snowflakes.

It is time for you to find your individuality and put it to work for the good of humanity.

We need you. We need your intelligence, your talent, your compassion, and your honesty.

You must made life better in the 21st century. Perhaps in your class are the visionaries who will solve the problem of violence in the streets and strife among nations.

Perhaps in your class are the idealists who will conquer homelessness, illiteracy, and poverty.

Perhaps in your class is the doctor who will find the cure for AIDS, alcoholism, or mental illness.

We're handing you quite a mess.

Class of 1996, you've got a lot to fix.
